You raise your voice above the din, encouraging your allies to make a rapid series of attacks.

Daily ✦ Martial
Minor Action Close burst 5
Target: Each ally in burst
Effect: Until the start of your next turn, each target can make basic attacks as minor actions.
Resourceful Presence: Each target gains a bonus to the basic attack rolls equal to your Intelligence or Charisma modifier.

Stirring Declaration — Warlord Attack 22

As you attack, you cheer your friends on toward victory.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Requirement: You must be trained in Diplomacy.
Effect: Until the stance ends, each time you hit an enemy with an attack, allies within 10 squares of you gain temporary hit points equal to 5 + your Charisma modifier. You and your allies gain a bonus to saving throws against fear effects equal to your Charisma modifier.
Inspiring Presence: Each time you hit an enemy with an attack, one ally within 10 squares of you can make a saving throw.

Level 23 Encounter Exploits

Blood Begets Blood — Warlord Attack 23

With a brutal strike and a marshalling cry, you open your enemy's defenses. Your allies respond with a coordinated assault.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage. If the target is bloodied or reduced to 0 hit points by this attack, two allies within 5 squares of you can each make a basic attack as a free action.
Resourceful Presence: If the target is bloodied or reduced to 0 hit points by this attack, three allies within 5 squares of you can each make a basic attack as a free action.

Daring Display — Warlord Attack 23

You fling yourself against your enemy brutally, unleashing a fury that draws the eye of nearby enemies.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you mark and grant combat advantage to every enemy within 2 squares of you until the end of your next turn. Each of the enemies that attacks you grants combat advantage to your allies until the end of its next turn.
Bravura Presence: The attack deals extra damage equal to your Charisma modifier, and you can shift 1 square, whether or not you hit.

Quickening Force — Warlord Attack 23

The punishing blow you land on your enemy causes your allies to take heart and defy ill fortune.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage, and each ally within 5 squares of you can make a saving throw.
Resourceful Presence: Your allies gain a power bonus to the saving throw equal to your Charisma modifier.

Ringing Clarity — Warlord attack 23

The clang of your steel on your enemy's armor clears the cobwebs from your allies' heads.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the marked condition ends on any ally within 10 squares of you. Also, each ally within 10 squares of you automatically saves against a charm or a fear effect that a save can end.

Shutdown Smite — Warlord Attack 23

A well-placed attack throws your foe out of prime fighting form for a moment.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. Will
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target cannot recharge any of its powers or use action points until the end of your next turn.
Tactical Presence: The target also takes a penalty to saving throws equal to your Intelligence modifier until the end of your next turn.

Wounding Focus — Warlord Attack 23

You open a small wound on your foe as a pinpoint target for your allies.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. Reflex
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage. Until the start of your next turn, your allies gain combat advantage against the target and a power bonus to damage rolls against it equal to your Intelligence modifier.

WARLORD PERSONALITIES

Different warlord builds suggest different personalities. An inspiring or bravura warlord might exhort allies to mighty deeds through poetic speech or inspire allies through brave, perhaps even foolhardy, action. A tactical warlord might be more of a thinker, calculating odds, planning three rounds ahead in every fight, and mapping out each ally's best position. A resourceful warlord combines a thinking approach with keen instincts to find the best plan in each moment, changing strategies as circumstances shift.

Precision Stance — Warlord Attack 25

You take on a watchful bearing, lending your allies your battle acumen, allowing their wilder strikes to hit home more often.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, when an ally within 5 squares of you misses with an attack, you can take an immediate interrupt to allow the ally to reroll the attack roll with a bonus equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Primordial Onslaught — Warlord Attack 25

You attack like a force of nature, driving your opponents before you.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 1
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Strength vs. Will
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, each time you or an ally attacks any target of this power, you can slide the target 1 square after resolving the attack.

Sleeping Dragon Lure — Warlord Attack 25

You land a light blow to make yourself look weak, and when a foe gives in to temptation and attacks you, you explode in a burst of violence.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: You grant combat advantage to enemies that make melee attacks against you until the start of your next turn. If an enemy hits you with a melee attack while this effect lasts, you can make a secondary attack against the attacker as an immediate interrupt. You can shift 1 square closer to the secondary target before making the secondary attack. If no enemy attacks you in melee before the start of your next turn, you regain the use of this power.
Secondary Target: The attacking creature
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Bravura Presence: You gain a bonus to the secondary attack's attack roll and damage roll equal to your Charisma modifier.

Victorious Destiny — Warlord Attack 25

Your decisive strike turns the tide of battle as your allies find renewed ferocity.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be bloodied.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 6[W] + Strength modifier damage, and allies gain a +2 bonus to attack rolls until the end of the encounter.

Warlord's Resurgence — Warlord Attack 25

With deific speed and precision, you call out an opening for an ally's attack. You also spot an opportunity that you can later exploit.

Daily ✦ Martial
Standard Action Close burst 10
Target: One ally in burst
Effect: As a free action, the target can make an attack using an encounter attack power that he or she has already used during this encounter, and the target gains a +2 bonus to the attack roll. Also, if you have used all your encounter attack powers, you regain the use of a warlord encounter attack power you have used during this encounter.

Wave of Defeat — Warlord Attack 25

You and your comrades hurl your foes backward in a furious simultaneous assault.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you push the target 2 squares.
Miss: Half damage, and no push.
Effect: Each ally within 5 squares of you can make a melee basic attack as a free action. On a hit, the ally can push his or her target 1 square.

Level 27 Encounter Exploits

Abrupt Skirmish — Warlord Attack 27

Using feigned weakness or harsh words, you goad your enemies to attack you. Your allies instantly fall upon your foes in turn.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 2
Target: Each enemy in burst you can see
Effect: You pull each target 1 square to a space adjacent to you. You can't pull a target that can't end adjacent to you. You then attack one of the targets.
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage. Each enemy adjacent to you can make a melee basic attack against you as a free action, but each of your allies can make a basic attack against the enemy as an opportunity action triggered by the enemy's attack.
Bravura Presence: Each ally gains a power bonus to the attack roll and the damage roll equal to your Charisma modifier.

Brutal Setup — Warlord Attack 27

After a cautious approach, you deliver a wicked smite and your enemy staggers, becoming an obvious target for your friends.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Targets: One or two creatures
Effect: Before the attack, you can shift 3 squares.
Attack: Strength vs. AC, one attack per target
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is dazed until the end of your next turn.
Tactical Presence: Until the end of the encounter, your allies gain a power bonus to attack rolls against dazed enemies equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Eye of the Storm — Warlord Attack 27

With a gale of fierce swings, you give your enemies cause to consider you dangerous and your allies cause for hope.

Encounter ✦ Healing, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 1
Target: Each enemy in burst you can see
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you mark the target until the end of your next turn.
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, any of your allies who hit enemies marked by this power can use a free action either to make a saving throw or to spend a healing surge.
Resourceful Presence: If an ally makes the saving throw, he or she gains a power bonus to the roll equal to your Intelligence modifier. If an ally spends the healing surge, he or she regains additional hit points equal to your Charisma modifier.

Warlords and Polearms

A polearm is a great weapon for a warlord. Many warlord powers rely on specific positioning, granting benefits to allies adjacent to you or the target you're attacking. The reach of a polearm can help you get into the right position to make the best use of those powers.

Uplifting Assault — Warlord Attack 27

Your successful strike fills you with renewed hope that you can use to inspire your comrades.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you gain an additional use of inspiring word for this encounter.
Inspiring Presence: Until the start of your next turn, you can use inspiring word as an immediate reaction triggered by an ally taking damage.

Warlord's Indignation — Warlord Attack 27

An enemy dares to strike you, and you hurl him to the ground in retaliation. Your allies then make him pay for his insolence.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Immediate Reaction Melee weapon
Trigger: An enemy hits you with a melee attack
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you knock the target prone. Each of your allies can then make a basic attack against the target as an opportunity action.

Deific Rallying — Warlord Attack 29

You loose a tremendous shout, giving your allies confidence and instant attacks.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 20
Target: Each ally in burst
Effect: Each target gains 20 temporary hit points and can make a basic attack as a free action.
Inspiring Presence: Each target gains additional temporary hit points and a bonus to the basic attack's damage roll equal to your Charisma modifier.

Flawless Snare — Warlord Attack 29

With a practiced swing, you throw yourself off balance, making yourself into bait and your allies the waiting trap.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 6[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: You mark the target and grant combat advantage to it until the end of your next turn. Whenever the target attacks you before the end of your next turn, each ally within 10 squares of you can make a basic attack against it as an opportunity action triggered by its attack.
Bravura Presence: Each ally gains a bonus to the basic attack's attack roll and damage roll equal to your Charisma modifier.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Inexorable Surge — Warlord Attack 29

You deliver a spectacular attack, filling your allies with lethal resolve against your adversaries.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength + 2 vs. AC
Hit: 6[W] + Strength modifier damage. Until the end of the encounter, your allies gain a bonus to damage rolls against the target equal to your Charisma modifier. When the target is reduced to 0 hit points, choose another enemy within 5 squares of it, and your allies gain the bonus to damage rolls against that enemy. Each time the chosen enemy is reduced to 0 hit points, choose a different enemy within 5 squares of it.

Perfect Front — Warlord Attack 29

With practiced form, you and your allies create a battle line that allows you to attack with godlike precision.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, as long as you are adjacent to an ally, roll twice each time you make an attack roll and use the higher result. Any ally adjacent to you gains the same benefit.
Tactical Presence: You gain the benefit when within 2 squares of an ally, and an ally within 2 squares of you gains the benefit as well.

Wake of Devastation — Warlord Attack 29

Your furious weapon thrusts leave many trails of blood.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 1
Target: Each enemy in burst you can see
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Each target takes ongoing 15 damage (save ends). Each target taking ongoing damage grants combat advantage to you and your allies.
Resourceful Presence: You can reduce the damage to 1[W] to add 15 to the ongoing damage, or you can increase the damage to 5[W] by forgoing the ongoing damage.

Rallying Cry

"Steady," Anastrianna said. Cawing wildly, the shadow-ravens swarmed closer, and her allies shifted uneasily beside her. "Steady," she said again.

Suddenly, the ravens shot forward like swift arrows shot from a hellish bow. Behind them, their master, a tall sorrowsworn draped in black shrouds, strode forward, its baleful eyes fixed on Anastrianna. She cast her eyes around the barren field. Her friends clutched their weapons, waiting for her word.

"Now!" she cried. "In Corellon's name!"

She felt her own heart surge with elation as her friends leaped forward. She saw their faces refreshed, their courage strong, as each one cut into their enemies. The Raven Queen's minions would die this day, and Anastrianna herself would tell the tale as long as she lived.

Battlelord of Kord

"Fame find me or death take me, I'll storm any field in Kord's name."

Prerequisite: Warlord

Both Kord and Bane exult in battle. Bane sends his followers to conquer and pillage, using war for the sake of unjust gain, wanton violence, or sheer bloodlust. Kord's way is one of accepting challenges as they come and using mastered talents to overcome them. His dogma is one of bravery, strength, and skill. No test of mortal mettle is stronger than the crucible of battle. The glory and fame that Kord admonishes his followers to seek involves striving to win the respect of their fellows for upholding their duty and facing danger with their heads held high.

Warriors and warlords of all sorts esteem Kord. Those who know that fighting is sometimes necessary pray to Kord for favor, rather than to Bane. Such warriors know that it is the fate of a few to stand against senseless destruction and oppression. Kord's followers do so without flinching. They uphold the right to independence that Kord's wild nature demands. When battle is done, revelry, boasting, and toasting—celebrating life and health—are all that Kord requires as thanks.

Numerous schools of military thought use Kord's dogma as part of their philosophy. Leaders must be strong and courageous. They must hone their talents to assure victory and survival in bloody days. Renown should be earned through bold and decisive action that serves as an example to one's comrades. A valiant warlord protects his fellow soldiers by leading from the front and luring in the enemy, as Kord did in older days.

You are a leader who reveres Kord's ways. As such, you have shaped your skills by leading your comrades against many dangers. With a war cry, you fearlessly engage your enemies. You stride among your adversaries, seeking the greatest among them and challenging them with your amazing exploits. Your brashness inspires your allies to decisive action and helps create the opportunities in which triumph can be secured.

Battlelord of Kord Path Features

Mighty Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, any ally who can see and hear you gains a +1 bonus to attack rolls and damage rolls until the start of your next turn.

Tempestuous Inspiration (11th level): When you use your inspiring word power, you can give the target of the power a +2 bonus to attack rolls and a bonus to damage rolls equal to your Charisma modifier that lasts until the end of your next turn. If the target's first attack during that time misses, the target grants combat advantage to attackers until the end of your next turn.

Kord's Focus (16th level): Whenever you are marked, you can immediately make a saving throw against the condition. If you save, the condition ends. Also, you gain a +5 bonus to saving throws against fear effects.

Battlelord of Kord Exploits

Tempest of Triumph Battlelord of Kord Attack 11

Your killing blow sets off a chain reaction of inspired attacks, potentially laying low all your foes.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier + Charisma modifier damage. If this attack reduces the target to 0 hit points, an ally within 5 squares of you can make a basic attack against a different target as an immediate reaction, adding your Charisma modifier to the damage roll. If that ally's attack reduces its target to 0 hit points, a different ally within 5 squares of you gains the same benefit. Repeat until an attack fails to reduce a target to 0 hit points or until you run out of allies within 5 squares.

Blood-Tested Inspiration Battlelord of Kord Utility 12

Faith in Kord leads you to amazing exploits during the glory of battle.

Daily ✦ Martial
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Expend one use of inspiring word to regain the use of an encounter attack power you have used during this encounter.

Path of the Storm Battlelord of Kord Attack 20

You roam the field like a rogue thunderhead, striking foes as Kord strikes the earth with lightning.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Effect: You can shift a number of squares equal to your Charisma modifier. During this movement, you can make a number of melee basic attacks equal to your Charisma modifier against any enemies within reach. You can use as many of these attacks as you wish against any of the possible targets.

Borderlands Marshal

"We are as wolves. Evil is our prey."

Prerequisites: Warlord and ranger

On the bloody frontier, no system of honorable engagement holds. Evil and savage creatures view adherence to principles as weakness, and have no patience for complex plans. Monstrous beasts eat anything they can catch, with no chance for reason or mercy. Indeed, the wilderness as a whole has no respect for the conventions of society. In the wild, you act or you die.

This situation has always been true, even when great empires made portions of the land safe. It is doubly true now that no vast empire holds sway. No unified army stands ready to secure the borders and push back monsters, and few are willing to defend strangers. On the borderlands, far even from independent towns and their militias, people have to make do against the gathering darkness. That darkness grows each passing year as creatures, malevolent or merely hungry, gnaw away at the edges of civilized lands.

You know the wilds. Your experience on the borderlands has pushed you to pragmatism that other leaders lack. You strike first when you can, taking any advantage possible. If your approach fails, you do what is necessary to survive, and then try another tactic. When you attack, you make sure that you and your comrades are as efficient as any pack of predators.

Borderlands Marshal Features

Reinforcing Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, each ally who can see and hear you gains a +4 bonus to his or her lowest defense until the start of your next turn. If multiple defenses are tied for lowest, the ally chooses which one gains the bonus.

Grim Satisfaction (11th level): Allies gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls against your quarry.

Open Quarry (16th level): When you or an ally uses the Hunter's Quarry class feature, you or the ally can designate any enemy you can see as the quarry (rather than the nearest enemy).

LUCIO PARRILLO

Borderlands Marshal Exploits

Tag Quarry Borderlands Marshal Attack 11

Your attack shows all who the hunted is.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a heavy thrown weapon to use this power at range.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier, and you can designate the target as your quarry as if you had used the Hunter's Quarry class feature.

Pack Hunter Stance Borderlands Marshal Utility 12

You fight your chosen foe with a rhythm that shows your comrades how to form up during the assault.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, whenever you hit your quarry, you or one ally within 5 squares of you can shift as a free action.

New Victim Borderlands Marshal Attack 20

You brutally choose a new quarry by making a swift attack.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Free Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Trigger: Your quarry is reduced to 0 hit points
Requirement: You must be wielding a heavy thrown weapon to use this power at range.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: You can designate the target as your quarry as if you had used the Hunter's Quarry class feature.

Commando Captain

"These roughnecks bow to no king, but they do follow me. Under my command, they can go anywhere and do anything. What do you need?"

Prerequisite: Warlord

Sometimes a small squad of specially trained or highly skilled people can do what an army can't. A precise strike or a cunning raid can turn the tide in many dangerous situations. Numerous nobles and mercantile interests keep or patronize assault teams such as these for situations that call for decisive offensive action. A unit of such specialists can instead become its own employer, attacking and looting monster lairs on the borderlands and becoming rich in the process. Another such group might itself become a menace, turning superior combat prowess toward banditry or tyranny.

The world is in a dark age. Desperate times favor resourceful people. But even bold and venturesome folk need wily leadership to thrive. Such a leader helps a team hit hard and stay mobile, avoiding obstacles, overcoming foes, and keeping one step ahead of the enemy. In fact, precision command and an eye toward stealth can make all the difference in small-squad engagements.

You are such a leader, whether through formal training in elite unit command or as a result of direct experience, or both. Those who observe you might say you're the team's commander, but you see yourself as an expert facilitator among able peers. You know the skills of those with whom you work, and you always have the right trick to keep the whole party in fighting shape. The cohesion you have created among your comrades has seen you through much in the past, and it speaks of your future success.

Commando Captain Path Features

Commando Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, an enemy of your choice within 10 squares of you grants combat advantage to you until the end of your next turn.

Camouflaging Command (11th level): When you use a warlord power that grants movement to an ally, that ally gains concealment until the end of your next turn.

Mobility Tactics (16th level): Whenever an adjacent ally shifts, the ally can shift 1 additional square.

Commando Captain Exploits

Blindside Assault Commando Captain Attack 11

Your ally makes a sly sidelong attack, which opens up your foe to your surprise attack.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Effect: Before the attack, you slide one ally 6 squares to a space adjacent to the target. The ally can then make a melee basic attack against the target as a free action.
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.

Commando Maneuver Commando Captain Utility 12

You call on two allies to move watchfully into new positions.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Move Action Close burst 10
Targets: One or two allies in burst
Effect: The targets can shift 3 squares.

Morale-Shaking Strike Commando Captain Attack 20

Your attack causes your enemy to reel with indecision, which one of your allies can exploit.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, the target grants combat advantage to an ally of your choice.

HOWARD LYON

Concordant Leader

"The elements blend together favorably within my soul and on any battlefield where I have command."

Prerequisites: Genasi, warlord

Within the Elemental Chaos, disparate elements battle for supremacy. In numerous places, the land, sky, and sea roil in a never-ending clash of lightning and fire, poison gas and rolling earth, biting water and tearing wind. The chaos is much like a worldly battlefield on which no leader exerts control. Where one element dominates, the will of a mighty force of nature is often what makes it so.

The unrestrained chaos is much like a worldly battlefield on which no skilled leader exerts control. In such a combat zone, forces clash without clear direction. The tide of battle is all too often determined merely by fate. Clear advantage on one side or the other can rarely be overcome. One side overwhelms the other by happenstance or because of uneven odds. Victory is won at too heavy a cost.

A mythological genasi general of the ancient world, Vyn-kazi, knew the price of warfare's chaos all too well. She had witnessed it. Like the entropic realm from which they sprang, the great Primordials warred with the gods with no common purpose and no organization—no plan at all. Most of these mighty beings were fractious and grasping loners with armies of fierce slaves. They all but allowed the gods to coordinate against them. One by one, each and its armies succumbed to the gods and their legions.

Vyn-kazi survived a disastrous battle in which her master, Nekal of the Glowing Deep, fell against a host that included Pelor, Kord, Bane, Ioun, and Sehanine. The watersoul genasi went on to swear fealty to Pelor and to take on a fire-soul aspect in his name. She then led her people against other Primordials in service to the god of the sun, taking the calm blending of two elements in her spirit and what she had witnessed in Nekal's defeat as models for her command style.

Similar to celebrated Vyn-kazi, you have learned to mingle and control the elements that cavort in your body and spirit. Your military training has taught you how to guide a combat to triumph by blending the skills of your allies with the needs and variables of the challenge. You have applied your life's lessons to your teaching, acknowledging that every clash is a meeting of contrasting elements. By carefully mixing those forces, you need not rely on fortune for your success.

Concordant Leader Path Features

Concordant Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you can also change your elemental manifestation to any other you are capable of manifesting. When you do, you also regain the use of the power associated with the new manifestation if you have used it during this encounter.

Extra Manifestation (11th level): You gain the Extra Manifestation feat (Forgotten Realms Player's Guide). If you already have the feat, you instead select any other feat for which you meet the prerequisites.

Concordant Resistance (16th level): You gain resist 5 to cold, fire, and lightning. While any ally is adjacent to you, he or she gains the same resistances. These resistances are not cumulative with any other resistance you or your allies possess.

Concordant Leader Exploits

Borrowed Protection Concordant Leader Attack 11

Your elemental soul allows you to tap into your enemy's resistance to protect another.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage. If the target has any resistances, you grant the same resistances to yourself or an ally within 10 squares of you until the end of your next turn.

Shared Manifestation Concordant Leader Utility 12

You call upon the elemental power within you, imbuing a temporary fragment of it into a nearby ally.

Daily ✦ Martial
Minor Action Close burst 5
Target: One ally in burst
Effect: The target shares one elemental manifestation you are currently manifesting. The target can use the associated racial power of that manifestation, even if you have used that power during this encounter. If the target already has an elemental manifestation, the new manifestation replaces the previous one for the duration of this effect. The effect lasts until the end of the encounter or until you take a minor action to end it.

Elemental-Heart Strike Concordant Leader Attack 20

You channel your energy resistance into a potent melee attack, briefly leaving yourself unprotected.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon; Cold, Fire, or Lightning
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage. You lose your resistance to cold, fire, or lightning until the start of your next turn—whichever resistance is highest—and the attack deals extra damage equal to that resistance and of the damage type opposed by the resistance.
Miss: Half damage, and no extra damage.

Dujun of Erathis

"When diplomacy and philosophy fail, war brings advancement to the benighted."

Prerequisite: Warlord

Progress, taming of the wilds for the good of all, innovation, collaboration, and the rule of law—these are the values Erathis has set before mortals. Yet the nature of the world opposes her. Empires rise like beacons only to be shattered within a few centuries, leaving flickering shards of civilization behind. Still, in each age, a mighty and ambitious few rise to beat back the shadows and create a safe haven for common folk.

Those who follow Erathis's edicts range from plucky adventurers who rid the wilderness of dangers to would-be lords who subdue untamed lands to call their own. The god of civilization delights in the expansion of organized habitation. She blesses those who boldly make way for progress, as well as those who defend existing societies against fell beasts.

To truly and fully take Erathis's dogma to heart is to embrace both cooperation and leadership. You must be educated in the ways of governance and regulation, as well as be cognizant of the follies of history that ravaged the cultures of old. You must look outside the confines of secure walls and take Erathis's banner to new territory. To sit idly within the halls of established civilized edifices simply won't do.

So far, you have proven to be one of the few who can undertake this mission. You know that a true leader must be an authority in combat and in peace, but also be a guide who elicits the help of capable collaborators. You cultivate camaraderie, planning a meaningful role for all in battle and outside it. You have polished your party into the perfect cohesive unit, proven by the extraordinary heights at which it performs under your guidance. Now, it's time to move onward to broader conquest and, perhaps, your own dominion.

Dujun of Erathis Path Features

Organizing Action (11th level): You can spend an action point to grant each ally who can see and hear you an extra move action on his or her next turn, instead of taking an extra action yourself.

Communal Aid (11th level): When you use inspiring word, the target can spend one of your healing surges instead of his or her own, but still using his or her healing surge value.

Solidarity's Virtue (16th level): You and allies within 10 squares of you gain an extra +1 bonus when flanking or aiding another.

Dujun of Erathis Exploits

Graded Assault — Dujun of Erathis Attack 11

Your strike sends the enemy reeling, and it opens the way for a series of attacks from your comrades.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. Will
Hit: Deal your Strength modifier in damage. Until the start of your next turn, the target is dazed, and any ally within 5 squares of you who attacks the target with an at-will attack power can determine his or her attack result as if the result of the roll was a 10, instead of rolling the die.

Unification Stance — Dujun of Erathis Utility 12

Your very presence, symbolizing the unity of your allies, aids in their recovery.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, at the end of each of your turns, each ally within 5 squares of you can make a saving throw.

Diplomacy of Steel — Dujun of Erathis Attack 20

Each of your movements buttresses the impression of overwhelming force and perfect coordination among your allies.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. Will. Gain a bonus to the attack roll equal to the number of allies within 2 squares of you (maximum bonus of +4).
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: After the first attack, you can make a melee basic attack against the target. If the first attack reduced the target to 0 hit points, you instead gain temporary hit points equal to 10 + your Intelligence modifier, and then you can shift 2 squares and make a melee basic attack against another target.

Earthfast Brigadier

"Like Bergrom Earthfast, I endure."

Prerequisite: Warlord

A connection to the earth defines dwarves as a connection to woodlands defines elves. All dwarves intuitively heed the earth's example, from the sustenance and riches it provides to the inexorable might of the landslide it spawns. Dwarf bodies are durable; more than once they've been compared to the dirt and stone that dwarves treasure. Any would-be dwarf hero does well to take advantage of this natural sturdiness.

Innate toughness is a hallmark of dwarf soldiers and their leaders. Vigor makes for a soldier who can outlast the enemy by withstanding hardship and injury. A robust officer pushes troops onward not only with words, but also by determined example. Dwarf warriors are renowned for their endurance.

Bergrom Earthfast, a dwarf general of legend, exemplifies the ideal dwarf warlord. Mighty in body and mind, Bergrom led his troops against giants before dwarves became free from the slavery of the titans. He endured supernatural elements, fell magic, and the treacherous wilds of old to help bring freedom to his people. His legacy endures in a martial tradition that values a sturdy body and the ability to get one's allies to make the most of their own endurance, as much as it does tactical acumen. Although Bergrom was a dwarf and relied on dwarven resilience, his techniques have spread to other peoples. Anyone who values toughness and spirit in a soldier might learn these ancient methods.

You are such a leader. Even if you didn't acquire formal training in Bergrom's leadership approach—or aren't a dwarf—your talents have led you in a similar direction. Relying on a hardy constitution and heavy weapons as tools, you help your allies push the limits of mortal endurance. Your enemies are hard pressed to keep up.

Earthfast Brigadier Features

Enduring Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you and each ally within 5 squares of you can make a saving throw as a free action.

Earthfast Recovery (11th level): When you or any ally within 5 squares of you uses second wind while bloodied, that character regains additional hit points equal to one-half your level + your Constitution modifier.

Dwarven Payback (16th level): Whenever an enemy misses you with a melee or a ranged attack, you can choose one ally you can see as a free action. Until the end of the ally's next turn, the ally gains a power bonus to damage rolls equal to your Constitution modifier against the triggering enemy.

Earthfast Brigadier Exploits

Earthfast Assault Earthfast Brigadier Attack 11

Battering your foe mercilessly, you render it unable to move carefully.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be using a shield.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage. If the enemy moves before the end of your next turn, it grants combat advantage to you and your allies until the end of your next turn.
Weapon: If you're wielding an axe or a hammer, the attack deals extra damage equal to your Constitution modifier.

Press the Advantage Earthfast Brigadier Utility 12

You know how to pressure an enemy so that its faltering is inevitable.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Free Action Melee 1
Target: One creature
Effect: The target takes a penalty to its next saving throw equal to your Constitution modifier.

Stonechannel Strike Earthfast Brigadier Attack 20

With this powerful strike, you can turn the tide of battle.

Daily ✦ Healing, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage, and each ally within 5 squares of you regains hit points equal to 5 + your Constitution modifier.
Weapon: If you're wielding an axe or a hammer, the attack deals extra damage equal to your Constitution modifier.
Effect: You and each ally who can see you regain the use of second wind.

Flamebrow Commander

"You've awakened the dragon. Now you face the fire."

Prerequisites: Warlord, Bravura Presence class feature

A dragon driven to wrath is a terrifying foe. It stops at nothing to quench its fury in the blood of those who wronged it. Only the desire to protect its young can drive a dragon to even greater heights of recklessness. A dragonborn warrior is little different, and a dragonborn officer displays parental loyalty to those alongside whom he fights. Such is the dragonborn warrior ideal.

An exemplar of this standard was Dhuryan Flamebrow, an audacious but beloved dragonborn mercenary from the fringes of the empire of Arkhosia. Dhuryan was noble born, but upon him fell the consequences of his father's dark deeds. Without title or property in the empire, and living under the shadow of family history, he made his way as a soldier and leader. He made a habit of leading from the front with a brashness born of being indifferent to death. Glory and the erasing of the past was his overriding aim, yet he was unwilling to sacrifice his fellow fighters for his own gain.

Dhuryan succeeded in reshaping the armies of a border province known for its barbarism and monster problems. Eventually, that province and its dragon lord became the most prominent in Arkhosia, although only Dhuryan's name is widely remembered to this day. At long last, Dhuryan had cleansed his family name. He rose then to prominence as a military advisor and became a general in the wars that eventually destroyed Arkhosia. During this time, he penned the military manifesto titled Flamebrow, in honor of his clan. Myths from many cultures say that Dhuryan fought in numerous wars in this world and beyond, and that he fell but returned to life more than once. Tales say that he stands now beyond the touch of time, alongside other legendary generals, awaiting the world's need.

Flamebrow still exists, copied into many languages. It is a treatise for the commander who wishes to defeat enemies head-on. Although it speaks of deceptive planning and long-term strategies, it also talks of brutal efficiency and courageous leadership when battle is joined.

Whether through influence, reading and practice, or direct training, your path has been influenced by Flamebrow. Boldness of action fails to fully describe your methods. You act decisively, willing to lay your own survival on the line to get the job done and protect your allies.

Flamebrow Commander Path Features

Relentless Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you can use your Bravura Presence class feature as if you were your own ally.

Flamebrow Revival (11th level): When you are dying, you add your Charisma modifier to any hit points you regain, and you gain a bonus to death saving throws equal to your Charisma modifier.

Roaring Recovery (16th level): Each time you regain hit points when you are bloodied, you gain a +2 bonus to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

Flamebrow Commander Exploits

Flamebrow Assault — Flamebrow Commander Attack 11

On your cue, your comrade attacks. You build on his or her success to land your own strike.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Effect: Before the attack, one bloodied ally within 5 squares of you can make a basic attack as a free action, with a bonus to the attack roll equal to your Charisma modifier. If that attack hits, you gain a +2 bonus to your attack roll; if it misses, you take a -2 penalty to your attack roll.
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage.

Rallying Lure — Flamebrow Commander Utility 12

Paying more attention to the welfare of your flagging friends than to your own safety, you shout heartening words.

Daily ✦ Healing, Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, you grant combat advantage to all enemies. At the start of your turn, each bloodied ally within 5 squares of you regains hit points equal to your Charisma modifier. If no bloodied allies are within 5 squares of you at the start of your turn, the stance ends.

Renewal Smite — Flamebrow Commander Attack 20

An ally pushes to greater heights, urged on by your dauntless attack.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage, and one bloodied ally you can see regains the use of an encounter attack power he or she has used during this encounter.

Infernal Strategist

"No pact binds me to a single strategy."

Prerequisites: Warlord, Resourceful Presence class feature

Bael Turath's armies were warlike beyond mortal measure. Backed by the power of the Nine Hells, the leaders of the tiefling empire thought their forces could overcome any challenge. And in fact the legions of Bael Turath were often victorious, a testament to their officers as much as their supernatural might.

The most infamous of Bael Turath's generals was a tiefling known today as Malachi. As a lower-ranking officer in campaigns of conquest, Malachi proved to be a disciplined and innovative commander, renowned for being able to adapt to any situation. He watched and learned from his enemies, changed tactics at pivotal moments, and regularly used what he knew of his enemies against them. Malachi never knew defeat until he faced forces under the command of Dhuryan Flamebrow of Arkhosia.

Stories differ on what happened next. Some say Arkhosia's leaders put Malachi to death. Others claim that he retired alongside Dhuryan, whom he befriended. A few claim that Malachi now marshals the forces of the Nine Hells.

Whatever his fate, Malachi's brilliance is the root of a tradition of battlefield leadership that has spread across the world. A collection of writings from Bael Turath known as The Hellpath Tome supposedly preserves a portion of Malachi's own writings. You might have benefited from such education. Perhaps your leanings led you on a crafty path much like Malachi's. Whatever your background, you know how to conjure victory from situations most dire.

LUCIO PARRILLO

Infernal Strategist Path Features

Felling Action (11th level): You can spend an action point as a free action to allow an ally who can see and hear you to reroll an attack roll.

Infernal Pincer (11th level): When you and an ally are both flanking an enemy, you and that ally gain a bonus to melee damage rolls against that enemy equal to your Intelligence or Charisma modifier.

Pliable Command (16th level): You gain a second warlord Commanding Presence. You can apply only one Commanding Presence benefit for each action point spent.

Infernal Strategist Exploits

Deceiver's Ploy Infernal Strategist Attack 11

You feint, then lunge, setting your foe off balance.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. Will. If you are using a shield, you gain combat advantage for this attack.
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target takes a –2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

Flexible Authority Infernal Strategist Utility 12

You have the answer for any desperate situation.

Encounter ✦ Healing, Martial
Immediate Reaction Close burst 10
Trigger: One ally within 10 squares of you spends an action point to take an extra action
Target: The triggering ally in burst
Effect: You choose for the target to gain one of the following benefits: regain hit points equal to one-half your level + your Charisma modifier; gain a bonus to the extra action's attack rolls equal to one-half your Intelligence modifier; gain a bonus to the extra action's damage rolls equal to one-half your level + your Intelligence modifier; or make a basic attack or take a move action as a free action but grant combat advantage to all enemies until the end of his or her next turn.

Smite of Devil's Luck Infernal Strategist Attack 20

Your intrepid attack lands, setting up the opportunity for greater daring.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage. You gain an action point, which must be spent before the end of the encounter or it is lost. Spending this action point doesn't count against the normal limit of action points spent per encounter.

Longarm Marshal

"I prefer my foes on the end of a spear."

Prerequisite: Warlord

The spear and its cousins have existed almost as long as creation. It was the first weapon ever made, and it and its variants are still the most common arms in use. Simple spears are designed heavy for melee or light for throwing. A melee spear can be used with one hand or two. Specialized variations of the spear such as the longspear, the tratnyr (described in Adventurer's Vault), and various polearms were specifically designed for war. Such weapons provide a huge boon in the form of reach, allowing a wielder to strike from relative safety and to control the melee. Others, the tratnyr in particular, are multipurpose.

Spears are the perfect weapon choice for small-unit commanders who like flexibility. Javelins and other thrown spears enable their wielders to loose volleys at a closing enemy, or make a viable option against a foe that prefers to stay at a distance. With a single spear, a warrior can choose to fight with a shield or without. Longspears and polearms allow an officer to contribute to combat while leading from behind the front line, where the clash can be better observed and directed.

Cognizant of the benefits of the spear, you chose to specialize in this multifaceted weapon. You trained to make long lunges and quick jabs with your weapon. A spear's haft is a defensive tool for you, and you have learned how to hedge in your foes or open deep wounds. Your skill is a blessing to your allies, who have seen that your mastery makes you a more reliable leader.

Longarm Marshal Path Features

Accurate Thrust (11th level): You gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls when wielding a spear.

Longarm Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you increase your melee reach by 1 square when wielding a spear until the end of your next turn.

Bristling Reach (16th level): Whenever an enemy within your melee reach moves without shifting or makes a ranged attack, you can deal damage equal to your Intelligence modifier to that enemy as an opportunity action.

Longarm Marshal Exploits

Driving Spear — Longarm Marshal Attack 11

You force your foe away with a pointed thrust.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a spear.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you push the target a number of squares equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Whirling Spear — Longarm Marshal Utility 12

Using your spear's haft like a staff, you deftly parry incoming attacks.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Requirement: You must be wielding a spear.
Effect: Until the stance ends, you gain a +1 bonus to AC, or a +2 bonus to AC when wielding a spear with two hands.

Vital Rend — Longarm Marshal Attack 20

With a stab and a twist, you tear a wound that saps vitality, weakening the enemy's resistance to subsequent blows.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a spear.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: The target takes ongoing damage equal to 5 + your Intelligence modifier (save ends). Until the ongoing damage ends, each melee or ranged attack that hits the target deals extra damage equal to the ongoing damage.

LUCIO PARRILLO (2)

Platinum Warlord

"Those who favor peace at all costs are noble, but misguided. Sometimes battle is the only righteous choice."

Prerequisites: Warlord, good or lawful good

Bahamut requires his devotees to protect the innocent and the weak. Those who revere the Platinum Dragon are ever watchful for the rise of evil, and in particular the followers of Tiamat. Negotiation with Tiamat's forces is rarely useful and often fatal. The tenets of justice also require adherents of Bahamut's faith to oppose injustice and despotism. Although the metallic dragon god is a lover of peace, his laws regularly require battles and crusades.

Many valiant folk who serve Bahamut are paladins or clerics. But Bahamut spurns no noble soul's offer of service. Even those without divine investiture have a place in the effort to bring Bahamut's light to the world's gloomy places. Secular leaders who venerate Bahamut lend power to the Platinum Dragon's cause by ensuring order, honor, and justice in worldly institutions.

Temples dedicated to honorable battle invariably include Bahamut among the gods respected. Such places teach techniques and values aimed at bringing virtue to the world by example rather than by exhortation. Those sent to learn are often warriors or nobles bound for a nation's military.

Perhaps you came to Bahamut through such schooling. Other good-hearted people find the Platinum Dragon's ways through personal devotion or study, or even providence. Bahamut willingly instills a small measure of divine grace in those who show true commitment. Your heroic deeds and pure heart have proven you to be worthy of Bahamut's blessing. So you carry Bahamut's mark, using his minor gifts to protect, heal, and shine forth as a model of justice.

Platinum Warlord Path Features

Protector's Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, each ally who can see and hear you gains a +1 bonus to all defenses until the start of your next turn. If that ally is bloodied, the bonus is +2 instead.

Platinum Scales (11th level): You gain the Armor Proficiency (Scale) feat, even if you don't meet the prerequisites.

Righteous Inspiration (16th level): When you use inspiring word on a bloodied ally, all enemies adjacent to the target take radiant damage equal to your Charisma modifier and are marked by you until the end of your next turn.

Platinum Warlord Exploits

Platinum Blood Smite Platinum Warlord Attack 11

Although you waver, your conviction lends you strength to strike and push on.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage. If you are bloodied, you or an ally within 5 squares of you can use second wind as a free action.

Bahamut's Liberation Platinum Warlord Utility 12

Your sense of justice, rather than fickle fate, ends your ally's pain.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Minor Action Close burst 5
Target: One ally in burst
Effect: Negate any ongoing damage affecting the target.

Exemplar's Talon Platinum Warlord Attack 20

In desperate straits, you strike. Your example as a shining paragon of justice cheers your allies.

Daily ✦ Healing, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be bloodied.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: You and each bloodied ally within 5 squares of you regain hit points equal to your armor's armor bonus (including its enhancement bonus) + your Charisma modifier.

Spiral Tactician

"The circle of my fey steps encompasses one center—victory."

Prerequisites: Eladrin, warlord, Tactical Presence class feature

The Feywild, home of the eladrin, is a wondrous reflection of the world. Within that plane, beauty thrives that defies the worldly mind, but so too does evil. Eladrin are as prone to wickedness as humans are, and in a bygone age, the drow were also natives of the Feywild.

In a time long before other great empires, eladrin faithful to Corellon fought bitter wars within the Feywild against the followers of Lolth and other evil fey. These wars culminated in what came to be known as the Last Battle of the Spiral Tower. During that clash, the Corellon loyalists finally turned the tide and a hero was born.

Ossandrya was an eladrin squad commander when the Last Battle of the Spiral Tower began. Drow and demons had taken the mythic site during a protracted battle that saw the eladrin fighting on many fronts. Several fruitless assaults on the enemy-held tower cost Ossandrya's superiors their lives. With reinforcements unavailable, the eladrin commander was forced to lead the remaining troops against the drow. She devised a multipronged attack that utilized the eladrin's fey step, taking the biggest risks on herself and having no regard for the tower's ultimate fate. In the end, Ossandrya's efforts proved successful. Although the Spiral Tower was reduced to a blackened spindle bereft of magic, the eladrin drove the drow out for good.

In time, the Spiral Tower was rebuilt. Ossandrya, who survived other campaigns that drove the drow out of the Feywild, eventually passed from the mortal realm. She is counted among legendary warlords. Within the ruins of the Spiral Tower, her story is recorded. Eladrin warriors across the Feywild study her brilliant strategies and tactics, many of which require fey powers.

You have studied Ossandrya's story and schemes, or you have intuited similar ploys thanks to your fey nature. It could be that some combination of these possibilities influenced your course in life. You have a strongly tactical mind, a sharp sense of space and timing, and the ability to adapt your powers to tactical needs. These aptitudes serve you well in your battles, leading you toward the acclaim Ossandrya has long possessed.

Spiral Tactician Path Features

Second Step (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you regain the use of your fey step racial power if you have used it during this encounter.

Spiral Timing (11th level): When you and your allies roll initiative, you can allow one ally you can see to reroll with a bonus equal to your Intelligence modifier. The ally must use the new result.

Fey Tactics (16th level): The attack bonus provided by your Tactical Presence is equal to your Intelligence modifier (instead of one-half your Intelligence modifier).

Spiral Tactician Exploits

Fey Step Assault — Spiral Tactician Attack 11

You step through the Feywild to deliver a significant strike from an unexpected angle.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. Reflex. If you used fey step to move adjacent to the target during this turn, you gain combat advantage for this attack and it deals 1[W] extra damage.
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.

Convey Ally — Spiral Tactician Utility 12

With fey sight, you know exactly how and where to place an ally. You can move him or her there through the Feywild.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Teleportation
Move Action Ranged 20
Target: One ally
Effect: You teleport the target a number of squares equal to your fey step distance.

Spiral of Fey Death — Spiral Tactician Attack 20

In a moment of perfect clarity, you teleport to each nearby enemy and deliver a crushing strike.

Daily ✦ Martial, Teleportation, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength + 2 vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: You either slide the target a number of squares equal to your Intelligence modifier or deal ongoing 10 damage (save ends). You can then teleport adjacent to a different target within 3 squares of you and repeat the attack against the new target. Until you have attacked each eligible target once, you can teleport adjacent to a different target within 3 squares of your starting position and repeat the attack against the new target. You then teleport back to your starting position.

Twiceborn Leader

"My story will live on. Will yours?"

Prerequisite: Warlord

The folktale of Jarret the Twiceborn is told throughout the lands. Although humans and elves cherish this celebrated figure, many other peoples speak of him with reverence. Tales differ about his actual heritage, human or half-elf. It is known that he was born to common folk outside elf lands in a kingdom that would one day be part of the empire of Nerath.

Jarret's natural charm won him friends above his station, including young nobles with little or no chance of inheritance. As a result, Jarret gained martial training and took to forming groups of do-gooders and fortune seekers. His ability to lead these small bands to success against all odds came to be well documented. He and his comrades traveled widely and are credited with making life safer in many places. Jarret's companions seldom left the adventuring life for any reason other than significant wealth; certainly death was not the primary reason.

Jarret wasn't so lucky. He fell in battle against the mind flayers of Thoon deep within the Underdark. No magic could bring him back.

The story doesn't end there, however. Many believe Jarret was reborn as a lad of the same name who grew up in nearly the same place. This perhaps-reincarnated Jarret became an inspiring leader and hero like his namesake. He performed similar deeds, and never refuted claims that he was the same Jarret. Instead, he used the rumor to his advantage, renewing former ties of friendship and striking fear into old enemies. He became known for taking special interest in opposing aberrant creatures, such as mind flayers. Those who knew and loved him eventually dubbed him Jarret the Twiceborn. Yarns say he lives still in the heavens, alongside great generals from times past.

Jarret's accomplishments and methods are recorded in story, history, and song. From these, many venturesome souls draw inspiration and try to duplicate Jarret's feats. Some successful imitators even claim to teach his methods.

Maybe your natural talents led you on a road similar to Jarret's. You've taken what you could from folktales and, perhaps, teachers. In your travails, you carry on Jarret's folk-hero tradition. In doing so, perhaps you'll become even greater than the Twiceborn.

Twiceborn Leader Path Features

Twiceborn Recovery (11th level): When you use inspiring word, you can choose two targets instead of one. Each target can spend a healing surge but doesn't gain extra dice of healing normally granted by the power. When you use this path feature, you can't choose yourself as a target.

Assault Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, each ally within 10 squares of you gains a +2 power bonus to attack rolls until the start of your next turn.

Twofold Defense (16th level): Each ally who can see and hear you when he or she uses second wind gains a +4 bonus to all defenses (instead of the usual +2) until the end of his or her next turn.

Twiceborn Leader Exploits

Reminiscent Assault Twiceborn Leader Attack 11

You attack in the name of Jarret, taking the action to new heights if you strike your enemy down.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage. If the target is an aberrant creature, you and your allies gain a +4 power bonus to attack rolls against the target until the end of your next turn. If this attack reduces the target to 0 hit points, you or one ally within 10 squares of you can make a basic attack as a free action.

Twinning Ploy Twiceborn Leader Utility 12

You and a chosen ally engage in a complex maneuver that distracts your enemies enough to assure the success of your attacks.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Choose an ally within 5 squares of you. Both you and the ally, on your own turns, can roll an extra d20 and choose the higher result for one attack roll each turn. Until the stance ends, this effect applies only when you are both conscious and within 5 squares of each other.

Seconded Smite Twiceborn Leader Attack 20

When the going is rough, you are at your best, allowing an ally to mirror your ruinous attack.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC. You gain a bonus to the attack roll equal to the number of conscious allies within 10 squares of you who have already used second wind during this encounter (maximum bonus of +4).
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: One ally within 10 squares of you who has already used second wind during this encounter can shift a number of squares equal to your Charisma modifier and then make a melee basic attack as a free action.

CHAPTER 5

Martial Options

In the Dungeons & Dragons game, more options mean more fun. This chapter focuses on expanding the choices that allow you to customize your martial character. With few exceptions (such as the multiclass feats), the options here are solely for such PCs.

- New Feats: As in the Player's Handbook, this chapter presents feats by tier. Whether you're a warlord who wants to improve your inspiring word, a rogue who wants to complement the new Ruthless Ruffian tactic, or any martial character who wants a bit of flavor from your race, scores of new possibilities reside here.
- Multiclass Feats: If you have your eye on expanding your capabilities by dabbling in a martial class, this section of the chapter is for you. Even if your primary class isn't martial, you might find something of interest. In doing so, you also open access to the paragon paths elsewhere in this book.
- Epic Destinies: The mythic warrior takes many forms. These new epic destinies expand your (and your DM's) options for defining your ascent to legendary status.

Genasi and Drow Feats

A few of the feats in this chapter are designed for genasi or drow characters. (Those two races are described in the Forgotten Realms® Player's Guide.) If your campaign doesn't include characters of these races, you can disregard those feats.

JEREMY JARVIS

Feats offer a remarkable opportunity to customize your character. These feats focus on martial activity and providing interesting options for martial characters.

You must meet a feat's prerequisites, if any, to take the feat. If you ever lose a prerequisite for a feat (for example, if you use the retraining system to replace training in a prerequisite skill with training in a different skill), you can't use that feat thereafter. A feat that has a class as a prerequisite is available only to members of that class, including characters who have joined the class through a class-specific multiclass feat.

Heroic Tier Feats

Any feat in this section is available to a character of any level who meets the prerequisites. Heroic tier feats and multiclass feats are the only feats you can take if you are 10th level or lower.

Aggressive Assault

Prerequisites: Rogue, Brutal Scoundrel class feature, First Strike class feature

Benefit: At the beginning of an encounter, whenever you hit a target that has not yet acted, you slide that target 1 square.

Ankle Cutter

Prerequisites: Halfling, rogue, Sneak Attack class feature

Benefit: When you hit a Large or larger enemy and would deal Sneak Attack damage against that target, you can forgo rolling Sneak Attack damage and instead cause the target to be slowed until the end of your next turn. Using this option counts as using Sneak Attack for the round.

Beast Guidance

Prerequisites: Ranger, Beast Mastery class feature

Benefit: Your beast companion gains a +2 feat bonus to any skill in which you are trained.

Beast Protector

Prerequisites: Ranger, Beast Mastery class feature

Benefit: If an enemy makes a melee attack against your beast companion, doing so provokes an opportunity attack from you. If you are adjacent to your beast companion, you can make this attack even if you can't reach the attacker (you attack the attacker's reaching limb, for instance).

Beast Training

Prerequisites: Ranger, Beast Mastery class feature

Benefit: Your beast companion gains training in a skill. If you change beast companions, you can also change the skill that this feat grants to your beast companion.

Special: You can take this feat more than once. Each time you select this feat, your beast companion gains training in a skill.

Bloodied Invigoration

Prerequisites: Con 13, dragonborn, fighter

Benefit: When you hit with a power that has the invigorating keyword while you are bloodied, you gain an additional 2 temporary hit points.

Bold Command

Prerequisites: Halfling, warlord, Bravura Presence class feature

Benefit: If an enemy that has combat advantage against you misses with a melee attack, your allies gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls against that enemy until the start of your next turn.

Bolstering Inspiration

Prerequisites: Dwarf, warlord

Benefit: When you use inspiring word on an adjacent ally, that ally either regains additional hit points equal to your Wisdom modifier or can make a saving throw.

Bracing Breath

Prerequisites: Con 13, dragonborn, fighter

Benefit: When you use your dragon breath racial power, you gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls for powers that have the invigorating keyword until the end of your next turn.

Bravura Spirit

Prerequisites: Dragonborn, warlord, Bravura Presence class feature

Benefit: When a bloodied ally uses your Bravura Presence, that ally gains either a +2 bonus to the attack roll or a +2 bonus to speed for the move action (the ally's choice).

Breath-Resistant Beast

Prerequisites: Dragonborn, ranger, Beast Mastery class feature

Benefit: Your beast companion gains resist 5 + one-half your level to the damage type of your dragon breath racial power.

Brutal Accuracy
Prerequisites: Elf, ranger, Hunter's Quarry class feature
Benefit: If the rerolled attack granted by your elven accuracy racial power hits your quarry, the attack deals extra damage equal to 1d6 + your Wisdom modifier.

Brutal Teamwork
Prerequisites: Str 15, dragonborn, rogue
Benefit: You gain a +2 bonus to damage rolls when you are adjacent to at least one ally.

Brutal Wound
Prerequisites: Rogue, Brutal Scoundrel class feature, Sneak Attack class feature
Benefit: When your attack deals ongoing damage and you deal Sneak Attack damage to the target, add 1 to the ongoing damage for every die of Sneak Attack damage dealt.

Camouflage
Prerequisites: Ranger, trained in Stealth
Benefit: When you have any cover or concealment outdoors, you gain a +5 feat bonus to Stealth checks.

Command the Darkness
Prerequisites: Drow, warlord
Benefit: When you use your cloud of darkness racial power, you can choose for it to lightly or heavily obscure its area, instead of totally obscuring it. If you reduce the darkness in this way, creatures inside the cloud are not blinded.

Coordinated Opportunity
Prerequisites: Ranger, Beast Mastery class feature
Benefit: If your beast companion is adjacent to the target of your opportunity attack, you gain a +2 bonus to the damage roll.

Cunning Ambusher
Prerequisites: Tiefling, rogue
Benefit: If you use infernal wrath when you have combat advantage against the attack's target, you gain a bonus to the attack and damage rolls equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Darkfire Targeting
Prerequisites: Drow ranger or drow rogue
Benefit: Whenever you deal Sneak Attack or Hunter's Quarry damage to the target of your darkfire power, the attack deals extra damage equal to your Wisdom modifier.

Deep Gash
Prerequisites: Con 15, fighter
Benefit: When you deal ongoing damage that has no damage type to a target as a result of an attack that uses an axe or a pick, the target takes a –2 penalty to saving throws against the ongoing damage.

Defensive Resilience
Prerequisites: Con 13, Wis 13, fighter
Benefit: When you use second wind while you are bloodied, you gain a +1 bonus to all defenses, in addition to the normal bonus for second wind, until the end of your next turn.

Devoted Challenge
Prerequisites: Dwarf, fighter, Combat Challenge class feature
Benefit: When you make a melee basic attack granted by Combat Challenge, you gain a bonus to the attack and damage rolls equal to your Wisdom modifier.

Dirty Fighting
Prerequisite: Fighter or rogue
Benefit: You gain a +4 bonus to melee weapon damage rolls against surprised enemies.

Dragging Flail
Prerequisites: Dex 15, fighter
Benefit: Whenever you use a flail to knock an enemy prone, you can also slide that enemy 1 square.

Drow Beast Mastery
Prerequisites: Drow, ranger, Beast Mastery class feature
Benefit: Your beast companion is immune to the effect of your cloud of darkness racial power.

Dwarf Stoneblood
Prerequisites: Dwarf, fighter, Battlerager Vigor class feature
Benefit: Add one-half your Constitution modifier to the temporary hit points granted by your Battlerager Vigor.

Dwarf Trapsmith
Prerequisites: Dwarf, rogue
Benefit: You gain a +4 feat bonus to Perception checks to find traps and to Thievery checks to open locks or disable traps.

Elven Beast Mastery

Prerequisites: Elf, ranger, Beast Mastery class feature

Benefit: Your beast companion ignores difficult terrain when it shifts.

You can use your elven accuracy racial power to reroll an attack roll you made or one your beast companion made.

Expert Tracker

Prerequisites: Wis 13, ranger, trained in Nature

Benefit: You gain a +5 feat bonus to Perception checks to find tracks.

Add 5 to the Perception DC for other creatures to find your tracks. You can extend this benefit to up to ten allies traveling with you.

Fey Blades

Prerequisites: Eladrin, fighter, Tempest Technique class feature

Benefit: When you're wielding two light blades, two heavy blades, or a heavy blade and a light blade, you gain a +1 bonus to damage rolls.

FEY BLADES

Eladrin weaponers often make bladed weapons in matched pairs. Whether two identical blades, one heavy and one light, or a double sword, the weapons are made to look good together. More important, they are balanced together so that they seem to fit perfectly in the wielder's hands.

Fey Command

Prerequisites: Eladrin, warlord, Tactical Presence class feature

Benefit: When an ally you can see spends an action point to make an attack, the ally can teleport 1 square before or after the attack.

Feyborn Companion

Prerequisites: Eladrin, ranger, Beast Mastery class feature

Benefit: Your beast companion gains the fey origin, instead of the natural origin, and a +5 bonus to saving throws against charm effects.

When you use your fey step racial power, your beast companion can teleport the same distance that you teleport.

Fiendish Companion

Prerequisites: Tiefling, ranger, Beast Mastery class feature

Benefit: Your beast companion gains resistance to fire equal to 5 + one-half your level.

Group Assault

Prerequisites: Half-elf, fighter

Benefit: Allies gain a +1 bonus to damage rolls against targets marked by you.

Group Quarry

Prerequisites: Half-elf, ranger, Hunter's Quarry class feature

Benefit: Allies gain a +1 bonus to damage rolls against your quarry.

Group Rattling

Prerequisites: Half-elf, rogue, trained in Intimidate

Benefit: Allies gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls against enemies that have a penalty to attack rolls as a result of your successful attack with a power that has the rattling keyword.

Halfling Stalwart

Prerequisites: Halfling, fighter

Benefit: You gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls against Large or larger creatures marked by you.

Human Beast Mastery

Prerequisites: Human, ranger, Beast Mastery class feature

Benefit: Your beast companion gains a +1 bonus to all defenses.

Hunter of Wind and Wave

Prerequisites: Genasi, ranger

Benefit: When you use your swiftcurrent or windwalker racial power, add 2 squares to the distance the power allows you to move.

Hunter's Aim

Prerequisites: Ranger, Hunter's Quarry class feature

Benefit: You don't take the normal -2 penalty to attack rolls against your quarry if it has cover or concealment.

Improved Bravura

Prerequisites: Warlord, Bravura Presence class feature

Benefit: When an ally uses your Bravura Presence, that ally gains either a +1 bonus to the attack roll or a +1 bonus to speed for the move action (the ally's choice).

Improved Inspiration

Prerequisites: Warlord, Inspiring Presence class feature

Benefit: Your Inspiring Presence restores an additional 2 hit points.

Improved Inspiring Word

Prerequisite: Warlord

Benefit: Add your Charisma modifier to the hit points restored by your inspiring word.

Improved Resources

Prerequisites: Warlord, Resourceful Presence class feature

Benefit: Add 2 to the damage bonus and the temporary hit points granted by your Resourceful Presence.

Improved Tactics

Prerequisites: Warlord, Tactical Presence class feature

Benefit: Add 1 to the attack roll bonus granted by your Tactical Presence.

Improved Vigor

Prerequisites: Fighter, trained in Endurance

Benefit: You gain 1 additional temporary hit point each time you gain temporary hit points from a power that has the invigorating keyword.

If you have the Battlerager Vigor class feature, this benefit also applies to the temporary hit points gained from it.

At 11th level, this bonus increases to 2 additional temporary hit points. At 21st level, this bonus increases to 3 additional temporary hit points.

Inspired Defense

Prerequisites: Human, warlord

Benefit: When you use inspiring word, the target also gains a +1 power bonus to all defenses until the start of your next turn.

| Warlord Feat | Prerequisites | Benefit |
|---|---|---|
| Bold Command | Halfling, warlord, Bravura Presence | Allies gain +1 to attack rolls against enemy that misses you |
| Bolstering Inspiration | Dwarf, warlord | Saving throw or additional hp for inspiring word target |
| Bravura Spirit | Dragonborn, warlord, Bravura Presence | Bloodied ally gains additional bonus from Bravura Presence |
| Command the Darkness | Drow, warlord | Change how much cloud of darkness obscures its area |
| Fey Command | Eladrin, warlord, Tactical Presence | Ally can teleport before or after attacking |
| Improved Bravura | Warlord, Bravura Presence | Ally gains +1 to attack rolls or speed with Bravura Presence |
| Improved Inspiration | Warlord, Inspiring Presence | Ally gains +2 hp with Inspiring Presence |
| Improved Inspiring Word | Warlord | Add Cha modifier to inspiring word hp restored |
| Improved Resources | Warlord, Resourceful Presence | Ally gains +2 damage and temporary hp from Resourceful Presence |
| Improved Tactics | Warlord, Tactical Presence | Ally gains +1 to attack rolls with Tactical Presence |
| Inspired Defense | Human, warlord | Ally gains +1 to all defenses with inspiring word |
| Inspired Tactics | Half-elf, warlord, Inspiring Presence | Ally gains +1 to attack rolls when spending action point |
| Leading Fire | Elf, warlord, Combat Leader | Allies gain +1 to ranged attack rolls against target |
| Lend Might | Warlord | +1 to attack rolls of attacks you grant |
| Saving Inspiration | Warlord | Ally gains saving throw with inspiring word |
| Tactical Inspiration | Eladrin, warlord | Add Int modifier to inspiring word hp restored |
| Unbalancing Wrath | Tiefling, warlord | Infernal wrath target grants combat advantage |

Inspired Tactics

Prerequisites: Half-elf, warlord, Inspiring Presence class feature

Benefit: When an ally who can see you spends an action point to make an attack, that ally gains a +1 bonus to the attack roll.

Into the Fray

Prerequisites: Rogue, First Strike class feature

Benefit: During the surprise round and the first round of an encounter, you gain a +1 bonus to your speed and to your melee attack rolls.

Keeper of Storm

Prerequisites: Genasi, fighter, Combat Challenge class feature

Benefit: If you are manifesting stormsoul when you make a melee basic attack granted by Combat Challenge, you can choose for the attack to deal thunder damage or lightning damage instead of its normal damage type.

Leading Fire

Prerequisites: Elf, warlord, Combat Leader class feature

Benefit: When you hit an enemy with a bow attack, each ally within 10 squares of you who can see and hear you gains a +1 bonus to ranged attack rolls against the attack's target until the start of your next turn.

Lend Might

Prerequisite: Warlord

Benefit: When an ally makes an attack granted by one of your warlord powers to attack an enemy adjacent to you, that ally gains a +1 bonus to the attack roll.

Lingering Wrath

Prerequisites: Tiefling, fighter, Combat Challenge class feature

Benefit: When you use the infernal wrath racial power against an enemy marked by you, you gain the bonuses from infernal wrath against that enemy until it is no longer marked by you.

Longsword Finesse

Prerequisites: Eladrin, rogue

Benefit: You can wield a longsword to deal Sneak Attack damage and to use rogue powers that require a light blade (you still cannot throw the longsword). You reduce Sneak Attack damage by one die when using a longsword.

Lucky Skirmisher

Prerequisites: Halfling ranger or halfling rogue

Benefit: When you run, enemies making opportunity attacks against you during that movement must roll twice and take the lower result.

Martial Alacrity

Prerequisites: Dex 15, any martial class

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to initiative checks. Also, during your first turn in an encounter, you can shift as a minor action.

Martial Freedom

Prerequisites: Wis 13, any martial class, trained in Endurance

Benefit: You gain a +5 bonus to saving throws against the slowed and immobilized conditions.

Master of Rumbling Earth

Prerequisites: Genasi, fighter

Benefit: You gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls with your earthshock racial power, and you deal damage equal to your Strength modifier to enemies knocked prone by the power.

Nimble Companion

Prerequisites: Halfling, ranger, Beast Mastery class feature

Benefit: Your beast companion gains a +2 bonus to AC against opportunity attacks.

When an attack hits your beast companion, you can use your second chance racial power on the beast's behalf.

Offensive Resilience

Prerequisites: Dex 13, Wis 13, fighter

Benefit: When you are bloodied and use second wind, you gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

Opportunistic Accuracy

Prerequisites: Wis 13, elf, fighter

Benefit: If you use your elven accuracy racial power to reroll an opportunity attack and the second roll misses, you do not expend the power.

Polearm Momentum

Prerequisites: Dex 15, Wis 15, fighter

Benefit: Whenever you use a polearm or a spear attack to push or slide a target 2 or more squares, you can also knock that target prone at the end of the forced movement.

Predatory Action

Prerequisites: Ranger, Hunter's Quarry class feature

Benefit: If you spend an action point to take an extra action and have already dealt Hunter's Quarry damage during this round, you can deal the extra damage a second time during this turn.

Prime Strike

Prerequisite: Ranger

Benefit: You gain a +1 bonus to melee attack rolls against a target if no other creatures are within 3 squares of it.

Rash Sneak Attack

Prerequisites: Human, rogue, Sneak Attack class feature

Benefit: When you deal Sneak Attack damage, you can choose to gain a +2 bonus to the damage roll. If you do so, you grant combat advantage to all enemies until the end of your next turn.

Rattling Wrath

Prerequisites: Cha 15, tiefling, rogue

Benefit: When you use your infernal wrath racial power in conjunction with a power that has the rattling keyword, the penalty to the target's attack rolls from the rattling keyword changes to –4.

If you score a critical hit with this attack, you do not expend infernal wrath.

Reaping Blade

Prerequisites: Dex 15, fighter

Benefit: If you reduce an enemy to 0 hit points with an attack using a heavy blade, you can shift as a minor action until the end of your current turn.

Reckless Scramble

Prerequisites: Rogue, Artful Dodger class feature

Benefit: When a power lets you shift, you can instead choose to move that distance + 2 squares.

LEONARDO BORAZIO (2)

Ruthless Injury
Prerequisites: Rogue, Ruthless Ruffian class feature, Sneak Attack class feature

Benefit: When you use a club or a mace to make a sneak attack that causes the target to become blinded, immobilized, slowed, or weakened, that target takes a –2 penalty to saving throws against any of those conditions.

Saving Inspiration
Prerequisite: Warlord

Benefit: When you use inspiring word, you can forgo any extra dice of healing granted by the power to instead grant the target a saving throw.

Secure Encampment
Prerequisites: Wis 13, ranger, trained in Nature, Perception, and Stealth

Benefit: If you are conscious when you and your allies begin an extended rest, your allies gain a bonus to Perception checks and Stealth checks during that rest equal to your Wisdom modifier. This bonus lasts until the end of the extended rest.

Shield Defense
Prerequisites: Wis 13, fighter

Benefit: When you hit with a power that requires a shield, you gain a +1 bonus to AC and Reflex until the end of your next turn or until you stop using the shield.

Sideways Defense
Prerequisites: Human, fighter, Combat Challenge class feature

Benefit: Allies adjacent to you gain a +1 bonus to all defenses against any creature marked by you.

Slaying Action
Prerequisites: Rogue, Sneak Attack class feature

Benefit: If you spend an action point to take an extra action and have already dealt Sneak Attack damage during this round, you can deal the extra damage a second time during this turn.

Sneaky Accuracy
Prerequisites: Elf, rogue, Sneak Attack class feature

Benefit: If you use your elven accuracy racial power to reroll an attack against an enemy granting you combat advantage and the second roll misses, you do not expend elven accuracy.

Speedy Response
Prerequisites: Dex 15, rogue

Benefit: If you are hit by an opportunity attack while moving, you gain a +1 bonus to speed for that move. This benefit is cumulative if you are hit multiple times.

Street Thug
Prerequisites: Str 13, Con 13, rogue

Benefit: You can wield a mace with any rogue power that requires a light blade. You reduce Sneak Attack damage by one die when wielding a mace.

Surprising Charge
Prerequisites: Dex 17, fighter or rogue

Benefit: When you make a charge attack against a target that is granting combat advantage to you, the attack deals 1[W] extra damage if you hit with a light blade or a spear.

Tactical Inspiration
Prerequisites: Eladrin, warlord

Benefit: Add your Intelligence modifier to the hit points restored by your inspiring word.

Take Measure
Prerequisites: Wis 15, fighter

Benefit: When you score a critical hit against a target with a melee attack, you gain a +2 bonus to all defenses against that target's attacks until the end of your next turn.

Thunder Hammer

Prerequisites: Con 15, fighter

Benefit: When you make an attack using a hammer or a mace that causes the target to become dazed, immobilized, slowed, or stunned, that target takes a –2 penalty to saving throws against any of those conditions.

Thundertusk Companion

Prerequisites: Dwarf, ranger, Beast Mastery class feature

Benefit: If you select a boar as your beast companion, its maximum hit points increase by an amount equal to your level.

Trap Sense

Prerequisites: Wis 13, rogue

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to all defenses against attacks by traps and to Perception checks to find traps.

Tunnel Stalker

Prerequisites: Str 13, Con 13, dwarf, rogue

Benefit: You can use any rogue power that requires a light blade while wielding an axe, a hammer, or a pick with one hand. You reduce Sneak Attack damage by one die when wielding one of these other weapons.

Two-Fisted Shooter

Prerequisite: Rogue

Benefit: You can treat the hand crossbow as an off-hand weapon, and you can reload it one-handed as a free action. When you score a critical hit and have a hand crossbow in your off hand, you can make a ranged basic attack with that weapon.

Unbalancing Wrath

Prerequisites: Tiefling, warlord

Benefit: The target of an attack benefiting from your infernal wrath racial power grants combat advantage to your allies until the start of your next turn.

Vengeful Beast

Prerequisites: Ranger, Beast Mastery class feature, Hunter's Quarry class feature

Benefit: When your quarry damages you with an attack, your beast companion gains a +1 bonus to attack rolls and damage rolls against that creature until the end of your next turn.

Victor's Confidence

Prerequisites: Con 15, fighter

Benefit: When you reduce an enemy to 0 hit points with a melee attack, you gain a +1 bonus to saving throws until the end of the encounter.

Wielder of Piercing Flame

Prerequisites: Genasi, rogue

Benefit: When you have combat advantage against the target of your firepulse racial power, that power ignores any fire resistance or immunity possessed by the target.

Paragon Tier Feats

Any feat in this section is available to a character of 11th level or higher who meets the feat's other prerequisites.

Agile Tempest

Prerequisites: 11th level, Dex 15, fighter, Tempest Technique class feature

Benefit: The damage bonus granted by your Tempest Technique when you wear chainmail or light armor increases by 1. At 21st level, it increases by 2.

Avandra's Gift

Prerequisites: 11th level, halfling, rogue

Benefit: When you use your second chance racial power and the enemy's attack misses, you gain combat advantage for the next attack roll you make against that enemy before the end of your next turn.

Avenging Spirit

Prerequisites: 11th level, human fighter or human warlord

Benefit: When an ally of your level or higher is reduced to 0 hit points or fewer, you gain an action point that you must use before the end of your next turn or the action point is lost. You must see or hear the ally when he or she is reduced to 0 hit points or fewer to gain this feat's benefit.

Bleeding Backstab

Prerequisites: 11th level, rogue, Sneak Attack class feature

Benefit: Whenever you deal Sneak Attack damage to a target with a rogue daily attack power, the target takes ongoing 5 damage (save ends). If the power already deals ongoing damage that has no damage type, instead increase that ongoing damage by 5.

Bleeding Precision

Prerequisites: 11th level, ranger, Hunter's Quarry class feature

Benefit: Whenever you hit your quarry with a ranger daily attack power, the target takes ongoing 5 damage (save ends). If the power already deals ongoing damage that has no damage type, instead increase that ongoing damage by 5.

Bloody Inspiration

Prerequisites: 11th level, dragonborn, warlord

Benefit: If you use inspiring word while you are bloodied and do not target yourself, a second ally within the power's range gains temporary hit points equal to twice your Constitution modifier.

Bloody Tenacity

Prerequisites: 11th level, human, any martial class

Benefit: When you are bloodied for the first time in an encounter, you gain a +2 bonus to all defenses until the end of your next turn.

Chainmail Agility

Prerequisites: 11th level, Dex 15, fighter

Benefit: You ignore the speed penalty normally incurred by wearing chainmail.

Combat Opening

Prerequisites: 11th level, half-elf, fighter, Combat Challenge class feature

Benefit: When you can make a melee basic attack against a target because of Combat Challenge, you can instead choose to let an ally make a melee basic attack against that target as a free action.

Cull the Weak

Prerequisites: 11th level, Cha 15, rogue

Benefit: When you have combat advantage against a bloodied or a weakened target, you gain a +2 bonus to melee weapon damage rolls against the target.

Darkhunter

Prerequisites: 11th level, drow, ranger, Hunter's Quarry class feature

Benefit: When you use the cloud of darkness racial power, each enemy within the cloud is designated as your quarry until it is no longer within the cloud. These quarries don't count toward the normal limit of one quarry, and any other creature designated as your quarry remains so. You can deal Hunter's Quarry damage against each quarry that you hit in the cloud.

Darkjumper

Prerequisites: 11th level, drow, rogue

Benefit: On the turn when you use the cloud of darkness racial power, you can teleport once to any unoccupied square within the cloud as a free action.

Daunting Challenge

Prerequisites: 11th level, fighter, Combat Challenge class feature

Benefit: Creatures marked by you take a –3 penalty to attack rolls for any attack that doesn't include you as a target (rather than a –2 penalty).

Defensive Surge

Prerequisites: 11th level, Con 15, warlord

Benefit: When you use your second wind, you can grant the +2 bonus to all defenses to an adjacent ally, in addition to gaining the bonus yourself.

Distracting Companion

Prerequisites: 11th level, ranger, Beast Mastery class feature, Hunter's Quarry class feature

Benefit: If your quarry is adjacent to your beast companion when you hit your quarry with an attack, your quarry takes a –2 penalty to attack rolls against you and your beast companion until the start of your next turn.

Draconic Arrogance

Prerequisites: 11th level, dragonborn, fighter

Benefit: Whenever you push an enemy or knock an enemy prone, you deal damage to that enemy equal to your Strength modifier.

Dragonbreath Warrior

Prerequisites: 11th level, dragonborn, any martial class

Benefit: When you use your dragon breath racial power, your next melee weapon attack deals 1[W] extra damage on a hit. The damage type is the same as your dragon breath.

| Vital Inspiration | Half-elf, warlord | Allies regain more hp with second wind |
| Warlord's Formation | Int 17, warlord | Aid two allies simultaneously |

Elemental Companions

Prerequisites: 11th level, genasi, warlord

Benefit: Adjacent allies benefit from any resistance or saving throw bonus you have because of your current elemental manifestation.

Elemental Guardian

Prerequisites: 11th level, Con 15, genasi, fighter

Benefit: While you are adjacent to any ally, your innate racial defensive talent improves. Apply the benefit for your current elemental manifestation.

Earthsoul: Increase racial bonus to saving throws to +2.

Firesoul, Stormsoul, or Windsoul: Increase resist value by 5.

Watersoul: Increase racial bonus to saving throws against ongoing damage to +4.

Enduring Wallop

Prerequisites: 11th level, dwarf, fighter

Benefit: When you hit an enemy with a fighter daily attack power while wielding an axe, a hammer, or a pick, that enemy takes ongoing damage equal to your Constitution modifier (save ends). If the power already deals ongoing damage that has no damage type, instead increase that ongoing damage by an amount equal to your Constution modifier.

Evasive Footwork

Prerequisites: 11th level, Dex 17, Cha 15, rogue

Benefit: When you shift 2 or more squares on your turn, you gain a +1 bonus to AC and Reflex until the start of your next turn.

Fey Charge

Prerequisites: 11th level, eladrin, fighter

Benefit: When you charge, you can use your fey step racial power as a free action to replace up to 5 squares of your charge movement with teleportation.

If the charge attack hits, you do not expend fey step.

Fey Gambit

Prerequisites: 11th level, eladrin, rogue

Benefit: When you use your fey step racial power to move adjacent to an enemy, you gain combat advantage against that enemy until the end of your turn.

Fey Tactics

Prerequisites: 11th level, eladrin, warlord

Benefit: When you use your fey step racial power, you can also teleport one ally within 5 squares of your starting position a distance equal to your fey step distance.

Fiendish Defender

Prerequisites: 11th level, tiefling, fighter, Combat Challenge class feature

Benefit: Your infernal wrath racial power can also be applied to any enemy marked by you that hit an ally since your last turn.

Grit

Prerequisites: 11th level, Con 17, fighter

Benefit: When you spend a healing surge to regain hit points, you also gain temporary hit points equal to your Constitution modifier.

Group Flanking

Prerequisites: 11th level, half-elf, rogue

Benefit: While you're flanking an enemy, all allies gain combat advantage against that enemy.

Halfling Beast Mastery

Prerequisites: 11th level, halfling, ranger, Beast Mastery class feature

Benefit: Your beast companion can use the second chance racial power as an encounter power. This use doesn't count against your use of the power, and vice versa.

Hunter's Advantage

Prerequisites: 11th level, elf, ranger, Hunter's Quarry class feature

Benefit: You deal 2 extra damage with Hunter's Quarry when you have combat advantage against your quarry.

Hunter's Resurgence

Prerequisites: 11th level, ranger, Hunter's Quarry class feature

Benefit: When you reduce your quarry to 0 hit points, you can use your second wind as a free action. You do not gain the normal bonus to defenses if you do so.

Impetuous Charger

Prerequisites: 11th level, Cha 15, warlord

Benefit: When you charge an enemy, your allies gain combat advantage against that enemy until the end of your next turn.

Infernal Sneak Attack

Prerequisites: 11th level, tiefling, rogue, Sneak Attack class feature

Benefit: If you deal Sneak Attack damage with an attack benefiting from your infernal wrath racial power, you deal an extra die of Sneak Attack damage.

Marked Scourge

Prerequisites: 11th level, fighter, Combat Challenge class feature

Benefit: Add your Wisdom modifier to damage rolls you make against enemies marked by you.

Mighty Battlerage

Prerequisites: 11th level, Con 15, fighter, Battlerager Vigor class feature

Benefit: The damage bonus granted by your Battlerager Vigor increases by 1. At 21st level, it increases by 2.

Opportunistic Archer

Prerequisites: 11th level, elf, fighter, Combat Challenge class feature

Benefit: When you can make a melee basic attack against a target because of Combat Challenge, you can instead make a ranged basic attack with a bow against the target. The ranged basic attack does not provoke opportunity attacks.

Opportunistic Sneak Attack

Prerequisites: 11th level, rogue, Sneak Attack class feature

Benefit: When you hit with an opportunity attack and deal Sneak Attack damage, the target is slowed until the end of your next turn.

Phalanx Warrior

Prerequisites: 11th level, fighter or warlord, proficiency with light or heavy shields

Benefit: When you are using a shield, adjacent allies gain a +1 shield bonus to AC.

Preternatural Senses

Prerequisites: 11th level, Wis 15, ranger, trained in Perception

Benefit: Whenever you make a Perception check, roll twice and use the higher result.

Prime Quarry

Prerequisites: 11th level, Wis 15, ranger, Hunter's Quarry class feature, Prime Shot class feature

Benefit: The bonus to attack rolls granted by Prime Shot increases to +2 if the target is also your quarry.

Prime Slayer

Prerequisites: 11th level, elf, rogue

Benefit: While none of your allies are closer to your target than you are, you gain a +2 bonus to damage rolls for ranged attacks against that target.

Protective Beast

Prerequisites: 11th level, ranger, Beast Mastery class feature

Benefit: Whenever your beast companion is adjacent to you, you gain a +1 bonus to AC.

Reckless Attacker

Prerequisites: 11th level, fighter

Benefit: When you score a critical hit with a fighter attack power, you can make a melee basic attack as a free action. If you do so, you take a –2 penalty to AC until the end of your next turn.

Reliable Resources

Prerequisites: 11th level, warlord, Resourceful Presence class feature

Benefit: When an ally who can see you spends an action point to take an extra action and doesn't use that action to make an attack, the ally gains temporary hit points equal to your Charisma modifier.

Rogue Weapon Mastery

Prerequisites: 11th level, rogue, Rogue Weapon Talent class feature

Benefit: When you wield a dagger or a shuriken, the weapon gains the high crit property.

Roundabout Charge

Prerequisites: 11th level, rogue, trained in Acrobatics

Benefit: When you charge, you can end your movement in any square adjacent to the target from which you can attack it.

Steadfast Tactics
Prerequisites: 11th level, dwarf, warlord
Benefit: When you use inspiring word on an ally, that ally can reduce pull, push, and slide effects against him or her by 1 square until the end of the encounter.

Stonefoot Reprisal
Prerequisites: 11th level, dwarf, fighter
Benefit: If an adjacent enemy pushes or slides you, you can make an opportunity attack against that enemy before the forced movement. If the attack hits, you can negate the forced movement.

Sturdy Beast
Prerequisites: 11th level, ranger, Beast Mastery class feature
Benefit: Your beast companion gains one additional healing surge as well as additional hit points equal to 5 + your Wisdom modifier.

Vital Inspiration
Prerequisites: 11th level, half-elf, warlord
Benefit: Any ally who can see and hear you adds your Charisma modifier to the hit points regained by using second wind.

Warlord's Formation
Prerequisites: 11th level, Int 17, warlord
Benefit: When you use the aid another action, you can aid up to two allies. You must provide the same aid to both allies (for instance, you can't aid one ally's attack roll and another ally's defenses, and you can't aid attack rolls against different targets).

Wrathful Hunter
Prerequisites: 11th level, tiefling, ranger, Hunter's Quarry class feature
Benefit: If you use your infernal wrath racial power against your quarry, you gain a +3 power bonus to your next attack against the target (instead of +1).

Epic Tier Feats
Any feat in this section is available to a character of 21st level or higher who meets the feat's other prerequisites.

Action Grant
Prerequisites: 21st level, Int 15, Cha 15, warlord, Resourceful Presence class feature
Benefit: When you roll initiative at the start of an encounter, you can give one of your action points to an ally you can see. That action point must be spent during the encounter or it is lost.

Aggressive Leadership
Prerequisites: 21st level, Cha 19, warlord
Benefit: While you are conscious, bloodied allies who can see and hear you gain a +2 bonus to damage rolls.

Epic Recovery

Prerequisites: 21st level, Con 19, any martial class

Benefit: You can use your second wind twice per encounter.

Feywild Warrior

Prerequisites: 21st level, Dex 17, eladrin, any martial class

Benefit: When you hit a target with a martial daily attack power, you can teleport yourself and the target 5 squares after you resolve the attack.

Fortune's Warrior

Prerequisites: 21st level, Dex 17, halfling, any martial class

Benefit: When you use the second chance racial power against an attacker, you gain combat advantage with martial attack powers against that attacker until the end of your next turn.

Hawkeye Warrior

Prerequisites: 21st level, Wis 17, elf, any martial class

Benefit: When you use the elven accuracy racial power, you gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls against the target of the attack until the end of the encounter.

Improved Prime Shot

Prerequisites: 21st level, Wis 17, ranger, Prime Shot class feature

Benefit: The bonus to ranged attack rolls granted by your Prime Shot is +2 instead of +1.

Infernal Warrior

Prerequisites: 21st level, Cha 17, tiefling, any martial class

Benefit: When an enemy scores a critical hit against you, you can use your infernal wrath racial power against that enemy as a free action, even if you have already used the power this encounter.

Invigorating Exploit

Prerequisites: 21st level, any martial class

Benefit: Choose a martial encounter attack power that you know. That power gains the invigorating keyword.

Special: Each time you gain a level, you can choose to assign this feat's benefit to a different power and remove it from the power to which it currently applies.

Knock-Back Swing

Prerequisites: 21st level, Con 17, fighter

Benefit: When you make an opportunity attack with an axe, a hammer, a mace, or a pick, you push the target 1 square, whether or not the attack hits.

Lasting Advantage

Prerequisites: 21st level, rogue

Benefit: Whenever you score a critical hit with a rogue attack power, the target of the attack grants combat advantage to you until the end of your next turn.

Martial Mastery

Prerequisites: 21st level, any martial class

Benefit: When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you also regain the use of a martial encounter power you have used during this encounter.

Martial Resolve

Prerequisites: 21st level, Wis 15, any martial class, trained in Endurance

Benefit: You can make saving throws against the dazed, slowed, stunned, weakened, and immobilized conditions at both the start and the end of your turn.

Mobile Warrior

Prerequisites: 21st level, Dex 17, fighter

Benefit: When you make an attack with a flail, a heavy blade, a light blade, or a spear, you can shift 1 square after resolving the attack, whether or not it hits.

One with Shadow

Prerequisites: 21st level, rogue

Benefit: While you are hidden from an enemy, you can move through that enemy's space and remain hidden.

Peerless Hunter

Prerequisites: 21st level, Wis 17, ranger, Hunter's Quarry class feature

Benefit: When designating a target as your quarry, you can designate a second target within 5 squares of the first target as your quarry as well. When you designate a third target as your quarry, you decide which of the previous two quarries is no longer your quarry.

Practiced Reliability

Prerequisites: 21st level, fighter

Benefit: Choose a fighter encounter attack power that you know and that has a single target and a single attack roll. That power gains the reliable keyword.

Special: Each time you gain a level, you can choose to remove this feat's benefit from the power and assign it to a different power.

Prime Hunter

Prerequisites: 21st level, ranger

Benefit: You gain a +1 bonus to melee attack rolls against any target that is adjacent to no creature other than you.

Protective Leadership

Prerequisites: 21st level, Int 19, warlord

Benefit: Choose a martial encounter attack power that you know. That power gains the rattling keyword.

Special: Whenever you gain a level, you can choose to assign this feat's benefit to a different power and remove it from the power to which it currently applies.

Reaching Whirlwind

Prerequisites: 21st level, Dex 15, Wis 15, fighter

Benefit: While wielding a reach weapon, you can treat any fighter attack power that has the weapon keyword and that is a close burst 1 as a close burst 2 instead.

Rending Tempest

Prerequisites: 21st level, Dex 17, fighter or ranger

Benefit: When you hit a target with a melee attack using two weapons during your turn, your subsequent melee attacks against the target deal 1[W] extra damage on a hit during the same turn.

Ruthless Terror

Prerequisites: 21st level, Str 17, rogue, trained in Intimidate

Benefit: When you miss with a rattling attack, the target takes a -1 penalty to attack rolls against you until the end of your next turn.

Staggering Shot

Prerequisites: 21st level, ranger, Hunter's Quarry class feature

Benefit: When you hit your quarry with a ranged attack, you can forgo dealing Hunter's Quarry damage to instead cause the target to become slowed until the end of your next turn.

Stoneheart Warrior

Prerequisites: 21st level, Con 17, dwarf, any martial class

Benefit: You can use your second wind as a free action.

LEONARDO BORAZIO

Supreme Inspiration

Prerequisites: 21st level, Cha 19, warlord

Benefit: Whenever you use inspiring word, you can heal two targets instead of one (either two allies or one ally and yourself).

Surprise Action

Prerequisites: 21st level, Wis 17, ranger

Benefit: During the surprise round, you can take a standard action, a move action, and a minor action if you aren't surprised.

Tactical Cunning

Prerequisites: 21st level, Int 17, warlord

Benefit: Whenever you use a warlord power to slide an ally, that ally gains a +2 bonus to AC until the end of your next turn.

Tactical Insight

Prerequisites: 21st level, half-elf, fighter

Benefit: Allies gain a +2 bonus to damage rolls against enemies marked by you.

Timely Revival

Prerequisites: 21st level, human, any martial class

Benefit: You make death saving throws at the start of your turn rather than at the end. If you succeed on a death saving throw and have not used your second wind this encounter, you can use your second wind. You then take the rest of your turn as normal.

Unstoppable Charge

Prerequisites: 21st level, Str 21, Con 17, fighter

Benefit: Your turn does not automatically end after you charge; you can take further actions.

Whirlwind Sneak Attack

Prerequisites: 21st level, rogue, Sneak Attack class feature

Benefit: Choose a rogue encounter attack power that you know. You can deal Sneak Attack damage to every target you hit with that power, and doing so counts as one use of Sneak Attack. You still must have combat advantage against a target to deal the extra damage to it, and you can't deal the extra damage more than once to any target, even if the power attacks that target multiple times.

Special: Whenever you gain a level, you can choose to assign this feat's benefit to a different power and remove it from the power to which it currently applies.

Multiclass Feats

Some of these feats have paragon multiclassing in a particular class as a prerequisite. To qualify for such a feat, you must have chosen paragon multiclassing (Player's Handbook, page 209) in that class rather than taking a paragon path.

Battle Acumen [Multiclass Fighter]

Prerequisites: Any multiclass fighter feat, paragon multiclassing as a fighter

Benefit: You gain the fighter's Combat Superiority class feature.

Battle Awareness [Multiclass Fighter]

Prerequisites: Str 13, Wis 13

Benefit: You gain training in one skill from the fighter's class skill list.

Once per encounter, whenever an enemy that is adjacent to you shifts or makes an attack that does not include you as a target, you can make a melee basic attack against that enemy as an immediate interrupt.

Battle Instructor [Multiclass Warlord]

Prerequisites: Any multiclass warlord feat, paragon multiclassing as a warlord

Benefit: You gain the warlord's Combat Leader class feature.

Courageous Shooter [Multiclass Ranger]

Prerequisites: Any multiclass ranger feat, paragon multiclassing as a ranger

Benefit: You gain the ranger's Prime Shot class feature.

First In [Multiclass Rogue]

Prerequisites: Any multiclass rogue feat, paragon multiclassing as a rogue

Benefit: You gain the rogue's First Strike class feature.

Martial Multiclassing

What might lead your character to take a multiclass feat to dabble in the abilities of a martial class? Whether you're a fighter looking to improve your abilities with a warlord's leadership or a rogue's high damage, or a paladin looking to broaden your defender's arsenal with a fighter feat, it's easy to imagine that, as part of the teamwork of your adventuring party, you pick up some tricks from another character in your group. You might even seek out specialized training when you're in town or figure out on your own how you can add something extra to the powers your class gives you.

MULTICLASS FEATS

| Name | Prerequisites | Benefit |
|---|---|---|
| Battle Acumen | Any multiclass fighter feat, paragon multiclassing as a fighter | Fighter: Combat Superiority |
| Battle Awareness | Str 13, Wis 13 | Fighter: training in one skill, immediate interrupt basic attack once per encounter |
| Battle Instructor | Any multiclass warlord feat, paragon multiclassing as a warlord | Warlord: Combat Leader |
| Courageous Shooter | Any multiclass ranger feat, paragon multiclassing as a ranger | Ranger: Prime Shot |
| First In | Any multiclass rogue feat, paragon multiclassing as a rogue | Rogue: First Strike |
| Inspiring Leader | Str 13, Cha 13 | Warlord: training in one skill, ally gains action point benefit once per encounter |
| Ruthless Efficiency | Str 13, Dex 13 | Rogue: training in Stealth skill, Ruthless Ruffian |
| Sly Dodge | Dex 13, Cha 13 | Rogue: training in Bluff skill or Intimidate skill, add Cha modifier to AC once per encounter |
| Tactical Leader | Str 13, Int 13 | Warlord: training in one skill, ally gains +1 to attack roll once per encounter |
| Two-Blade Warrior | Str 13, Dex 13 | Ranger: training in one skill, wield one-handed weapon as off-hand weapon |

Inspiring Leader [Multiclass Warlord]

Prerequisites: Str 13, Cha 13

Benefit: You gain training in one skill from the warlord's class skill list.

Once per encounter, when an ally who can see you spends an action point to take an extra action, that ally also gains temporary hit points equal to 1 + one-half your level.

Ruthless Efficiency [Multiclass Rogue]

Prerequisites: Str 13, Dex 13

Benefit: You gain training in the Stealth skill.

You gain the Ruthless Ruffian class feature.

Sly Dodge [Multiclass Rogue]

Prerequisites: Dex 13, Cha 13

Benefit: You gain training in the Bluff skill or the Intimidate skill.

Once per encounter, when an enemy makes an opportunity attack against you, you can add your Charisma modifier to your AC against that attack.

Tactical Leader [Multiclass Warlord]

Prerequisites: Str 13, Int 13

Benefit: You gain training in one skill from the warlord's class skill list.

Once per encounter, when an ally you can see spends an action point to make an attack, that ally gains a +1 bonus to the attack roll.

Two-Blade Warrior [Multiclass Ranger]

Prerequisites: Str 13, Dex 13

Benefit: You gain training in one skill from the ranger's class skill list.

You can wield a one-handed weapon in your off hand as though it were an off-hand weapon.

Epic Destinies

These epic destinies are forged with armor, sword, or claw. Pursue a path of martial excellence and gain acclaim as an unstoppable combat force.

Adamantine Soldier

You are as solid as the foundations of the world. Nothing can break you—ever.

Prerequisites: 21st level, fighter or warlord

Throughout your career, you have been an unstoppable force in heavy armor. In your coat of metal, you have stood against the weapons and powers of creatures that could lay waste to cities. In the end, your armor might have been a little worse for wear, and maybe you were, too. But still you stood unbowed.

You know that armor is more than just a piece of equipment. It's a second skin, and it's the face you show the world. You've made it a hallmark of your legend. When your helmed silhouette appears on the horizon, your admirers take hope and your enemies quail. Those same folk might fail to recognize your face, but they easily identify your superhuman shell.

Immortality?

The adamantine warrior must prove the hardest of fighters. Your saga might make you an eternal symbol, your armor's distinctive shape and markings burned into the world's iconography. Already, people hold you up as the exemplar of the soldier who is unbreakable in body and spirit.

Armored Icon: When you complete your final quest, you stand as an immaculate example of the knight in shining armor. All armored warriors throughout time recall your story. Your armored form is the ultimate gauge by which all other armored juggernauts measure themselves.

To become this icon of indestructibility, you must stand fast in your last battle. You cannot fall, give in to pain, or break in any way. Prove that your armor is like your skin, and your skin is like your armor. It can't slow you down; instead, it holds you up; Unbreakable, you carry each other into fable. Perhaps your armor even takes you to the side of a deity, such as Kord, who forever holds you up as an exarch of glorious and fearless battle. You then become the patron saint of all such warriors.

Your name becomes synonymous with toughness and resilience. It develops into a word with which fighters compliment one another for bold exploits in heavy armor. When you hear echoes of your name spoken in the world, you pound your gauntlet-clad fist to your breastplate. You know that those who aspire to be like you hear the ringing sound with spiritual ears and take heart.

Adamantine Soldier Features

Armor Supremacy (21st level): You gain a +2 bonus to AC while wearing heavy armor. You also ignore any check penalty or speed penalty normally imposed by heavy armor.

Unbreakable Skin (24th level): While wearing heavy armor, you gain resistance to all damage equal to your Constitution modifier.

Hard to Kill (30th level): Once per day, you can treat any saving throw you just rolled as if you had rolled a natural 20.

Adamantine Soldier Power

Inexorable Advance Adamantine Soldier Utility 26

Nothing can hold you back.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal

Effect: Until the stance ends, you can shift 1 square into an adjacent enemy's space and then push the enemy 1 square as a move action.

Beastlord

You and your beast companion are like twin aspects of one being, acting in perfect accord. Any separateness is an illusion of space and time—a seeming that might one day be erased.

Prerequisites: 21st level, ranger, Beast Mastery class feature

Your valiant allies fought alongside you and, in time, triumphed. In their midst, you have known friendship and an interdependence that few people can even imagine. With these treasures, you might have even saved the world you love. But even this seemingly perfect camaraderie, this example of flawless alliance, pales in comparison to your relationship with your beast companion.

You, like no other among your epic peers, know true companionship and trust. The beast at your side is more than a friend and ally. It forms an extension of your own soul.

Immortality?

Some Beastlords remain apart from their beast companions, and they wander the cosmos in service to a higher entity or ideals. Others pass into the mists of death, as is natural, believing that they'll one day be reborn when the world has need. A few go on to attain a form of unity, in body and consciousness, as described here.

WES LOUIE

Beastlord Apotheosis: When your final task is complete, you have proven that humanoid and beast are not separate. You and your companion act as a single being split into two bodies. Those who tell your story give an account of how the two of you illustrated this truth by becoming one. In fact, they whisper that what became apparent in the end was always so.

You manifest a spirit that encompasses the values your beast companion symbolizes, and you merge with the beast exemplified by your nature. In so doing, you take the shape of a great spirit of nature, pristine and immortal. Your shape is thereafter as you wish it to be—person, beast, two at one time, or an amalgam thereof. Forever, you endure in the wild places of the world as a guardian and an inspiration. Perhaps you'll be an exarch of Melora, or you'll remain distinct from any deity, an example of a creature unique to the world.

Those who follow your model hold you in mind when they travel and fight alongside their own beast companions. They, and others who revere nature and its creatures, look to you as an archetype and a guide.

Beastlord Features

Ultimate Understanding (21st level): Once per round, you can take a minor action to command your beast companion to take a standard action, a move action, or a minor action.

Fused Fate (24th level): Whenever an effect targets you, you can choose for it to target your beast companion in addition to you or instead of you, as long as the beast is within 20 squares of you and you can see it.

Shared Life (30th level): As long as either you or your beast companion has at least 1 hit point, the other can't be killed, regardless of negative hit points or failed death saving throws. Keep track of negative hit points and failed death saving throws as normal; if you both are reduced to 0 hit points or fewer, the negative hit points and failed death saving throws immediately take effect.

Beastlord Power

Quickened Companion Beastlord Utility 26

Your beast companion understands your desire before you finish thinking it.

Encounter ✦ Beast, Martial
Free Action Close burst 20
Target: Your beast companion in burst
Effect: The target takes a standard action, a move action, or a minor action of your choice.

Dark Wanderer

You stride the eerie paths of fate. Until destiny meets you on this road, you'll roam forever.

Prerequisites: 21st level, ranger or rogue

You left home ages ago, saying goodbye to the comforts that a simpler life might have held. Following an unspoken yearning, you took to the road with other vagabonds. Your way led along sinister paths and to fateful deeds. In time, perhaps you and your companions came to be called heroes. Still, dark strands of fortune draw you onward to an unknown end.

Until that end comes, you wander the world as a shadowy presence, turning up where you're least expected or most needed.

Immortality?

Providence saved you for the final struggle. When you reach that doom, who knows where it might carry you?

Roaming Wyrd: Your wandering days are not at an end just because you've caught up to your predestined future. From a young age, you have been a cat's-paw of fate, an unwitting agent of luck and ruin. You followed your calling where it led you and did what was required, and now you've finished what dark kismet has set before you. Those who know your story see you as fate personified.

The tapestry of your exploits in life follows you, colored by your final act. If, ultimately, you brought good to the world, your legend is one of how fortune favors the bold. However, your story might have a darker hue from the inescapable pull of grim destiny.

You wander the cosmos, held as a patron or intercessor by those seeking or avoiding fate. You could be the agent of a power related to luck or predestination, such as Avandra or the Raven Queen. More likely, though, you have cut the threads of the inevitable and transcended the snares of chance.

Now, you drift free, straying wherever you wish for once in your life. In so doing, you serve as an example to those who wish to make their own way free of the ensnaring strands of fate and destiny.

Dark Wanderer Features

Not My Destiny (21st level): Any creature of your level or lower that hits you takes a –4 penalty to attack rolls against you until the end of the encounter.

Dark Road (24th level): You can walk to any destination you desire in a single, uninterrupted 24-hour period of walking. No matter how distant the location, or how many planes separate you from it, you reach the destination 24 hours after you begin, finding shortcuts, portals, or other modes of transport previously unknown to you. You do not require any rest, food, or water during this travel, except to recharge powers and regain healing surges. During your journey, you are safe from hazards, attacks, and other dangers.

When choosing a destination, you must be specific. If your destination is within a structure, such as a particular room within a castle, the long walk leads you to the structure's main entrance, not inside the structure.

You can choose to be accompanied by a number of characters equal to 5 + your Wisdom modifier, all of whom share the benefit of this class feature.

Long Walk Back (30th level): If you die and are not returned to life within 12 hours, your body and possessions disappear. Twelve hours after that–24 hours after your death–you arrive, equipped as you were when you died, having just walked back from wherever it is you and your DM decided you awoke after you were slain. Your condition is the same as if you had been subject to a Raise Dead ritual, but without any death penalty.

You can choose to arrive at the place of your death, at the location of any of your allies, or at any location you consider home. There's a final purpose in your existence, and it's not random death.

Dark Wanderer Power

Never at a Loss Dark Wanderer Utility 26

You are an endless well of resourcefulness.

Daily ✦ Martial
Minor Action Personal

Effect: You regain the use of a daily utility power you have used today.

Eternal Defender

You stand in the path of those who would rend the defenseless world. That world is safe behind your ever-vigilant shield.

Prerequisites: 21st level, fighter

You have taken the defender ideal to heart. This devotion might have started at childhood, when you stood up for those weaker than you. Perhaps the ideal of the mighty protecting the weak was culturally instilled in you, as it is in all good-hearted dwarves. Whatever the case, rather than using your strength and power solely for personal gain, you willingly placed yourself in harm's way to make sure that others had a chance to survive and thrive.

At the core of your personal morals and beliefs is the certainty that it is your job to protect your allies. When among them, you stand in the forefront in times of danger, no matter how dire the foe. Your skill and courage ever prove an anchor for your companions during the tumult of battle.

Immortality?

Bravery and immovability define you as a champion to your friends and the people you have saved over the course of your chronicle. To many, you are the mountain holding back the onrush of a monstrous tide.

Everlasting Bulwark: You have laid low your final and greatest adversary. During the fight you, as always, formed the steady center around which your allies could operate, taking the brunt of the punishment without bending or complaining. Ever more will you be the supreme standard for those on the front line of any battle.

The world always needs someone of your strength and stature at the ready to come to its defense. Those wishing to take up sword or hammer to defend others refer to you as if you were a saint. Although your name might be spoken as a universally recognized synonym for the ultimate guardian, you're not ready to just lay down your shield and axe.

Perhaps, then, you take a place in divine dominions, next to or in service to a godly stalwart such as Moradin. Building a post somewhere in the cosmos, you might take it upon yourself to stand vigil over a primordial threat or against the machinations of evil deities. If something stirs or threatens, you herald the coming danger and stand the first to face it. Perhaps instead some power helps you eternally watch over a chosen people, infusing your watchful spirit into the land. Or you might make a pact to pass away but instill your defender's heart into your folk, awakening a new profusion of heroes.

Eternal Defender Features

Unending Strength (21st level): Increase your Strength score by 2. Your normal load, heavy load, and maximum drag load are twice their normal values (Strength × 20, Strength × 40, and Strength × 100 pounds, respectively). Once per day, you gain a +10 bonus to a Strength ability check or a Strength-based skill check of your choice.

Godlike Stature (24th level): Your size doesn't change, but your height and weight increase to 25 percent and 100 percent above the normal range for your race, respectively. You can wield weapons as if you were one size larger, and if you are normally Medium or larger, your melee reach increases by 1 square.

Great Power (30th level): Once per day, you can treat any successful melee attack roll you just made as if it were a natural 20, or you can treat any unsuccessful melee attack roll you just made as if it were a hit.

Eternal Defender Power

Implacable Destruction Eternal Defender Utility 26

You take on a defiant aspect that makes it impossible for your enemies to avoid your attacks completely.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, every time you miss with a melee or a close weapon attack, you deal damage to the target equal to your Strength modifier.

Godhunter

If it bleeds, you can kill it. If it doesn't bleed, you can make it bleed. Then you can kill it.

Prerequisites: 21st level, ranger or rogue

Face it—you're a killer. That doesn't necessarily make you a bad person. Some creatures need killing. It's better for everyone in the end, and you're especially good at endings.

Not only are you an ace slayer, but you have also developed a reputation for taking out the tough marks. No matter how formidable a foe, you always find a way—by blade or bow—to send it to its doom. Destiny chose you to be the one who has what it takes to kill those tougher than you.

Your allies rely on you for your deadly art. Wary opponents maneuver to avoid giving you an advantage. Common folk and planar denizens equate your name with quick death.

Immortality?

Already legendary, your name, along with accounts of your remorseless fighting style, shall live forever. Few of your opponents survive past their fateful meeting with you, but you might just live on past your own meeting with fate.

Keen Motivation: You met your utmost challenge, and look who's dead and who isn't. The proof is in the grave. Among those that have a similar mortal origin, you are the greatest slayer in the universe. Maybe a god or two has skills that compare. Maybe.

Sticking around to stir up the cosmos isn't a bad idea. Powerful mortals, deities, demon lords, and primordials can get complacent or uppity. The worst rest in their own realms in smug satisfaction, and either cease doing what they should do or start doing something they shouldn't. No one rests easy with you nearby.

Mortal terror has a way of inspiring decisive change, and you have a pointed way of rousing just such a fear. It's not that you need to threaten anyone in particular. It could just be made known that you have a particular agenda. Working as a free agent, you leave no entity safe from the prospect of your lethal prompting.

Even a little prodding is bound to be a boon to progress. You could be just the wild card the world needs to keep power in the right balance and affairs moving along smoothly.

Godhunter Features

Peerless Predator (21st level): Once per encounter, you can reroll an attack roll against a creature that is higher level than you.

Deific Agony (24th level): When you score a critical hit against a creature that is higher level than you, the creature takes a –5 penalty to saving throws and cannot regain hit points or recharge any powers until the end of your next turn.

Blasphemous Recovery (30th level): Once per day, when you are hit by an attack from a creature that is higher level than you, you can choose to treat that attack as a miss and then regain the use of second wind and the use of one encounter power you have used during this encounter.

Godhunter Power

Deicidal Eye Godhunter Utility 26

Your merciless perspective reveals every weakness, no matter how insignificant.

Daily ✦ Martial
Minor Action Close burst 10
Target: One creature in burst
Effect: Your attacks ignore any resistance or immunity possessed by the target, and the target gains vulnerable 5 to your attacks. This effect lasts until you are reduced to 0 hit points or until you use the power on a new target.
Special: Increase the vulnerability by 5 if the target is higher level than you or if the target is a solo monster. Increase the vulnerability by 10 if the target is both.

Legendary General

Prerequisites: 21st level, warlord

Dhuryan Flamebrow, Malachi of Bael Turath, Ossandrya of the Spiral Tower, Jarret the Twiceborn, and Bergrom Earthfast—these names live on in the annals of time because names of mighty leaders always do. Few leaders are more respected than those who have proven themselves on the field of battle and in the nightmare of war. It's no surprise that history remembers those who lead others through mortal danger. These figures have influenced entire military traditions the world over.

Long have you stood among such illustrious company, a celebrated captain. You have led your fellows in battle against uncountable foes and emerged victorious. Your leadership and encouragement inspired your allies and brought them home safely again and again. Perhaps you're the best commander the world has ever known.

Immortality?

In taking responsibility for leading your comrades on the long and terrifying road you have traveled, you have displayed cunning, resolve, and courage. Now that you've arrived, you might receive an even higher calling.

Battle Everlasting: Upon the accomplishment of your last epic quest, your soul is tugged at by a call to duty. More than one creature of godlike power is bound to offer you immortality, along with a position of power. The only question is whose side you'll take.

The battle between the gods and the primordials ended eons ago. Strife among planar agencies is still common, and the balance could tip to spark war across the cosmos yet again. Deities, especially malevolent ones, plot against one another to the detriment of all. Elemental powers still look with vengeful eyes upon the world and the heavens. Fey entities, and those of shadow, occasionally raise armies to shake the pillars of the universe. Hordes of demons threaten the very roots of existence. Until an unforeseen age takes hold in which evil is quelled and want is subdued, peace and stability feel tenuous. The need for a leader of legendary skill remains constant.

Is it your greater destiny to stand at the fore of united angelic legions as they hold back the chaos? Will you lead the gods to victory over their ancient foes? Do you prefer the side of the primordials? Might you command archons and efreets as they seize dominions in the Astral Sea, usurping the usurpers? Or will you choose a middle road, mercenary or enlightened, and pick your battles carefully as each situation calls you to war?

BEN WOOTTEN

Legendary General Features

Mythic Inspiration (21st level): When you use your second wind, one ally within 20 squares of you can also spend a healing surge.

Legendary Tactical Action (24th level): Any ally can spend an action point possessed by you or by any other ally whom he or she can see once per encounter. Spending this action point doesn't count against the ally's limit of spending 1 action point per encounter.

Unyielding Company (30th level): While you have at least 1 hit point, allies within 20 squares of you do not fall unconscious at 0 hit points or fewer and cannot die because of negative hit points. Allies at 0 hit points or fewer still make death saving throws as normal, and they can die as a result of failed death saving throws.

Legendary General Power

Legendary Exploits Legendary General Utility 26

Your word is the call of destiny leading your allies into legend.

Daily ✦ Martial
Standard Action Close burst 20
Targets: You and each ally in burst
Effect: Each target regains the use of a power of level 25 or lower, either an encounter power he or she has used during this encounter or a daily power he or she has used today. The power cannot be one that allows the target to regain the use of another power.

Martial Archetype

You are a vehicle of destruction born from your perfection of the fighting forms. You embody martial power.

Prerequisites: 21st level, any martial class, paragon multiclassing in a martial class

From the moment you could raise a sword, you knew your destiny lay along its keen edge, your future in the hilt and pommel, and your legacy in the mastery of this single piece of steel. You spent your youth training. You honed your technique and studied the martial forms of combat. As you grew and set out from your humble beginning, your adventures exposed you to the exploits of countless combatants. In them, you became sure of a common connection, a link binding all who live and die by the sword.

Try as you might, this fundamental truth of martial power eluded you. For some reason, its perfect truth continued to slip beyond you reach, but remained just visible behind your mastery. You thought that through incomparable discipline, practice, and innovation, you'd find it once more and this time never let it go.

Driven by the vision of your potential, you redoubled your efforts, devoting your attention to the possibility of ultimate fighting prowess. You remain confident that one you will day perfect your maneuvers. When that day comes, you will stand among the greatest warriors who have ever lived.

Immortality?

Each step on the road to mastering the fighting arts, you draw closer to the realization of your full potential. The dawning understanding brought on with each new revelation impels you further, to seek out and learn more until you attain the heights of true mastery.

Legendary Master: With a practiced strike, you dispatch the last foe, the final obstacle standing between you and the fulfillment of your final quest. With this triumph, something stirs inside your consciousness. It is as if your last exploit unlocked a door in your mind, throwing it open to reveal the secrets you have long sought. The revelation strikes you to the soul, ripping away the last doubts, the last of your reluctance to push further and lay bare the true depth of martial mastery.

With full comprehension of these fundamental truths fixed in your mind and displayed in your incomparable techniques, you set out to teach others. Mysteries you have struggled to master you can now impart to those new to the sword. Through these scions you will live forever. As your fighting techniques are passed down, your memory will grow beyond your legendary exploits. Your martial mysticism shall transcend the mortal coil to become a living part of the power all warriors use.

STEVE PRESCOTT

Martial Archetype Features

Archetype's Edge (21st level): You gain a 17th-level encounter attack power from any martial class. Also, whenever you score a critical hit, you regain the use of a martial encounter attack power you have used during this encounter.

Reliable Warrior (24th level): Every martial encounter attack power you know gains the reliable keyword as long as the power has only one target and has no effect on a miss.

Warrior's Ascent (26th level): You gain one 22nd-level utility power from any martial class. Also, whenever you score a critical hit with a martial encounter or daily power, you can spend a healing surge as a free action.

Perfect Warrior (30th level): You gain an encounter attack power or a utility power of any level from any martial class. Also, whenever you score a critical hit with a martial encounter or daily power, you can make a melee basic attack against each adjacent enemy as a free action.

Perfect Assassin

You have become so good at butchery that it has become part of your very being. You are a shade of death.

Prerequisites: 21st level, rogue

Slaying quickly and efficiently is an art, like composing music or painting a masterpiece. Your instruments are weapons, and your medium is enemy flesh. The hands are the true tools of any master. And your hands are sublime in their lethal skill.

You have worked this bloody trade for so long that they say death has suffused your body, spirit, and soul. Rumor has it that you see death hovering over your foes, showing you which one is next. Your enemies sense your connection with quietus, and it unnerves them. Your reputation as a killer has taken on supernatural proportions. Little do those know who hear your legend, but the tales about you are almost entirely true.

Immortality?

In focusing on your deadliness, you have all but become extinction incarnate. Can death die in turn?

Death Can't Die: By the time you have dealt death to your final adversary, you have perfected death-dealing beyond all mortal bounds. Any who have skill in your chosen art see you as an inspiration—a dark ideal. Some venerate you, and others hope to prove themselves superior to you by carving out their own sinister legends. No doubt you've attracted the attention of entities connected to the greatest forces of life's end.

You might choose to lead such creatures, guiding them along mortality's fickle paths. Instead, you could work as an operative of the Raven Queen, maybe even as a commander above cadres of the sorrowsworn. Perhaps to serve in shadow isn't good enough for you, and as other mortal beings have attempted before, you will challenge the beings of the cosmos that contend for authority over death. Could you be the one that determines who has that final authority?

Like the undying warrior, you might pass on your skills to those who seek you out, guiding them along the path you followed. If you tire of destruction, even the righteous kind, you can instead remove yourself from the cares of the world. You could live on quietly in a secluded part of existence, possibly in the company of your longtime allies.

The choice is yours. You are beyond the Raven Queen's grasp, unless one day you choose to surrender yourself to the final destination of most mortal souls. Perhaps you unravel death's remaining secrets for all mortals, dealing the fear of life's end a deathblow.

Perfect Assassin Features

Death's Eye (21st level): Whenever you reduce an enemy to 0 hit points, choose another enemy you can see. Until the end of your next turn, you gain combat advantage against the second enemy, and it takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls against you.

Assassin's Advantage (24th level): When you miss with an attack against a target you have combat advantage against, you deal damage to that target equal to your Dexterity modifier + 1 per die of Sneak Attack damage you normally deal.

Pierce the Weakness (30th level): Once per encounter, you can choose for an attack of yours to be against the target's lowest defense, rather than the defense normally targeted by the attack. You can add your Sneak Attack damage to this attack even if you don't have combat advantage. Doing so doesn't count against the normal limit on Sneak Attack use.

Perfect Assassin Power

Spirit of Death Perfect Assassin Utility 26

No matter what would normally stop you, you flit away from your fallen foe like a ghost.

Encounter
Free Action Personal
Trigger: You reduce an enemy to 0 hit points
Effect: If you are dazed, immobilized, restrained, or slowed, you end any of those conditions. You then turn invisible and insubstantial and can shift your speed. At the end of the shift, you turn visible and are no longer insubstantial.

Undying Warrior

Your body and soul are one, not beyond the bite of steel but past the reach of death.

Prerequisites: 21st level, fighter

You are the ultimate survivor. Kobold spears, goblin arrows, orc axes, dragon fire, the necrotic touch of a wraith—you've seen it all in your adventures. And you're still alive to tell the tales.

Death has tried to claim you many times, but it failed. You have either survived your wounds or returned from beyond mortality's shroud. Each time you faced death, your soul quickened within your body, attaching itself more deeply to your physical shell.

As you grow in epic power, destiny conspires to keep you breathing. You recover from wounds that would take the life of any lesser mortal. Your reserves appear limitless. Whenever an enemy tries to take you down, your retaliation seems assured.

Immortality?

On the verge of your climactic confrontation, your body and soul become one. It seems you can't die.

To Live Forever: When you have reached your career's destined end point, your immortality is assured. Simultaneously a being of soul and body, you pass through death's final mystery only if you choose to do so. Until you decide to abandon your body, it is your vehicle to eternity.

You could retire peacefully, perhaps taking up residence with your preferred deity. Fame and skill could serve you well as you live in a remote place in the world or among the planes, perhaps establishing a tradition to pass on your knowledge to younger would-be heroes. Alongside a Legendary General, you might fight the battle everlasting, or you could keep a vigil like that of the Eternal Defender. Perhaps you'll wander without end, or take up a wild card position in the cosmos. One day, you might ascend to literal godhood.

Your options are as limitless as your time now is. In the endless future, you might learn the method of your transfiguration into an undying being or some other form of wisdom the world needs. You choose whether to share this knowledge or to let it pass away if you finally give up everlasting life.

Undying Warrior Features

Wounded Resurgence (21st level): If you are bloodied, you can spend a healing surge as a minor action to restore your current hit points to your bloodied value. Also, you don't take a death penalty when you are returned to life by the Raise Dead ritual.

Undying Stamina (24th level): Each time you reach a milestone, you regain 1d4 healing surges.

Spontaneous Resurrection (30th level): When you die, you can return to life at the start of your next turn. Doing this doesn't require an action. You appear in a space of your choice within 5 squares of where you died and have hit points equal to your bloodied value. You are freed of any temporary effects existing at the time of your death, but permanent conditions remain. Each additional time you are slain during the same day increases the time until you can rise again.

Second Death: Return to life at the end of the encounter.

Third Death: Return to life 1 hour after the end of the encounter.

Fourth Death: Return to life 12 hours after the end of the encounter.

Fifth Death or More: Return to life 24 hours after the end of the encounter.

If you don't use this ability, you can still be raised from the dead normally.

Undying Warrior Power

Undying Enmity — Undying Warrior Utility 26

You narrow your eyes, and even minor deities know how it feels to be prey.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Free Action Personal
Target: An enemy marked by you or that is marking you
Effect: You roll an extra d20 for the next attack you make and choose which die to use as the attack roll (you cannot reroll any of these attack rolls). If you are bloodied when you use this power, roll two extra d20s instead of one.

Warmaster

History is written by the victorious. Who now living can say how you got where you are, a legend among the military leaders of history?

Prerequisites: 21st level, warlord

Surviving countless battles, endless engagements, you carry memories of faces—foes you have dispatched over your career of waging war. You have won more victories than you can count, defeated more enemies than anyone could hope to remember. Some call you lucky, blessed, or cursed. Others say you're brilliant, possessed of a tactical mind unrivaled in the modern age. The truth is that while you have benefited from uncommon good luck and a superior strategic skill, your successes stand on your unwillingness to give up and to use whatever advantages you had in order to win.

Your victories drew the interest of the great and mighty, from kings to exarchs, angelic lords to demon princes. You have crossed swords and wits with legendary leaders whose talents are every bit as sharp as your own. Each time you have managed to survive. If you didn't emerge with decisive victory, you left all your adversaries with a battle to remember.

Immortality?

Is being clever in war enough? For a time, you thought so. You wore each victory as a badge of honor, and you used these triumphs as a means to validate the death wrought at your order. Yet as each victory became more and more sure, you began to wonder if you would ever face a challenge worthy of your talents.

Eternal War: As you have done countless times before, you set your brilliant mind to the task of defeating your enemies, bringing to a close your final quest. Though you are victorious, a realization crashes upon you as you understand that with this last triumph no mortal mind can outmaneuver you, catch you unawares, or surprise you with some unexpected ploy. Your keen wit and pragmatism have secured your place in the annals of history, your name written in the blood of the vanquished. Who will stand against you now that you have defeated the undefeatable? Wins are wins, to be sure, but you want—you need—a challenge. There will be none here, for who will stand against you? No, you must leave this world to pass into the realm of legend, where you might find a worthy foe.

The legend you see is the Eternal War, the ultimate battlefield that draws the greatest commanders to test their brilliance and cunning against their equals, to fight onward until the end of days when the best of them are chosen to lead the armies of light in one final confrontation against the hordes of darkness. Such a locale might be nothing more than a myth, but if there's a chance that you could find a place among these great warlords, it's a chance worth the risk of failure.

Warmaster Features

Tactical Awareness (21st level): You and any ally who can see you can act during a surprise round even when surprised and do not grant combat advantage from being surprised. Also, each ally who can see you and is not surprised can take a standard action, a move action, and a minor action on his or her turn during a surprise round.

Shock and Awe (24th level): Whenever you spend an action point to take an extra action, one ally within 5 squares of you can also take an extra action on his or her next turn.

HOWARD LYON

Tactical Genius (30th level): During an encounter, you can spend as many of your action points as you want.

Warmaster Power

Spring the Trap — Warmaster Utility 26

You lure your foes into a trap, and at your terse command, your allies spring to action.

Daily ✦ Martial
Standard Action Close burst 5
Targets: You and each ally in burst
Effect: In order of highest initiative to lowest, each target can take a standard action, a move action, or a minor action.

Introduction

Steel and courage are your tools. You do not wield earth-shattering magic. No gods or spirits channel power through you. You rely on strength, agility, skill, and cunning when facing foes. From these simple ingredients, you have the power to forge legends.

In this book, you'll find hundreds of new powers for martial characters. You can build a fighter who slashes and pummels at close quarters or a rogue who employs stealth as a lethal weapon. Alternatively, you might create a ranger who darts through the battlefield or a warlord who unleashes a barrage of arrows. By mixing and matching new choices with existing martial options, you can build any character you can imagine. Yet for all the choices and combinations, this book doesn't change the essence of what it means to be a martial warrior—that you are a hero of weapon and body.

Using This Book

Martial Power™ 2 is organized by class. The first four chapters contain new builds, class features, powers, and paragon paths for each of the four martial classes: fighter, ranger, rogue, and warlord. Chapter 5 presents new martial options, including feats and epic destinies for martial characters. It also introduces two new systems.

Combat Styles

This system enables you to pick a custom fighting technique to fit your character's background and weapon choice. When you use a weapon keyed to your fighting style, you can gain benefits that apply to some of your at-will and encounter powers as well as other advantages.

Martial Practices

Martial practices are routines and exercises your martial character knows how to do, or special talents your character possesses. With the proper martial practice, your character might perform an incredible feat of endurance running, forge magic arms and armor, or execute a free dive of astonishing depth and duration.

Retraining or Re-creating?

If you're already playing a martial character, you'll find powers and options in Martial Power 2 that you'll want to incorporate into your existing character. The simplest way to take advantage of this new material is to use the retraining system (see the Player's Handbook®, page 28), which allows you to swap powers and feats over time. However, if you want to change class features or adopt a different paragon path, you should speak to your Dungeon Master about re-creating your character with the new material. Your Dungeon Master might allow you to change your character between game sessions or between adventures. Major changes might justify more time and require the Dungeon Master to create a scenario in the campaign that explains your character's new abilities.

Fighter

"Combat is about everything around me—terrain, illumination, obstacles, allies, and foes. And my blade isn't my sole weapon. My body and mind are as potent as any blade."

Every race and culture relies on warriors for protection, and each has its own forms of combat that represent native strengths, talents, and beliefs. As a fighter, you are familiar with the techniques of your people, but you also appreciate the combat styles of others. This appreciation helps to cultivate your own signature style, combining strikes, parries, stances, and disciplines from a multitude of martial traditions.

As a fighter, one important decision you make is what to hold in your hands or wear on your arms. A shield provides defense at the expense of offense. With a two-handed weapon, you can strike harder, faster, and farther. Fighting with two weapons offers a middle ground between offense and defense, because your off-hand weapon can parry and strike. Alternatively, you might keep one hand unburdened. Although you won't enjoy the defensive advantages of a shield or the potency of a two-handed weapon or an off-hand weapon, a free hand opens other possibilities, such as the ability to pin and grab foes. In this chapter, you'll find support for these options.

- New Build: The brawling fighter uses wits, improvisation, and instinct in battle. The fighter's whole body is a weapon that can be used for a sudden throw or a stunning punch.
- New Class Features: Brawler Style offers a new option for your fighter Weapon Talent. In addition, you can select Combat Agility in place of your Combat Superiority feature.
- New Powers: Nearly a hundred new fighter powers are presented here, including options for the brawling fighter, as well as for the battlerager and the tempest fighter from Martial Power.
- New Paragon Paths: This chapter offers eight new paragon paths for fighters, including the glorious myrmidon, the rakehell duelist, and the rampaging brute.

JULIE DILLON

NEW BUILD

The Player's Handbook features the great weapon fighter and the guardian fighter. Martial Power presents the battlerager fighter and the tempest fighter. This chapter adds the brawling fighter, a build that encourages a character to keep one hand open so he or she can grapple, pin, and punch foes.

Brawling Fighter

You have an instinct for mayhem. You fight with a one-handed weapon and leave a hand open so you can punch, grab, and throw. Your body is your best weapon. Every battlefield holds opportunities for a brawling fighter, whether it's a wall you throw a foe against, furniture with which to trip an enemy, or stones you can employ as deadly projectiles.

New Class Features

You can select the following class features instead of another option, such as the ones presented in the Player's Handbook or in Martial Power. You need not pick the brawling fighter build to select these features.

Brawler Style

This class feature replaces the Fighter Weapon Talent class feature.

Brawler Style: While you wield a weapon in your primary hand and your off hand is free (see the sidebar), you gain a +1 bonus to AC and a +2 bonus to Fortitude.

In addition, you gain a +2 proficiency bonus with unarmed attacks and a +2 bonus to grab attacks and attacks to move a creature grabbed by you. These bonuses increase to +4 at 11th level and +6 at 21st level.

When attacking with a spiked gauntlet (Adventurer's Vault, pages 9–10), you do not gain the Brawler Style proficiency bonus with unarmed attacks, even if the Brawler Style proficiency bonus is higher than the proficiency bonus of the spiked gauntlet. However, you retain the bonus to grab attacks and to attacks to move a creature grabbed by you.

Combat Agility

This class feature replaces the Combat Superiority class feature.

Combat Agility: You gain the following power.

Combat Agility — Fighter Feature

Your foe might think it has escaped you, but in its moment of triumph, you chase it down and make it pay.

At-Will ✦ Martial, Weapon
Opportunity Action Melee weapon
Trigger: An enemy adjacent to you takes an action that provokes an opportunity attack
Effect: After the triggering enemy completes the action, you shift a number of squares equal to your Dexterity modifier. You must end the shift closer to the target than you were when you began the shift. Then make the following attack.
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you knock the target prone.
Level 21: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.

Suggested Options

As with other fighters, Strength is your most important ability score. Dexterity is a good choice for your second highest score, because Combat Agility and many of your attacks and utility powers reward Dexterity. After Strength and Dexterity, choose Constitution to help your hit points and healing surges.

Suggested Class Features: Brawler Style*, Combat Agility*
Suggested Feat: Inescapable Hold*
Suggested Skills: Athletics, Endurance, Intimidate
Suggested At-Will Powers: grappling strike, slash and pummel
Suggested Encounter Power: *bash and pinion
Suggested Daily Power: *seize and stab
*New option presented in this book.

ONE HAND FREE?

Many fighter powers require a hand free. For your hand to be considered free, you can't be using it for anything else—that means no off-hand weapons (except for a spiked gauntlet), no two-handed weapons, no shields, and no items, such as sunrods or lanterns.

Already Grabbing: You can grab only one creature at a time unless both your hands are free, in which case you could grab two creatures at once. You must spend a minor action to sustain each grab, though.

Versatile Weapons: If you use a versatile weapon, switching your grip from one hand to two hands is a free action. However, if a power requires you to have a hand free, you must keep that hand free for the entire attack or until you use the hand for something that is part of the attack, such as grabbing an enemy.

Spiked Gauntlet: Your hand is free if you wear a spiked gauntlet (Adventurer's Vault, pages 9–10), even if you use the gauntlet to attack during your turn.

USING COMBAT AGILITY

Even though the trigger for Combat Agility occurs as soon as the provoking action occurs, you don't resolve the effect until after the provoking action has finished. This lets you chase down a fleeing enemy before knocking it prone. If the triggering enemy didn't move away from you as part of the provoking action, then you don't shift, you just make the attack described at the end of the effect entry.

NEW POWERS

Many of the powers introduced in this chapter are intended for the brawling fighter build. However, the chapter also includes powers for the battlerager fighter and the tempest fighter from Martial Power, as well as powers suitable for the great weapon fighter and the guardian fighter.

Level 1 At-Will Exploits

Grappling Strike — Fighter Attack 1

You hew your foe with a simple attack and then grab it with your empty hand to keep it from escaping.

At-Will ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee touch
Requirement: You must have a hand free.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you grab the target. The grab ends automatically at the end of your next turn.
Level 21: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Brawler Style: When making an opportunity attack, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Slash and Pummel — Fighter Attack 1

You follow up a quick slash of your weapon with a powerful punch from your free hand.

At-Will ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee touch
Requirement: You must have a hand free.
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC (main weapon)
Hit: 1[W] damage. Make a secondary attack against the target.
Level 21: 2[W] damage.
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. Reflex (unarmed)
Hit: 3 + Strength modifier damage.
Level 21: 8 + Strength modifier damage.

Threatening Rush — Fighter Attack 1

You storm into the midst of your foes, ensuring that their attacks are directed against you.

At-Will ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] damage, and you mark each enemy adjacent to you until the end of your next turn.
Level 21: 2[W] damage.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Invigorating Keyword

If you are trained in Endurance, you gain temporary hit points equal to your Constitution modifier when you hit with a power that has the invigorating keyword. No invigorating power grants temporary hit points more than once during a turn, even if you hit more than once with that power.

VINCENT DUTRAIT

Level 1 Encounter Exploits

Bash and Pinion — Fighter Attack 1

You slam your weapon through your foe's defenses, creating an opening. You then step in and trap your enemy.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must have a hand free.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you slide the target 1 square to a square adjacent to you. You grab the target, and until the grab ends, it takes a penalty to attack rolls equal to your Dexterity modifier. The grab ends automatically at the end of your next turn.

Hack and Hew — Fighter Attack 1

You hack an enemy with one stroke and then slash at another with your next swing.

Encounter ✦ Invigorating, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Make a secondary attack.
Secondary Target: One creature other than the primary target
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage.

Serpent's Coil — Fighter Attack 1

Like a striking snake, your weapon flashes and catches the limbs of your foe.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target takes a penalty to attack rolls equal to your Dexterity modifier.
Weapon: If you're wielding a flail, you grab the target. The grab ends automatically at the end of your next turn.

Surprising Stab — Fighter Attack 1

You slash at your enemy's head and bring in your off-hand weapon with a fast, deadly strike.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding two melee weapons.
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. Reflex (main weapon)
Hit: Strength modifier damage, and the target grants combat advantage to you until the end of your next turn. Make a secondary attack against the target.
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. AC (off-hand weapon)
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.

Takedown Attack — Fighter Attack 1

You bash your foe with a vicious attack and then drag the creature down to the ground.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee 1
Requirement: You must have a hand free.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you knock the target prone.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Level 1 Daily Exploits

Bristling Defense — Fighter Attack 1

You throw your arms wide and strike two foes, each with a different weapon.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding two melee weapons.
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC (main weapon)
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage. Until the end of your next turn, the primary target cannot gain combat advantage from flanking you.
Effect: Make a secondary attack.
Secondary Target: One creature other than the primary target
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. AC (off-hand weapon)
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage. Until the end of your next turn, the secondary target cannot gain combat advantage from flanking you.

Driving Attack — Fighter Attack 1

You drive back your adversary with a hail of blows.

Daily ✦ Invigorating, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you push the target 1 square. You then shift 1 square to a square the target vacated. Make a secondary attack against the target.
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you push the target 2 squares and knock it prone.
Miss: Half damage, and you push the target 1 square.

Press of Steel — Fighter Attack 1

You attack your foe and then use your shield to pin it in place.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee 1
Requirement: You must be using a shield.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and if the target is adjacent to you and to blocking terrain, it is restrained (save ends). The condition also ends if you are no longer adjacent to the target.
Miss: Half damage, and if the target is adjacent to you and to blocking terrain, it is immobilized until the end of your next turn.

Seize and Stab — Fighter Attack 1

You grab your foe to make certain of your aim. Then you plunge your weapon into the creature.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee 1
Requirement: You must have a hand free.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. Reflex
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you grab the target. The target cannot attempt to escape the grab until the end of its next turn.

Unstoppable Advance — Fighter Attack 1

You swing with such fury that your foes are steadily driven back with each blow.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, whenever you hit any creature with a melee weapon attack, you push that creature 1 square and can shift 1 square to a square the creature vacated.

Level 2 Utility Exploits

Forceful Drag — Fighter Utility 2

You dig your fingers into a foe and drag the struggling opponent across the battlefield.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Move Action Personal
Requirement: You must have a creature grabbed.
Effect: You move your speed. For each square you move, you slide a creature grabbed by you 1 square to a square adjacent to you. The creature remains grabbed, and you do not provoke an opportunity attack from the grabbed creature for this movement. At the end of the move, you can end the grab to knock the creature prone.

Full Extension — Fighter Utility 2

You lunge forward, hitting a spot well beyond where your foes thought you could reach.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Minor Action Personal
Effect: The reach of the next melee weapon attack you make before the end of your turn increases by 1.

Mighty Leap — Fighter Utility 2

You gather your strength for a truly impressive jump.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Free Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of your turn, you gain a +5 power bonus to Athletics checks to jump. In addition, any jump you make is considered to have a running start, and you can make an Athletics check instead of an Acrobatics check to reduce falling damage.

Quick Escape — Fighter Utility 2

You quickly try to shake off whatever's holding you.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Minor Action Personal
Effect: You make an escape attempt, or you make a saving throw against an effect that immobilizes or restrains you and that a save can end.

Snagging Grip — Fighter Utility 2

When you're knocked off balance, you grab hold of the enemy in front of you and bring it staggering along with you.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Immediate Reaction Close burst 10
Trigger: An enemy adjacent to you knocks you prone or forces you to move
Target: The triggering enemy in burst
Effect: If the target forced you to move, you can pull it to a square adjacent to you. If the target knocked you prone, you knock it prone.

Fighter Races

Player's Handbook 2 introduced three new races that offer excellent options for fighters.

Goliaths: Goliaths make outstanding fighters with their combination of Strength and Constitution. These ability scores steer goliaths toward the great weapon fighter and the battlerager builds. Wielding a two-handed axe or hammer in conjunction with the Goliath Greatweapon Prowess feat from Player's Handbook 2 lets a goliath fighter deal massive damage. In addition, the stone's endurance racial power allows a fighter without plate armor or a shield to be surrounded by enemies and still shrug off their attacks.

Half-Orcs: Like goliaths, half-orcs are natural fighters. However, half-orcs have a bonus to Dexterity instead of Constitution, which means that they favor different builds, such as the tempest fighter. Half-orcs are also ideal for wielding weapons that rely on Dexterity, including heavy blades, light blades, spears, and some double weapons. Even if your half-orc doesn't use a build that emphasizes Dexterity, the ability bonus might help you qualify for some useful feats. Check out Two-Weapon Fighting and Armor Specialization, both from the Player's Handbook, and Two-Weapon Threat, from Player's Handbook 2.

Shifters: Although razorclaw shifters are agile and shrewd combatants, they lack the outstanding Strength that is ideal for fighters. Longtooth shifters, on the other hand, are as suited for the fighter class as goliaths and half-orcs are. A longtooth shifter's Wisdom bonus is useful for Combat Superiority and as a secondary ability for many powers. Longtooth shifters lean toward the guardian fighter and the brawling fighter builds. They excel in controlling enemy movement. The longtooth shifting racial power is also great for fighters, giving them staying power in long fights.

Level 3 Encounter Exploits

Bull Charge — Fighter Attack 3

You run into your enemy, taking a brutal swing. Your force knocks your enemy backward and to the ground, allowing you to step forward.

Encounter ✦ Invigorating, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you push the target 1 square. You then shift 1 square to a square the target vacated. Make a secondary attack against the target.
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude
Hit: You knock the target prone.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Reaver's Hook — Fighter Attack 3

Your mighty swing embeds your weapon in your foe.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage. If the target moves before the end of your next turn, it takes extra damage equal to your Constitution modifier.
Weapon: If you're wielding an axe or a pick, you can shift 1 square after the attack. You pull the target to the square you vacated.

Shield Edge Block — Fighter Attack 3

You block your foe's attack with a quick slam of your shield's edge, striking a powerful blow in the process.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Immediate Interrupt Melee 1
Requirement: You must be using a shield.
Trigger: An enemy adjacent to you hits or misses you with a close or a melee attack
Target: The triggering enemy
Effect: The target takes a -4 penalty to the attack roll.
Attack: Strength + 2 vs. Fortitude
Level 11: Strength + 4 vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d6 + Strength modifier damage.

Slamming Rush — Fighter Attack 3

You yank your grabbed foe across the battlefield. Upon reaching your destination, you slam it to the ground.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee 1
Target: One creature grabbed by you
Effect: You move your speed. For each square you move, you slide the target 1 square to a square adjacent to you. The creature remains grabbed, and you do not provoke an opportunity attack from the target during this movement.
Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude (unarmed)
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you knock the target prone. If the target is adjacent to blocking terrain, add your Dexterity modifier to the damage.

Sweeping Slash — Fighter Attack 3

You whirl your main weapon in an overhead cut that forces your foes to step back. You then follow up with your other weapon.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 1
Requirement: You must be wielding two melee weapons.
Primary Target: Each enemy in burst you can see
Primary Attack: Strength vs. Reflex (main weapon)
Hit: You push the primary target 1 square.
Effect: You shift 1 square and make a melee secondary attack.
Secondary Target: One creature targeted by the primary attack
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. AC (off-hand weapon)
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.

Level 5 Daily Exploits

Bare-Knuckled Rebuke — Fighter Attack 5

Your enemies leave themselves open to your powerful punches when they miss with their attacks.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance, Weapon
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, you can make the following attack.
Immediate Reaction Melee weapon
Trigger: An enemy adjacent to you misses you with a melee attack
Requirement: You must have a hand free.
Target: The triggering enemy.
Attack: Strength vs. AC (unarmed)
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target grants combat advantage to you until the end of your next turn.

TORSTEIN NORDSTRAND

Crushing Foot — Fighter Attack 5

You grab your foe and smash it to the ground. You then place your foot on its neck to keep the creature down.

Daily ✦ Invigorating, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage. Until the end of the encounter, the target cannot move if it was grabbed by you at the start of its turn.
Miss: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: You knock the target prone.

Dervish's Challenge — Fighter Attack 5

You hold your weapons close to your body, prepared to strike out when an enemy leaves you an opening.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance, Weapon
Minor Action Personal
Requirement: You must be wielding two melee weapons.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC (main weapon)
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Until the stance ends, whenever you are wielding two weapons and make a melee basic attack against a creature as an immediate action or an opportunity action, you can make a melee basic attack with your off-hand weapon against that creature as a free action.

Relentless Pressure — Fighter Attack 5

Jabbing and pushing with your shield, you force your foe into using rudimentary attacks.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be using a shield.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: The target can use only basic attacks to attack while you are adjacent to it (save ends).

Level 6 Utility Exploits

Makeshift Shield — Fighter Utility 6

You snatch a piece of furniture, a body, or a discarded item to block an enemy's attack.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Immediate Interrupt Personal
Requirement: You must have a hand free.
Trigger: An enemy hits you with a close or a melee attack
Effect: You gain a a bonus to defenses against the attack equal to your Dexterity modifer.

Ready to Retaliate — Fighter Utility 6

You hold your weapon high overhead, ready to swing at any foe that attacks you.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, you can use a free action to mark any enemy that makes a melee attack against you. The mark lasts until the end of the enemy's next turn.

Rejoin the Fray — Fighter Utility 6

Reinvigorated by an ally's healing, you rush back into the fray.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Immediate Reaction Personal
Trigger: An ally uses a healing power on you
Effect: If you are prone, you stand up and shift 1 square. If you are standing, you instead shift 3 squares.

Unbalancing Dodge — Fighter Utility 6

You duck out of the way of your foe's attack, putting the creature off balance.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Immediate Reaction Melee touch
Trigger: An enemy misses you with a melee attack
Target: The triggering enemy
Effect: The target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls and all defenses until the end of its next turn.

Roleplaying a Fighter

As a fighter, you boldly wade into the fray and take punishment that few others could endure. A fighter's job is so iconic and subtle that your allies might sometimes take you for granted. Spice up your characterization with enthusiastic battle cries, an accent, or colorful descriptions of what you say or what happens when you are hit or deliver an attack.

Giving a strong fighter a weakness can create a fun roleplaying quirk. If you normally rush into combat, the other players will take notice when you hesitate and mutter about how you hate snakes or how spiders make your skin crawl.

Similarly, you can emphasize your fighter's courage by contrasting it with caution. The mercenary fighter is a classic archetype that's easy to bring out in play. You might compete with the rogue to loot fallen foes or insist that the cleric help you make sure their corpses don't reanimate. After all, you're not being paid to fight them a second time.

Once you establish that your character views combat as a job, you have the potential for intense drama. Try making a battle against a foe personal, letting your fighter become angry or obsessed. Roleplaying a character who fights for profit or necessity might mean that you are the voice of caution when your group makes plans. Don't worry that you'll avoid the carnage that makes playing a fighter fun. An adventurer's life is dangerous enough that no amount of caution lets you avoid every combat. Your DM will keep combat a central part of the game even if your character claims to want peace and quiet.

Level 7 Encounter Exploits

Bloody the Field — Fighter Attack 7

You raise your weapon high, recognizing that the time has come to finish off your foe.

Encounter ✦ Invigorating, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage. If the target is bloodied, it is dazed until the end of your next turn.
Weapon: If you're wielding an axe, a hammer, or a mace, the attack deals extra damage equal to your Constitution modifier.

Bludgeoning Vise — Fighter Attack 7

Your weapon crunches down on your enemy's skull. You then drive your fist into your foe's face.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must have a hand free.
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is dazed until the end of your next turn. Make a secondary attack against the target.
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude (unarmed)
Hit: 1[W] damage, and you knock the target prone.

Echoing Assault — Fighter Attack 7

You batter the foe with a mighty swing and prepare to catch it with the backswing if it doesn't have the sense to move.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage. If the target is adjacent to you at the start of your next turn, as a free action you can make a melee basic attack against the target as the first action you take during your turn.
Weapon: If you're wielding an axe, a hammer, or a mace, the attacks deal extra damage equal to your Constitution modifier.

Hydra Charge — Fighter Attack 7

Your advance seems brash, but it's actually a flurry of perfectly timed strikes that bewilder your foes.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 1
Target: Each enemy in burst you can see
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Opportunist's Rend — Fighter Attack 7

You deliver a series of deadly blows to an enemy that lets its guard down.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon

Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Make a secondary attack against the target.
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. AC (off-hand weapon)
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Special: You can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Level 9 Daily Exploits

Bone Crusher — Fighter Attack 9

Your crushing blow leaves your enemy susceptible to other attacks.

Daily ✦ Invigorating, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: The target gains vulnerable 10 to weapon attacks (save ends).

Fighter Builds and Combat Styles

Chapter 5 introduces combat styles, most of which the fighter can use. A fighter is a natural fit for combat styles because of his or her ability to use all kinds of melee weapons.

Certain styles work better for specific fighter builds. If your fighter uses one of these builds, the combat styles indicated for that build are your best choices.

Battlerager: Black Hood, Elsir Hammer, Ironstar, Kulkor Battlearm, Moradin's Forge, Mountain Thunder, Ninth Legion, Ogremight, and Reaving Axe.

Brawling Fighter: Arkhosian Fang, Desert Moon, Elsir Hammer, Ironstar, Kulkor Battlearm, Mountain Thunder, Nerathan High Blade, Ninth Legion, Reaving Axe, Red Cloak, and Rending Chains.

Great Weapon Fighter: Arkhosian Fang, Black Hood, Hunting Spear, Ironstar, Longhand, Moradin's Forge, Ogremight, Partisan Polearm, Rending Chains, and Steel Vanguard.

Guardian Fighter: Arkhosian Fang, Desert Moon, Elsir Hammer, Ironstar, Kulkor Battlearm, Mountain Thunder, Nerathan High Blade, Ninth Legion, Reaving Axe, Red Cloak, and Rending Chains.

Tempest Fighter: Elsir Hammer, Midnight Blade, Mountain Thunder, and Red Cloak.

ZOLTAN BOROS & GABOR SZIKSZAI

Hobbling Cut — Fighter Attack 9

You cripple your foe with painful wounds to its leg and its arm.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is slowed and weakened (save ends both).
Miss: Half damage, and the target is slowed and weakened until the end of your next turn.

One Against Many — Fighter Attack 9

When your enemies gang up on you, you have the advantage, for it means you have no shortage of targets.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 1
Target: Each enemy in burst you can see
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you gain a +1 power bonus to all defenses while two or more enemies are adjacent to you. You also gain a +1 power bonus to weapon attack rolls while no allies are adjacent to you.

Staggering Blow — Fighter Attack 9

You batter your enemy with a powerful blow and send it stumbling away from you.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must have a hand free.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you push the target 3 squares. The target is dazed (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and you push the target 1 square. The target is dazed until the end of your next turn.

Unstoppable Assault — Fighter Attack 9

You fend off an enemy's advance by striking hard and then jabbing the foe with the edge of your shield.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Immediate Reaction Melee 1
Trigger: An enemy moves during its turn to a square adjacent to you
Requirement: You must be using a shield.
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, the target cannot grab you, restrain you, or enter your space.
Sustain Minor: Choose one enemy adjacent to you. That creature cannot grab you, restrain you, or enter your space until the end of your next turn.

Level 10 Utility Exploits

Body Shield — Fighter Utility 10

You yank a foe into the path of an enemy's attack.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Immediate Interrupt Melee 1
Trigger: An enemy hits you with a melee or a ranged attack
Requirement: You must have a hand free.
Target: One creature other than the triggering enemy
Effect: Make a grab attack against the target. If you grab the target, the triggering enemy's attack deals half damage to you and half damage to the target.

Fighter's Grit — Fighter Utility 10

With pure determination, you ignore weakness and battle on.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you ignore the effects of the dazed, immobilized, slowed, and weakened conditions.

Fist of Lightning — Fighter Utility 10

You clench your fist and prepare a rapid assault.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, your unarmed attacks deal extra damage equal to your Dexterity modifier.

Grappler's Stance — Fighter Utility 10

You wrench the limbs of your enemy, weakening its resolve.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal

Steely Persuasion — Fighter Utility 10

Your skill with the blade is enough to daunt even stalwart foes.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Free Action Personal
Trigger: You make an Intimidate check or a Streetwise check
Requirement: You must be wielding a melee weapon.
Effect: You gain a bonus to the skill check equal to the weapon's proficiency bonus plus the weapon's enhancement bonus.

Multiclass Fighters

Different backgrounds and interests lead fighters to explore various philosophies and methods of combat. A few interesting combinations are discussed here.

Avenger: Few fighters have the Wisdom scores necessary to excel with avenger attack powers, yet characters who have a bonus to Wisdom from their race—dwarves, elves, and shifters, for example—can pull off this combination. Avenger powers provide a fighter with more "stickiness." With your avenger powers, you can pull enemies away from your allies. Once the enemies are adjacent to you, you can unleash close attacks to mark all of them and force them to fight you. Even if you take no avenger powers, the avenger multiclass feat Hero of Faith from Divine Power grants what is effectively a +4 bonus to attack rolls for 2 rounds by allowing you to use oath of enmity. Finally, the oathsworn paragon path from Player's Handbook 2 and the relentless slayer and weapon of fortune paragon paths from Divine Power provide interesting options for a character that is both fighter and avenger.

Barbarian: Multiclassing into barbarian as a fighter is a solid choice because the two classes share Strength as a primary ability score. The barbarian class offers a fighter similar powers—specifically, potent melee attacks—yet barbarian powers deal more damage than most fighter powers. This combination works well for battleragers and great weapon fighters. If you want to enter a rage, you'll need to use the Adept Power multiclass feat to gain a daily power. Most barbarian paragon paths have features related to rage, so if you don't have a rage power, consider picking a fighter paragon path that focuses on hitting hard.

Cleric: You have great opportunities if you multiclass a battle cleric with a guardian fighter or a tempest fighter, because they share a focus on Strength, Wisdom, and melee attacks. The warhound of Bane paragon path (page 29) is a great fit for a character who uses both martial and divine powers. Other good options include the knight protector or the polearm master from Martial Power, and the angelic avenger, the pit fighter, or the warpriest from the Player's Handbook.

Rogue: If you multiclass as a brutal rogue with a Dexterity-based fighter build, such as the tempest or the brawler, you gain a mutual benefit from high Strength. The rakehell duelist (page 26) and the blade bravo (page 73) are ideal paragon paths for you as a combination of striker and defender. You might also consider the shock trooper and the death dealer from Martial Power and the kensei from Player's Handbook.

Warden: This combination works well because warden attack powers are based on Strength. The Defender of the Wild feat from Player's Handbook 2 is useful for a fighter. It allows you to mark each enemy adjacent to you even after you run out of attacks that target multiple enemies. Warden powers are optimal for controlling movement and keeping enemies nearby, so this combination can make the fighter a better defender; try mixing warden with the brawling fighter or guardian fighter build.

Warlord: The warlord and the fighter share Strength as a primary ability score, so they mix well. You won't be a great healer unless you invest a significant number of feats, but with even a few healing powers, you can help bolster your group. The warlord also offers tactical options to help the fighter organize the battlefield around him or her.

Bash and Pummel — Fighter Attack 13

You hack down one enemy and then slash at another nearby with your next blow.

Encounter ✦ Invigorating, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One or two creatures
Attack: Strength vs. AC. You make the attack twice, distributing the attacks between the targets or making both attacks against one.
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is dazed until the end of your next turn. If you hit the same target twice with this power, the second attack deals extra damage equal to your Dexterity modifier.

Battle Jump — Fighter Attack 13

You leap past your foe in a great bound, stabbing above its guard as you go.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Effect: Before or after the attack, you jump 2 squares. You do not provoke opportunity attacks during the jump.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage.

Hilt Smash — Fighter Attack 13

After a wide swing, you reverse your weapon and slam its grip against your foe's head.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding two melee weapons.
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC (main weapon)
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target grants combat advantage to you until the end of your next turn.
Effect: Make a secondary attack against the target.
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. AC (off-hand weapon)
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is dazed until the end of your next turn if you have combat advantage against it.

Stranglehold — Fighter Attack 13

While your foe is still reeling from your hit, you wrap your arm around its neck and squeeze.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must have a hand free.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you grab the target. The target is dazed until the grab ends. The grab ends automatically at the end of your next turn.
Special: When making an opportunity attack, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Level 15 Daily Exploits

Eye Gouge — Fighter Attack 15

You deliver a quick strike to your foe and then go for its eyes, attempting to gouge them out with your free hand.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must have a hand free.
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Make a secondary attack against the target.
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. Reflex (unarmed)
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is blinded (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and the target is blinded until the end of your next turn.

No Room to Breathe — Fighter Attack 15

You press the attack with relentless intensity, leaving your foe no time to launch a proper counterattack.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is weakened until the end of your next turn.
Miss: The target is weakened until the end of your next turn.

Relentless Headlock — Fighter Attack 15

After a preparatory strike with your weapon, you wrap your arm around your foe, leaving no room to escape.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must have a hand free.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you grab the target. Until the grab ends, the target grants combat advantage to you. Whenever the target fails to escape the grab, you can make an opportunity attack against it.
Miss: Half damage, and you grab the target.

Sudden Opportunity — Fighter Attack 15

When one of your allies hits an enemy, you take advantage of the foe's distraction to put it on the ground with a quick attack.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Free Action Melee weapon
Trigger: An enemy within 2 squares of you is bloodied by your or your ally's attack or suffers a critical hit from you or your ally
Effect: Before the attack, you shift 3 squares.
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is dazed (save ends).
Miss: Half damage.
Weapon: If you're wielding an axe, a hammer, a mace, or a pick, you knock the target prone.

Level 16 Utility Exploits

Battle Acumen — Fighter Utility 16

You absorb everything going on around you, and your enemies find it hard to catch you unaware.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, you don't grant combat advantage while you are conscious.

Fury's Resurgence — Fighter Utility 16

The thrill of the kill is enough to shake off any ill effects.

Daily ✦ Healing, Martial
Free Action Personal
Trigger: You score a critical hit or reduce an enemy to 0 hit points
Effect: You spend a healing surge and regain additional hit points equal to your Constitution modifier. You make a saving throw against each effect on you that a save can end, and you gain a bonus to the saving throws equal to your Constitution modifier.

Painful Drag — Fighter Utility 16

You stride across the room, dragging an enemy behind you.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Move Action Personal
Requirement: You must have a creature grabbed.
Effect: You move your speed. For each square you move, you slide a creature grabbed by you 1 square to a square adjacent to you. The creature remains grabbed, and you do not provoke an opportunity attack from the grabbed creature for this movement. The grabbed creature grants combat advantage until the end of your next turn.

Tangle Up — Fighter Utility 16

When your enemy lowers its guard, you take the opportunity to tangle its feet and send it sprawling.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Free Action Melee weapon
Trigger: You hit or miss an enemy with an opportunity attack
Target: The triggering enemy
Effect: You knock the target prone. You mark the target (save ends).

Twisting Escape — Fighter Utility 16

You twist your body like a contortionist, escaping even the tightest restraints.

At-Will ✦ Martial
Move Action Personal
Prerequisite: You must be trained in Athletics.
Requirement: You must be grabbed.
Effect: You attempt to escape a grab and gain a +5 bonus to the Athletics check to escape. If you escape, you can shift half your speed instead of the normal 1 square.

Level 17 Encounter Exploits

Battering Ram — Fighter Attack 17

You pick up the enemy you are grappling and run it headfirst into another foe.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee 1
Target: One creature grabbed by you
Effect: You move your speed, pulling the target with you. The target remains grabbed, and you do not provoke an opportunity attack from the target for this movement.
Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude (unarmed)
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you knock the target prone. If the target is adjacent to one or more of your enemies, it takes extra damage equal to 2 + your Dexterity modifier, and the enemies it is adjacent to are also knocked prone.

Lunging Dervish — Fighter Attack 17

You take a long step forward, bending low as your leading arm delivers an arcing slash. You follow the attack with a quick cut from your off-hand weapon.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 2
Requirement: You must be wielding two melee weapons.
Primary Target: Each enemy in burst you can see
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC (main weapon)
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you slide the primary target 1 square.
Effect: Make a secondary attack that is a close burst 1.
Secondary Target: Each enemy in burst you can see
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. AC (off-hand weapon)
Hit: Strength modifier damage.

Minotaur Charge — Fighter Attack 17

You lower your head and charge your foe, sending it sprawling.

Encounter ✦ Invigorating, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you push the target 1 square and shift 1 square to a square the target vacated. Make a secondary attack against the target.
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude
Hit: You push the target 3 squares and knock it prone.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Punishing Shield Block — Fighter Attack 17

You catch your enemy's attack with your shield and then slam the shield back into your foe, knocking it down.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Immediate Interrupt Melee 1
Requirement: You must be using a shield.
Trigger: An enemy adjacent to you hits or misses you with a close or a melee attack
Target: The triggering enemy
Effect: The target takes a -2 penalty to the attack roll.
Attack: Strength + 4 vs. Fortitude
Level 21: Strength + 6 vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d6 + Strength modifier damage, and you knock the target prone.

Shifting Blade — Fighter Attack 17

You switch your weapon to your empty hand, catching your enemy completely off guard.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must have a hand free.
Target: One creature
Effect: The target grants combat advantage to you until the end of your next turn.
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage.

Vicious Uppercut — Fighter Attack 17

You make a diversionary attack with your weapon to hide the real threat—an uppercut from your free hand.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must have a hand free.
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Make a secondary attack against the target.
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude (unarmed)
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is stunned until the end of your next turn.

Level 19 Daily Exploits

Battlefield Challenge — Fighter Attack 19

Roaring a war cry, you rush an enemy and prove that it is you that it should be attacking.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 5[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, whenever an enemy you can see makes an attack that does not include you as a target, you can mark that enemy as an opportunity action. The mark takes effect after the attack, and it lasts until the end of your next turn.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Iron Tornado — Fighter Attack 19

You sweep your weapon through nearby enemies. Then, while they're recovering, you seize a foe and hurl it away from you.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 1
Requirement: You must have a hand free.
Primary Target: Each enemy in burst you can see
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the primary target is dazed until the end of your next turn. Make a melee secondary attack.
Secondary Target: One creature hit by the primary attack
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude (unarmed)
Hit: You push the secondary target a number of squares equal to 1 + your Dexterity modifier and knock it prone.
Miss: Half damage.

Mighty Shield Slam — Fighter Attack 19

You slam your shield into your foe with a quick, powerful thrust.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable
Minor Action Melee 1
Requirement: You must be using a shield.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength + 4 vs. Fortitude
Level 21: Strength + 6 vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d6 + Strength modifier damage, and you push the target 1 square. The target is dazed until the end of your next turn.

Persistence of Blades — Fighter Attack 19

You are a whirl of steel and resolve. Nothing can deter you from striking your foe.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, once per turn when you miss with a melee attack roll, you can reroll the attack roll.

Pugilist's Resolve — Fighter Attack 19

Your enemies leave themselves open to your powerful punches when they attack you but fail to hit.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance, Weapon
Minor Action Personal
Requirement: You must have a hand free.
Effect: Until the stance ends, you can make the following attack.
Immediate Reaction Melee weapon
Trigger: An enemy adjacent to you misses you with a melee attack
Requirement: You must have a hand free.
Target: The triggering enemy.
Attack: Strength vs. AC (unarmed)
Hit: Strength modifier + Dexterity modifier damage, and you knock the target prone.

Level 22 Utility Exploits

Hard to Kill — Fighter Utility 22

The tougher the battle becomes, the harder you fight. You shrug off minor wounds and resist even the worst effects.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, you gain a power bonus to saving throws equal to your Wisdom modifier, and while you are bloodied you gain resistance to all damage equal to 5 + your Constitution modifier.

Instant Getaway — Fighter Utility 22

You quickly try to shake off whatever's holding you.

At-Will ✦ Martial
Minor Action Personal
Effect: You can make an escape attempt, or you can make a saving throw against an effect that immobilizes or restrains you and that a save can end.

Prescient Shield — Fighter Utility 22

You appear to raise your shield to block your foes' attacks even before the creatures swing.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Requirement: You must be using a shield
Effect: Until the stance ends, whenever an enemy adjacent to you hits you, you can gain a bonus to AC and Reflex against the attack equal to your Wisdom modifier as an immediate interrupt.

Surprising Finish — Fighter Utility 22

As you release your grip on a foe, you smash your hand into its face, sending the creature reeling.

Daily ✦ Martial
Free Action Melee 1
Trigger: You stop grabbing an enemy
Target: The enemy you released
Effect: You knock the target prone, and the target is dazed (save ends).

Undeniable Challenge — Fighter Utility 22

You call a creature out, and it has no choice except to focus its attention on you.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Minor Action Melee 1
Target: One or two creatures marked by you
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, the target cannot make any attack that does not include you as a target.

Level 23 Encounter Exploits

Behemoth Wrath — Fighter Attack 23

You rush your foe and drive the creature to its knees with a powerful blow.

Encounter ✦ Invigorating, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is dazed until the end of your next turn.
Weapon: If you're wielding an axe, a hammer, or a mace, the attack deals extra damage equal to your Constitution modifier, and you knock the target prone.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Colossal Strike — Fighter Attack 23

You deal a mighty blow that sends your enemy staggering.

Encounter ✦ Invigorating, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you push the target a number of squares equal to your Constitution modifier.
Weapon: If you're wielding an axe, a hammer, or a mace, you also knock the target prone.

Martial Fellowships

Martial characters who adventure and fight together sometimes form deep bonds of discipline, respect, and common purpose. The martial experience creates a powerful connection, whether that connection involves comrades in a military unit, a small band sharing a noble quest, or just a group of friends in a bar fight. Being Janthar, a great fighter, isn't nearly as exciting as being Janthar of the Black Griffon Company or Janthar who rides with the Seven Heroes of Legend.

Martial fellowships embody a common style, attitude, or modus operandi. Just as an individual character has his or her own personality and favored ploys, an adventuring company can develop a collective personality and tactics that make it greater than the sum of its parts. Here are a few suggestions for refining your own martial fellowship.

Competitive: You and your comrades appear to constantly be upstaging each other, seeking the greatest renown possible from each fight. You jockey to get in the killing blow against a worthy foe, you race each other in skill challenges, and you boast when you score a grievous hit. However, coming in second engenders no ill feelings—after all, you'll each have a chance to outshine the others next time.

Disciplined: Consummate professionals, you and your fellow adventurers drill together and practice cooperative tactics. Efficiency and results are what count for your fellowship. You might use military jargon to pass around tactical advice. You have developed standard methods for breaching doors, shielding injured comrades, and dealing with unseen foes. You're not after individual glory, because you're all team players.

Honorable: Courage, loyalty, integrity—these are your watchwords, and you live by them. You and your companions measure yourselves against a noble code. You do not strike down helpless foes, you do not slaughter prisoners, and you do not abandon allies on the field of battle. Friends and enemies alike admire your gallantry and know that you are heroes of your word.

Witty: For you, battle is an opportunity to demonstrate witty repartee and appreciate the ironies of a hero's existence. You and your companions make light of danger, laughing at your mistakes and tossing off ridiculous exaggerations. Rather than grimly killing each enemy, you might send humiliated survivors running with a few taunts to speed them on their way. After all, who will spread the story of your wit if you kill everything?

Wild Bunch: You and your friends aren't just a band of heroes; you are catastrophe waiting to be unleashed. You launch yourselves into battle with wild recklessness, storming through challenges on muscle and fury. When the battle ends, your fellowship relaxes as hard as you fight. No evening is complete without a protracted bout of drinking, brawling, and debauchery. You might be heroes, but everyone breathes a sigh of relief when you and your companions move on.

Gut Punch — Fighter Attack 23

Your weapon is busy parrying the enemy's attacks, so you smash your fist into its vitals.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Immediate Reaction Melee touch
Requirement: You must have a hand free.
Trigger: An enemy misses you with a melee attack
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude (unarmed)
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is immobilized and weakened until the end of its next turn.

Opportunist's Trap — Fighter Attack 23

Your first foray against the enemy is ruse, ripening the foe for subsequent attacks.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding two melee weapons.
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC (main weapon)
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Make a secondary attack against the target.
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. AC (off-hand weapon)
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you can make the following attack against the target.
Opportunity Action Melee weapon
Trigger: The target makes an attack roll
Effect: Before your attack, you shift your speed.
Attack: Strength vs. AC (main weapon)
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you knock the target prone.

Trollclaw Grip — Fighter Attack 23

You follow a hard cut from your weapon with an attempt to seize a nearby enemy in a debilitating grip.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must have a hand free.
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Make a secondary attack against the target.
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. Reflex (unarmed)
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you grab the target. The target grants combat advantage until the grab ends.

Blinding Provocation — Fighter Attack 25

You open a bleeding cut that obscures your enemy's vision. You then goad your sightless foe into attacking blindly.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is blinded (save ends). Until the target is no longer blinded, whenever it misses with a melee attack, you can slide the target 1 square as an opportunity action, and the target then makes a melee basic attack against one creature of your choice as a free action.
Miss: Half damage, and the target is blinded until the end of your next turn.

JULIE DILLON

Deft Counterattack — Fighter Attack 25

You intercept the foe's weapon with such force that it becomes stuck in your shield. You then deliver a stinging counterattack.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Immediate Reaction Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be using a shield.
Trigger: An enemy misses you with a melee attack
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 5[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target drops one weapon it is wielding. You can choose to catch the dropped weapon in a free hand or have it land on the ground at your feet (in your square). The target grants combat advantage to you (save ends).

Hammering Pommel — Fighter Attack 25

You strike with your weapon and then use the weapon's pommel to knock your opponent backward, rattling its senses.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must have a hand free.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you push the target 3 squares. The target is stunned (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and you push the target 1 square. The target is stunned until the end of your next turn.

Hold at Bay — Fighter Attack 25

You hack at your foe and then seize hold of it, preventing the creature from attacking effectively.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must have a hand free.
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 5[W] + Strength modifier damage. Make an unarmed secondary attack against the target.
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. Reflex (unarmed)
Hit: You grab the target. In addition to the normal effects of a grab, the target is restrained until the grab ends.
Miss: Half damage.

Impaling Knockdown — Fighter Attack 25

You knock your foe to the ground and drive your weapon into its gut.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding two melee weapons.
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC (main weapon)
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you knock the target prone. Make a secondary attack against the target.
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. AC (off-hand weapon)
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage, and ongoing 15 damage (save ends).

Level 27 Encounter Exploits

Blinding Cut — Fighter Attack 27

Your first attack causes your foe to double over in pain, allowing you to attack its eyes.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding two melee weapons.
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC (main weapon)
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target grants combat advantage to you until the end of your next turn.
Effect: Make a secondary attack against the target.
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. AC (off-hand weapon)
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage. If you have combat advantage against the target, it is blinded until the end of your next turn.

Gash and Goad — Fighter Attack 27

A powerful blow attracts your foe's attention. When you move off and taunt the creature, it chases you.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: After the attack, you shift 3 squares. If you hit the target, you pull it adjacent to you.

Invigorating Fury — Fighter Attack 27

With a roar, you let out a flurry of attacks that invigorates you.

Encounter ✦ Invigorating, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 1
Target: Each enemy in burst you can see
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier + Constitution modifier damage.

Wrenching Assault — Fighter Attack 27

Your weapon strikes your enemy and sends it spinning, leaving you free to move in and grapple.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must have a hand free.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you slide the target 1 square to a square adjacent to you. You grab the target, and the target drops one weapon it is wielding. You can choose to catch the weapon in a free hand or have it land on the ground at your feet (in your square). If the target is not wielding a weapon, it instead grants combat advantage to you until the end of your next turn. The grab ends automatically at the end of your next turn.

Level 29 Daily Exploits

Debilitating Bash — Fighter Attack 29

You deliver a series of shield bashes that keeps your enemy on the defensive and prevents it from unleashing any skilled attacks.

Daily ✦ Martial
Minor Action Melee 1
Requirement: You must be using a shield.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength + 6 vs. Fortitude
Hit: 6d6 + Strength modifier damage, and you push the target a number of squares equal to your Strength modifier. The target can use only basic attacks to attack (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and the target can use only basic attacks to attack until the end of your next turn.

Exhilarating Assault — Fighter Attack 29

You rush at the enemy, feeling a fierce exhilaration that allows you to ignore your wounds.

Daily ✦ Healing, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you can spend a healing surge.
Effect: You can make a saving throw against each effect on you that a save can end. Until the end of the encounter, you have regeneration 15 while you are bloodied.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Neck Snap — Fighter Attack 29

After a wicked slash from your weapon, you seize your foe's throat and try to snap its neck.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must have a hand free.
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you grab the target. The target is restrained until the grab ends. You can make the following secondary attack against the target as a standard action or as an immediate interrupt when the target attempts to escape the grab.
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude (unarmed)
Hit: 6[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the grab ends.
Miss: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the grab ends.

Savage Butchery — Fighter Attack 29

You hack your enemies to pieces with a savage series of brutal cuts.

Daily ✦ Invigorating, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One, two, or three creatures
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Weapon: If you're wielding an axe, a hammer, or a mace, the attack deals 1[W] extra damage against prone targets.

MICHAEL PHILLIPPI

Sudden Onslaught — Fighter Attack 29

When your ally lands a telling blow, you sense opportunity. You quickly leap in to finish off the foe.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Free Action Melee 1
Trigger: An enemy within 2 squares of you is bloodied by your or your ally's attack or suffers a critical hit from you or your ally
Effect: You shift your speed to a square adjacent to the triggering enemy.
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 5[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is dazed and weakened (save ends both).
Weapon: If you're wielding an axe, a hammer, a mace, or a pick, you also knock the target prone.
Miss: Half damage, and the target is dazed and weakened until the end of your next turn.

Avernian Knight

"Hellfire and steel are my weapons against darkness."

Prerequisite: Fighter and either Eldritch Pact (infernal) class feature or Pact Initiate (infernal pact) feat

You're both a warrior and a warlock, steeped in the martial lore of the Nine Hells. You might have learned the sinister techniques of this path from another practitioner, from forbidden tomes guarded in brooding monasteries, or from the infernal patrons who answer your call when you dabble in the warlock's craft. Regardless of how you came to follow this path, you wield the power of an infernal pact; what you choose to do with your dark gift is up to you.

As an Avernian knight, you combine the power of a warlock's pact with exceptional skill at arms, weaving sinister spells into your weapon. In battle, you call upon your spells to scour your foes with infernal curses and punish them severely when they ignore your challenge.

Orders of Avernian knights are found in the Nine Hells and in other places where devils hold sway. Most who wield the power of the Nine Hells do so at the cost of their souls and are irrevocably sworn to the service of evil. However, you need not choose evil to follow this path. Sometimes good heroes succeed in turning the power of evil against itself, finding a way to withstand the taint of the dark powers.

CHRIS SEAMAN

Avernian Knight Path Features

Avernian Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, your attack powers gain the fire keyword and deal extra fire damage equal to 5 + your Constitution modifier until the end of your turn.

Melee Implement (11th level): You can use any melee weapon as a warlock implement. However, you don't gain the weapon's proficiency bonus when you use it for implement attacks.

In addition, whenever you use a melee weapon as an implement for an arcane power, you do not provoke opportunity attacks from enemies adjacent to you for using a ranged power.

Hellish Mark (16th level): Whenever an enemy marked by you makes an attack that doesn't include you as a target, that enemy takes 5 + your Constitution modifier fire damage after the attack is resolved.

Avernian Knight Spells

Curse Strike — Avernian Knight Attack 11

Your strike delivers a dark curse, debilitating your foe and lending power to your next attack.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. Will
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls, and your weapon attacks against the target deal 2d6 extra damage.

Avernian Challenge — Avernian Knight Utility 12

You teleport a short distance and challenge nearby enemies.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Teleportation
Move Action Personal
Effect: You teleport 5 squares and then mark each enemy adjacent to you until the end of your next turn.

Hellforged Blade — Avernian Knight Attack 20

Runes of red fire begin glowing on your weapon. Each foe you strike bursts into flame and is assailed by supernatural dread.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fear, Fire, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 1
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is marked, takes a -2 penalty to all defenses, and takes ongoing 10 fire damage (save ends all).
Miss: Half damage, and ongoing 5 fire damage (save ends).

Glorious Myrmidon

"The gods look upon my moment of glory and know envy."

Prerequisite: Fighter, trained in Athletics

You are a warrior of tremendous athleticism and skill. For you, battle is the ultimate competition—a contest in which your personal triumphs and deeds of daring will win you lasting glory. You measure your victories by the fame and recognition they bring you. Folks might say that you're proud, vain, or selfish, and that your hubris is an affront to the gods. You see nothing wrong in wanting to glorify the natural gifts the gods granted you or demonstrating to the world the rewards that can be won with courage, dedication, and skill.

You value fame, honor, and the stories of your triumphs over gold and other worldly treasures. You're on the lookout for opportunities to add to your own growing fame, not through bragging about what you've done but by testing yourself against worthy foes and producing evidence of your victories. If you can't fight the dragon on the village green, then at least you can bring back its head tied to your saddle horn to let everyone know that you bested the creature.

You have little interest in dishonorable victories or foes beneath your station. If you must give battle to unworthy enemies to protect innocent people, you might choose to set your own challenge by wielding ineffective weapons, using only simple attacks, or allowing your opponents the first strike. Defeating a band of goblins hardly adds to your renown at this point in your career, but defeating them with your bare hands—now there's a story.

Glorious Myrmidon Path Features

Myrmidon's Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you can shift 3 squares as a free action before or after the extra action, and you gain a +2 bonus to attack rolls until the start of your next turn.

Battle Agility (11th level): You ignore the speed penalty and check penalty of chainmail and scale armor.

Myrmidon Athleticism (16th level): You gain a +1 bonus to speed and a +2 bonus to Acrobatics, Athletics, and Endurance checks.

JULIE DILLON

Glorious Myrmidon Exploits

Charge to Glory — Glorious Myrmidon Attack 11

You barrel into your enemy, eager to draw first blood.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: You knock the target prone.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Exult in Victory — Glorious Myrmidon Utility 12

The glory of a hard-fought victory sweeps away your fatigue when you defeat a worthy foe.

Encounter ✦ Healing, Martial
Free Action Personal
Trigger: You reduce an enemy to 0 hit points with a melee attack
Effect: You use your second wind, and you gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

Moment of Triumph — Glorious Myrmidon Attack 20

You exhibit a level of pure skill and resilience that few opponents can match, especially in single combat.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, you gain a +2 power bonus to attack rolls and to all defenses. In addition, enemies marked by you take a -4 penalty to attack rolls instead of a -2 penalty for making an attack that doesn't include you as a target.

Ironstar Mauler

"Aggression is the key to victory. Get in there and start mixing it up while your enemy is still trying to decide if it wants to fight or not. Hesitation is a luxury we can't afford."

Prerequisite: Fighter, Ironstar Student feat

You are a battle-tested master of the Ironstar combat style. You wield a mace or a flail as easily as a graceful elf duelist wields a rapier; in your hands, these cruel weapons are as light and quick as willow switches. You have spent countless hours attaining the necessary balance, concentration, and intuition to use these weapons effectively. With uncanny precision, you can crumple a shield, break a weapon-hand, shatter fangs, or crush a skull.

Beyond mastering the style's pure physical technique, you have absorbed the attitude and mindset of the Ironstar masters. Your chosen style is more than pure strength and savagery. You recognize that fearlessness, intimidation, and aggression are weapons every bit as important as the maces or flails you wield.

Warriors of different races and lands have developed techniques similar to yours, but none have studied them more carefully—or practiced them more fiercely—than the dwarf masters who originated the Ironstar technique. You have learned from their teachings and become a fierce and tough-minded warrior. You are the first to charge into the fray and the last to leave it. Enemies do well to fear you.

Ironstar Mauler Path Features

Ironstar Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to attack with a power associated with the Ironstar Student feat or the Ironstar Crusher feat, you can score a critical hit on a roll of 18–20, and you treat the weapon you use for that attack as having the high crit property.

Ironstar Master (11th level): You gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls with maces and flails.

Ironstar Expertise (16th level): Whenever you hit an enemy with a mace or a flail, that enemy takes a –2 penalty to the saving throw against any effect from that attack.

Ironstar Mauler Exploits

Devastating Smash — Ironstar Mauler Attack 11

You deal a powerful blow that leaves your foe open to your allies' attacks.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is dazed and slowed until the end of your next turn.

CHRIS SEAMAN

Ironstar Stance — Ironstar Mauler Utility 12

You gain extra vigor as long as the battle rages.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, if you have no temporary hit points at the start of your turn, you gain temporary hit points equal to 5 + your Constitution modifier.

Crushing Fury — Ironstar Mauler Attack 20

You batter your nearby enemies with overpowering blows. Each hit drives an enemy back into its allies, dazing them too.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 1
Primary Target: Each enemy in burst
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, you push the primary target 1 square, and the primary target is dazed and slowed (save ends both). Make a melee secondary attack.
Secondary Target: One creature adjacent to the primary target that was not in the burst of the primary attack
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude
Hit: The secondary target is dazed until the end of your next turn.
Miss: Half damage, and the primary target is slowed (save ends).

Kulkor Arms Master

"Swords are pretty, there's no doubt of it. But if you want to crack open plate armor or split a dragon's scales, you'll need a weapon with more hitting power."

Prerequisite: Fighter, Kulkor Battlearm Student feat

You are a well-traveled veteran, a pragmatic mercenary who has fought in a dozen different lands. Along the way, you've come to appreciate the virtues and drawbacks of various weapons. Sometimes you're a soldier, sometimes a bodyguard, and sometimes a freebooter in search of the next opportunity. Wherever you go and whatever you do, though, you're always a master of arms.

Many who share your combat style are heartless sellswords, fighting only for the next bag of gold. You might be motivated by coin, or you could find yourself drawn to a higher cause. Perhaps you pursue a calling as a wandering trainer, instructing castle guards and village militias in the effective use of their weapons. You might be a footloose traveler, searching for a worthy place or cause to serve with your martial skills. Or you might be a renowned troubleshooter, awaiting the next chance to test your skills against violent brigands or fierce marauders. You're willing to slay monsters and dangerous beasts if that's what needs to be done, but your true calling is to face enemies that have steel in their hands and prove your mastery over them.

Kulkor Arms Master Path Features

Kulkor Master (11th level): If you use an axe, a hammer, or a mace that has the versatile property to hit an enemy granting combat advantage to you, that enemy grants combat advantage to all creatures until the start of your next turn.

Kulkor Persistence (11th level): When you spend an action point to attack with an axe, a hammer, or a mace that has the versatile property, and that attack misses every target, you can reroll one attack roll but must use the second result.

Smite the Fallen (16th level): Once per round, when you knock an enemy prone with a melee attack, you can make a melee basic attack against that enemy as a free action.

Kulkor Arms Master Exploits

Arms Master Challenge Kulkor Arms Master Attack 11

You lash out at foes within reach, and then call out another enemy a short distance away.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Make a secondary attack.
Secondary Target: One creature other than the primary target
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Choose one enemy within 5 squares of you other than the primary target or the secondary target. You mark that enemy until the end of your next turn.

Tempered in Blood Kulkor Arms Master Utility 12

Calling upon years of brutal conditioning, you fight off the pain of a wound with pure willpower.

Encounter ✦ Healing, Martial
Free Action Personal
Trigger: You are bloodied by an attack
Effect: After the attack is resolved, you use your second wind.

Subjugation of Steel Kulkor Arms Master Attack 20

Spinning in a tight circle, you viciously attack the enemies surrounding you.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 1
Target: Each enemy in burst you can see
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you knock the target prone.

DAVE ALLSOP

Rakehell Duelist

"I can see that you are eager to die, but you'll have to wait until I finish my drink."

Prerequisite: Fighter

You are a rakehell duelist because you're the best at what you do. With a weapon in each hand, you rely on fast footwork and skillful parries. You scorn combatants who need half an hour to strap on heavy armor before they can do battle. By the time other warriors are ready, you can dispatch three sets of opponents and two flagons of ale. Knowing that a fight is around the corner, you make sure you're prepared and that you enjoy life while you can.

You have won riches and fame by going up against deadly opponents. Although your talents have earned you the means to retire to a life of luxury, you find that your pursuit of the good life seems to end up causing fights. For a rakehell duelist, that's the point. Boasting, gambling, and courting the attractive and the wealthy is fun because it can result in being challenged to a duel.

Your reputation attracts a constant stream of aspiring duelists seeking to test themselves against a master. A rakehell duelist usually relishes each opportunity to confirm that he or she is still on top, mercilessly dispatching any ambitious upstarts.

ARNIE SWEKEL

Rakehell Duelist Path Features

Duelist's Guard (11th level): While wearing light armor or chainmail, you gain a +1 bonus to AC against enemies marked by you.

Main Gauche Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you can make a melee basic attack with an off-hand weapon as a free action before or after the extra action.

Marked Opportunity (16th level): If an adjacent enemy marked by you shifts or makes an attack that doesn't include you as a target, it grants combat advantage to you until the end of your next turn.

Rakehell Duelist Exploits

Sly Charge — Rakehell Duelist Encounter 11

Rather than run into your waiting enemy, you flick a small weapon at it first to distract it as you rush in.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Effect: You charge and make the following attack in place of a melee basic attack. If you're wielding a light thrown weapon, you can make a ranged basic attack against the target with that weapon as a free action before the charge. If the ranged attack hits, the target grants combat advantage to you until the start of your next turn.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage. If you have combat advantage against the target, the attack deals extra damage equal to your Dexterity modifier.

Main Gauche Parry — Rakehell Duelist Utility 12

Lesson twenty-three of the tempest technique—a well-timed parry with a light blade can save life and loin.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Immediate Interrupt Personal
Requirement: You must be wielding two melee weapons, one of which is a light blade that has the off-hand property.
Trigger: An enemy hits you with a melee attack
Effect: You gain a +4 bonus to AC and Reflex until the start of your next turn.

Stay Mobile — Rakehell Duelist Attack 20

You dart in to deliver a stinging blow to your enemy, then spring back out of harm's way.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, whenever the target misses you with a melee attack, you can shift 1 square as a free action.

Rampaging Brute

"My hammer says that it and me are coming in fast and getting what we came for."

Prerequisite: Fighter, Ogremight Student feat

Your arrival is heralded by the crash of splintering wood and the roar of a battle cry. When you smash through a door with a single swing of your massive weapon and barrel into the midst of your enemies, they dodge out of the way—if they're wise. If battle has taught you anything, it's that weight plus momentum equals deadly force. When you set your bulk in motion, anyone smart knows to stay out of your way.

Goliaths are famous for defending mountain passes with a squad of slingers, a pile of boulders, and a rampaging brute who rushes downhill and slams into the leader of the opposing force as a killing rain of rock and stone smashes that foe's allies. Goliath legends tell of the first rampaging brute, Roglarok, who charged into the midst of a company of hobgoblins beneath Tizun's Halls. No one in his tribe could have defeated them single-handedly, but by drawing the defenders off, Roglarok allowed his allies to achieve a victory by sneaking in behind the distracted hobgoblins.

Your tactics as a rampaging brute focus on charging in and tying up foes, keeping them away from the more frail members of your party. Your preferred weapon is a heavy weight at the end of a sturdy haft. You favor light armor or chainmail so that your charges can carry you farther into the heart of the battle. You'll be hit frequently, but your fury will keep you fighting no matter how grievous your wounds become.

Rampaging Brute Path Features

Brute Charge (11th level): Whenever an enemy hits you with an opportunity attack while you're charging, you can knock that enemy prone as a free action after the opportunity attack is resolved.

Rampager's Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to charge an enemy, the first attack you make as part of the charge deals 2[W] extra damage on a hit or damage equal to your Strength modifier on a miss.

Trampling Rampager (16th level): When charging, you can move through enemies' squares.

CHRIS SEAMAN

Rampaging Brute Exploits

Barreling Swing — Rampaging Brute Attack 11

You rush through your foes, swinging your weapon in sweeping arcs as you arrive in their midst.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 1
Effect: You charge and make the following attack in place of a melee basic attack. When charging, you can move through enemies' squares.
Target: Each enemy in burst you can see
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Weapon: If you're wielding a two-handed mace or a two-handed hammer, the attack deals extra damage equal to your Constitution modifier.

Tumbling Trample — Rampaging Brute Utility 12

You muscle aside enemies that stand between you and your chosen foe.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Free Action Melee 1
Trigger: You move out of a square occupied by an enemy
Target: The triggering enemy
Effect: You push the target 2 squares and knock it prone.

Brutal Fury — Rampaging Brute Attack 20

Seeing one enemy fall before your might stokes your bloodlust.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Free Action Melee weapon
Trigger: You reduce an enemy to 0 hit points
Effect: You charge and make the following attack in place of a melee basic attack.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier + Constitution modifier damage.

Steel Vanguard Master

"Trust only in your steel and your skill. People will always disappoint you."

Prerequisite: Fighter, Steel Vanguard Student feat

You are a swordmaster of renown and an expert in the famous Steel Vanguard style. This style is based on the use of large, heavy swords such as the greatsword and the falchion. Few can match your skill and lethality with a two-handed sword.

Some combat styles are associated with specific schools, academies, or regions; the Steel Vanguard technique is not one of these styles. It was developed centuries ago in the mercenary companies that served the empires of old. Countless variations and embellishments have been added to the style over time. Currently, the mercenaries known as the Steel Vanguard practice the style, and dozens of distinct regional styles have their roots in the base style.

As a famed swordmaster, you might be sought out by students who want to learn your techniques or by challengers eager to earn a name by besting a warrior of your skill. How you deal with such challenges is up to you. Between adventures, you might run a training school, teach at a famous academy as a visiting instructor, tutor young nobles, or take on an apprentice for a time. When adventure calls again, you set aside your lessons and once again use the martial skills you have honed over years of fighting.

JOEL THOMAS

Steel Vanguard Master Path Features

Vanguard Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to make an attack, you gain a +4 bonus to attack rolls for that attack against enemies marked by you.

Steel Challenge (11th level): Whenever an enemy misses you with a melee attack, you can mark that enemy as a free action.

Great Weapon Defense (16th level): You gain a +2 shield bonus to AC while wielding a two-handed heavy blade.

Steel Vanguard Master Exploits

Rush of Steel Steel Vanguard Master Attack 11

You attack with a long, looping slash of your heavy weapon, then step forward and reverse your grip to strike another enemy from a different direction.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 1
Primary Target: Each enemy in burst you can see
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: You shift 1 square and make a melee secondary attack.
Secondary Target: One creature other than the primary target
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.

Vanguard Defense Steel Vanguard Master Utility 12

Keeping your mighty weapon in constant motion, you blend parries and threatening sweeps into an active defense.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, you gain a +2 power bonus to AC, and at the end of each of your turns while you are conscious, each enemy adjacent to you is marked until the end of your next turn.

Cruel Flourish Steel Vanguard Master Attack 20

Sensing that your enemy is vulnerable, you follow up a successful attack with a quick, devastating strike.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Free Action Melee weapon
Trigger: You hit an enemy with a close or a melee attack
Target: The enemy you hit
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is dazed and takes ongoing 10 damage (save ends both).

Warhound of Bane

"For good or for ill, the god of war guides my fortune."

Prerequisite: Fighter

The realm of mortals is the battlefield of the gods. Forbidden to manifest their power directly, the gods rely on intermediaries to fight their battles. Some heroes volunteer their strength to this divine cause, but not you. Your training taught you how to wield a weapon, not a holy symbol, and to place your faith in your armor and your own courage. As a warrior of outstanding courage and skill, you have caught the attention of Bane, the god of war, and his heavy gaze lies upon your battles and quests.

Some who fall under Bane's gaze embrace their role as paragons of war, serving the Black Hand willingly. You are not bound to this fate. Bane is a terrible tyrant, yet he has great admiration for mortals who excel in martial virtues such as discipline, courage, and skill at arms. Above all, Bane is delighted by victory. A hero who battles for good and eschews tyranny might oppose what Bane stands for, but if he or she is brave, skillful, and triumphant, the master of war is darkly pleased even in defeat.

Warhound of Bane Path Features

Determined Action (11th level): You can spend an action point during your turn as a free action to regain a number of hit points equal to one-half your level + your Wisdom modifier instead of gaining the extra action.

Revitalized Offense (11th level): Whenever you spend a healing surge or use your Determined Action path feature, you gain a +2 bonus to melee attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

Iron Determination (16th Level): While you're using a shield, you gain its shield bonus to Will in addition to AC and Reflex.

Warhound of Bane Prayers

Warhound's Wrath — Warhound of Bane Attack 11

You strike a solid blow, and the god of war smiles upon you, letting new strength flow back into your wounded body.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Healing, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you regain hit points equal to 5 + your Wisdom modifier. If you are bloodied, the attack deals 1[W] extra damage, and you instead regain hit points equal to 10 + your Wisdom modifier.

BEN WOOTTEN

Bane's Fortune — Warhound of Bane Utility 12

You bask in the glow of Bane's favor, extending good fortune to your comrades and ill fortune to your enemies.

Encounter ✦ Divine, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, you and any ally within 3 squares of you gain a +1 power bonus to attack rolls and saving throws, and any enemy marked by you and within 3 squares of you takes a -1 penalty to attack rolls and saving throws. The stance ends if an enemy hits you.

Triumphant Strike — Warhound of Bane Attack 20

You channel the war god's ire to deliver a terrible strike against your foe, driving fear into its allies, who see Bane's hand upon you.

Daily ✦ Divine, Fear, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage, and ongoing 10 damage (save ends). In addition, you mark the primary target until the end of the encounter.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Make a secondary attack that is a close burst 5.
Secondary Target: Each enemy in burst other than the primary target
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. Will
Hit: The secondary target takes a -2 penalty to all defenses (save ends).

CHAPTER 2

Ranger

"Each creature has the same recurring nightmare of the silent predator waiting to strike. Today, I am that predator, and you will not wake from an encounter with my claws."

Few common folk know the dangers that lurk beyond their fields. Hungry beasts, savage marauders, and mischievous fey prowl the forests and mountains. Yet it is here where the ranger is at home. A ranger travels where others hesitate to venture. Whether as a guide, a hunter, a tracker, or a scout, the ranger welcomes the challenges of the wilderness. Few can match the ranger's ability to adapt combat styles and deal with adverse terrain.

The ranger is a skirmisher, skilled at both melee and ranged combat. A skirmishing ranger might harry foes with ranged attacks before closing in and launching a brutal assault. Some rangers are experts at fighting with both sword and bow. Others take advantage of thrown weapons, such as handaxes and javelins.

This chapter offers a suite of new melee and ranged powers for rangers, expanding the choices presented in the Player's Handbook and Martial Power.

- New Builds: One of this chapter's new ranger builds is the hunter ranger, which switches between melee and ranged combat and focuses on attacks that ambush opponents. The marauder ranger is the other new build. It creates a character who is fast and aggressive, specializing in the use of thrown weapons and charges.
- New Class Features: Running Attack is a new class feature that offers an alternative to Prime Shot. This chapter also presents two new fighting styles you can choose: the Hunter Fighting Style and the Marauder Fighting Style.
- New Powers: Almost a hundred new exploits open up options for rangers using both melee and ranged attacks. The powers support the new builds and allow a ranger to make Strength-based ranged attacks or Dexterity-based melee attacks.
- New Paragon Paths: You can personalize your ranger using one of eight new paragon paths, including the darkstrider, the lone wolf, and the reaving axe savant.

RALPH BEISNER

Player's Handbook presents the archer ranger and the two-blade ranger. Martial Power offers the beastmaster ranger. This chapter adds the hunter ranger, a build that encourages a character to switch between melee and ranged weapons, and the marauder ranger, who moves quickly across the battlefield, throwing weapons and striking fast.

Hunter Ranger

Stealthy and agile, you are a talented skirmisher who adapts to overcome any combat scenario. Although you resemble the archer ranger, your powers provide you with mobility and more melee options. You are unrivaled in your ability to fight well at any range.

New Class Features

You can select the following class features instead of another option, such as the ones presented in the Player's Handbook or Martial Power. You need not pick the hunter ranger build to select these features.

Hunter Fighting Style

When you choose a fighting style, you can select Hunter Fighting Style.

Hunter Fighting Style: You gain Quick Draw (Player's Handbook, page 200) as a bonus feat, even if you don't meet the prerequisites. In addition, you can sheathe a weapon as a free action and gain a +4 bonus to AC against opportunity attacks you provoke by making a ranged attack.

Running Attack

This class feature replaces the Prime Shot class feature.

Running Attack: If you use a standard action that lets you move (such as a charge or the skirmish shot power), and you end that movement at least 2 squares away from where you began that move, you gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls made as part of that standard action.

Suggested Options

Dexterity is your key ability score. You rely on Dexterity for your ranged attacks and some melee attack powers as well. After Dexterity, you should emphasize Wisdom, because you rely on intuition to help guide your attacks. For your tertiary ability score, you should favor Strength or Constitution.

Suggested Class Features: Hunter Fighting Style,* Running Attack*

Suggested Feat: Swift Footwork*

Suggested Skills: Acrobatics, Athletics, Nature, Perception, Stealth

Suggested At-Will Powers: fading strike, twin strike*

Suggested Encounter Power: *skirmish shot

Suggested Daily Power: *skirmishing stance

*New option presented in this book

Marauder Ranger

Fierce, fast, and hard-hitting, you are skilled at fighting with two weapons and using your off hand for throwing or parrying. Many of your attacks require thrown weapons. You're faster than other characters, but you're not interested in outrunning trouble; you go looking for it.

New Class Feature

You can select the following class features instead of another option, such as the ones presented in the Player's Handbook or Martial Power. You need not pick the marauder ranger build to select these features.

Marauder Fighting Style

When you choose a fighting style, you can select Marauder Fighting Style.

Marauder Fighting Style: You gain Two-Weapon Defense (Player's Handbook, page 201) as a bonus feat, even if you don't meet the prerequisites. In addition, you gain a +1 bonus to speed while you aren't using a shield or a two-handed weapon.

Running Attack

The Running Attack class feature (described above) is also a good choice for the Marauder Ranger build. This class feature replaces the Prime Shot class feature.

Suggested Options

Strength is your most important ability score. Your melee attacks and heavy thrown weapon attacks rely on it. Typically Wisdom should be your second highest ability score, because you depend on instinct and battle awareness. Dexterity and Constitution are both good choices for your tertiary ability score, depending on whether you prefer to dodge attacks or tough out the hits.

Suggested Class Features: Marauder Fighting Style,* Running Attack*

Suggested Feat: Manticore's Fury*

Suggested Skills: Acrobatics, Athletics, Endurance, Nature, Perception

Suggested At-Will Powers: marauder's rush, throw and stab*

Suggested Encounter Power: *hurling charge

Suggested Daily Power: *scything blow

*New option presented in this book

NEW POWERS

The new exploits presented here include options for the hunter ranger and the marauder ranger. Archer rangers, two-weapon rangers, and beastmaster rangers can also find many useful powers in this section.

Level 1 At-Will Exploits

Fading Strike Ranger Attack 1

You launch an attack against your foe and then back away for safety.

At-Will ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and you shift 2 squares to a square that is not adjacent to the target.
Level 21: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Hunter Fighting Style: When making an opportunity attack, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Marauder's Rush Ranger Attack 1

You rush forward, trusting instinct to guide your attack.

At-Will ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier + Wisdom modifier damage.
Level 21: 2[W] + Strength modifier + Wisdom modifier damage.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Throw and Stab Ranger Attack 1

You fling a weapon at one foe and then charge it or another enemy.

At-Will ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding both a thrown weapon and a melee weapon.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC (thrown weapon)
Hit: 1[W] damage.
Level 21: 2[W] damage.
Effect: You charge an enemy.

RANGER BUILDS AND RUNNING ATTACK

Running Attack rewards rangers whose powers and tactics keep them mobile during a fight. Although this alternative class feature is aimed at the hunter ranger and the marauder ranger, other rangers can also benefit from choosing this alternative. Two-blade rangers and beastmaster rangers have little use for the Prime Shot class feature, because they rarely make ranged attacks. For these builds, you might as well choose Running Attack to replace Prime Shot. You never know when you'll want to charge a monster.

KEREM BEYIT

Level 1 Encounter Exploits

Feral Ambush Ranger Attack 1

You distract an enemy while your beast lunges for the creature and savages it.

Encounter ✦ Beast, Martial
Standard Action Melee beast 1
Target: One creature
Attack: Beast's attack bonus vs. AC
Hit: 1[B] + beast's Strength modifier damage. If you and your beast companion are flanking the target, the attack deals 1[B] extra damage.
Beast: If your companion is a cat, a raptor, a serpent, or a wolf, the attack deals extra damage equal to your Wisdom modifier.

Hunter's Pounce Ranger Attack 1

You leap forward and strike with a single, well-aimed blow. The strike cuts deep and leaves your enemy reeling.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Effect: Before the attack, you shift 2 squares.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and the target is slowed until the end of your next turn.

Hurling Charge — Ranger Attack 1

You hurl one of your weapons and then launch into a charge.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding both a thrown weapon and a melee weapon.
Target: One creature
Effect: Using your Hunter's Quarry, you designate the target as your quarry.
Attack: Strength vs. AC (thrown weapon)
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: You charge the target.

Precise Assault — Ranger Attack 1

You see an opening in an enemy's defense, and you break off your current attack to take advantage of the weakness.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Effect: Before the attack, you move your speed. You don't provoke opportunity attacks for leaving a square at the start of this movement.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength + 2 vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.

Skirmish Shot — Ranger Attack 1

You rush across the battlefield and then let off a devastating shot.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Effect: Before the attack, you move your speed.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.

Level 1 Daily Exploits

Commanding Confrontation — Ranger Attack 1

You launch an agonizing shot that continues to inhibit your foe with each subsequent attack you make.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature designated as your quarry
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the target is no longer your quarry, your melee attacks against it deal extra damage equal to 2 + your Wisdom modifier.

Distracting Team — Ranger Attack 1

You distract your foe while your beast companion moves in for the kill.

Daily ✦ Beast, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon (beast 1)
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage. If this hit reduces the target to 0 hit points, this power is not expended.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Your beast companion moves its speed and makes a secondary attack against the target.
Secondary Attack: Beast's attack bonus vs. AC
Hit: 2[B] + beast's Strength modifier damage, and your beast companion knocks the target prone.
Miss: Half damage.

Multiclass Rangers

As a ranger, you can choose multiclass options to fit either a high Strength or a high Dexterity, giving you a wide array of options. Although any combination works, the following classes are best suited for a ranger's multiclass option.

Barbarian: Few combinations let you dish out damage like a ranger-barbarian multiclass character. Both Hunter's Quarry and the barbarian's inherent damage increases pump up your damage. Dragonborn and goliath are superb racial choices for a ranger multiclassing into barbarian.

Cleric: If you select Strength-based melee cleric powers, you can use powers that fit the beastmaster build or the marauder ranger build. A longtooth shifter makes an excellent character of this sort.

Fighter: You can easily combine a beastmaster ranger or a marauder ranger with the fighter, because they use Strength and can wield the same weapons. If you have the Two-Blade Fighting Style, you'll need to avoid powers that require either two-handed weapons or shields. Warforged, goliath, genasi, half-orc, longtooth shifter, and dragonborn make fine racial choices.

Paladin: With the marauder build in this book, you can make an interesting ranger-paladin. By using Strength-based ranged attacks, your paladin can easily maintain divine challenge against nonadjacent foes. Choosing dragonborn as your race makes your character even more exceptional.

Rogue: Few classes give you attacks based on Dexterity, but the ranger and rogue are two of them. It's easy for such a character to focus on Dexterity-based ranged combat options, but you can also use a decent Strength score to take advantage of both ranger and rogue options. Both classes are strikers, so the combination makes for deadly attacks. For your race, either half-orc or elf makes the combination stronger.

Warden: You'll probably need to skip the shield when playing a ranger-warden. Even without a shield, the warden's arsenal of powers provides your character with more durability than a normal ranger. Your character might best be a longtooth shifter or a goliath.

Warlord: Several powers designed for the archer warlord work well with Strength-based ranger powers. You can combine Hunter's Quarry with warlord powers that weaken your foe or grant allies bonuses against it. This deadly combination will make quick work of any enemy. Consider being a genasi when you want your character to become a ranger-warlord.

Isolation Strike — Ranger Attack 1

Your flurry of attacks knocks your opponents back, allowing you to focus on a single foe.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One or two creatures
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage. If the target is not your quarry, you can push it a number of squares equal to your Wisdom modifier.
Miss: Half damage.

Scything Blow — Ranger Attack 1

You lash out with your weapon in a wide arc, knocking two foes to the ground. You then drive your blade into them.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Effect: Before the attack, you shift 2 squares.
Target: One or two creatures
Attack: Strength or Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] damage, and you knock the target prone.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Make a secondary attack against each target.
Secondary Attack: Strength or Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] damage.
Miss: Half damage.

Skirmishing Stance — Ranger Attack 1

You adopt a defensive, highly mobile combat stance. Your speed helps you catch opponents unprepared and inflict greater damage.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, whenever you move at least 4 squares away from where you started your turn, you gain a +2 power bonus to AC and Reflex until the start of your next turn, and your next attack before the end of your next turn deals 1d8 extra damage.

Sure Shot — Ranger Attack 1

You line up your shot with meticulous care to strike at your foe's vital organs.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC. You can reroll the attack roll but must use the second result.
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage. You can reroll each damage die once but must use the second result.

Level 2 Utility Exploits

Begin the Hunt — Ranger Utility 2

You quickly identify your prey and ready yourself to attack it.

Daily ✦ Martial
No Action Personal
Trigger: You roll initiative
Effect: You gain a +2 bonus to the initiative check, and using your Hunter's Quarry, you designate one creature you can see as your quarry. You gain a +2 power bonus to attack rolls against that creature until it is no longer your quarry.

Invigorating Stride — Ranger Utility 2

You back away from danger and catch your breath.

Encounter ✦ Healing, Martial
Move Action Personal
Effect: You shift a number of squares equal to your Wisdom modifier and must not end the shift adjacent to any enemy. You can use your second wind.

Terrain Advantage — Ranger Utility 2

You use the terrain around you as your first line of defense.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you gain a +4 power bonus to all defenses while you occupy a square of difficult terrain.

Level 3 Encounter Exploits

Avenging Charge — Ranger Attack 3

You take advantage of an enemy's opening while it focuses on your ally.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Immediate Reaction Melee weapon
Trigger: An enemy attacks your ally
Effect: You charge the triggering enemy and make the following attack in place of a melee basic attack.
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.

Encircle the Prey — Ranger Attack 3

You lure your enemy into position. Then, your beast companion lunges.

Encounter ✦ Beast, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you slide the target 1 square. You can shift 1 square.
Effect: Your beast companion makes a melee basic attack against the target as a free action.

Parting Strike — Ranger Attack 3

You slash your enemy across the legs and then withdraw, leaving your foe hobbled.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and the target is slowed until the end of your next turn.
Effect: After the attack, you shift your speed.

Stalking Strike — Ranger Attack 3

You strike quickly and then disappear, leaving your foe searching for the source of the attack.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC. If you are hidden when you attack, you can make a Stealth check to remain hidden if you have any cover or any concealment.
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.

Sustaining Strike — Ranger Attack 3

If your first attack fells your enemy, you retain your strength for a future attack.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding two melee weapons.
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC (main weapon)
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage. If this attack reduces the target to 0 hit points, this power is not expended, and you gain a +2 power bonus to the next attack roll you make with this power before the end of the encounter.
Effect: Make a secondary attack against the target.
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. AC (off-hand weapon)
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage.

Upending Throw — Ranger Attack 3

Your muscles strain as you unleash a mighty ranged attack that knocks your foe down.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a thrown weapon.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC (thrown weapon)
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you knock the target prone.

Level 5 Daily Exploits

Bloody Throw — Ranger Attack 5

You drive your weapons into a nearby enemy and then hurl a weapon into the face of another foe.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a thrown weapon in your off hand and a melee weapon in your main hand.
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC (main weapon)
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Make a secondary attack against the primary target.
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. AC (off-hand weapon)
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Make a ranged tertiary attack. This attack does not provoke opportunity attacks.
Tertiary Target: One creature other than the primary target
Tertiary Attack: Strength vs. AC (thrown weapon)
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the tertiary target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls (save ends).
Miss: You do not expend this power.

Coordinated Charge — Ranger Attack 5

With a silent gesture, you signal your beast, and you both go charging into the fray.

Daily ✦ Beast, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Effect: Using your Hunter's Quarry, you designate the target as your quarry. You and your beast companion charge the target. You can make the following attack in place of a melee basic attack.
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.

Hunter's Confrontation — Ranger Attack 5

Each of your attacks tests your foes' defenses until you find where to hit to make it count.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature designated as your quarry
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the target is no longer your quarry, whenever you hit the target with a melee attack, you knock it prone.

Snarling Wolf Stance — Ranger Attack 5

Like an animal backed into a corner, you become deadlier in your desperation.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, whenever an enemy hits or misses you with a close or a melee attack, you can make a melee basic attack against it as an opportunity action. You can then shift 3 squares but must not end the shift adjacent to any enemy.

Tracing Shot — Ranger Attack 5

You hit your foe in a weak spot and use that wound to guide your subsequent attacks.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier + Wisdom modifier damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you gain a power bonus to melee damage rolls against the target equal to your Wisdom modifier.

Wounded Beast — Ranger Attack 5

You answer an enemy's strike with a snarl and an attack. The rage inside you provides new vigor.

Daily ✦ Healing, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action (Special) Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: You can spend a healing surge.
Special: You can use this power as an immediate reaction when an enemy adjacent to you bloodies you or scores a critical hit against you.

Level 6 Utility Exploits

Clever Teamwork — Ranger Utility 6

You maneuver around your enemies, thanks to your collaboration with your allies.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Move Action Close burst 5
Target: You and one ally in burst
Effect: Each target shifts 1 square as a free action.
Beast: If your beast companion is a target, add your Wisdom modifier to the number of squares it can shift.

Healing Herbs — Ranger Utility 6

You aid a wounded companion by quickly applying a poultice of healing herbs.

Daily ✦ Healing, Martial
Minor Action Melee touch
Target: One ally
Effect: You make a Heal check. The target regains hit points equal to half the result of your check. The target can make a saving throw against one poison effect on him or her that a save can end.

Off-Hand Defense — Ranger Utility 6

You keep your off-hand weapon ready to block enemy attacks.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, you gain a +1 power bonus to AC while you are conscious and wielding two melee weapons. If you do not make an off-hand attack during your turn, the bonus is instead +2 until the start of your next turn.

Stealthy Escape — Ranger Utility 6

You slip into the shadows, too smoothly for anyone to notice.

Daily ✦ Martial
Free Action Personal
Prerequisite: You must be trained in Stealth.
Trigger: You make a Stealth check and dislike the result
Effect: Reroll the Stealth check with a bonus equal to your Wisdom modifier. You can use the higher of the two rolls. If the second result is lower than the first, you do not expend this power.

Level 7 Encounter Exploits

Assess and Strike — Ranger Attack 7

A brush with your off-hand weapon marks a spot on your enemy for a more accurate thrust from your main weapon.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding two melee weapons.
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. Reflex (off-hand weapon)
Hit: 1[W] damage. Make a secondary attack against the target. You ignore any attack roll penalties to the secondary attack.
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. AC (main weapon)
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.

Fetch — Ranger Attack 7

After your weapon strikes a foe, your beast grabs the creature and drags it away.

Encounter ✦ Beast, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon (beast 1)
Requirement: You must be wielding a thrown weapon.
Target: One creature adjacent to your beast companion
Attack: Strength vs. AC (thrown weapon)
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and your beast companion makes a secondary attack against the target.
Secondary Attack: Beast's attack bonus vs. AC
Hit: Your beast companion shifts a number of squares equal to your Wisdom modifier and pulls the target adjacent to it.

Finishing Cut — Ranger Attack 7

You execute a swift attack against a foe, attempting to finish off the creature.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage. If the target is bloodied or prone, the attack deals 2[W] extra damage.

Iconic Rangers

Any race that lives on the outskirts of civilization or deep within the wilderness can fit the ranger's themes. The best races for a ranger combine the power, speed, and the sense needed to survive in the wild.

Elves: With natural bonuses to Wisdom and Dexterity, elves make excellent hunter and archer rangers. Because rangers use attacks that have multiple targets, the elven accuracy racial power provides a welcome advantage. More details about elf rangers can be found on page 45 of Martial Power.

Half-Orcs: Half-orcs make extremely versatile rangers, and their furious assault racial power emphasizes their striker role. A half-orc is suitable for any ranger build and can switch competently between Strength and Dexterity powers.

Shifters: With the race's bestial bloodline, a shifter constantly yearns for the hunt. It's natural for shifters to follow the path of the ranger. Each type of shifter is suited to a different set of builds. With their naturally high Strength, longtooth rangers excel in the two-blade and the marauder builds. Longtooth beastmasters prefer to adventure with wolf beast companions. Razorclaws favor the archer or hunter fighting styles, or they become beastmasters who fight with ranged weapons while they send their feline beasts into melee.

Surprising Throw — Ranger Attack 7

You launch your weapon at your foe while your ally distracts it.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a thrown weapon.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC (thrown weapon). The target grants combat advantage to you if it is adjacent to an ally of yours who can take free actions.
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage.

Toppling Rush — Ranger Attack 7

You dart forward and slash at your foe's legs, unbalancing the creature.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Effect: Before the attack, you move your speed.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you knock the target prone.

Level 9 Daily Exploits

Bounding Beast — Ranger Attack 9

Your beast pushes back one foe and then charges forth.

Daily ✦ Beast, Martial
Standard Action Melee beast 1
Target: One creature
Attack: Beast's attack bonus vs. AC
Hit: 2[B] + beast's Strength modifier damage, and your beast companion pushes the target 1 square.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Your beast companion charges one creature other than the target.

Furious Fling — Ranger Attack 9

You lob your weapon at your foe, grievously injuring it.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a thrown weapon.
Target: One creature
Effect: Using your Hunter's Quarry, you designate the target as your quarry.
Attack: Strength vs. AC (thrown weapon)
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage. If the target is your quarry, it takes ongoing 5 damage (save ends).
Miss: Half damage.

Invigorating Confrontation — Ranger Attack 9

Each strike you deliver against your quarry bolsters you.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature designated as your quarry
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the target is no longer your quarry, whenever you hit the target with a melee attack, you gain temporary hit points equal to 5 + your Wisdom modifier.

Marked for Death — Ranger Attack 9

A carefully aimed shot imperils your quarry.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Target: One creature designated as your quarry
Attack: Strength (melee) or Dexterity (ranged) vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength (melee) or Dexterity (ranged) modifier damage, and you mark the target until the end of your next turn. Until the end of the encounter, your Hunter's Quarry deals two extra dice of Hunter's Quarry damage against the target.

Shocking Assault — Ranger Attack 9

You rush your opponent, and before it can react, you pin the creature in place with steel.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is immobilized (save ends).
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Springback Shot — Ranger Attack 9

As an enemy rushes your position, you spring back suddenly and fire an arrow at it, discouraging it from approaching.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Immediate Interrupt Ranged weapon
Trigger: An enemy moves during its turn to a square adjacent to you
Effect: Before the attack, you shift 2 squares and must not end the shift adjacent to the triggering enemy.
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Effect: The target is immobilized (save ends).

Ranger Builds and Combat Styles

Rangers enjoy proficiency with many types of weapons, so they can take advantage of various combat style feats in Chapter 5 of this book. Here's a short guide to the combat styles that work best for each ranger build.

Archer Ranger: Adamant Arrow, Harrowing Swarm, Leaf Runner, and Silent Shot.

Beastmaster Ranger: Arkhosian Fang, Black Hood, Desert Moon, Elsir Hammer, Hunting Spear, Ironstar, Kulkor Battlearm, Mountain Thunder, Nerathan High Blade, Reaving Axe, and Rending Chains.

Hunter Ranger: Black Hood, Hunting Spear, Kulkor Battlearm, and Nerathan High Blade.

Marauder Ranger: Elsir Hammer, Ironstar, Midnight Blade, Mountain Thunder, and Reaving Axe.

Two-Blade Ranger: Arkhosian Fang, Desert Moon, Elsir Hammer, Ironstar, Kulkor Battlearm, Mountain Thunder, Nerathan High Blade, Reaving Axe, and Rending Chains.

Level 10 Utility Exploits

Agile Escape — Ranger Utility 10

Nothing can slow you down.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Immediate Interrupt Personal
Trigger: You are hit by an attack that makes you slowed, immobilized, restrained, or dazed
Effect: You gain a +4 power bonus to all defenses against the triggering attack.

Padfoot Advance — Ranger Utility 10

You glide over the ground like a stalking cat.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Free Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of your turn, you don't take a penalty to Stealth checks for moving, and if you don't hit with an attack while you are hidden, you remain hidden.

Resume the Hunt — Ranger Utility 10

You drop a foe and then sprint away in search of the next fight.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Free Action Personal
Trigger: You reduce an enemy to 0 hit points
Effect: You move your speed. You don't provoke opportunity attacks for leaving a square at the start of this movement. Until the end of your next turn, you gain a +2 bonus to all defenses.

Weathered Resilience — Ranger Utility 10

Each setback, stumble, or wound bolsters your determination to succeed.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, you gain resistance to all damage equal to your Wisdom modifier while you are bloodied.

Level 13 Encounter Exploits

Answer with Steel — Ranger Attack 13

You instantly attack when an enemy comes too close. You then quickly step away.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Immediate Interrupt Melee weapon
Trigger: An enemy moves during its turn to a square adjacent to you
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and you shift 1 square.

Quick Throw — Ranger Attack 13

You sling a weapon at a foe, catching the creature off guard.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Minor Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a thrown weapon.
Effect: Before the attack, you shift 1 square.
Target: One creature you have not attacked during this turn
Attack: Strength (thrown weapon) vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you cannot attack the target again until the end of your turn.

Rangers and Great Weapons

Rangers are commonly identified with two-weapon fighting, but not all ranger builds need to follow this path. Given the class's proficiency with martial weapons, a ranger could fight with a two-handed weapon such as a greatsword, a greataxe, or a greatspear (Adventurer's Vault). Such a weapon would be a poor choice for marauder rangers and two-blade rangers, because they lose fighting style benefits. On the other hand, beastmaster rangers and hunter rangers gain no special benefit for two-weapon fighting and can wield a two-handed weapon without penalty. An archer ranger might also want to carry a two-handed weapon for times when archery is risky or impossible.

Ravaging Tide — Ranger Attack 13

Your enraged beast lashes out at any enemies that are around it.

Encounter ✦ Beast, Martial
Standard Action Melee beast 1
Target: One creature
Attack: Beast's attack bonus vs. AC
Hit: 2[B] + beast's Strength modifier damage, and any enemy adjacent to your beast companion takes damage equal to 5 + your Wisdom modifier.

Thread the Needle — Ranger Attack 13

You take a shot and then dash toward your foe to engage it in melee.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage. You shift a number of squares equal to your Wisdom modifier.
Effect: If the target starts its next turn adjacent to you, you can make a melee basic attack against it as a free action.

Barreling the Fish — Ranger Attack 15

Your quick movement exposes your foe to a punishing attack. While the creature is recovering, you launch a weapon at a different enemy.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a thrown weapon.
Effect: Before the attack, you shift 2 squares.
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC (melee). The attack can score a critical hit on a roll of 16-20.
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: You shift 2 squares and make a ranged secondary attack. This attack doesn't provoke opportunity attacks.
Secondary Target: One creature other than the primary target
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. AC (thrown weapon). The attack can score a critical hit on a roll of 16-20.
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.

Deadly Nightshade — Ranger Attack 15

You apply a dose of poison to your arrow or blade. When you strike, you temporarily debilitate your foe.

Daily ✦ Martial, Poison, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength (melee) or Dexterity (ranged) vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength (melee) or Dexterity (ranged) modifier damage. The target is weakened and takes ongoing 10 poison damage (save ends both).

Fearsome Beast — Ranger Attack 15

Your beast savages an enemy, making that creature its prey. When it grows bored, the beast launches itself at a new foe, drawing that creature's attention.

Daily ✦ Beast, Martial
Standard Action Melee beast 1
Target: One creature
Attack: Beast's attack bonus vs. AC
Hit: 3[B] + beast's Dexterity modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Your beast companion gains 10 temporary hit points, and your beast companion marks the target until the end of the encounter or until your beast companion attacks a creature other than the target. Until the end of the encounter, whenever your beast companion makes an attack roll against any creature, it marks that creature until the end of the encounter or until it makes an attack roll against a different creature.

Overwhelming Confrontation — Ranger Attack 15

You strike your enemy from afar and leave it reeling. The best is yet to come, though.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature designated as your quarry
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and the target is dazed (save ends).
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: The next time you hit the target with a melee attack before the end of the encounter, the target is stunned until the end of your next turn.

Reactive Shot — Ranger Attack 15

You quickly fire at the first sign of combat.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
No Action Ranged weapon
Trigger: You roll initiative
Target: One creature
Effect: Using your Hunter's Quarry, you designate the target as your quarry.
Attack: Strength (thrown weapon) or Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength (thrown weapon) or Dexterity modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.

Trick Shot — Ranger Attack 15

You take several chaotic shots, which strike various parts of your foes' bodies, inhibiting the creatures in different ways.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One, two, or three creatures
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Effect: Roll a d4 to determine the effect of each attack.
1—You knock the target prone.
2—The target is slowed (save ends).
3—The target is dazed (save ends).
4—The target is immobilized (save ends).

Level 16 Utility Exploits

Blade and Bow — Ranger Utility 16

You switch between fighting in melee and at range, confusing your foe and leaving it vulnerable to both techniques.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, whenever you hit your quarry with a melee attack, your next ranged attack against your quarry before the end of the encounter deals extra damage equal to your Wisdom modifier. Whenever you hit your quarry with a ranged attack, your next melee attack against your quarry before the end of the encounter deals extra damage equal to your Wisdom modifier.

Ranger's Parry — Ranger Utility 16

You use your off-hand weapon to deflect an enemy attack.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Immediate Interrupt Personal
Requirement: You must be wielding two melee weapons.
Trigger: An enemy hits you with a melee or a ranged attack
Effect: You gain a +4 bonus to AC and Reflex against the attack, and you gain 10 temporary hit points.

Tree Runner — Ranger Utility 16

You're accustomed to battling on precarious surfaces, and your sure footing lends you aid as you dart around the terrain.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you can move at full speed while climbing or balancing, or you can jump a distance up to your speed. You do not grant combat advantage while climbing or balancing, and you can jump down a number of squares equal to your speed without having to make an Acrobatics check to reduce falling damage.

Vengeful Oath — Ranger Utility 16

Seeing a foe wound one of your allies fills you with vigor and hardens your resolve against the offender.

Daily ✦ Healing, Martial
Immediate Reaction Personal
Trigger: An enemy bloodies your ally or reduces your ally to 0 hit points or fewer
Effect: You can spend a healing surge and can make a saving throw against an effect that a save can end. Using your Hunter's Quarry, you designate the triggering enemy as your quarry.

Level 17 Encounter Exploits

Duck and Draw — Ranger Attack 17

You duck beneath your enemy's attack and then step away, striking at range.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Immediate Interrupt Ranged weapon
Trigger: An enemy makes a melee attack against you
Effect: You shift a number of squares equal to your Wisdom modifier.
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.

Reproving Strike — Ranger Attack 17

Your attack brings vengeance to enemies that have hurt your friends.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength (melee or thrown weapon) vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage. If a bloodied ally is adjacent to the target, you push the target 1 square and knock it prone.

Suppressing Shots — Ranger Attack 17

You shower enemies with arrows, pinning them down. Any foes that try to move through the area you threaten will suffer the consequences.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 20 squares
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and the target is immobilized until the end of your next turn.
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you can make a ranged basic attack as an opportunity action against any enemy that moves into the area of the burst during its turn.

Wolverine Claw Strike — Ranger Attack 17

You dart among your foes in a low crouch, striking out on both sides.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Effect: Before the attack, you shift 2 squares.
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Effect: You shift 2 squares and make a secondary attack.
Secondary Target: One creature other than the primary target
Secondary Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Effect: You gain a bonus to AC equal to your Wisdom modifier until the end of your next turn.

Barbed Arrows — Ranger Attack 19

You loose a couple of shots at nearby enemies. When your opponents pull out the projectiles, chunks of flesh come with them.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One or two creatures
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC. Make two attack rolls and use the higher result.
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and the target is weakened (save ends).
Aftereffect: The target takes ongoing 10 damage (save ends).

Crippling Spiral — Ranger Attack 19

Your arrow injures your enemy, knocking it to the ground or pinning it in place. Once your foe is hampered, your beast companion leaps into action.

Daily ✦ Beast, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon (beast 1)
Requirement: You must be wielding a thrown weapon.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength (thrown weapon) vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is immobilized (save ends). In addition, the target loses its fly speed (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and the target loses its fly speed until the end of its next turn.
Effect: Your beast companion shifts its speed and makes a secondary attack against the target.
Secondary Attack: Beast's attack bonus vs. AC
Hit: 2[B] + beast's Strength modifier damage.

Frantic Assault — Ranger Attack 19

Your shot marks the target you intend to kill. As you confront your foe in melee, your weapons flash in a whirlwind of steel, threatening other enemies as well.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature designated as your quarry
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the target is no longer your quarry, whenever you hit the target with a melee attack, any enemy adjacent to you takes damage equal to 5 + your Wisdom modifier.

Ringing the Bell — Ranger Attack 19

You come up behind your enemy and drive your weapon against its head, leaving it senseless.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and ongoing 5 damage (save ends). If you have combat advantage against the target, it is also dazed (save ends).

Unrestrained Aggression — Ranger Attack 19

Your volley of arrows rains down across your enemies. Among the targets, you pick out a single opponent to kill.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Area burst 3 within 10 squares
Target: Each enemy in burst
Effect: Using your Hunter's Quarry, you designate one target you can see as your quarry.
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.

Level 22 Utility Exploits

Daunting Agility — Ranger Utility 22

You leap through the air with remarkable skill and speed.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Move Action Personal
Prerequisite: You must be trained in Athletics.
Effect: You shift your speed and have a +10 power bonus to Athletics checks to jump during the shift.

EVA WIDERMANN

Fade from Sight — Ranger Utility 22

You step back and disappear amid the darkness or foliage.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Minor Action Personal
Effect: You shift 1 square. You can then make a Stealth check to become hidden if you have any cover or any concealment.

Fleet of Foot — Ranger Utility 22

You sprint through the battle with such speed that you're already gone by the time your enemies swing.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, you do not provoke opportunity attacks for moving. In addition, you don't take a penalty to attack rolls or grant combat advantage for running.

Sharpen the Senses — Ranger Utility 22

You hone your senses and note the tiniest details around you.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, you gain a +5 power bonus to Perception checks. In addition, you can see invisible creatures unless they are invisible as a result of being hidden.

Tested Analysis — Ranger Utility 22

Each swing or shot instructs you on how best to anticipate your foe's movement.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, whenever you miss your quarry with an attack, you gain a +2 power bonus to attack rolls against it until the end of your next turn.

Level 23 Encounter Exploits

Avalanche of Fury — Ranger Attack 23

You cut wide with your two weapons, and if the strategy doesn't work, you save it for use later in the fight.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding two melee weapons.
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC (main weapon)
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Make a secondary attack against the target.
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. AC (off-hand weapon)
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Miss: You do not expend this power.

Flickering Blades — Ranger Attack 23

You whirl your weapon in a dazzling butterfly pattern. The flash of steel momentarily disorients any enemy you strike.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One, two, or three creatures
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and the target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

Ricochet Throw — Ranger Attack 23

As you unleash your weapon, it strikes one foe and then ricochets toward another, hitting that creature as well.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a thrown weapon.
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC (thrown weapon)
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage. Make a secondary attack that uses the same thrown weapon you used for the primary attack.
Secondary Target: One creature within 5 squares of the primary target
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.

Windwalk Strike — Ranger Attack 23

You glide across the ground as if you were the wind. Your swift movement catches your foes by surprise.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Effect: Before the attack, you shift your speed.
Target: One or two creatures
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC. The target grants combat advantage to you for this attack.
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.

Wolf Howl Strike — Ranger Attack 23

You dart into sight and strike your foe as you howl.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Effect: Before the attack, you move your speed.
Target: One creature.
Attack: Strength (melee) or Dexterity (ranged) vs. AC. If the target couldn't see you before you moved, it grants combat advantage to you for this attack.
Hit: 3[W] + Strength (melee) or Dexterity (ranged) modifier damage.

Master of the Wilderness

As a ranger, you are both a competent warrior and the party's expert on nature. If you want to maximize your character's ability to guide your allies through the wild, choose the occasional utility power that assists them on their skill checks—for example, crucial advice or skilled companion from the Player's Handbook. Then select the Practiced Study feat (page 138). Many martial practices directly relate to outdoor adventuring or overland travel. Your fellow adventurers will greatly appreciate your ability to steer them swiftly and safely through trackless wilderness and brutal extremes of weather. Better yet, you'll feel as though your character truly is a master of the wilderness.

Aid the Beast — Ranger Attack 25

You unleash a barrage of attacks from a distance, granting your beast the advantage.

Daily ✦ Beast, Martial, Stance, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a thrown weapon.
Target: One creature adjacent to your beast companion
Attack: Strength vs. AC (thrown weapon)
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the stance ends, you can make a ranged basic attack once per round as a minor action against one creature adjacent to your beast companion. If you hit the target, it grants combat advantage to your beast companion until the end of your turn.

Circling Cascade — Ranger Attack 25

You circle your opponent, striking hard. Your blows leave your enemy bruised, bloody, and reeling from the ferocious onslaught.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding two melee weapons.
Effect: Before the attack, you shift 2 squares.
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC (main weapon)
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: You shift 2 squares and make a secondary attack against the target. The target grants combat advantage to you for this attack.
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. AC (off-hand weapon)
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: You shift 2 squares and make a tertiary attack against the target. The target grants combat advantage to you for this attack.
Tertiary Attack: Strength vs. AC (main weapon)
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage. If all three attacks hit the target, it is dazed (save ends).
Miss: Half damage.

Deadly Sidestep — Ranger Attack 25

When your enemy approaches, you deliver a single deadly thrust and then twist aside. You allow your foe's momentum to send the creature tumbling.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Immediate Interrupt Melee weapon
Trigger: An enemy moves during its turn to a square adjacent to you
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and the target is dazed (save ends).
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: You slide the target a number of squares equal to 1 + your Wisdom modifier and knock it prone.

Incapacitating Confrontation — Ranger Attack 25

Your shot incapacitates an enemy, giving you the advantage in melee combat.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature designated as your quarry
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Effect: Until the target is no longer your quarry, whenever you hit it with a melee attack, the target is weakened until the end of your next turn.

Pulverizing Shot — Ranger Attack 25

You loose arrow after arrow at an approaching foe, piercing metal, flesh, and bone.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Effect: Make the following attack four times against the target.
Attack: Dexterity vs. Reflex. The attack can score a critical hit on a roll of 18–20.
Hit: 10 + Dexterity modifier damage.

Level 27 Encounter Exploits

Rolling Fire — Ranger Attack 27

You sprint across the battlefield, dodging enemy attacks. When you stop, you unleash a pair of well-timed shots.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Effect: Before the attack, you shift a number of squares equal to your Wisdom modifier.
Target: One or two creatures
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC. This attack doesn't provoke opportunity attacks.
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.

Skewering Shot — Ranger Attack 27

Your shot leaves an enemy with a gaping wound that oozes blood whenever the creature moves.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a thrown weapon.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC (thrown weapon)
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is immobilized until the end of your next turn. Until the immobilized condition ends, the target takes 15 damage whenever it teleports or is pulled, pushed, or slid.

Steel Breeze — Ranger Attack 27

You rush into the middle of your enemies and unleash a cyclone of steel that shocks your foes.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Effect: Before the attack, you shift 3 squares.
Target: One, two, or three creatures
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is dazed until the end of your next turn.

Two-Beast Strike — Ranger Attack 27

You strike at your foe, distracting it while your beast moves in for the kill.

Encounter ✦ Beast, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon (beast 1)
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target grants combat advantage to your beast companion until the end of your next turn.
Effect: Your beast makes a secondary attack against the target.
Secondary Attack: Beast's attack bonus vs. AC
Hit: 3[B] + beast's Strength modifier damage.
Miss: You do not expend this power.

Brutal Tempest — Ranger Attack 29

Your beast becomes a flurry of teeth and claws, rending flesh and breaking bone.

Daily ✦ Beast, Martial
Standard Action Close burst 1 (beast)
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Beast's attack bonus vs. AC
Hit: 5[B] + beast's Strength modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.

Culling Out — Ranger Attack 29

You hook your target with your weapon after you hit, and quickly drag it away from its allies.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 5[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: You shift a number of squares equal to your Wisdom modifier and pull the target adjacent to you.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Gauntlet of Steel — Ranger Attack 29

You move effortlessly through ranks of enemies, cutting them down as you approach a target you have marked for death.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding two melee weapons.
Effect: Before the attack, you shift your speed. During this movement, you can shift through enemies' squares. Make a melee basic attack against each enemy whose space you enter. No enemy can be attacked more than once from a single use of this power.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage.

True Arrow — Ranger Attack 29

The important arrow in your quiver is the one that finishes your foe.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 6[W] + Dexterity modifier damage. If you reduce the target to 0 hit points, this power is not expended.
Miss: Half damage.

Ultimate Confrontation — Ranger Attack 29

You study your foe's movements, and as combat grows fiercer, your knowledge allows you to deliver deadlier blows with each hit.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature designated as your quarry
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the target is no longer your quarry, whenever you hit the target with a melee attack, you deal 1[W] extra damage. The extra damage increases by 1[W] each time you hit the target with a melee attack, up to a maximum of 5[W] extra damage. If you miss the target with a melee attack, the extra damage decreases to 1[W].

So You Want to Play a Ranger?

The ranger is a striker, a character who is best at dealing large amounts of damage to a single enemy. In a way, the ranger is two classes: a Dexterity-based class that uses ranged attacks, and a Strength-based class that fights in melee. When creating a character, mixing these two approaches might end up making your character inefficient. To make it easier to play a ranger that switches between ranged and melee combat, this book introduces ranged powers based on Strength and melee powers based on Dexterity.

If you choose to play a Strength-based ranger, you have the two-blade, marauder, and beastmaster (from Martial Power) builds to draw from. These builds focus on melee combat, although a few of the marauder powers are ranged attacks. Choose heavy thrown weapons, because they let you use Strength for attack rolls and damage rolls with ranged basic attacks.

As a Dexterity-based ranger, you should choose the archer or the hunter build. If you think your character will see a lot of melee combat, choose the Melee Training feat from Player's Handbook 2. With this feat, you can make melee basic attacks using Dexterity instead of Strength.

Bloodfury Hunter

"Angry? I'll show you angry!"

Prerequisite: Shifter, ranger

Every ranger needs to tap into the beast inside; this task is especially simple for a shifter like you. You have hones your senses. You can smell blood in the air and hear the sound of your foe's racing heartbeat; at times, you can even taste the fear you inspire. By embracing the animal inside you, you become a true hunter.

Some shifters suppress their animal instincts, but you crave the adrenaline rush that comes over you when you unleash your inner beast. Your muscles are charged and your senses are enhanced. It's at these times that you feel alive and you are most dangerous to your enemies.

You gain resilience through unleashing the beast inside you. You have spent extensive time alone in the wild, where beasts were your only companions. You have studied them, watched the way they move and fight. Like them, when you become injured, you're even deadlier. You gain speed, strength, and ferocity. Your opponents would do well to eliminate you quickly; otherwise, they'll find that you're at your best when you're in the last throes of life.

Bloodfury Hunter Path Features

Shifter's Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, your attacks deal extra damage equal to your Wisdom modifier until the end of your turn. If you're bloodied, you also gain temporary hit points equal to 10 + your Wisdom modifier.

Dynamic Transformation (11th level): Whenever you use your longtooth shifting or razorclaw shifting racial power, you can shift 2 squares.

Bestial Accuracy (16th level): While you're under the effect of your longtooth shifting or razorclaw shifting racial power, you gain a +2 bonus to attack rolls against your quarry.

Bloodfury Hunter Exploits

Blood for Blood — Bloodfury Hunter Attack 11

Your animalistic instincts surge, helping you push your body beyond its normal physical limits to deliver a deadly blow.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength (melee) or Dexterity (ranged) vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength (melee) or Dexterity (ranged) modifier damage. If you are a longtooth shifter, you also knock the target prone. If you are a razorclaw shifter, you can shift 2 squares after the attack.
Effect: You can take 5 damage to deal damage equal to 5 + your Wisdom modifier to the target.

Unleash the Beast — Bloodfury Hunter Utility 12

As your injuries grow worse, you succumb to the fury in your soul and wake the animal inside.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Minor Action Personal
Requirement: You must be bloodied.
Effect: Until you are no longer bloodied, you grant combat advantage and gain a power bonus to damage rolls equal to your Wisdom modifier.

Bloodfury Rampage — Bloodfury Hunter Attack 20

The smell of your own blood sends you into a bloodlust as you unleash your animalistic fury upon your enemies.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be under the effect of your longtooth shifting or razorclaw shifting racial power.
Target: One or two creatures.
Attack: Strength (melee) or Dexterity (ranged) vs. AC. If you are bloodied, the attack targets the lowest of the target's AC, Fortitude, or Reflex.
Hit: 3[W] + Strength (melee) or Dexterity (ranged) modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.

DAVE ALLSOP

Darkstrider

"Long, lightless miles lie before us. Follow me, and you might live to see the sun again."

Prerequisite: Ranger, trained in Dungeoneering

Beneath the world of daylight lies a vast realm of eternal night—the caverns, tunnels, and vaults of the Underdark. This wilderness of stone is home to dangerous monsters and rapacious civilizations that plague the world, and it's here you're at home. You have explored the lightless passages and wandered the uncounted miles of labyrinthine caves. The bizarre ecology of this subterranean world is as familiar to you as the flora and fauna of a surface forest; you know how to survive where other heroes would find a cruel, swift death.

As a darkstrider, you are part explorer, part guide, and part hunter. You have made it your task to discover the secret paths and hidden strongholds of the Underdark, mastering the unique dangers of this horrible realm and learning the ways of the creatures and peoples who call it home. You could serve as a spy, keeping watch on the plots of the drow or the mind flayers. You might be an exterminator, fighting a shadowy war against teeming hordes of troglodytes and grimlocks in foul caverns beneath the mountains. Or you might be a subterranean trailblazer, skilled at finding treasures long hidden from the light. In any case, survival in the Underdark is a game of stealth, sharply honed senses, ambush, and savagery—and you understand its rules perfectly.

Darkstrider Path Features

Dark Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you gain a +4 bonus to all defenses until the end of your next turn.

Darkstrider Edge (11th level): At the beginning of an encounter, you have combat advantage against any creatures that have not acted yet during the encounter. In addition, your weapon attacks against those creatures or creatures from which you are hidden deal extra damage equal to 3 + your Wisdom modifier.

Blindsense (16th level): You have blindsight out to a distance of 2 squares + your Wisdom modifier, meaning you can clearly see creatures or objects within the range and within line of effect, even if they are invisible or obscured.

BEN WOOTTEN

Darkstrider Exploits

Darkstrider Ambush — Darkstrider Attack 11

You exploit your advantage with a single well-aimed strike that momentarily disorients your enemy.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Target: One creature granting combat advantage to you
Attack: Strength (melee) or Dexterity (ranged) vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength (melee) or Dexterity (ranged) modifier damage, and the target is dazed until the end of your next turn.

Cloaked in Shadow — Darkstrider Utility 12

You vanish into the shadowy clefts of the natural rock and stone around you.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Minor Action Personal
Requirement: You must be adjacent to a wall or other large stone feature, such as a column, a boulder, or a stalagmite.
Effect: You are hidden to any enemies that aren't adjacent to you. You remain hidden until you move or attack.

Death in the Dark — Darkstrider Attack 20

With uncanny precision, you lash out at your enemy's head, seeking to blind the foe.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Target: One or two creatures
Attack: Strength (melee) or Dexterity (ranged) vs. AC. The attack ignores concealment but not total concealment.
Hit: 3[W] + Strength (melee) or Dexterity (ranged) modifier damage, and the target is blinded and takes ongoing 5 damage (save ends both).
Miss: 3[W] + Strength (melee) or Dexterity (ranged) modifier damage.

Harrowing Swarm Archer

"My sight is supreme, and my attacks are relentless. You can't escape from a swarm."

Prerequisite: Ranger, Harrowing Swarm Student feat

Inspired by the way a wasp swarm engulfs an enemy, you overwhelm opponents with a mass of arrows or bolts. You are a master of the Harrowing Swarm style. You make relentless attacks that panic your foes and deliver seemingly endless waves of pain.

By perfecting the style, you can disrupt your opponents and cause lingering wounds. You have studied the wasp's streamlined grace and learned how to stay on the move and reduce the damage inflicted by your foes' attacks. A harrowing swarm archer does not balk at melee. You might pick ranger powers that are reactive or powers that allow you to shift quickly through battle. That way, you can quickly escape any dangerous situations and then strike back against foes that confronted you.

Harrowing swarm archers often train as town or militia archers before taking up the discipline. You might pursue adventure for a variety of reasons. Perhaps you seek treasure or fame, or maybe you want to hunt the most dangerous and feared beasts so that you can test your skill against them. As a harrowing swarm archer, you have made a study of nature, observing the physical defenses of natural creatures. You have applied those lessons to your own technique, so now, wherever you go, you feel confident that your foes will respect your sting.

STEVE ELLIS

Harrowing Swarm Archer Path Features

Sniper's Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to make a ranged attack that hits your quarry, the quarry takes ongoing 5 damage (save ends). The ongoing damage increases to 10 at 21st level.

Tormenting the Prey (11th level): You gain a +2 bonus to attack rolls against any enemy taking ongoing damage.

Glancing Shot (16th level): You can deal your Hunter's Quarry damage to your quarry even when you miss it with an attack.

Harrowing Swarm Archer Exploits

Savage Sting Harrowing Swarm Archer Attack 11

Your shot pierces your foe, creating a grievous wound that hampers your enemy.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and ongoing 5 damage (save ends).
Level 21: Ongoing 10 damage (save ends).

Wasp's Evasion Harrowing Swarm Archer Utility 12

You duck and weave as if riding an air current, avoiding the full force of your enemies' blows.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Immediate Interrupt Personal
Trigger: An enemy hits you with a melee or a ranged attack
Effect: You take half damage from melee and ranged attacks until the end of your next turn.

Deadly Swarm Harrowing Swarm Archer Attack 20

Your shots overwhelm your foes, making them susceptible to other adverse effects.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One, two, three, or four creatures
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and the target takes a -2 penalty to saving throws until the end of your next turn.
Miss: Half damage.

Huntmaster

"Look—blood on the leaves. We wounded the wyvern. It's gone to ground somewhere close by; now we finish it."

Prerequisite: Ranger, Hunting Spear Student feat

You are a renowned beast-slayer, honored for your skill at tracking down and killing ferocious monsters. No one is a better tracker than you are, and your finely honed senses make it difficult for your enemies to surprise you.

The spear is your weapon of choice, because it's suited to the hunter's work. Archery has its place, but too often you face your foe in dense thickets or cramped lairs, where the bow is a poor choice. If you find a few yards of clear terrain for a clean toss, you can throw the spear with deadly effect. If not, it's a simple, quick, and handy weapon that can deal lethal blows from just outside the range of claw or fang.

Although you're good at killing, you have no taste for wanton slaughter—for you, the greatest challenge lies in pitting your skill and strength against wicked or bloodthirsty beasts, creatures that lesser hunters fear to seek out. Dire boars and cave bears are more to your taste than common woodland creatures, and fantastic beasts such as griffons and wyverns offer an even more stirring challenge.

Huntmaster Path Features

Huntmaster's Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, your attacks against your quarry deal extra damage equal to one-half your level until the end of your turn.

Intrepid Hunter (11th level): When you designate your quarry, you can mark the creature until it is no longer your quarry. You gain a +2 bonus to attack rolls against a quarry marked by you, and you gain a +5 bonus to Perception checks to perceive or track it.

Wary Hunter (16th level): You are never surprised.

Huntmaster Exploits

Crimson Spear Strike — Huntmaster Attack 11

You lunge toward your enemy and draw first blood, bringing your foe to a dead stop for a moment.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon + 1
Requirement: You must be wielding a spear.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is immobilized until the end of your next turn.

Brace for the Charge — Huntmaster Utility 12

You lower the point of your spear and keep it between you and your foes, making any who would charge you pay a hefty price.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you can make a melee basic attack with a spear as an immediate reaction against any enemy that moves adjacent to you during its turn. If you hit with that attack, you score a critical hit.

Transfixing Spear — Huntmaster Attack 20

Your spear skewers your quarry, pinning it in place.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a spear.
Target: One creature designated as your quarry
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is immobilized until the end of your next turn. During your next turn, you can use this power against the target again.
Miss: Half damage.

CHRIS SEAMAN

Lone Wolf

"One by one they fall, until nothing is left standing."

Prerequisite: Ranger, Hunter's Quarry class feature

Through subtle manipulation and quick feints, you excel at isolating an opponent from a group. You use tactics like those of a wolf, focusing on your foe and drawing it away from any assistance. For you, combat is an art form. You choose your target with the same care that a sculptor chooses a block of marble.

You relish the point in battle when the plans of your enemies fall apart. In one-on-one combat, you fight on your terms. You are the razor that cuts out the heart of a group, leaving the rest of your foes in disrepair. You're a master at choosing the terrain you fight in and the opponent you fight against.

Even though you prefer to act on your own, you rely on your friends to confound enemies and split their focus. This strategy gives you the opportunity to move in and employ your skills. While the others in your group are busy engaging foes and helping each other out of danger, you're busy taking down the choicest foe.

EVA WIDERMANN

Lone Wolf Path Features

Overwhelming Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to make an attack that hits the target of your Hunter's Quarry, the quarry is weakened until the end of your next turn.

Focused Hunter (11th level): While you are adjacent to the target of your Hunter's Quarry and no other creature is adjacent to you, you gain a +2 bonus to attack rolls against it.

Vanquishing Chase (16th level): Whenever you hit the target of your Hunter's Quarry, you can push it 1 square and shift 1 square to a square adjacent to it.

Lone Wolf Exploits

Single Combat Assault Lone Wolf Attack 11

You challenge your foe to combat, riveting its attention on you.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, the target is dazed until the end of your next turn, and if the target is within 5 squares of you, you pull it adjacent to you.

Escape the Trap Lone Wolf Utility 12

You outmaneuver your foes, slipping past their defenses.

At-Will ✦ Martial
Minor Action Personal
Requirement: You must be adjacent to two enemies.
Effect: You shift 1 square.

Disperse the Horde Lone Wolf Attack 20

Focusing on your true opponent, you push away the insignificant foes surrounding you and clear a path to your prey.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 1
Target: Each enemy in burst you can see
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage. If the target is your quarry, the attack deals 2[W] extra damage. Otherwise, you push the target 2 squares and knock it prone.
Miss: Half damage, or 2[W] + Strength modifier damage if the target is your quarry.

Reaving Axe Savant

"The only answer is to fight fire with fire."

Prerequisite: Ranger, Reaving Axe Student feat

You have grown up on the edge of society, living a life that forced you to perform deeds you want to forget. Combat was not a choice but a means of survival. You might have once been a pirate or a highway brigand. Now, you turn your talents against any that remind you of the monster you used to be. You bring the fight to your foe and don't discriminate against opponents. An enemy is an enemy, from a simple cutthroat to the vilest warlord.

You don't consider it your job to protect the weak and innocent; plenty of others accept that role. Your expertise is in understanding the ways of scoundrels and raiders, for their methods were once your own. You don't follow a lofty code or care how others see you—you fight dirty, and it suits you.

Your fight is with pirates that raid fishing villages, criminal organizations that collect protection money, or invading bands of drow that seek slaves for their Underdark homes. You need no rank and have no desire to be limited by any hierarchy. Interference from government slows down what you need to do. You might not be a traditional hero, but you fight traditional villains.

ARNIE SWEKEL

Reaving Axe Savant Path Features

Raider's Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you can make a basic attack as a free action against one creature that is prone, slowed, immobilized, or restrained before or after the extra action.

Unfair Advantage (11th level): Slowed or immobilized creatures grant combat advantage to you, and you gain a +2 bonus to melee attack rolls against prone creatures.

Turn the Tables (16th level): Whenever you save against an effect, your quarry grants combat advantage until the end of your next turn.

Reaving Axe Savant Exploits

Raider's War Cry Reaving Axe Savant Attack 11

You lunge at your foe with a bloodthirsty yell and a vicious attack, slamming your enemy to the ground.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: You knock the target prone.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Dread Quarry Reaving Axe Savant Utility 12

You spy a new enemy and swear an oath to bring it down.

Daily ✦ Martial
Minor Action Ranged sight
Target: The nearest enemy to you that you can see
Effect: Using your Hunter's Quarry, you designate the target as your quarry. Until the target is no longer your quarry, your Hunter's Quarry deals one extra die of Hunter's Quarry damage to the target.

Cheap Shot Reaving Axe Savant Attack 20

You strike your foe in a vulnerable area to cause crippling pain.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage. If the target is granting combat advantage to you, it is weakened and dazed (save ends both).
Miss: Half damage. If the target is granting combat advantage to you, it is dazed until the end of your next turn.

Shinaelestran Guardian

"No evil shall pass my domain unscathed."

Prerequisite: Ranger

In the depths of the Howling Forest lies a realm of wonder and magic—the eladrin city of Shinaelestra, the legendary City of Rangers. Each night Shinaelestra shifts silently across the veil separating the Feywild from the mortal world. It appears in the forest depths for a few hours before fading back to the Feywild at sunrise. The feral monsters and savage humanoids haunting the Howling Forest have learned to give the eladrin city a wide berth, for each night the guardians of Shinaelestra range far over the twisted paths and shadowed dells in search of evil's servants.

You have dwelt among Shinaelestra's vine-covered ruins and tree-shaded manses, learning from the great ranger lords who govern the city. You might have visited the city between adventures, or perhaps you lived and studied there long ago and have now reached a sufficient level of achievement to call yourself a Shinaelestran guardian. You are welcome to return to Shinaelestra any time you wish to take up service with Lord Calenon, the ruler of the city. However, the skills you learned in the City of Rangers are in great demand throughout the world, and you can honor your old mentors by battling monsters and savagery wherever they threaten people of good heart.

Shinaelestran Guardian Path Features

Guardian Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you can shift a number of squares equal to your Wisdom modifier as a free action before or after the extra action. In addition, you gain a +2 bonus to attack rolls until the end of your turn.

Guardian Defense (11th level): Whenever you gain a bonus to attack rolls from one of your ranger class features, you gain a +2 bonus to AC until the end of your next turn.

Guardian Vigilance (16th level): You gain a +2 bonus to Perception. In addition, you can designate your quarry as a free action on your turn during a surprise round.

VINCENT DUTRAIT

Shinaelestran Guardian Exploits

Eager Pursuit — Shinaelestran Guardian Attack 11

Your attack signals that you are the hunter and your enemy is the prey. If your foe flees, you won't be far behind.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you gain a +2 bonus to attack rolls against the target. The first time the target moves during its next turn, you can shift a number of squares equal to your Wisdom modifier as an immediate reaction. You must end the shift closer to the target than you were when you began the shift.

Invisible Stride — Shinaelestran Guardian Utility 12

You call upon the power of the eladrin to transport yourself a short distance, vanishing from view as you do so.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Teleportation
Move Action Personal
Effect: You teleport 5 squares and become invisible until the start of your next turn or until you attack.

Moon Wrath — Shinaelestran Guardian Attack 20

You call out powerful arcane words that wreathe your weapon in pale fire.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Radiant, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One or two creatures
Attack: Dexterity vs. Reflex
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier radiant damage, and the target is blinded (save ends).
Aftereffect: The target can't teleport (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and the target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls and can't teleport (save ends both).

Snow Tiger

"Death comes for you with two steel fangs. The Snow Tigers are upon you!"

Prerequisite: Ranger

You have studied the ways of the Snow Tiger barbarians of the cold forests. You might count Snow Tigers among your relatives, having won their respect during your travels in their lands or as a youth fostered by the tribe. Or perhaps you befriended a Snow Tiger wanderer who taught you the woodcraft skills and fighting style of these fierce folk. You might be an enemy of the barbarians who has learned to mimic the wild fighting style of the Snow Tigers. Regardless of how you came to learn the way of the Snow Tigers, your knowledge makes you a warrior of unusual ferocity.

Like your barbarian fellows, you see little reason to use any weapon larger than a dagger. In your view, heavy armor and weapons are crutches; the true test of a warrior lies in strength and savagery. If you can't best your foe with a dagger, why should you fare any better with a bigger piece of steel? The predators of the northern lands—bear, tiger, wolf, and griffon—have nothing more than their own fangs and claws, and few humans can match those creatures' power and lethality.

Master of tundra and taiga, glacier and permafrost, you might be a bloody-handed reaver or a noble monster-slayer. Whichever path you choose to walk, you do so fearlessly, for you have the hard-won respect of the Snow Tiger warriors.

EVA WIDERMANN

Snow Tiger Path Features

Claw Fighter (11th level): You gain a +2 bonus to damage rolls with weapon attacks that use a dagger, a katar, or a kukri. This bonus increases to +4 at 21st level.

Snow Tiger Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you can make a melee basic attack as a free action before or after the extra action.

Tundra Strider (16th level): You gain resist 10 cold and ignore difficult terrain consisting of snow, ice, or tundra. You increase the number of healing surges you have by two.

Snow Tiger Exploits

Tiger Jump — Snow Tiger Attack 11

You hurl yourself at your enemy with knives raised, dragging your foe to the ground before falling upon it with a deadly strike.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding two light blades.
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude (main weapon)
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you knock the target prone. You can fall prone and make a secondary attack against the target.
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. AC (off-hand weapon)
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is dazed until the end of your next turn.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Iron Resolve — Snow Tiger Utility 12

Your enemy's blow fuels your resolve.

Encounter ✦ Healing, Martial
Immediate Reaction Personal
Trigger: An enemy hits you
Effect: You can either spend a healing surge to regain hit points, or you can spend a healing surge but not regain any hit points and make a saving throw with a +2 bonus.

Slashing Frenzy — Snow Tiger Attack 20

You dive into the middle of your foes, slashing wildly with your blades. The sheer speed and ferocity of your attack terrifies enemies that survive it.

Daily ✦ Fear, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 2
Requirement: You must be wielding two light blades.
Target: Each enemy in burst you can see
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, each target you hit takes a penalty to attack rolls equal to the number of targets you hit with this power.

CHAPTER 3

Rogue

"You can talk of honor 'til you're blue in the face, but buddy, it's about winning. At the end of the day, what matters is that you're breathing."

The rogue is a scoundrel who is not above using dishonorable tactics and deception to defeat foes. You might be a shadowy killer who lies in wait, looking for an opportune time to strike. Or you could unnerve enemies through threats or cutting wit before delivering on your cruel promises.

You are an expert at spotting enemy weaknesses. What separates rogues from other adventurers is their ability to exploit opportunities and vulnerabilities. You might find your moment when an enemy focuses its attention on a defender, or perhaps you instead lurk unseen until an enemy lowers its guard. When the opportunity finally arises, you dispatch the unwary creature with a quick slip of the knife or a twang of your crossbow.

This chapter broadens the options available to the rogue class, adding new powers for class builds presented in the Player's Handbook and in Martial Power. In this chapter, you'll find the following material.

- New Build: For those who prefer to lurk on the battle's fringes, the shadowy rogue is built to slip in and out of sight and find the opportune moment to strike.
- New Class Features: The Cunning Sneak class feature gives you a new tactical option for your rogue. In addition, you'll also discover a class feature to make yourself more skilled with crossbows or slings.
- New Powers: With nearly one hundred new powers, this chapter has something for every kind of rogue, from tricksters and aerialists to cutthroats and brawny rogues. Many of the powers support the shadowy rogue build.
- New Paragon Paths: Eight new paragon paths provide ways to tailor your rogue's abilities. These paths include the blade bravo, the jack-of-all-trades, and the red cloak.

ADAM GILLESPIE

NEW BUILD

Player's Handbook presents the brawny rogue and the trickster rogue. Martial Power offers the aerialist rogue and the cutthroat rogue. This chapter adds the shadowy rogue, a build for rogues who strike from the shadows or while hunkered down behind cover.

Shadowy Rogue

As your allies charge into battle, you hang back and take cover. While swords swing and spells explode, you carefully choose your target, line up your shot, and fire. The enemy staggers from your deadly attack, and by the time it has begun to look for you, you've vanished. You send death hurtling from your crossbow or sling, relentlessly assaulting your enemies. You pepper your foes with missiles, lending support to your allies without risking your own skin.

Shadowy rogues use powers that improve concealment and cover. Shadowy rogues want powers they can use from range, though it's a good idea to pick a few melee powers as well. Any powers that let you move as part of your attack are excellent choices, because they can help you become hidden using the Cunning Sneak class feature.

New Class Features

You can select the following class features instead of another option, such as the ones presented in the Player's Handbook or Martial Power. You need not pick the shadowy rogue build to select these features.

Rogue Tactics

When you choose an option for Rogue Tactics, you can select the following option.

Cunning Sneak: You don't take a penalty to Stealth checks for moving more than 2 squares, and you take a –5 penalty instead of a –10 penalty to Stealth checks for running.

If you end a move action at least 3 squares away from your starting position, you can make a Stealth check to become hidden if you have any concealment or any cover, except for cover provided by intervening allies.

Sharpshooter Talent

This class feature replaces the Rogue Weapon Talent class feature.

Sharpshooter Talent: Choose crossbows or slings. You gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls with any weapon of the chosen group.

You gain Far Shot (Player's Handbook, page 195) as a bonus feat, even if you don't meet the prerequisites.

Suggested Options

As with other rogue builds, Dexterity is your most important ability score, because it boosts the accuracy and the potency of your ranged attacks. Powers for the build also gain benefits from Intelligence, so it should be your next highest ability score. If you plan to take any powers related to the brawny rogue build, make Strength your tertiary choice; otherwise, you should choose Charisma.

Suggested Class Features: Cunning Sneak*, Sharpshooter Talent*

Suggested Feat: Swift Footwork*

Suggested Skills: Acrobatics, Athletics, Dungeoneering, Perception, Stealth, Thievery

Suggested At-Will Powers: *gloaming cut, piercing strike

Suggested Encounter Power: *distracting shot

Suggested Daily Power: *scattering shot

*New option presented in this book

THIEVES' GUILDS

The presence of thieves' guilds offers a way to involve rogues in the intrigues of cities. The members of such organizations are often grouped by profession, such as assassin, trapsmith, or pickpocket. A guild is sometimes segmented based on its members' fighting styles or other dominant characteristics. It might be easiest to represent this sort of division in terms of builds. Specific guilds use similar fighting styles to rogue builds, such as the brutal scoundrel or artful dodger.

Another way to differentiate guilds is based on combat styles. A number of the combat styles in this book are appropriate for rogues, including Harrowing Swarm, Leaf Runner, Midnight Blade, Mountain Thunder (for the cutthroat build), Red Cloak, and Silent Shot.

Harrowing Swarm practitioners serve as mercenaries, brandishing their bows as crowd control. Their guilds work closely with city governments or powerful merchants. Leaf runners act as forest bandits or guards who escort illicit caravans through rival territories in the wild. Midnight Blade had its origin in the Shadowfell, and the guilds associated with this style that have sprung up also have their roots tied back to that plane. Members of these guilds travel in pairs and fight using teamwork. Mountain Thunder guilds fill their rolls with enforcers who aren't afraid to break a couple legs for whoever hires them. Red Cloak is more of a lifestyle than a guild, and its participants are clearly identified by their crimson attire. They work in guilds by day and run the rooftops by night. Silent Slayers join assassins' guilds, using stealth and ranged attacks to kill assigned targets.

Stealth

The following Stealth rules replace the Stealth rules on page 188 of the Player's Handbook. These rules were first printed in Player's Handbook 2 and are provided here for your convenience.

Stealth: At the end of a move action.

- Opposed Check: Stealth vs. passive Perception. If multiple enemies are present, your Stealth check is opposed by each enemy's passive Perception check. If you move more than 2 squares during the move action, you take a –5 penalty to the Stealth check. If you run, the penalty is –10.
- Becoming Hidden: You can make a Stealth check against an enemy only if you have superior cover or total concealment against the enemy or if you're outside the enemy's line of sight. Outside combat, the DM can allow you to make a Stealth check against a distracted enemy, even if you don't have superior cover or total concealment and aren't outside the enemy's line of sight. The distracted enemy might be focused on something in a different direction, allowing you to sneak up.
- Success: You are hidden, which means you are silent and invisible to the enemy (see "Concealment" and "Targeting What You Can't See," Player's Handbook, page 281).
- Failure: You can try again at the end of another move action.
- Remaining Hidden: You remain hidden as long as you meet these requirements.

  Keep Out of Sight: If you no longer have any cover or concealment against an enemy, you don't remain hidden from that enemy. You don't need superior cover, total concealment, or to stay outside line of sight, but you do need some degree of cover or concealment to remain hidden. You can't use another creature as cover to remain hidden.

  Keep Quiet: If you speak louder than a whisper or otherwise draw attention to yourself, you don't remain hidden from any enemy that can hear you.

  Keep Still: If you move more than 2 squares during an action, you must make a new Stealth check with a –5 penalty. If you run, the penalty is –10. If any enemy's passive Perception check beats your check result, you don't remain hidden from that enemy.

  Don't Attack: If you attack, you don't remain hidden.
- Not Remaining Hidden: If you take an action that causes you not to remain hidden, you retain the benefits of being hidden until you resolve the action. You can't become hidden again as part of that same action.
- Enemy Activity: An enemy can try to find you on its turn. If an enemy makes an active Perception check and beats your Stealth check result (don't make a new check), you don't remain hidden from that enemy. Also, if an enemy tries to enter your space, you don't remain hidden from that enemy.

New Powers

Rogues employ a mix of guile, luck, and audacity to defeat their enemies. The following powers expand your rogue's arsenal in new and exciting ways. In addition to powers tailored for the shadowy rogue, this chapter provides powers that support builds from the Player's Handbook and Martial Power.

Level 1 At-Will Exploits

Acrobatic Strike Rogue Attack 1

You flip and twist as you attack, confounding your foe.

At-Will ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Prerequisite: You must be trained in Acrobatics.
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Dexterity modifier damage. If you are grabbed, you escape the grab.
Level 21: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Effect: Before or after the attack, you shift 1 square.

Gloaming Cut Rogue Attack 1

From the shadows you strike, and into the shadows you flee.

At-Will ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] damage.
Level 21: 2[W] damage.
Effect: You shift a number of squares equal to your Intelligence modifier, and you can make a Stealth check to become hidden.

Preparatory Shot Rogue Attack 1

You feint and nick the target, inhibiting its movement to set up an even deadlier attack.

At-Will ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: Dexterity modifier + Intelligence modifier damage, and the target grants combat advantage to you until the end of your next turn.
Level 21: 5 + Dexterity modifier + Intelligence modifier damage.

Rattling Keyword

If you are trained in Intimidate and deal damage with a power that has the rattling keyword, the target takes a –2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn. A creature that is immune to fear is not subject to this penalty.

MULTICLASS ROGUES

As a rogue, your character has a large number of skills and is extremely versatile. Multiclassing is a good option for a rogue, and some matches are more obvious than others. The following are a few of the most interesting classes you can choose.

Fighter: If you chose the brutal scoundrel or the ruthless ruffian build, your character has a high enough Strength to make decent fighter attacks. It's easy to conceptualize your character as a lightly armored warrior who could be anything from a trained mercenary to a military soldier. Fighter powers can add defense or help you shore up a party weak in defenders.

Paladin: Of all the multiclass possibilities for rogues, paladin might seem like a strange choice. Paladins have a reputation for being righteous "do-gooders," but your character doesn't need to follow this archetype. A paladin can worship any deity, including deities that rogues favor. If you have taken one of the rogue builds that uses Charisma or Strength as a secondary ability score, you'll have a reasonable ability score for paladin attacks. Halflings and drow make surprisingly good characters of this sort. As long as your character has a strong Dexterity and Strength or Charisma as a secondary score, he or she can succeed with this combination.

Ranger: The ranger class is a natural choice for multiclass rogues. Both have Dexterity as a primary ability score. If your rogue uses the cutthroat build, you can instead pick up two-weapon ranger powers, which use Strength as the ability score for their attacks. The multiclass powers of the ranger allow your rogue to rack up high damage totals even at low level. Elf is a great racial choice because of its ability score bonuses and mobility.

Warlock: If your rogue has Charisma as a secondary ability score, multiclassing into warlock adds ranged arcane powers to his or her repertoire. The fey and dark pacts fit best and can help you create interesting role-playing hooks. The dark and unfathomable nature of these pacts can tie in nicely to a rogue who has a mysterious past. You can pick warlock powers that provide invisibility to work in conjunction with the Stealth skill and Sneak Attack. Halfling and drow are clear favorites for this combination's racial choice because of their ability scores, and eladrin, gnome, and changeling can also work.

Wizard: Even if it's difficult to pull off, the arcane rogue archetype is alluring. Although rogues don't require high Intelligence, you can choose the shadowy rogue build to gain a benefit from making your rogue a bit smarter. Your rogue can stay in the shadows, using both exploits and spells. You might focus on illusion and charm powers to reinforce a stealthy or mysterious demeanor. Spells that control the battlefield can hold enemies at bay, keeping you safe as you make attacks at range. Eladrin is an effective racial choice for this combination because of the race's mobility and ability score bonuses.

Level 1 Encounter Exploits

Acrobat's Blade Trick — Rogue Attack 1

You flip into a spinning acrobatic display of flashing blades. Then the display transforms into a deadly attack.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 1
Prerequisite: You must be trained in Acrobatics.
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Target: Each enemy in burst you can see
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Dexterity modifier damage
Effect: After the attack, you can shift a number of squares equal to the number of enemies you hit with this attack. During the shift, you can move through squares occupied by enemies you hit with this attack.

Distracting Shot — Rogue Attack 1

Your attack draws your enemy's attention long enough to give your ally an opening.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Cunning Sneak: If you are hidden when you attack, you can make a Stealth check to remain hidden if you have superior cover or total concealment.
Hit: 1[W] + Dexterity modifier damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target grants combat advantage to one of your allies adjacent to it.

One-Two Punch — Rogue Attack 1

You stab your blade into the back of a foe and then plunge it into the chest of another.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Rattling, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Target: One or two creatures
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] damage. If you hit both targets, you can deal your Sneak Attack damage to each target instead of just one.

Shadow Strike — Rogue Attack 1

You emerge from the darkness, delivering a quick strike before retreating back into the shadows.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC. If you are hidden when you attack, you can make a Stealth check to remain hidden after the attack.
Hit: 1[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.

Skip the Rock — Rogue Attack 1

Your sling stone skips off the first target and smashes into another one.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a sling.
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Dexterity modifier damage. Make a secondary attack.
Secondary Target: One creature within 10 squares of the primary target
Secondary Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: Dexterity modifier damage, and the secondary target is dazed until the end of your next turn.
Cunning Sneak: The secondary attack deals extra damage equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Level 1 Daily Exploits

Hounding Assault — Rogue Attack 1

Your vicious attack rends flesh and courage alike, leaving your foe quivering.

Daily ✦ Martial, Rattling, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, your melee attacks have the rattling keyword.

Scattering Shot — Rogue Attack 1

Enemies flee from the target of your attack, each fearing it will be your next victim.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Miss: You do not expend this power if you were hidden from the target when you made the attack.
Effect: Each enemy adjacent to the target takes a –2 penalty to attack rolls (save ends). In addition, each enemy adjacent to the target is pushed 1 square away from the target.

Spinning Blade Leap — Rogue Attack 1

You leap into the air, landing atop your foe. You stab down and then leap off.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Effect: Before and after the attack, you shift your speed.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.

Twilight Menace — Rogue Attack 1

Your assault menaces your foe, causing it to flinch and look away as you continue your relentless attack.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and the target treats you as having concealment (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and the target treats you as having concealment until the end of your next turn.

Level 2 Utility Exploits

Arm and Edge — Rogue Utility 2

You sharpen your aim and flex your arm, preparing to hurl your dagger at a distant foe.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, whenever you make a ranged attack with a thrown weapon or a sling, you double the normal range and the long range.

Cunning Step — Rogue Utility 2

You cut corners and dodge obstacles, making it seem as though you move with unnatural speed.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, you gain a power bonus to speed equal to half your Intelligence modifier.

Deadly Knowledge — Rogue Utility 2

You twist your weapon or adjust your aim, hurting your foe a little more than usual.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Free Action Personal
Trigger: Your attack bloodies an enemy or scores a critical hit against an enemy
Effect: The triggering attack deals extra damage equal to your Intelligence modifier to the enemy.

Lurker's Cloak — Rogue Utility 2

You maximize the benefit of the obstacle or shadows hiding you.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you gain a +2 power bonus to all defenses while you have any concealment or any cover.

Switcheroo — Rogue Utility 2

You pull the old switcheroo to put your enemies off guard.

At-Will ✦ Martial
Move Action Close burst 1
Target: You and one ally in burst
Effect: The targets swap places.

Level 3 Encounter Exploits

Brutal Trick — Rogue Attack 3

You create an opening that lulls your foe into a false sense of security. Then you unleash a devastating attack.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Rattling, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC. This attack provokes an opportunity attack from the target. If the target misses with the opportunity attack, you target the lower of its AC or Reflex.
Ruthless Ruffian: If the target misses or does not make the opportunity attack, you can target the lower of its AC, Fortitude, or Reflex.
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.

Flailing Shove — Rogue Attack 3

The enemy recoils from your slashing blade and accidentally strikes its allies.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Dexterity modifier damage. You push the target 1 square, and after the push, each enemy adjacent to the target takes 3 damage.
Brutal Scoundrel: Each enemy instead takes damage equal to 2 + your Strength modifier.

Flattening Shot — Rogue Attack 3

Your sling's stone careens toward an enemy and hits with a crack, knocking it over.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a sling.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and you push the target 1 square and knock it prone.
Cunning Sneak: The attack deals extra damage equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Fleeting Spirit Strike — Rogue Attack 3

You dart from shadow to shadow, striking out along the way.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Effect: Before the attack, you shift 3 squares.
Cunning Sneak: After the shift, you can make a Stealth check to become hidden.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage. You shift 3 squares.
Cunning Sneak: After the shift, you can make a Stealth check to become hidden.

Jumping Blade Assault — Rogue Attack 3

You deliver a flying kick to the face of your foe, knocking it to the ground. You then plunge your blade into its vitals.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Artful Dodger: If you use this power as part of a charge, you can target Reflex instead of AC.
Effect: You knock the target prone.
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Maneuvering Strike — Rogue Attack 3

Ducking to the side, you drive your weapon upward. You force your opponent to step away or face a devastating follow-up attack.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. Reflex
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and you slide the target 1 square. If you slide the target, it grants combat advantage to one ally you can see until the end of your next turn. If you don't slide the target, it grants combat advantage to you until the end of your next turn.

Shadow Steel Roll — Rogue Attack 3

You roll from shadow to shadow, your blade carving a path through your foes.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Effect: Before the attack, you shift your speed, and you can make a Stealth check to become hidden.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC. If you are hidden when you attack, you remain hidden after the attack.
Hit: 1[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Cunning Sneak: The attack deals extra damage equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Level 5 Daily Exploits

Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and the target takes a -3 penalty to all defenses against your attacks until the end of the encounter.
Miss: Half damage, and the target takes a -3 penalty to all defenses against your attacks (save ends).

Level 6 Utility Exploits

Blind Spot Advantage — Rogue Utility 6

You take advantage of your enemy's blind spot to ensure that you won't be hit.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Minor Action Personal
Effect: You gain concealment against one enemy you can see until the end of your next turn.

Perfect Feint — Rogue Utility 6

Your feint takes everyone by surprise.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Minor Action Close burst 1
Prerequisite: You must be trained in Bluff.
Target: Each enemy in burst you can see
Effect: Each target grants combat advantage to you until the end of your next turn.

Ugly Finish — Rogue Utility 6

A bloody display of force rattles nearby enemies.

Daily ✦ Fear, Martial
Free Action Close burst 5
Prerequisite: You must be trained in Intimidate.
Trigger: You score a critical hit against an enemy with a melee attack or reduce an enemy to 0 hit points with a melee attack
Target: Each enemy in burst
Effect: Each target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls and grants combat advantage until the end of your next turn.

Level 7 Encounter Exploits

Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage. If the target moves 2 squares or more during its next turn, it takes damage equal to your Dexterity modifier.
Brutal Scoundrel or Ruthless Ruffian: The damage the target takes for moving equals your Strength modifier + your Dexterity modifier.

CRIME

By their nature, rogues sometime become involved in illicit activities. The class automatically grants access to Thievery, a skill that allows a character to pick pockets, unlock locks, and disable traps. Rogues also have access to Stealth, which helps them to move unseen in places they aren't supposed to be. Even if a rogue focuses on other aspects of the class, the abilities granted by Thievery and Stealth provide a skill set that is perfect for criminal pursuits.

Adventurers who are new to an area might be unaware of that region's laws. However, it's more likely that they do know the legal customs in their location. They should be aware of what sorts of punishments they might face—maiming, execution, imprisonment, slavery, or other possibilities. Some societies have complex bureaucracies and codified laws. Others have few or no laws and are subject to the whims of the local warlord or bandits. Characters might be involved with outlaws or tyrants, or they might fight against them. The law of a society, or lack thereof, could be used as a great campaign vehicle for involving both principled and corrupt characters in the game.

Painful Shot — Rogue Attack 7

You hit your foe in a vital spot, causing it to reel in pain.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a sling.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Cunning Sneak: The target grants combat advantage to you until the end of your next turn.

Pinning Blade — Rogue Attack 7

You jam your weapon into your foe's foot, pinning it to the ground.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and the target is restrained until the end of your next turn.

Shadow Boxer — Rogue Attack 7

You attack from your foe's shadow, confounding the creature as you slip in and out of sight.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and until the end of your next turn, the target grants superior cover to you while you are adjacent to it.
Effect: You can make a Stealth check to become hidden.
Cunning Sneak: You gain a bonus to the Stealth check equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Level 9 Daily Exploits

Aerial Assault — Rogue Attack 9

You launch yourself at your foe in a display of aerial finesse. The creature stands awestruck until you sink your weapon into it.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Effect: Before the attack, you move your speed and can make an Athletics check to jump with a +10 bonus to the check. You do not provoke opportunity attacks during the jump.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. Reflex. The target grants combat advantage to you for the attack if you jumped 3 squares or more before the attack.
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.

Bewildering Assault — Rogue Attack 9

You attack from the darkness and deliver a blow that unbalances your foe. You then retreat to the shadows.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Target: One creature from which you are hidden
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Cunning Sneak: If you have total concealment or superior cover, you remain hidden after the attack.
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and you slide the target 2 squares. The target gains vulnerable 5 to all damage (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and you slide the target 1 square.

Iconic Rogues

The rogue is a popular striker for good reason. Adaptable to a broad range of situations, whether taking on demons or dismantling traps, the rogue is an asset to any adventuring group. Although rogues have plenty of advantages, your race choice can make your character even better.

Drow Rogues: Drow (Forgotten Realms® Player's Guide, page 8) have bonuses to both Dexterity and Charisma, and they have racial bonuses to Intimidate and Stealth. These bonuses make them an exceptional fit for the cutthroat rogue build. A drow also works well as a trickster rogue or an aerialist rogue. The drow's primary advantage is the Lolthtouched racial trait. Both of the powers it grants (cloud of darkness and darkfire) let you create combat advantage, though cloud of darkness is your best choice because you don't have to make an attack roll to gain it, and it makes foes struggle to hit you.

Gnome Rogues: The gnome is an excellent shadowy rogue due to its bonuses to Charisma and Intelligence. Gnomes have a knack for keeping out of their enemies' sight, with a racial bonus to Stealth checks combined with the Reactive Stealth racial trait. Even if a gnome is cornered, he or she can use fade away and attack with combat advantage next turn. These traits combined with the rogue's Cunning Sneak class feature make gnome rogues extremely effective at eliminating enemies before they have the chance to react.

Half-Orc Rogue: Although half-orcs make great barbarians and fighters, members of the race also excel as brawny rogues. Strength and Dexterity are important abilities for this build, and the half-orc has bonuses to both. A high Strength means the half-orc's Sneak Attack damage is already punching holes through people, even without the Backstabber feat. A half-orc can close in on foes at the start of combat, combining a high initiative modifier with an improved speed when charging.

Halfling Rogue: Few combinations are more iconic than the halfling rogue. Halflings make the best trickster rogues. Halflings have bonuses to Dexterity and Charisma, both of which are ideal for the build. With a considerable boost to AC against opportunity attacks combined with second chance, a halfling can maneuver about the battlefield with impunity.

One Hundred Knives — Rogue Attack 9

Your blade blurs as you plunge it into your foe over and over.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Effect: Make the following secondary attack twice against the target.
Secondary Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: Dexterity modifier damage.

Profit from Weakness — Rogue Attack 9

You step aside as the enemy's attack sweeps toward you. You then slide your blade into a place where the foe is vulnerable.

Daily ✦ Martial, Rattling, Weapon
Immediate Interrupt Melee 1
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Trigger: An enemy adjacent to you hits you with a melee attack
Effect: You gain a +4 bonus to all defenses against the attack. The triggering enemy grants combat advantage to you until the end of your next turn.
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Dexterity vs. Reflex
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: You knock the target prone.

Raining Death — Rogue Attack 9

From the shadows, you send out a barrage of attacks, raining death upon your foes.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged 5
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Target: Each enemy from which you are hidden
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.

PRINCIPLED ROGUES

Not all rogues are thieves. Some have noble intentions and only happen to have a set of skills that could be used for personal gain. Thievery can be used to explore ancient ruins and discover lost treasures. Stealth can be used to find out enemy secrets and avoid combat and bloodshed.

Although walking the path of a noble rogue can be difficult, it's not impossible. Such characters can find a place in a lawful civilization. Being a rogue is more about living on the periphery of society than about having a particular skill set. Rogues might work as troubleshooters, dealing with problems for nobles. They can use their contacts to cover up scandals or to spy for their patrons. They might become involved in semilegal or legitimate business endeavors. Rogues also sometimes take up jobs as spies in armies or scouts for patrols. They might even stalk the night as vigilantes.

Level 10 Utility Exploits

Daring Gamble — Rogue Utility 10

Putting yourself at risk gives you the opening you need to bring this battle to its close.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the start of your next turn, any enemy that attacks you grants combat advantage to you until the end of the encounter.

Deadly Sacrifice — Rogue Utility 10

Your threat draws your enemy's attack. If you survive, you can be certain the foe will pay.

Daily ✦ Martial
Immediate Interrupt Melee touch
Trigger: An ally adjacent to you is hit by an enemy's melee attack
Target: The triggering ally
Effect: You and the target swap places. The attack hits you instead of the target. The enemy grants combat advantage to you until the end of the encounter. In addition, your Sneak Attack deals extra damage against the enemy equal to your Intelligence modifier until the end of the encounter.

Level 13 Encounter Exploits

Fitting Demise — Rogue Attack 13

You emerge from the shadows to deliver a deadly attack. You then retreat back to the darkness, as if you had been there all along.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Target: One creature from which you are hidden
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage. You can make a Stealth check to remain hidden after the attack.
Cunning Sneak: The attack deals extra damage equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Numbing Shot — Rogue Attack 13

Your sling bullet strikes a nerve, causing your enemy to crumple.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a sling.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, you knock the target prone, and the target is weakened until the end of your next turn.

VINCENT DUTRAIT

Strike of Dancing Shadows — Rogue Attack 13

The shadows seem to swirl around you as your blades rip through your foes.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade and be hidden.
Effect: Before the attack, you shift 1 square and remain hidden during the shift.
Cunning Sneak: Add your Intelligence modifier to the number of squares you shift.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage. You shift 1 square and remain hidden during the attack and the shift.
Cunning Sneak: Add your Intelligence modifier to the number of squares you shift.

Veiled Missile — Rogue Attack 13

Your weapon flies through the air, catching your foe in the head and causing blood to obscure its vision.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. Reflex
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage. You gain concealment against the target until the end of your next turn.
Cunning Sneak: You can make a Stealth check to become hidden.

Wicked Reminder — Rogue Attack 13

Each time the enemy feels the bite from your allies' attacks, it recalls the injury you dealt it last.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Rattling, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Ruthless Ruffian: If the target is already suffering the effect of the rattling keyword, this attack targets Reflex instead of AC.
Hit: 1[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Effect: The target gains vulnerability to weapon attacks equal to your Strength modifier until the end of your next turn.

Level 15 Daily Exploits

Arterial Slice — Rogue Attack 15

You nick one of your enemy's major arteries, creating a wound that spurts blood.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. Reflex
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and ongoing damage equal to any Sneak Attack damage you deal with this attack (save ends).
Miss: Half damage.

Courage Breaker — Rogue Attack 15

You strike a crippling blow to an enemy, inspiring fear in that creature's allies.

Daily ✦ Fear, Martial, Rattling, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and the target is slowed (save ends). Until the target is no longer slowed by this power, any enemy adjacent to the target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls.

Lurker's Threat — Rogue Attack 15

You emerge from hiding like a ghost. You stab your foe and send it careening toward nearby enemies.

Daily ✦ Fear, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Primary Target: One creature from which you are hidden
Primary Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, you slide the primary target 2 squares, and the primary target is dazed (save ends). Make a secondary attack that is a close burst 3.
Secondary Target: Each enemy in burst
Secondary Attack: Dexterity vs. Will
Hit: The secondary target grants combat advantage until the end of your next turn.
Miss: Half damage, and the primary target is dazed until the end of your next turn.

Vicious Slash — Rogue Attack 15

Your vicious assault overcomes your foe with pain, leaving it unable to attack accurately.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage. The target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls and ongoing 10 damage (save ends both).
Miss: Half damage, and the target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

Whirlwind of Blades — Rogue Attack 15

You leap and spin past your foe, nicking it with dozens of cuts.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Target: One creature
Effect: Before and after the attack, you move your speed. This movement does not provoke opportunity attacks from the target.
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.

Level 16 Utility Exploits

Clever Move — Rogue Utility 16

An explosion momentarily dazzles your opponents so you can make a quick getaway.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Immediate Reaction Personal
Trigger: An enemy makes an area or a close attack against you
Effect: You shift your speed. You must end this shift in a square where you have cover, superior cover, concealment, or total concealment against the triggering enemy. After this shift, you can make a Stealth check to become hidden.

Dishonorable Tactics — Rogue Utility 16

After your attack, you duck back under cover and hide.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Free Action Personal
Trigger: You make an attack roll against an enemy from which you are hidden
Effect: You remain hidden from the enemy until the end of your next turn or until you no longer have superior cover or total concealment from the enemy.

Shadow Master — Rogue Utility 16

Careful movements and deft positioning keep your enemies' attention elsewhere.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you can make a Stealth check to become hidden if you have any concealment or any cover except that provided by intervening allies.

Trap Master — Rogue Utility 16

You have learned the ways of locks and traps, so when presented with one, you can disable it with extraordinary speed.

At-Will ✦ Martial
Minor Action Personal
Prerequisite: You must be trained in Thievery.
Effect: You make a Thievery check to open a lock or disable a trap.

Level 17 Encounter Exploits

Dazing Shot — Rogue Attack 17

Your sling bullet slams into your target's head and leaves the enemy reeling.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a sling.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and the target is dazed until the end of its next turn.
Cunning Sneak: If the target moves or attacks before the end of its next turn, it falls prone at the end of that action.

Thieves' Cant

The history of thieves' cant in the real world is open to considerable debate. Scholars describe it as a secret language used by the lower-class denizens of British cities in the sixteenth century. Regardless of its source, thieves' cant has been a staple of fantasy literature and roleplaying games for decades. As an optional rule, your Dungeon Master might grant rogues (and perhaps any characters who multiclass as rogues) access to thieves' cant as an additional language. The cant might be a bonus language, or it could be a language a character can choose at 1st level or from a feat. The DM might require characters who join a guild to go through a rigorous initiation process before learning this secret language.

Excruciating Reminder — Rogue Attack 17

You strike your foe, leaving a painful reminder that if it attacks you or an ally again, it will pay the price.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Rattling, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage. If the target misses with an attack before the start of your next turn, you can make a ranged or a melee basic attack against the target with combat advantage as an opportunity action.
Ruthless Ruffian: If you hit with the basic attack, the target grants combat advantage to you until the end of your next turn.

Leaping Dagger Kick — Rogue Attack 17

You leap through the air, crashing into your foe and slashing at it.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. Reflex
Effect: You knock the target prone.
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Artful Dodger: If you charged the target, it is dazed until the end of your next turn.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Surprising Assault — Rogue Attack 17

You deliver a swift smash to your opponent's head, surprising the foe with the brutality of your attack.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and the target is dazed until the end of your next turn.
Cunning Sneak: The target is stunned instead of dazed if you were hidden from the target when you made the attack.

Unerring Shot — Rogue Attack 17

From your hiding place, you deliver an attack. If you miss, you feel assured you'll strike your target next time.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Miss: You do not expend this power if you were hidden from the target when you made the attack.

UNUSUAL ROGUES

Some races fit well with the rogue class, making character building easy and intuitive, while other combinations require more work.

Ability Scores: Races that provide a bonus to Dexterity allow you to stick a 16 in your attack ability (which becomes an 18 after your racial adjustment), leaving you with plenty of points to invest in your class's secondary ability scores. For a race that doesn't provide such a boost, you can reduce other abilities to keep your accuracy on par. Luckily, most rogue builds depend on two abilities: Dexterity plus Strength, Intelligence, or Charisma. If a race doesn't grant a bonus to Dexterity, odds are the race will boost your secondary ability, which helps offset the cost of placing an 18 in your primary ability.

You can go with any ability array, but two stand out as the best for unusual rogues. The 18, 13, 13, 10, 10, 8 array is good for rogues who gain a boost to a secondary ability, while 18, 14, 11, 10, 10, 8 does the job for races that offer no bonus to any rogue abilities. For example, a dwarf brawny rogue, after modifiers from race, would have Str 14, Con 13, Dex 18, Int 10, Wis 12, Cha 8, while a dragonborn rogue would have Str 15, Con 10, Dex 18, Int 10, Wis 8, Cha 15. In both cases, the character doesn't suffer from reduced accuracy and still has a good secondary ability to use for Rogue Tactics.

Racial Traits: The traits of some races complement your rogue's tactics or open up new avenues for you to do what rogues are best at. An overview of some overlooked races for rogues follows.

Deva: At first glance, a deva seems to make an unlikely rogue, but the race does provide one significant advantage. Memory of a thousand lifetimes can mean the difference between wasting Sneak Attack during one round and slaying an enemy outright.

Dwarf: Slow, solid, and resilient, dwarves lend themselves to the defender role. However, with the right ability scores and careful attention to feat selection, you can make an effective dwarf rogue. Remember that even though your character functions as a striker, he or she has resilience like a defender. Your dwarf rogue enjoys balanced defenses, higher hit points, and isn't likely to be pushed around. You can combine two dwarf feats to increase your damage output: Choose Tunnel Stalker from Martial Power at 1st level since it lets you use one-handed axes, hammers, and picks as light blades. Then at 2nd level, Dwarven Weapon Training gives you proficiency with the craghammer (Adventurer's Vault, page 9).

Goliath: Although unsubtle, a goliath rogue can be terrifying on the battlefield. With a high Strength and Constitution, your goliath can deliver punishing attacks while maintaining enough staying power to stand alongside the defenders. Stone's endurance lets your rogue shrug off enemy attacks as he or she maneuvers to land the killing blow.

Blurring Assault — Rogue Attack 19

Your blades lash out to strike anyone you pass as you dart across the battlefield.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Effect: You shift half your speed. Make the following attack against each enemy you move adjacent to. No enemy can be attacked more than once from a single use of this power.
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and you knock the target prone.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: You slide the target 1 square.

Demoralizing Shot — Rogue Attack 19

Your shot strikes with such potency and accuracy that you daunt foes near the target of your attack.

Daily ✦ Martial, Rattling, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Each enemy within 3 squares of the target grants combat advantage until the end of your next turn and is pushed 1 square away from the target.

Hilt Slam — Rogue Attack 19

You brutally slam the blunt end of your weapon into your foe's head, sending the creature staggering.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and the target is stunned (save ends). You push the target 5 squares, and you grant combat advantage until the end of your next turn.
Miss: Half damage, and the target is dazed (save ends). You push the target 3 squares.

Maiming Strike — Rogue Attack 19

You deliver a crippling strike that promises to leave your opponent hampered for a while.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Effect: You knock the target prone. The target is slowed, cannot shift, and cannot charge (save ends all).

Merciless Cut — Rogue Attack 19

You slip up behind your enemy and slash across its back.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Effect: Before the attack, you shift your speed.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. Reflex
Hit: 4[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and ongoing 10 damage (save ends).

Level 22 Utility Exploits

Clinging Shadows — Rogue Utility 22

The shadows seem to follow your every step.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Minor Action Personal
Requirement: You must have concealment or total concealment.
Effect: Your concealment or total concealment lasts until the end of your next turn.

Indomitable Agility — Rogue Utility 22

When you want to be free, no force can stop you.

Daily ✦ Martial
Free Action Personal
Effect: You are no longer dazed, grabbed, immobilized, marked, restrained, or slowed. In addition, you shift your speed and can move through enemies' squares during the shift.

Killer's Instinct — Rogue Utility 22

Sensing weakness in your foe, you close the gap between you and it.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Immediate Reaction Personal
Trigger: An enemy you can see becomes bloodied
Effect: You shift your speed and must end this shift closer to the triggering enemy. If you end this shift adjacent to the triggering enemy, it grants combat advantage to you until the end of your next turn.

Somersault Dodge — Rogue Utility 22

You flip away from your foe as its attack flies wide.

At-Will ✦ Martial
Immediate Reaction Personal
Prerequisite: You must be trained in Acrobatics.
Trigger: An enemy misses you with a melee or a ranged attack
Effect: You shift 2 squares.

Uncanny Aim — Rogue Utility 22

Everything around you fades away momentarily as you focus on a distant target.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Minor Action Personal
Effect: You increase the normal range and the long range of your next ranged attack before the end of your turn by 20 squares.

Level 23 Encounter Exploits

Cutthroat's Rebuke — Rogue Attack 23

You slash at your foe and take up a defensive posture. You assure your foe that it will suffer dire consequences if it attacks you again.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Ruthless Ruffian: This power gains the rattling keyword.
Effect: The next time the target makes a melee attack against you before the end of your next turn, you can make a melee basic attack against it as a free action. If your melee basic attack hits, you knock the target prone.

Dazing Double Shot — Rogue Attack 23

A pair of carefully placed attacks causes your foes to hesitate.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Target: One or two creatures
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and the target is dazed until the end of your next turn.
Artful Dodger: You shift 2 squares.

Fell the Strong — Rogue Attack 23

Your shot sinks into your foe, causing excruciating pain.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage. The next time the target attacks before the end of your next turn, it takes damage equal to twice your Intelligence modifier.
Cunning Sneak: The target grants combat advantage until the end of your next turn if you were hidden from it when you made the attack.

Killer's Retreat — Rogue Attack 23

You jab your weapon into tender flesh, forcing the opponent to let you slip away.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and if you were marked, you are no longer marked. You shift 2 squares.
Cunning Sneak: You instead shift a number of squares equal to 1 + your Intelligence modifier, and you can make a Stealth check to become hidden after the shift.

Tendon Tear — Rogue Attack 23

You run your weapon across your foe's tendons, crippling the creature.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage. You knock the target prone, and it is restrained until the end of your next turn.

VINCENT DUTRAIT

Level 25 Daily Exploits

Astounding Assault — Rogue Attack 25

Your prowess shocks your foe into hesitation and indecision.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 5[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and you slide the target 5 squares. In addition, either the target takes a –10 penalty to attack rolls until the end of its next turn, or it is restrained (save ends).

Bounding Assault — Rogue Attack 25

You dash across the battlefield, ducking under and leaping over foes' attacks. Then you deliver a brutal attack against your enemy.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. Reflex
Hit: 6[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack. The charge's movement does not provoke opportunity attacks.

Perfect Shot — Rogue Attack 25

With time and preparation, you can't miss.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Target: One creature granting combat advantage to you
Effect: You hit the target and deal 4[W] damage.

Persistent Menace — Rogue Attack 25

Slashing and stabbing, you haunt your enemy's every move.

Daily ✦ Martial, Rattling, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and ongoing 20 damage (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and ongoing 10 damage (save ends).
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, whenever you deal damage to the target, it takes a –2 penalty to saving throws until the end of your next turn.

Ricocheting Strike — Rogue Attack 25

Your attack is so powerful that it reverberates against nearby foes.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Primary Target: One creature granting combat advantage to you
Primary Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 5[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Make a secondary attack of the same attack type as the primary attack.
Secondary Target: One creature adjacent to the primary target
Secondary Attack: Dexterity vs. Reflex
Hit: Dexterity modifier damage, plus any Sneak Attack damage you dealt to the primary target.

Level 27 Encounter Exploits

Craven's Bane — Rogue Attack 27

A mix of threats and slashes leaves your foe in fear and agony.

Encounter ✦ Fear, Martial, Rattling, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage. If this attack bloodies the target, it moves its speed away from you, taking the safest path possible.
Ruthless Ruffian: The target grants combat advantage until the end of your next turn.

Deflected Strike — Rogue Attack 27

The enemy's attack misses you and hits an adjacent enemy instead as you dodge nimbly out of the way.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Immediate Reaction Melee 1
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Trigger: An enemy misses you with a melee attack, and a different enemy is adjacent to you
Target: The attacking enemy
Attack: Dexterity vs. Will
Hit: The attack hits an enemy adjacent to you other than the target. You can add your Sneak Attack damage to the attack's damage, even if you have already used your Sneak Attack during this round.
Cunning Sneak: Both enemies grant combat advantage to you until the end of your next turn.

From Pebble to Boulder — Rogue Attack 27

A stone from your sling strikes your foe between the eyes, causing it to fall to the ground, senseless.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a sling.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and you knock the target prone. The target is stunned until the end of your next turn.

Killer's Gift — Rogue Attack 27

Your brutal attack sends your enemy staggering away from you.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Target: One creature from which you are hidden
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and you slide the target 1 square. The target is stunned until the end of your next turn.
Cunning Sneak: The number of squares you slide the target equals your Intelligence modifier.

Perfect Sniper — Rogue Attack 27

From the darkness, you carefully aim your shot and fire. Your foe glances around, but you're too well hidden for it to spot you.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Target: One creature from which you are hidden
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC. If you have superior cover or total concealment, you remain hidden after the attack.
Cunning Sneak: You remain hidden after the attack if you have any cover or any concealment.
Hit: 5[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.

Sheathe the Blade — Rogue Attack 27

You sheathe your weapon in your foe's flesh and then shove it away for your allies to finish off.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and you push the target 1 square. The target gains vulnerable 10 to all damage until the start of your next turn.

Level 29 Daily Exploits

Killing Storm — Rogue Attack 29

Your attacks rain down upon unsuspecting enemies, planting terror among your foes' ranks.

Daily ✦ Fear, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 10 squares
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow or a sling.
Target: Each enemy in burst you can see
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and the target moves its speed away from the burst's origin square. The target grants combat advantage (save ends).
Miss: Half damage.

Kiss of Death — Rogue Attack 29

You promise death to a nearby foe. Then you take advantage of your allies' attacks to deliver it.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Effect: Choose one creature adjacent to you. Until the stance ends, whenever the chosen creature is adjacent to you and takes damage from a melee or a ranged attack while you are wielding a light blade, you can make a melee basic attack against it as a free action. In addition, your basic attacks against the target gain the rattling keyword.

Steel Nettle Rain — Rogue Attack 29

You dance deftly around your foe and deliver an attack that is like a thousand metal nettles against its flesh.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Effect: Before and after the attack, you move your speed. This movement does not provoke opportunity attacks from the target.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 6[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.

Throat Cut — Rogue Attack 29

You come out of hiding to inflict a fatal wound on your foe.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Target: One creature from which you are hidden
Attack: Dexterity vs. Fortitude
Hit: 5[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and ongoing 15 damage (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and ongoing 5 damage (save ends).

Treachery's Reward — Rogue Attack 29

You throw out the notion of a fair fight when you launch a devastating attack from your hiding place.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow, a light blade, or a sling.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC. You can make two attack rolls and use the higher result if you are hidden from the target before the attack. In addition, if you are hidden and have superior cover or total concealment when you attack, you remain hidden after the attack.
Hit: 6[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.

Arcane Trickster

"My tricks come from tool and spell."

Prerequisite: Rogue, trained in Arcana

You've never been content to stick to one path. Magic and larceny, spell and trap, dweomer and shadow—for you, all came easy. You learned to fuse your knowledge into one style, both in and out of battle.

When you were a child, you dreamed of grand achievements. You enjoyed the shows of illusionists and magicians, and you reveled in the skill of pickpockets and burglars. You followed two divergent paths that eventually came together in your mind as a way of life and a cohesive style of attack. You don't separate the martial from the magical, and you are mildly scornful of anyone who is so shortsighted as to make this division.

You never sought a position in an arcane order or a thieves' guild; you didn't want to limit yourself. Instead, you learned to recognize that each adventure is an opportunity to test your mettle, sharpen your skills, enhance your magic, and discover treasures.

Eladrin are naturals for this path because of their agility and keen intellect. Arcane tricksters are found among gnomes, changelings, and drow as well. Some use their knowledge and power for adventure, and others use it for theft, torture, and deception.

ARNIE SWEKEL

Arcane Trickster Path Features

Arcane Burglary (11th level): You can use a dagger as an implement. However, you don't gain the weapon's proficiency bonus when using it for implement attacks.

In addition, whenever you make an Athletics check, you can use your Arcana skill modifier in place of your Athletics skill modifier.

Fading Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to make an attack, one creature of your choice that you attack treats you as invisible (save ends).

Dagger Spell (16th level): When making an arcane attack, you can treat a ranged power as having a range of melee weapon while using your dagger as an implement.

Arcane Trickster Powers

Blinding Flare Arcane Trickster Attack 11

You create a burst of blinding flame that robs your enemies of their sight long enough for you to slip around behind them.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement
Minor Action Close burst 1
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Dexterity vs. Fortitude
Hit: The target is blinded until the end of your next turn.
Effect: You shift your speed.

Cat Burglar's Veil Arcane Trickster Utility 12

You sweep a curtain of arcane energy across the battlefield, creating a veil you can hide behind.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Conjuration
Minor Action Area wall 8 within 10 squares
Effect: You conjure a wall of arcane energy that only you can see. The wall can be up to 6 squares high, and it lasts until the end of the encounter. The wall blocks enemies' line of sight to you and your allies but does not prevent you and your allies from seeing through it.

Confounding Teleport Arcane Trickster Attack 20

You quickly pop around the battlefield, keeping your foes confused by seeming to be everywhere at once.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Teleportation, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Effect: Before the attack, you teleport your speed.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC. You gain combat advantage against the target if you teleported adjacent to it during this turn.
Hit: 4[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you gain a teleport speed equal to your speed, and whenever you teleport adjacent to an enemy, it grants combat advantage to you until the end of your turn.

Blade Bravo

"You think armor will protect you? Come here, and we'll see about that."

Prerequisite: Rogue

Most knaves are little more than ruffians who have a talent for swordplay. These individuals prowl city streets and pit their skills against each other, trying to prove themselves. Most of these so-called bravos have more courage than common sense. They have short life spans and usually wind up in shallow graves. You, however, have proved you're different from them.

You never had formal training or studied under a master. Instead, you developed a haphazard style born of necessity and emboldened by your grit. You quickly learned that survival demands toughness, so you cultivated the ability to keep scrapping even with your back pressed to the wall.

In battle, your attacks lack the finesse and artfulness exhibited by other rogues, yet they are equally effective. Just because you don't have a fancy flourish doesn't make you any less dangerous.

Blade Bravo Path Features

Cocksure Menace (11th level): Whenever you hit an enemy granting combat advantage to you with a melee attack, you can mark that enemy until the end of your next turn.

Riposte Action (11th level): When an enemy misses you with a melee attack, you can spend an action point to make a melee basic attack against that enemy. The enemy grants combat advantage to you for this attack, and if you hit, the attack deals 1[W] extra damage. If the enemy is marked by you, the attack instead deals 2[W] extra damage.

Back Alley Bravo (16th level): Whenever you shift, you gain a +1 bonus to AC and Reflex until the start of your next turn.

Blade Bravo Exploits

Taunting Barb — Blade Bravo Attack 11

Your taunt is as keen as the blade you thrust into your foe.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged 3
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. Will
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and you pull the target to a square adjacent to you and make a melee secondary attack against the target. You have combat advantage for the attack.
Secondary Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: Strength modifier damage.

KEREM BEYIT

Threatening Flourish — Blade Bravo Utility 12

You perform a complex maneuver with your weapon, revealing your skill and daring to your enemy.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, your melee attacks gain the rattling keyword.

Vicious Parry — Blade Bravo Attack 20

Batting aside your enemy's attack, you drive your weapon home.

Daily ✦ Martial, Rattling, Weapon
Immediate Interrupt Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a light blade.
Trigger: An enemy hits you with a melee attack
Target: The triggering enemy
Effect: The target is weakened and grants combat advantage until the end of its next turn.
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier + Strength modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.

Daring Slinger

"Two birds with one stone . . . how about two drow with one bullet?"

Prerequisite: Rogue

The sling is a humble weapon, favored by commoners such as shepherds and farmers. It is useful for chasing off predators and bandits, but it lacks the prestige enjoyed by crossbows and light blades. Despite its lowly stature, the sling has its adherents. Among these enthusiasts, the daring slinger is the most dangerous, for these rogues elevate the simple weapon, making it the equal of any other ranged weapon.

As a daring slinger, you appreciate the weapon's subtle assets. A sling is small. It can be compressed and hidden. Slings are also resistant to the elements. You can dunk one in water, stretch it, or abuse it, and the weapon continues to work—something that can't be said of bows and crossbows. Best of all, ammunition is never a problem; any small stone will do.

Through extensive training, you've improved your accuracy, exceeding what archers can do with a longbow. Your range is equal to that of a crossbow, and your bullets pack an equal punch.

Daring Slinger Path Features

Sling Mastery (11th level): You gain a +2 bonus to damage rolls with weapon attacks that use a sling. This bonus increases to +4 at 21st level.

Concussive Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to attack with a sling, and the attack hits, you treat a damage roll of 1 or 2 as a roll of 3. In addition, the target of the attack is dazed until the end of your next turn.

Uncanny Aim (16th level): You ignore the –2 penalty for attacking with a sling at long range, and you ignore cover provided by an enemy's allies when you attack with a sling.

Daring Slinger Exploits

Scattershot Daring Slinger Attack 11

You hurl several stones at once, knocking your enemies back with each strike.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a sling.
Target: One, two, or three creatures
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and you push the target 1 square.

Instructive Miss Daring Slinger Utility 12

Your shot goes wide, but now you have your foe in your sights.

Daily ✦ Martial
Free Action Personal
Trigger: You don't hit with an encounter attack power using a sling
Effect: You regain the use of the encounter attack power.

Dispersing Shot Daring Slinger Attack 20

You let fly a forceful shot that shatters armor, flesh, and bone, knocking your enemy senseless.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a sling.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and the target is dazed and slowed (save ends both). If you have combat advantage against the target, it is immobilized instead of slowed.
Aftereffect: The target grants combat advantage (save ends).

KEREM BEYIT

Jack-of-All-Trades

"Yeah . . . I can do that, and that . . . and that."

Prerequisite: Rogue

You are a jack-of-all-trades; learning new skills comes naturally to you, and you enjoy pitting your abilities against any challenge. Your thirst for knowledge will drive you to learn new skills until the day you die.

Since your youth, you have had an intense yearning to learn more than what books and teachers could provide. You understood from a young age that knowledge and skill can take you places that money and influence can't. You hoard knowledge the way a dragon covets its treasure, though you are happy to share it with anyone you consider worthy, or when doing so suits your fancy.

Folks might consider you a pack rat or a dabbler, but you know that the items you collect and the skills you acquire will help you in the future. And when you're there to save the day, anyone who derided your habits will realize the mistake and thank you.

Eladrin are a natural choice for this path because of their high Dexterity and Intelligence, as well as the fact that they gain an additional skill of their choice. Humans also excel as jacks-of-all-trades because of their vast variety of experiences and versatility of skill and knowledge.

Jack-of-All-Trades Path Features

Dabbler (11th level): You gain a +2 bonus to all skill checks.

Expert Assault (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you gain a +5 bonus to skill checks until the end of your turn.

Advanced Dabbler (16th level): You gain training in three skills.

Jack-of-All-Trades Exploits

Scoundrel's Philosophy Jack-of-All-Trades Attack 11

You humble your foe with your fighting prowess, then befuddle it with your vast knowledge of proper fighting techniques.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and make a secondary attack against the target.
Secondary Attack: Dexterity vs. Will
Hit: The target is dazed until the end of your next turn.

Always a Natural Jack-of-All-Trades Utility 12

You are a natural at everything you do.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Free Action Personal
Trigger: You make a skill check and dislike the result
Effect: You reroll the triggering check and use either result.

VINCENT DUTRAIT

Every Trick in the Book Jack-of-All-Trades Attack 20

You attack from all angles, using every technique and bit of knowledge you have to defeat your foe.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC, Fortitude, Reflex, Will. You make one attack roll and compare the result against all four defenses. A target suffers the effect associated with each defense that the attack hits.
Hit (AC): 2[W] damage.
Hit (Fortitude): 1[W] damage, and the target is slowed (save ends).
Hit (Reflex): 1[W] damage, and you knock the target prone.
Hit (Will): 1[W] damage, and the target is dazed (save ends).
Effect: You shift 3 squares + 1 square for each defense you hit.

Verdant Stalker

"My steps are as light as a leaf on the wind."

Prerequisite: Rogue, trained in Stealth

You are a creature of stealth—a warrior who treads so lightly that even the autumn leaves remain silent beneath your step. For you, silence is a way of life and an art.

You're comfortable in the forest, where your abilities to move quietly and to camouflage your movements are at their best. You prefer to wear out your foe, dancing from shadow to shadow and from tree to tree, peppering your enemy with ranged attacks. No enemy has yet caught you standing still.

You might have grown up among forest-dwelling elves or fey. It's also possible that you were once a city dweller who has since become one with nature. You still know of and sometimes visit urban areas, but they have become foreign to you. The forest is your home now, and you're as comfortable in it as a street urchin is in the dock ward of a city. When outsiders invade your territory, you strike back with a furious vengeance, assaulting them with rapid volleys of missiles that kill the intruders or drive them away.

Elves and halflings are most likely to follow this path, but any character who favors stealth and silence, uses ranged attacks with great skill, and is an expert forester can succeed as a verdant stalker.

BEN WOOTTEN (2)

Verdant Stalker Path Features

Delicate Shot (11th level): Whenever you hit an enemy from which you are hidden with a ranged attack and you then roll Sneak Attack damage dice, you treat a roll of 1 or 2 as a roll of 3.

Vanishing Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you can make a Stealth check to become hidden after the extra action. If you used the extra action to take a move action, you gain a +5 bonus to the Stealth check.

Light-Footed (16th level): You ignore difficult terrain.

Verdant Stalker Exploits

Shadow to Shadow Verdant Stalker Attack 11

You slide behind cover, attack your foe from a distance, and then slip back into the shadows again.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be using a hand crossbow, a repeating crossbow, a shortbow, a shuriken, or a sling.
Effect: Before and after the attack, you shift 3 squares. After each shift, you can make a Stealth check to become hidden.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.

Forest Specter Verdant Stalker Utility 12

Moving among foliage or around a cavern wall, you blend into your surroundings like a spirit of nature.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Minor Action Personal
Requirement: You must have total concealment or superior cover.
Effect: You become invisible until the end of your next turn, until you attack, or until you no longer have any cover or any concealment.

Leaves of Steel Verdant Stalker Attack 20

You slip out of the shadows, firing a volley of shots at your enemies.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Area burst 2 within weapon range
Requirement: You must be using a hand crossbow, a repeating crossbow, a shortbow, a shuriken, or a sling.
Effect: Before the attack, you shift 3 squares.
Target: Each enemy in burst you can see
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.

Master of Poisons

"The deadliest poison is the one you can't taste or smell."

Prerequisite: Rogue

Few people respect the business of poisons. Among the mighty, poison is considered a weapon of the weak and a dishonorable tool at best. Yet to whom do the mighty and the wealthy turn when they are in need of discreet murder? You, of course, and you're happy to oblige. You never advertise your talents; it wouldn't do for word to spread about your skills. Through prudent inquiries, people in need have a way of finding you. No problem is too big or well protected for your techniques to work, assuming you have enough time and your client has enough gold.

Along with your success comes a raft of enemies. Your victims leave behind friends and relatives seeking revenge. Do they chase after the one who paid you? It would be simpler if they did. Instead, these pursuers come to the one who caused their comrade's end, and that person is you.

Poisoning is a subtle and dangerous art, and a few narrow escapes from angry vengeance-seekers have taught you that discretion is key. Even among your companions, you keep a low profile. It's best to keep your methods of dealing with enemies hidden. However, when you slip a little venom on a blade and the foe falls to the ground, tongue black and neck swollen, your comrades won't look too closely when that act saves them from harm.

Master of Poisons Path Features

Poison Maven (11th level): Whenever you make a poison weapon attack against an enemy, you gain a bonus to the damage roll equal to your Intelligence modifier. In addition, any enemy suffering a poison effect grants combat advantage to you.

Venomous Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to make a weapon attack and hit, one target of the attack takes ongoing 10 poison damage (save ends).

Acidic Poisons (16th level): Ongoing poison damage you deal ignores resistance to poison.

Master of Poisons Exploits

Blinding Dust — Master of Poisons Attack 11

You spray a handful of poisonous dust into the air, blinding your enemies.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Poison
Standard Action Close blast 3
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Dexterity + 4 vs. Fortitude
Level 21: Dexterity + 6 vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d6 + Dexterity modifier poison damage, and the target is blinded until the end of your next turn.

Persistent Poison — Master of Poisons Utility 12

Just when an enemy thinks it has beaten your attack, your poison proves effective after all.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Immediate Interrupt Close burst 10
Trigger: An enemy within 10 squares of you saves against a poison effect
Target: The triggering enemy in burst
Effect: The target fails the saving throw.

Insidious Attack — Master of Poisons Attack 20

The poison delivered by your weapon fills your enemy with crippling pain that ravages its system when it tries to act.

Daily ✦ Martial, Poison, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a crossbow or a light blade.
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Dexterity vs. Reflex
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and make a secondary attack against the target.
Secondary Attack: Dexterity vs. Fortitude
Hit: The target takes ongoing 15 poison damage, and whenever the target moves more than 2 squares during its turn or makes an attack, it takes 5 poison damage after the attack is resolved (save ends both).
Miss: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.

Red Cloak

"Do not run the roof unless you are prepared to fight."

Prerequisite: Rogue, Red Cloak Student feat

You're a red cloak, a roof-running scoundrel who tests your wits against other denizens of the night. Your colors reflect your passion and signal danger to anyone who isn't prepared to fight you.

You might or might not be versed in the history of your art. In the past, the Red Cloaks were a guild of assassins known for their flamboyance. The true secrets of their activities remain a mystery, but their style—both in fighting and in dress—spread to dandy and street fighter alike.

You might have grown up in the streets, idolizing the swaggering red cloak warriors who ran the rooftops at night. You could be the youngest child of a noble seeking excitement by trying your hand in seedy environs. Instead, you might be a remnant of the original Red Cloaks. Regardless of your motivation, you scoff at those who don the cloak without the attitude or the skill. Any who fight you know that you are no common thug or flouncing dandy.

In your adventures, you seek to test your street-honed mettle against the warriors of other domains. You don't necessarily seek to emulate their style, but you respect it and wish to learn from it. You take every opportunity to challenge the street-runners of other cities, and you will gladly face any enemy that thinks to challenge you.

Red Cloak Path Features

Roof Runner (11th level): Whenever an enemy misses you with an attack, you can shift 2 squares as an immediate reaction.

Crimson Brutality (11th level): When you spend an action point to make an attack that deals Sneak Attack damage, the Sneak Attack damage is maximized.

Red Cloak Reaction (16th level): Whenever you miss every target with an attack that is an immediate action, that action doesn't count toward your limit of one immediate action per round.

Red Cloak Exploits

Dance of the Cloak Red Cloak Attack 11

You miss with a wicked cut, and when your foe counters, you respond with a stronger attack.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Immediate Reaction Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a rapier or a short sword.
Trigger: An enemy hits you
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.

KEREM BEYIT

Scarlet Maneuver Red Cloak Utility 12

You take advantage of each of your enemy's mistakes.

At-Will ✦ Martial
Immediate Reaction Personal
Trigger: An enemy misses you with a melee attack
Effect: You gain combat advantage against the triggering enemy until the end of your next turn.

Crimson Rebuttal Red Cloak Attack 20

You trick your opponent into overextending its attack and deliver a powerful blow that knocks it to the ground.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Immediate Reaction Melee weapon
Trigger: An enemy misses you with a melee attack
Requirement: You must be wielding a rapier or a short sword.
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Dexterity vs. Reflex
Hit: 4[W] + Dexterity modifier damage. You knock the target prone, and it can't stand until the start of its next turn.

Whisperknife

"Bring me vengeance, oh gods, and make my enemies pay in blood."

Prerequisite: Rogue

You have been called different names—killer, murderer, assassin—but none fit as nicely as whisperknife does. You kill, but not for wealth and rarely for sport; you kill for vengeance. In a perfect world, everyone would die from old age, but this isn't a perfect world. Accidents happen, and wars claim soldiers and innocents alike. Murderers snuff out lives on a whim or with cold calculation, and the world keeps on turning. Souls wriggle free from their meat to find whatever awaits them in the Raven Queen's frigid embrace. And who stands for these victims? Who protects the people whom justice ignores? You.

You're a vigilante, taking up the cause of those who can't find justice. You use your talents to hunt down anyone who perpetrates crimes. You offer no mercy or quarter, only the whispered name of the wronged party and the silent slash of your blade.

Your preferred weapons are daggers, whether thrown or held. You can hide them on your person and retrieve them with ease. A dagger's short blade allows you to be close enough to your prey to explain why it has to die. And when you've said what you need to say, you can watch as the life goes out of your victim's eyes.

DAVE ALLSOP

Whisperknife Path Features

Dagger Threat (11th level): You don't provoke opportunity attacks when you make ranged attacks with a light blade.

In addition, you gain Quick Draw (Player's Handbook, page 200) as a bonus feat, even if you don't meet the prerequisites.

Razor Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to attack with a light blade, each enemy adjacent to you takes damage equal to your Dexterity modifier.

Advantageous Positioning (16th level): While you are adjacent to a Medium or larger enemy, you gain a +2 bonus to AC against ranged attacks, and you don't grant combat advantage to creatures flanking you.

Whisperknife Exploits

Vengeance's Pursuit — Whisperknife Attack 11

After slashing your foe, you flip the knife in your hand and prepare to throw it.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Rattling, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a dagger.
Target: One creature
Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Dexterity modifier damage.
Effect: The first time the target moves or makes an attack that doesn't include you as a target before the start of your next turn, you can make a ranged basic attack against the target as a free action. The target grants combat advantage to you for this attack.

Whispered Vengeance — Whisperknife Utility 12

When an ally suffers from an enemy's attack, your thirst for vengeance impels you to close the distance and make your foe pay for the transgression.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Immediate Reaction Personal
Trigger: An enemy hits an ally you can see with a melee attack
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you gain a +2 power bonus to speed and a +2 power bonus to attack rolls against the triggering enemy.

Hateful Knives — Whisperknife Attack 20

Leaping at your foe, you slash it so badly that it stumbles back in fear.

Daily ✦ Fear, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a dagger.
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Dexterity vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Dexterity modifier damage, and you push the target 3 squares. You then shift 3 squares to a square adjacent to the target and make a secondary attack against it.
Secondary Attack: Dexterity vs. Will
Hit: The target grants combat advantage to you until the end of the encounter.
Miss: The target grants combat advantage to you (save ends).
Miss: Half damage.

CHAPTER 4

Warlord

"Aggression and hard fighting have their place, but they don't always result in victory. I do not wade headlong into combat without a strategy."

A warlord has many forms: the aggressive and reckless leader, the canny battle captain, the brilliant strategist, the willful commander. Each warlord masters a different set of leadership techniques that represents his or her command style. Through a combination of courage, skill at arms, sound strategy, and insight, the warlord inspires confidence and vigor among his or her comrades.

As a leader, you understand that each person has a role to play on the battlefield. You could be the kind of commander who follows instinct and intuitively understands the ebb and flow of combat. You might employ stealth and guile, letting sleeping dragons lie and avoiding fruitless conflicts. Or perhaps you lead through courage and ferocity, challenging enemy leaders to meet you in single combat. Regardless of the type of warlord you are, your insights help arm your companions with the weapons to overcome any obstacle.

This chapter broadens the options available to the warlord class, adding new powers for class builds presented in the Player's Handbook and in Martial Power. In this chapter, you'll find the following material.

- New Builds: Rely on your instincts to outwit your enemies as an insightful warlord, or succeed through maneuver and missile fire as a skirmishing warlord.
- New Class Features: Explore new class features, such as the ability to boost your allies' senses, wear shields, increase your allies' defenses, improve the position of your troops, and wield ranged weapons.
- New Powers: Outsmart your foes with tactical insights and protect your allies with your battle intuition. On the other hand, if you are without caution, you might instead charge into enemy ranks and unnerve foes with your fury and audacity.
- New Paragon Paths: Exploit your natural leadership with one of eight paragon paths. Lead a band of ruthless warriors as a prince of knaves, study the art of command as a white raven, or trust to fate and luck as a captain of fortune.

ZOLTAN BOROS & GABOR SZIKSZAI

The Player's Handbook presents the inspiring warlord and the tactical warlord. Martial Power offers the bravura warlord and the resourceful warlord. This chapter adds the insightful warlord and the skirmishing warlord. Many of the new powers introduced in this book are intended for one of these new warlord builds.

Insightful Warlord

You lead through careful observation and a knack for predicting your enemies' actions. In combat, you keep your eyes open and quickly adapt your plan to changing circumstances. You show your allies how to identify enemy weaknesses and exploit those flaws. You are skilled at demoralizing foes and are an expert at interrupting their actions by issuing quick commands.

New Class Features

You can select the following class features instead of another option, such as the ones presented in the Player's Handbook or Martial Power. You need not pick the insightful warlord build to select these features.

Insightful Presence

When you choose a Commanding Presence, you can select the following option.

Insightful Presence: When any ally who can see you spends an action point to take an extra action, that ally gains a bonus to all defenses equal to half your Wisdom modifier or half your Charisma modifier until the end of your next turn.

Canny Leader

This class feature replaces your Combat Leader class feature.

Canny Leader: You and any ally within 10 squares of you who can see and hear you gain a +2 bonus to Insight checks and Perception checks.

Suggested Options

Your attack powers rely on Strength, so make that your primary ability score. Wisdom is your second priority, because it helps you perceive foes and anticipate their actions. If you choose the Insightful Presence class feature, you can use Wisdom or Charisma, so pick one of those ability scores as your tertiary ability score depending on which other warlord build you want to dabble in.

Suggested Class Features: Insightful Presence*, Canny Leader*

Suggested Feat: Lend Strength*

Suggested Skills: Athletics, Diplomacy, Endurance, Heal

Suggested At-Will Powers: *direct the strike, *intuitive strike

Suggested Encounter Power: *powerful warning

Suggested Daily Power: *leader's instincts

*New option presented in this book

Skirmishing Warlord

You scoff at the notion that war takes place on the front lines. Your talents are akin to the skills of archers, sneaks, and scouts. You recognize that their contributions are as vital as the efforts of melee combatants. You help allies by sharpening their timing, directing their maneuvers, and pointing out targets with your own ranged attacks.

New Class Features

You can select the following class features instead of another option, such as the ones presented in the Player's Handbook or Martial Power. You need not pick the skirmishing warlord build to select these features.

Archer Warlord

When you choose the Archer Warlord class feature, you lose proficiency with chainmail and light shields.

Archer Warlord: You gain proficiency with military ranged weapons. In addition, when you make a ranged basic attack with a bow, you can use Strength instead of Dexterity for the attack roll and the damage roll.

Commanding Presence

When you choose a Commanding Presence, you can select the following option.

Skirmishing Presence: When an ally who can see you spends an action point to make an attack, that ally can use a free action to shift a number of squares equal to your Intelligence or Wisdom modifier before or after the attack.

Suggested Options

Unlike other warlords, you focus on ranged attacks. Your attack powers rely on Strength for accuracy and power, though they reward Intelligence as well. You should choose Strength for your primary ability score, and you should also have a high Intelligence score. If you choose the Skirmishing Presence class feature, you can use Wisdom or Intelligence, so pick one of those ability scores as your tertiary ability score depending on which other warlord build you want to dabble in.

Suggested Class Features: Archer Warlord*, Skirmishing Presence*

Suggested Feat: Archer Captain*

Suggested Skills: Athletics, Endurance, Diplomacy, History

Suggested At-Will Powers: paint the bull's eye, risky shot

Suggested Encounter Power: *race the arrow
Suggested Daily Power: *inspiring shot
*New option presented in this book

Battlefront Leader

You can select the following class feature instead of another option, such as the ones presented in the Player's Handbook or Martial Power. This feature is not aimed toward any single build and can work well for any warlord who wants to be in the midst of melee. This class feature replaces your Combat Leader class feature.

Battlefront Leader: You gain proficiency with heavy shields, and you gain the battlefront shift power.

Battlefront Shift — Warlord Feature

As combat breaks out, you give a quick call, urging an ally to move or spurring yourself to take action.

Encounter ✦ Martial
No Action Close burst 3
Trigger: You roll initiative
Target: You or one ally in burst
Effect: The target shifts half his or her speed.

New Powers

A warlord bolsters allies with powers that inspire, empower, and embolden. The insightful warlord focuses on seizing opportunities and providing allies with knowledge of enemy strengths and weaknesses. The skirmishing warlord emphasizes ranged attacks and mobility. This section also broadens the powers available for warlord builds from other books.

Level 1 At-Will Exploits

Direct the Strike — Warlord Attack 1

You direct an ally to attack as an enemy lowers its guard.

At-Will ✦ Martial
Standard Action Ranged 5
Target: One ally
Effect: The target makes a basic attack as a free action against an enemy of your choice that you can see and is within 10 squares of you.

Intuitive Strike — Warlord Attack 1

Your strike puts your opponent off guard, allowing your allies to better exploit the enemy's openings.

At-Will ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. Will
Hit: 1[W] damage. Until the start of your next turn, any ally who attacks the target and has combat advantage against it gains a bonus to the attack roll equal to 1 + your Wisdom or Charisma modifier instead of the normal +2 bonus.
Level 21: 2[W] damage.

Paint the Bull's-Eye — Warlord Attack 1

You fire a red-fletched missile into your foe, creating a target for your allies to focus on when attacking the creature.

At-Will ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] damage. Until the start of your next turn, your allies gain a power bonus to damage rolls against the target equal to your Intelligence or Wisdom modifier.
Level 21: 2[W] damage.

Multiclass Warlords

Warlords study battle in all forms, learning to work with members of other classes to make an effective unit. Multiclassing is a good option for a warlord because it allows the character to compensate for some weakness in a party.

Cleric: Some warlords who multiclass as clerics prefer to worship military-minded gods (like Kord or Bahamut). Others are pious heroes who seek the blessing of any gods in battle. A warlord with cleric training can dole out extra healing. Warlords multiclass well with Strength-based clerics. Dragonborn and longtooth shifters fit this combination due to their ability score bonuses, but any race with a high Strength can make a good warlord/cleric.

Fighter: This option is commonly seen because of both classes' need for high Strength. Warlords lead soldiers in battle, so they need to be good soldiers as well. Sharing this common training increases their empathy with their troops, and consequently makes them better leaders. Dragonborn excel as characters of this sort, but so do any other races with Strength bonuses.

Paladin: This logical, compelling combination offers both mechanical and thematic synergy. Both warlords and paladins make use of Strength and Charisma. Paladins might join armies if they think that doing so will benefit the agendas of their gods. This combination is ideal for dragonborn.

Ranger: With the new options for warlords presented in this book, this combination is now viable. The skirmishing warlord and the insightful warlord builds work well with this kind of character.

Wizard: Tactical warlords and resourceful warlords share the wizard's focus on Intelligence. Consider the arcane battlemaster paragon path (page 96), which is designed for characters who combine martial and arcane attacks. Genasi are particularly effective with this combination, as are eladrin and any other race with an Intelligence bonus.

Barbarian: A character that represents a savage war leader might multiclass into barbarian. Both classes focus on Strength and Charisma, so this combination is natural. Dragonborn are the best choice here because of their Strength and Charisma bonuses.

Risky Shot Warlord Attack 1

You wait until the last possible moment to strike, dealing a more potent blow at the expense of defense.

At-Will ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier + Intelligence or Wisdom modifier damage.
Level 21: 2[W] + Strength modifier + Intelligence or Wisdom modifier damage.
Effect: You grant combat advantage until the start of your next turn.

Level 1 Encounter Exploits

Pin Cushion Warlord Attack 1

If your allies fire enough arrows at your foe, a few are bound to hit.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage. Until the end of your next turn, you and your allies gain a power bonus to ranged attack rolls against the target. The bonus is equal to your Intelligence or Wisdom modifier.

Powerful Warning Warlord Attack 1

You shout a warning that alerts your ally to an enemy attack, allowing your comrade to dodge and riposte.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Immediate Interrupt Close burst 5
Trigger: An ally within 5 squares of you is hit by an enemy
Target: The triggering ally in burst
Effect: The target gains a +2 power bonus to all defenses against the attack. The target can make a melee basic attack against the enemy as a free action.
Insightful Presence: The bonus to your ally's defenses equals 1 + your Wisdom modifier or Charisma modifier.

EVA WIDERMANN

Roleplaying a Warlord

Your role in the party is to coordinate your allies' offense and bolster their will to keep fighting long after they might have given up. Warlords present a special roleplaying challenge, because what you do relates to abstract elements of the game, such as hit points, basic attacks, and healing surges. It's easy for other martial characters to provide vivid descriptions of their crippling attacks, but your exploits can be harder to visualize.

Keep in mind that morale and esprit de corps are vital to the combat effectiveness of any group. When you congratulate another player on a well-struck blow or point out a potentially winning tactic on the battle mat, it'll be easier to understand how your warlord might enable others to perform beyond their normal capabilities. Your efforts at the game table can inspire and advise characters and players alike.

You can also roleplay the way your character prepares for adventuring. You might make sure that everyone in the party has enough healing potions and light sources, or lead the group in establishing a marching order and contingency plans for attack or retreat. While the DM is busy or you're waiting for players to arrive, you can even play out your character's leadership. You might have the other characters make attack rolls to establish who is the best archer or roll Heal checks to practice your first aid and determine how long it takes to revive an ally. The best way to roleplay a leader is to become one. Your efforts will make your party more successful and make your group more fun to play with.

Race the Arrow — Warlord Attack 1

You catch your comrade's eye and designate a target. You fire a shot that diverts your foe's attention, giving your ally the chance to attack.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage. One ally you can see can charge the target or make a melee basic attack against the target as a free action.
Skirmishing Presence: The ally gains a power bonus to the attack roll and the damage roll equal to your Intelligence or Wisdom modifier.

Seize the Upper Hand — Warlord Attack 1

Your strike distracts your foe, forcing it to lower its defenses and create opportunities for your allies' attacks.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage. Until the end of your next turn, while you have combat advantage against the target, you and your allies deal extra damage to the target equal to your Charisma modifier.

Shielded Assault — Warlord Attack 1

You attack cautiously, protecting yourself and nearby allies with your shield.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be using a shield.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you gain a +2 power bonus to AC, and your allies gain a +2 power bonus to AC while adjacent to you.

Vengeance Is Mine — Warlord Attack 1

You respond to an enemy's attack with a riposte, and you call for an ally to join you against the offender.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Immediate Reaction Personal
Trigger: An enemy hits you
Effect: You make a basic attack against the triggering enemy, and one ally within 5 squares of you can move his or her speed and make a melee basic attack against the triggering enemy as a free action.

Level 1 Daily Exploits

Create a Target — Warlord Attack 1

You swing at your foe, shoving it into the line of fire. The creature then continues to stagger around, disoriented and vulnerable.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you push the target a number of squares equal to your Intelligence modifier. Whenever a pull, a push, or a slide forces the target to move, one of your allies can make a basic attack against the target as a free action (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and you push the target 1 square.

Expert Timing — Warlord Attack 1

You deliver a blow to your foe and let out a call to your allies who, remembering their training, move nimbly around the battlefield.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage. You and each ally you can see gain a +1 power bonus to speed until the end of the encounter.
Miss: Half damage. You and each ally you can see gain a +1 power bonus to speed until the end of your next turn.

Inspiring Shot — Warlord Attack 1

Your shot strikes an enemy hard, proving that victory is near.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage. Until the end of the encounter, your healing powers restore additional hit points equal to your Intelligence or Wisdom modifier.

Leader's Instincts — Warlord Attack 1

You strike at your foe with a skillful thrust. As your opponent is about to dodge, you call for an ally to attack.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage. As a free action, one ally you can see can make a basic attack against the target with a +2 power bonus to the attack roll.

Relentless Wounding — Warlord Attack 1

Your attack wounds a foe, making it susceptible to your allies' assaults.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage. Until the end of the encounter, your allies gain a power bonus to damage rolls against the target equal to your Intelligence or Wisdom modifier.

Level 2 Utility Exploits

Encouraging Boost — Warlord Utility 2

You shout words of encouragement, giving your ally a necessary boost.

Encounter ✦ Healing, Martial
Minor Action Ranged 5
Target: One ally
Effect: The target can use its second wind and regain additional hit points equal to your Charisma modifier.

Flash of Insight — Warlord Utility 2

Your weapon slips past a foe's guard, allowing you to adjust your attack and throw the creature off balance.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Free Action Melee weapon
Trigger: An enemy is hit by your at-will weapon attack
Target: The enemy you hit
Effect: You knock the target prone or push the target a number of squares equal to your Intelligence or Wisdom modifier.

Hasty Alert — Warlord Utility 2

Your shout warns comrades of imminent danger in time for them to react.

Daily ✦ Martial
No Action Close burst 10
Trigger: A surprise round begins, and you are conscious
Target: You and each surprised ally in burst
Effect: Each target is not surprised and gains a bonus to AC and Reflex equal to your Intelligence modifier until the end of your next turn.

Spur to Action — Warlord Utility 2

Sensing your enemies' advantage, you whisper quick orders that spur your allies into action.

Daily ✦ Martial
No Action Close burst 10
Trigger: You roll initiative
Target: You and each ally in burst
Effect: Each target can reroll his or her initiative but must use the second result.

Level 3 Encounter Exploits

Battering Command — Warlord Attack 3

You slam your weapon into your foe's gut and cause the creature to double over, enabling an ally to smash it.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. Fortitude
Hit: You knock the target prone.
Effect: One ally adjacent to the target can make a melee basic attack against it as a free action.

Deadly Distraction — Warlord Attack 3

You strike your foe hard, delivering a wound that keeps your enemy distracted while you and your allies retreat.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage. Until the end of your next turn, you and each ally adjacent to the target do not provoke opportunity attacks from it.

Inspire Resilience — Warlord Attack 3

You deliver a powerful hit that bolsters your ally or encourages your comrade to unleash an equally devastating blow.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: One ally adjacent to you chooses either to gain a power bonus to damage rolls equal to your Intelligence modifier until the end of your next turn or to gain temporary hit points equal to your Charisma modifier.
Resourceful Presence: Instead of one ally, each ally adjacent to you either gains the bonus or gains temporary hit points.

No Gambit Is Wasted — Warlord Attack 3

Sensing that an ally is attempting a difficult deed, you distract your comrade's foe and give him or her another chance to use the attack.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Immediate Reaction Melee weapon
Trigger: An ally misses every target with an encounter or a daily attack
Target: One creature targeted by the triggering ally's attack
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage. The triggering ally's attack is not expended.
Insightful Presence: The triggering ally gains a bonus to his or her next attack roll against the target before the end of your next turn. The bonus is equal to your Wisdom or Charisma modifier.

Level 5 Daily Exploits

Archery Commander — Warlord Attack 5

As your allies unleash ranged attacks, you thwart your enemies' efforts to take advantage of your comrades' distraction.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you and any ally within 2 squares of you do not provoke opportunity attacks when making ranged attacks.

Brave Warriors — Warlord Attack 5

Your charge emboldens your allies to do the same.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you gain +1 power bonus to attack rolls when charging, and your allies gain a +1 power bonus to attack rolls when charging while within your line of sight.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Create Opportunity — Warlord Attack 5

Your precisely timed shots disrupt your foe's concentration, buying time for an ally to act.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, whenever you hit the target with a ranged attack, one ally adjacent to it can either make a melee basic attack against it as a free action or shift a number of squares equal to your Intelligence or Wisdom modifier as a free action.

Exemplar of Action — Warlord Attack 5

Your series of feints and slashes cows your foe, preparing it for your allies.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. Will
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is weakened and grants combat advantage (save ends both). Until the target is no longer affected by this power, your and your allies' attacks deal 5 extra damage against the target.
Miss: The target is weakened and grants combat advantage until the end of your next turn. In addition, your and your allies' attacks deal 2 extra damage against the target until the end of your next turn.

I've Got Your Back — Warlord Attack 5

Standing together, you and your comrades form a bastion that can withstand the enemy assault.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, any ally adjacent to you gains a +2 power bonus to AC and Reflex.

Level 6 Utility Exploits

Anchor the Line — Warlord Utility 6

You help an ally stand or guide a friend back into formation.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Minor Action Melee touch
Target: One ally
Effect: The target stands up, or you slide the target 1 square.

Form a Line — Warlord Utility 6

You raise your fist in the air, calling your allies to form a defensive front at your position.

Daily ✦ Martial
Standard Action Close wall 8
Effect: You designate a wall of defensive ground that lasts until the end of your next turn. The wall is 1 square high, and it must include a square you occupy. You and any ally within the wall gain a +1 power bonus to AC, or a +2 power bonus to AC while adjacent to an ally who is also within the wall.
Sustain Minor: The wall persists.

Invigorating Shout — Warlord Utility 6

You call to an ally with words of inspiration, pushing your comrade to fight on.

Daily ✦ Healing, Martial
Minor Action Ranged 5
Target: One ally
Effect: The target regains one healing surge and also regains hit points equal to his or her healing surge value.

Reassuring Gesture — Warlord Utility 6

Verbal reassurance is good, but a hearty clap on the shoulder is better.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Free Action Personal
Trigger: You use inspiring word on your ally
Effect: Your inspiring word also grants its target temporary hit points equal to 5 + your Wisdom or Charisma modifier.

Reorient the Axis — Warlord Utility 6

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Immediate Reaction Melee weapon
Trigger: An enemy within 3 squares of you hits your ally
Effect: Before your attack, you shift 2 squares.
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.

General's Gift — Warlord Attack 7

You are generous as well as brave. Your presence alone keeps an ally from surrendering to weariness and wounds.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, whenever an ally would spend a healing surge, you spend a healing surge on that ally's behalf as a free action. You regain no hit points from spending the healing surge, and the ally gains the benefit as if he or she had spent the healing surge.

Join the Crowd — Warlord Attack 7

You swing at a nearby foe and drive it back into the area of an ally's explosive attack.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Immediate Interrupt Melee weapon
Trigger: An ally makes a close or an area attack
Target: One creature not targeted by the triggering attack
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you slide the target a number of squares equal to your Strength modifier.
Insightful Presence: If the triggering attack hits the target, it deals extra damage equal to your Wisdom or Charisma modifier.

On My Mark — Warlord Attack 7

You catch the eye of your comrade and nod toward a foe. Together, you and the ally then strike.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Choose one ally you can see to make a basic attack against the target as a free action. If your attack hit the target, the ally gains a power bonus to his or her attack roll equal to your Intelligence or Wisdom modifier.
Skirmishing Presence: Before the attack, the chosen ally shifts 3 squares as a free action.

Sudden Motivation — Warlord Attack 7

Your passionate war cry inspires a burst of motivation in your allies, sending them darting across the battlefield.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon

Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you and your allies gain a +2 power bonus to ranged attack rolls and do not provoke opportunity attacks for making ranged attacks.
Special: You can use this power in place of a ranged basic attack.

Level 22 Utility Exploits

Courageous Insight — Warlord Utility 22

You have a sixth sense that tells you when your allies are in danger. Recognizing your ally's peril, you dart over to help.

Daily ✦ Healing, Martial
Immediate Interrupt Melee 1
Trigger: An ally drops to 0 hit points or fewer from an enemy's attack that doesn't target you
Effect: You move twice your speed. You must end this movement adjacent to the triggering ally.
Target: The triggering ally
Effect: The attack hits you instead of the target, and the target can spend a healing surge.

Defensive Ground — Warlord Utility 22

You identify a section of the battlefield that offers a defensive advantage, and you direct your allies to secure it.

Daily ✦ Martial
Standard Action Close blast 3
Target: Each ally in blast
Effect: Each ally in the blast gains temporary hit points equal to 5 + your Intelligence or Wisdom modifier. The blast creates an area of defensible terrain. Until the end of the encounter, any ally within the area that has cover except that provided by intervening allies instead has superior cover.

Hidden Opportunity — Warlord Utility 22

You spot a hole in an enemy's defenses and tell your ally to seize the opportunity.

Daily ✦ Martial
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, any ally you can see can spend an action point, even if that ally already spent one or more during this encounter. An ally can spend only one action point per turn.

Level 23 Encounter Exploits

Defender's Retort — Warlord Attack 23

You run to your ally's aid and strike out at an advancing enemy.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Immediate Interrupt Melee weapon
Trigger: An enemy within 3 squares of you hits your ally
Effect: Before you attack, you shift 2 squares.
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage.

Halting Missile — Warlord Attack 23

You fire a shot at an enemy that is pressing down on an ally. Your attack debilitates the foe and gives your ally temporary respite.

Encounter ✦ Healing, Martial, Weapon
Immediate Reaction Ranged weapon
Trigger: An enemy hits your ally with a melee attack
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the ally regains hit points equal to 5 + your Intelligence or Wisdom modifier.
Skirmishing Presence: The target is weakened until the end of its next turn.

Hold that Thought — Warlord Attack 23

Realizing your ally's aim is off, you quickly strike the target of your comrade's attack and try to distract it to help your ally hit.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Immediate Interrupt Melee or Ranged weapon
Trigger: An enemy is missed by your ally's attack
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage. The ally can reroll his or her attack roll against the target and use either result.

Stunning Display — Warlord Attack 23

You drive your weapon into your enemy, shocking it. While the enemy is recovering, you give an ally a moment to recuperate.

Encounter ✦ Healing, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is stunned until the end of your next turn. One ally within 5 squares of you can use his or her second wind as a free action.
Insightful Presence: The ally's bonus to defenses from second wind equals +4 instead of +2.

Wave of War — Warlord Attack 23

Your vigorous charge inspires your allies to move forward and encircle your foes.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage
Effect: Each ally within 5 squares of you can move his or her speed as a free action.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Level 25 Daily Exploits

Forceful Leader — Warlord Attack 25

Your charge inspires your allies. As they follow your lead, you shout encouragement that fills them with vigor.

Daily ✦ Healing, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 5[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, any ally who hits with a charge attack regains 5 hit points.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Help Where It's Needed — Warlord Attack 25

You attempt to avenge your comrades. Seeing your efforts, your wounded allies feel invigorated and rejoin the fight.

Daily ✦ Healing, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and one ally within 5 squares of you can make a saving throw against each effect on him or her that a save can end.
Effect: Any bloodied ally within 5 squares of you can spend a healing surge as a free action and make a saving throw against one effect on him or her that a save can end.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Herding Barrage — Warlord Attack 25

Your shots drive your foes into a tight cluster. You then signal for an ally to seize his or her chance to attack.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One, two, or three creatures
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you push the target a number of squares equal to your Intelligence modifier.
Effect: One ally adjacent to each target can make a melee basic attack against that target as a free action.

Skirmisher's Command — Warlord Attack 25

Every shot you take strikes a foe where it is vulnerable and signals where allies should target it.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, any enemy you hit with a ranged attack gains vulnerable 10 to all damage until the end of your next turn.

Vigilant Commander — Warlord Attack 25

You lash out at an enemy, repaying it for everything you and your allies have suffered during the battle.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage. The attack deals 1[W] extra damage for each inspiring word you have used during this encounter, up to a maximum of 4[W].
Effect: You regain the use of any expended inspiring word uses.

RALPH BEISNER

Level 27 Encounter Exploits

Combined Arms Assault — Warlord Attack 27

You fire at an enemy, prompting a pair of nearby allies to charge or shoot the foe.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage. One or two allies you can see can choose either to charge the target or to make a ranged basic attack against the target as a free action.
Skirmishing Presence: The allies gain a power bonus to the damage rolls equal to your Intelligence or Wisdom modifier.

Insightful Assault — Warlord Attack 27

With a whistle, you signal to your allies to assault an enemy from all sides.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Standard Action Close burst 20
Target: You and one, two, or three allies in burst
Effect: Choose an enemy. Each target can make a basic attack against the chosen enemy as a free action.
Insightful Presence: The basic attacks deal extra damage equal to your Wisdom or Charisma modifier.

Raise the Bar — Warlord Attack 27

Your attack sets a standard of excellence that the rest of the party strives to match.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage. Each ally you can see gains a power bonus to attack rolls equal to your Intelligence or Wisdom modifier until the end of your next turn

Resourceful Triumph — Warlord Attack 27

Time seems to slow as you regard your foe. Then, deciding on the best place to strike, you deliver a potent attack.

Encounter ✦ Healing, Martial, Weapon
Immediate Reaction Melee weapon
Trigger: An enemy hits your ally
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is stunned until the end of your next turn.
Effect: The ally who was hit can spend a healing surge.

Level 29 Daily Exploits

Break it Up — Warlord Attack 29

You send distracting shots at your foes, allowing allies to maneuver around the battlefield and launch new attacks.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, whenever you hit an enemy with a ranged attack, one ally who is adjacent to that enemy can shift a number of squares equal to your Intelligence or Wisdom modifier and then make a melee basic attack against it as a free action. If no ally is adjacent to the enemy, one ally can make a ranged basic attack against it as a free action.

Legendary Charge — Warlord Attack 29

You charge forward, heedless of the dangers. Your speed and power inspire your allies to fight with renewed vigor.

Daily ✦ Healing, Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 6[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Each ally within 10 squares of you can spend a healing surge as a free action.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Loyal Squadron — Warlord Attack 29

You never worry about the strength of your arm. You know that if you falter, your comrades will be there to back you up.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Miss: As a free action, each ally can make a melee basic attack against the target with a bonus to the attack roll equal to your Intelligence or Wisdom modifier.

Partners in Battle — Warlord Attack 29

You and your comrade assault an enemy in concert, forcing the creature to divide its attention.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the target is dazed (save ends).
Miss: As a free action, one ally you can see can make a basic attack against the target with a power bonus to the attack roll equal to your Intelligence or Charisma modifier. On a hit, the target is dazed until the end of your next turn, and during your next turn, you can use this power against the target again.

Arcane Battlemaster

"In battle, as in alchemy, it's the combination of elements that matters."

Prerequisite: Warlord, trained in Arcana

Since you first took up arms, you have felt a kinship with wizards, because, like them, you're at your best when your natural talents are honed by careful study. While young wizards were studying the elements and energy of the multiverse, you were studying tactics, especially the strategies that employ magic as a weapon of war. The presence of a powerful mage changes the entire dynamic of a typical battle, and you have worked long and hard to familiarize yourself with exactly how such a weapon can be employed or defended against.

As part of your study of war magic, you have mastered a small amount of magic yourself. However, you realize your full potential when you're leading dedicated spellcasters and putting their powers to good use.

Arcane Battlemaster Path Features

Transmuting Strike (11th level): Whenever you hit an enemy with a melee basic attack or a warlord at-will attack power, choose acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder. That enemy loses resistance to the chosen damage type until the end of your next turn.

Elemental Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to make an attack that hits, choose acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder. The attack deals ongoing damage of the chosen type equal to your Intelligence modifier (save ends).

Energizing Inspiration (16th level): Whenever you use inspiring word, choose acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder. The next attack the target of the inspiring word makes before the end of your next turn deals extra damage of the chosen type equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Arcane Battlemaster Powers

Crackling Nimbus Arcane Battlemaster Attack 11

Your weapon emits lightning that jolts your enemy and clings to it for a time, making it pay a price for attacking your allies.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Lightning, Weapon
Standard Action Area burst 1 within weapon range
Requirement: You must be wielding a ranged weapon.
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Strength vs. Reflex
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier lightning damage. The first time the target deals damage to one of your allies before the end of your next turn, the target takes lightning damage equal to your Intelligence modifier.

CHRIS SEAMAN

Transmuter's Boon Arcane Battlemaster Utility 12

You adjust the nature of nearby elemental forces to spare your ally from harm.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Immediate Interrupt Close burst 5
Trigger: An ally within 5 squares of you takes acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder damage
Target: Each ally in burst
Effect: Each target gains resistance to the triggering damage type equal to your Intelligence modifier until the end of your next turn.

Hurl the Spark Arcane Battlemaster Attack 20

You infuse your ammunition with elemental fire as you attack with it, and it explodes in flames upon impact.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fire, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier fire damage, and ongoing 10 fire damage (save ends).
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Make a secondary attack that is an area burst 1 centered on the primary target.
Secondary Target: Each enemy in burst
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. Reflex
Hit: The secondary target takes ongoing 5 fire damage and grants combat advantage (save ends both).

Arkhosian Blademaster

"We fight the good fight, knowing that it could take our lives."

Prerequisite: Warlord, Arkhosian Fang Student feat

The last blademaster of Arkhosia perished centuries ago, yet you have kept alive the memory of this noble tradition with your study of swordplay and your dedication to the ideals of courage and honor. Part knight, part pilgrim, and part kensei, you are a wandering swordmaster and battle captain in search of causes worthy of your skills. Your tradition isn't merely to face the darkness with sword in hand. You lift spirits and rally resistance, bolstering the courage of allies around you.

Many of the old blademasters were dragonborn, but the elite defenders of Arkhosia accepted skillful and honorable heroes of other races into their ranks. Students of the ancient art of Arkhosian high combat can now be found among races other than dragonborn. Although a few blademasters lose their way and become mercenaries or assassins, most descend into anonymity and continue their noble battle in the shadows. As a blademaster, whether you wear the gilded plate armor of a titled lord, the battered armor of a tireless knight-errant, or the weathered cloak of a poor wanderer, you persevere against oppression, battling it wherever you find it.

BEN WOOTTEN

Arkhosian Blademaster Features

Resilient Blade (11th level): You increase the number of healing surges you have by two.

Conclusive Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, any ally who has line of sight to you gains a bonus to damage rolls against bloodied creatures equal to your Strength modifier until the end of your next turn.

Battle Recovery (16th level): When you use your second wind, you regain the use of the lowest-level encounter attack power you have expended during this encounter.

Arkhosian Blademaster Exploits

Shout of Challenge Arkhosian Blademaster Attack 11

You attack with a fierce war cry, challenging your foe and giving heart to your nearby comrades.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Target: One creature
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier + Charisma modifier damage, and each ally within 3 squares of you gains temporary hit points equal to 5 + your Charisma modifier.
Effect: If the target is bloodied, you mark it until the end of your next turn.

Heart of Dragons Arkhosian Blademaster Utility 12

An enemy's blow against you or an ally steels your resolve.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Immediate Reaction Close burst 5
Trigger: You or an ally within 5 squares of you is bloodied by an enemy attack
Target: The triggering character in burst
Effect: The target can make a saving throw and also gains temporary hit points equal to 5 + your Charisma modifier.

Inspiring Blade Arkhosian Blademaster Attack 20

A dazzling display of swordplay and a bold challenge to your enemies inspires your allies to follow your example and battle on with renewed vigor.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 1
Target: Each enemy in burst you can see
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you mark the target until the end of your next turn.
Effect: One ally within 10 squares of you regains the use of an expended encounter attack power. In addition, for each use of inspiring word you have expended during this encounter, one additional ally within 10 squares of you regains the use of an expended encounter attack power.

Arrowhead Commander

"You challenge my right to lead? Show me that you can draw back this bow, and we'll talk."

Prerequisite: Warlord, Adamant Arrow Student feat

In combat after combat, you have proved that the arrow is among the deadliest of weapons. As you have grown as an archer, you have learned that a band of heroes is like an arrow. To be effective, it needs both a sharp head to guide it and a strong arm to set it in motion, both of which you provide.

Although you value mobility over heavy armor, your physical prowess means that you excel in melee. You try not to get lost in the thick of battle, because you might miss opportunities to bring your keen mind into play. You prefer to survey the battlefield with a glance and direct your allies to strike where an enemy force is weakest. If no such gap in your enemies' defenses exists, you unleash an arrow to create one.

Arrowhead Commander Path Features

Nowhere to Run (11th level): Whenever you use a ranged attack to pull, push, or slide an enemy into or out of a square adjacent to one of your allies, that ally gains a +2 bonus to attack rolls against that enemy until the end of your next turn.

Seeking Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to make an attack, any ally who can see you ignores cover and concealment until the end of your next turn when attacking the same target.

Tactical Adept (16th level): You increase the number of squares your ranged attacks push enemies by 2.

Arrowhead Commander Exploits

Line of Fire Arrowhead Commander Attack 11

Your first shot unbalances your foe, leaving it open to your allies' attacks. You follow up with a quick volley, striking enemies that sought to block the path to your foe.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a greatbow or a longbow.
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and the primary target grants combat advantage until the end of your next turn. Make a secondary attack.
Secondary Target: One or two creatures granting cover to the primary target.
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Strength modifier damage.

Strike Here Arrowhead Commander Utility 12

Like pins in a map, your arrows mark the vital spots on a foe's body.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, whenever you hit an enemy with a ranged attack, the next time an ally hits the target before the end of your next turn, he or she ignores the target's resistances.

Follow Through Arrowhead Commander Attack 20

You use the enemies in front of your true target to redirect your shot to your foe.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a greatbow or a longbow.
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and any enemy granting cover to the primary target takes damage equal to your Strength modifier.
Miss: If no creature is granting cover to the primary target, you don't expend this power. Otherwise, make a secondary attack.
Secondary Target: One creature granting cover to the primary target
Secondary Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and any enemy granting cover to the secondary target takes damage equal to your Strength modifier.
Miss: Half damage.

JULIE DILLON

Captain of Fortune

"Fortune is on our side. It is up to us to seize our chance!"

Prerequisite: Warlord

You believe that a great destiny awaits anyone who has the audacity to take fate into his or her own hands. Self-awareness, confidence, and a sharp eye for opportunity allow a hero to reach a destiny, yet sometimes destiny needs a little bit of help. And that's where you come in.

You teach your comrades and followers the principles of self-empowerment to help them reach for greater heights. You believe that someone who is alert and grabs opportunities as they come can triumph against any adversary. A force of balance is at work within the world, and fortune, fate, luck, or chance—whatever you care to call it—gathers around the bold like an invisible mantle. Fortune rarely smiles for long on those who prey on others or who stand on the side of iniquity; their day of ill fortune comes eventually. You intend to be there when it does.

Those you lead see you as a good luck charm. They feel empowered in your presence, believing that you have a supernatural gift that improves their chances. You, on the other hand, understand that luck is made, not found. You know that if luck and fate do guide the destinies of you and your friends, without the proper effort and outlook, those destinies will never be fulfilled.

WAYNE REYNOLDS

Captain of Fortune Path Features

Know Your Strength (11th level): When rolling damage for a weapon attack, you treat a roll of 1 or 2 as a roll of 3.

Seize the Day (11th level): When you spend an action point to attack and you roll an odd number on the first attack roll, you gain temporary hit points equal to 5 + one-half your level. If you roll an even number on the first attack roll, each ally within 5 squares of you gains temporary hit points equal to one-half your level.

Presence of Greatness (16th level): You can spend two action points during an encounter, but no more than one per round.

Captain of Fortune Exploits

Lady Luck Smiles Captain of Fortune Attack 11

You're a good luck charm to your allies, attracting the blessing of Lady Luck in everything you do.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Target: One creature
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage. Until the end of your next turn, whenever an ally within 5 squares of you makes a melee or a ranged attack roll, he or she can roll twice and use either result.

Favored Fortune Captain of Fortune Utility 12

You believe in luck, but you also believe in seizing opportunities when they come.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Immediate Interrupt Close burst 5
Trigger: You or an ally within 5 squares of you makes a damage roll
Target: The triggering character in burst
Effect: The target rerolls the damage roll and can use either result.

Strike of Foul Fate Captain of Fortune Attack 20

You strike your foe and infuse it with ill fortune to keep it from harming your comrades.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee or Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, the target is marked. While the target is marked by you, whenever it attacks one of your allies, it must make two attack rolls and use the lower result.

Chainbinder

"I got its arms—it ain't going nowhere."

Prerequisite: Warlord, Rending Chains Warmaster feat

You are a master of a hard and pitiless combat style. Speeches about hope and ideals aren't for you; you inspire your comrades by showing them how you can rip your enemies to shreds. You're skilled at fighting with weapons that let you hold your foes so your friends can work them over. The spiked chain is your weapon of choice, since it lets you strike from the second rank.

You might have learned your techniques in the fighting pits of a goblin fortress, in the arenas of a decadent city-state, or alongside brigands in lawless lands. You emerged from this crucible as a gang leader, a hard-hearted mercenary, or a skilled gladiator.

Chainbinder Path Features

Warlord's Chains (11th level): Choose one of the following warlord at-will powers that you know: brash assault, intuitive strike, or wolf pack tactics. The chosen power becomes associated with the Rending Chains Student feat, gaining its benefit.

Binding Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to make an attack with a flail and that attack hits, you can grab one creature hit by the attack.

Hindering Grasp (11th level): Any creature grabbed by you grants combat advantage.

Shredding Escape (16th level): Whenever an enemy shifts and would take damage from your Rending Chains Warmaster feat, you can instead deal ongoing damage to the enemy equal to your Strength modifier (save ends).

Chainbinder Exploits

Ensnaring Chains — Chainbinder Attack 11

You whip your weapon around your foe, leaving an opening for your ally to strike.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a flail.
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you grab the target. One of your allies adjacent to the target can make a melee basic attack against the target as a free action.

Dance of the Flail — Chainbinder Utility 12

You force your enemy to move against its will, allowing a nearby ally to lash out at it.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, whenever you attack with a flail and pull, push, or slide an enemy, one of your allies adjacent to that enemy at any point during the forced movement can make a melee basic attack against it as a free action.

Grab and Smash — Chainbinder Attack 20

You lash out with your weapon, drawing a foe closer. Then you snare a second enemy and slam it into the first.

Daily ✦ Martial, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be wielding a flail.
Target: One or two creatures
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you slide the target 3 squares to a square adjacent to you. If you hit two targets, each of them takes extra damage equal to your Strength modifier.

ADAM GILLESPIE

Prince of Knaves

"Rob from the rich and give to the poor, aye. And we're needy enough to be first in line!"

Prerequisite: Warlord, trained in Stealth

Those who live outside the law are fiercely independent. Some are outcasts by nature, but most are driven to the fringes of society because a rigid authority denied them any other place. It's not easy for free spirits to acknowledge their need for leadership. You understand that those who act alone are easier to hunt down. Outlaws must be inspired to band together for their common good. That's where you come in.

Because of your charm and your bravado, and because you never give up, you're the one they rely on for this inspiration. When times are good, you're the one they trust to divvy up the loot. On the days when the law wins, it's you who holds despair at bay and encourages your band to press on. You are a prince of knaves, and no matter what company you keep or how base you might be, none can deny that you have the dignity and magnetism of a born ruler.

A few heroes who follow this path truly are of noble birth. Legends abound with tales of deposed aristocrats toppled from the ruling class and forced to lead a ragtag band of rebels to recapture their rightful heritage. Others hope to use their blades and their wits to carve out a new throne for themselves. Whatever the past and the future hold for you, you know that you will triumph as long as you have your friends close—and a concealed knife even closer.

Prince of Knaves Path Features

Generous Flanker (11th level): Any enemy you are flanking grants combat advantage.

Distracting Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, each ally you can see can shift his or her speed and make a Stealth check to become hidden as a free action.

Lord of Scoundrels (16th level): Allies adjacent to you don't grant combat advantage.

Prince of Knaves Exploits

Clever Maneuver Prince of Knaves Attack 11

You attack your foe with a quick slash, then shove it toward one of your allies to finish off.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. Reflex
Hit: 2[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you slide the target 3 squares. If the target ends the slide adjacent to any of your allies, one of your allies adjacent to it can make a melee basic attack against it as a free action.

DAVE ALLSOP

Run for It Prince of Knaves Utility 12

On your signal, your band scatters out of sight.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Move Action Close burst 5
Target: You and one ally in burst
Effect: Each target can move his or her speed and make a Stealth check to become hidden as a free action.

Kneel to the Prince Prince of Knaves Attack 20

You trip your foe, lashing out at it as it stumbles past you.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and you slide the target 3 squares and knock it prone. The target can't stand up (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and you knock the target prone.

White Raven

"A leader is only as great as the sum of his or her soldiers."

Prerequisite: Warlord

You are a renowned captain and a famous leader who is known for generosity toward your troops and ferocity in the face of enemies. You're at your best with allies nearby, fighting back to back against a throng of worthy foes. You grew up in a culture that values camaraderie, honor, cooperation, and nobility. Dirty fighting, deceit, and trickery are anathema to you. You eschew these strategies in favor of sound tactics, strong morale, well-trained warriors, solid armor and weapons, and proper planning. You're not afraid to get your hands dirty, though you believe that respect should be shown to friend and foe alike.

Not everyone has what it takes to be a white raven. You must be mindful of the needs of your allies, the honor of your foes, and your legacy in years to come. You hope to earn your place in the courts of the gods, and you know that such a place is not reached without effort. You plan to do whatever it takes to be worthy of such an honor.

White raven is often a hereditary title akin to nobility in military societies. Despite this tradition, you didn't achieve this rank without proving your skill, valor, and generosity to those older and more experienced in battle and in the ways of the world. You have been given a great honor by having this title bestowed upon you. If you were to die tomorrow, you would be content knowing that you have lived your life to the best of your ability.

BEN WOOTTEN

White Raven Path Features

Loyal Support (11th level): Whenever you use a healing power or a power that grants temporary hit points, the target of the power gains an additional 2 hit points (of the corresponding type) for each ally within 2 squares of you.

White Raven Tactics (11th level): When you spend an action point to make an attack, you gain a bonus to attack rolls for that attack equal to 2 + the number of allies who are within 2 squares of you.

Bold Company (16th level): Whenever you hit an enemy and deal damage, you deal 2 extra damage to that enemy for each of your allies adjacent to it.

White Raven Exploits

Inspirational Assault White Raven Attack 11

You land a mighty blow, inspiring an ally to follow suit.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and one ally within 5 squares of you gains a power bonus to his or her next attack roll before the end of your next turn equal to the number of allies within 2 squares of you.

Order from Chaos White Raven Utility 12

You yell out a series of quick orders, directing your allies to superior positions among your enemies.

Daily ✦ Martial
Move Action Close burst 10
Target: You and each ally in burst
Effect: Each target can shift his or her speed as a free action, ignoring difficult terrain. Each target gains combat advantage against every enemy until the end of your next turn.

White Raven's Gambit White Raven Attack 20

Your powerful attack clips your enemy, weakening its defenses and allowing an ally to follow up with a strong attack.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Strength modifier damage. As a free action, one ally adjacent to the target can make a melee basic attack against the target with a power bonus to the damage roll equal to your Wisdom modifier.
Miss: Half damage, and one ally adjacent to the target can make a melee basic attack against the target as a free action.

Zephyr Warchief

"We are a scouring sandstorm, and we will sweep you away."

Prerequisite: Warlord, Desert Moon Student feat

You have mastered the art of war as practiced by the desert nomads. You are an expert at using speed and hit-and-run tactics for skirmishes and raids. Perhaps you are displaced from your original band, a grizzled veteran who now fights in foreign lands. You might be searching for a new band to lead or seeking to whip an existing group into shape. You could have been exiled from your tribe and now live as a rootless wanderer. Regardless of your past, your life brought you into contact with the ways of war, and from that experience, you became an aggressive and resourceful leader.

You learned your style of command in a harsh environment where fear and hesitation aren't options. The unforgiving desert sands shaped you into a keen weapon that has no patience for the luxuries of civilized folk. However, you aren't without honor. Hospitality, kindness to prisoners, and the rules of war must be observed. You seek to destroy your enemies and pillage their camps, but that doesn't mean you're an animal. It's important that tradition is followed. You demand this adherence of anyone who serves with you and under you.

Your allies know you as a hard and fair leader. Everyone receives their due, but dues must be earned. The desert doesn't give easily of her bounty, and neither do your enemies.

Zephyr Warchief Path Features

Desert Wind (11th level): Any ally who starts his or her turn within 5 squares of you gains a +2 bonus to speed when charging or running.

Warchief's Favor (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, one ally within 5 squares of you can shift his or her speed and make a melee basic attack as a free action before or after the extra action.

Nomad's Blessing (16th level): Whenever you shift, you can shift 1 extra square.

Zephyr Warchief Exploits

Scouring Strike Zephyr Warchief Attack 11

You charge your foe with incredible speed, scouring its flesh with your weapon and spinning it around so your allies can rush into position.

Encounter ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Target: One creature
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage. You and each ally adjacent to the target can shift 2 squares as a free action.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

VINCENT DUTRAIT

Desert Glide Zephyr Warchief Utility 12

You and your allies glide across the battlefield like sand snakes in the dunes.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Move Action Close burst 3
Target: You and each ally in burst
Effect: Each target can move his or her speed + 2 as a free action.

One Thousand Cuts Zephyr Warchief Attack 20

You and your allies assault your foe with attacks from all sides like the full force of the brutal desert wind, giving it no respite from its wounds.

Daily ✦ Martial, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Strength vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Strength modifier damage, and ongoing 10 damage (save ends). While the target is affected by this ongoing damage, the first time you or an ally damages the target each round, it takes a -2 penalty to saving throws until the end of its next turn.
Miss: Half damage, and ongoing 10 damage (save ends).
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

CHAPTER 5

Martial Options

A martial hero is more than a choice of race, class, and build. Your selection of feats for your character offers you the ability to create a unique assemblage of techniques, making your dragonborn brawling fighter different from any other dragonborn brawling fighters you might meet. Do you choose feats that focus on mastering one aspect of combat, such as making your opportunity attacks as effective as possible? Or do you pick a specific weapon and devote yourself to mastering an exotic fighting style associated with it? With the options in this chapter, you can also broaden your character's horizons and create a hero renowned for deeds of endurance, agility, cleverness, or athleticism. After all, not every challenge you face in the world of Dungeons & Dragons can be killed with a sword.

In this chapter, you'll find the following sections.

- The Martial Outlook: What sets martial characters apart from other kinds of adventurers? What do they care about, and how do they interact with the world around them? This section answers those questions.
- Combat Styles: A new system of feats that allows you to specialize in a particular combination of weapons and powers, learning a set of signature attacks and moves.
- New Feats: This section presents feats by tier, including new options for every martial class.
- Martial Practices: Rituals give characters the ability to use powerful magic to overcome challenges outside combat. Now martial characters have a way to accomplish similar tasks in the form of martial practices.
- Martial Backgrounds: A series of backgrounds aimed at martial characters. These backgrounds use the rules from Player's Handbook 2.
- Epic Destinies: Four new epic destinies conclude this chapter, including the dragonheart and the legendary sovereign.

KEREM BEYIT

At first blush, it might seem as though there's nothing special about martial characters compared to the other kinds of adventurers who populate the world of the D&D® game. They don't use mastery of magic to rise to the fore; they don't rely on otherworldly deities or spirits to invest them with their powers. They succeed because of the strength that lies within them—and that makes them special indeed.

This section discussses several topics important to how martial characters act and how they view the world around them, beginning with an examination of exactly where martial power comes from.

What Is Martial Power?

From where does the fighter summon the strength for such fierce attacks? How does the rogue learn to perform feats of astounding agility? What hidden reservoir of spirit does the warlord tap when he or she steps forward and commands allies to strike as one?

The martial power source might seem as though it isn't a power source at all. A martial practitioner can't produce overtly supernatural effects, such as rays of blinding radiance or shields of invisible magic force. However, martial power does have a source, even if it is an inconspicuous one. Martial power is the combination of three qualities acting in concert: natural ability such as great strength or uncanny agility, the determination to act, and learned skill acquired through endless hours of practice. For a brief moment, the martial hero combines these three components in the performance of a move, maneuver, or feat of arms, exceeding the normal physical limitations of his or her body and training.

To put it another way, most people go through their lives using only a fraction of their true capability. Martial heroes have learned how to routinely exceed their normal limits and unlock more of their physical potential than anyone else. They can't perform magical deeds, such as teleporting through alternate dimensions or becoming transparent, but they can make leaps of astonishing speed and distance or take advantage of the smallest distraction to slip out of sight. With timing and skill, a wiry halfling hero can throw a harder punch than a human laborer twice his or her size, because the halfling knows how to dig down and use more of his or her potential than the bigger, muscular human. The human laborer might have more raw strength, but that human doesn't know how to use it the way the halfling does.

The components of the martial power source are present in all creatures. However, few creatures learn to exceed their ordinary limits on a regular basis. A big, strong blacksmith driven into an absolute fury can hit with great force, but that doesn't mean that an angry blacksmith's punch is a martial exploit. It doesn't have the precise power and split-second timing that a martial hero's attack routinely achieves. Consequently, martial heroes soon exceed the skills of common people, especially in their chosen fields of expertise.

Some folks believe that the gods wanted mortal races to be capable of greater achievements than the gods could envision during the days of creation, and so they bestowed the capacity for incredible deeds upon each race. Others believe that the gods unknowingly created children greater than themselves, not understanding the true limits of the mortal races they shaped so long ago. Regardless of the veracity of this story, it's true that the gods have long been fascinated with mortal heroes, especially those who accomplish great deeds without the aid of magical energy.

A Warrior's Weapons

Your weapon choice is a distinctive element of your character. When choosing your character's weapon, look beyond the numbers to see what your weapon says about your adventurer.

Axe: Like a woodcutter in a forest, you're about chopping your way through what lies in your path. Axes are anything but delicate, so you're accustomed to bloodbaths. Axe wielders can't be squeamish about their work, and many develop a sense of gallows humor as a result.

Bow: The supreme weapon for archers, the bow offers range and power beyond other projectile weapons. Using a bow requires a keen eye, a talent you might bring to bear in dealing with others off the battlefield.

Crossbow: The crossbow shares the superior range and solid damage output found in bows but doesn't require the same level of training. In fact, any peasant can pick up a loaded crossbow and fire it with confidence. Slower reload times and lower damage make these weapons inferior to bows. If you don't have the time or interest for more extensive training, though, you can expand your combat options by keeping a crossbow handy.

Flail: You can bypass shields, smash through armor, and tangle up enemies by using a flail. Your attacks might be wild and reckless or cunning and technical.

Hammer: The hammer is usually associated with the fearless dwarf warrior who smashes through enemies with a warhammer or a maul. The hammer shatters bones and weapons, so it's a good choice if you are direct and aggressive (both in and out of combat).

Heavy Blade: Widely popular weapons, heavy blades are a staple in many warriors' arsenals. Whether you use the tried and true longsword or heft a mighty greatsword or fullblade, the heavy blade demonstrates your commitment to tradition and dedication to weapon mastery. In selecting such a weapon, you might be clinging to noble values and high ideals.

Light Blade: Speed and accuracy characterize light blades, making them favored weapons for rogues. If you specialize in light blades, you rarely take the front line against your enemies. Instead, you step in, attack, and dart away after delivering a nasty cut. You might seek nontraditional methods to overcoming problems, thinking around challenges rather than strong-arming your way through them.

Mace: Characterized by a heavy head used to break bones and damage armor, the mace is a simple kind of weapon. You don't need to devote a lot of time to training in the weapon. If you're a mace wielder, you probably take a less than artful approach to combat and prefer for direct solutions to out-of-combat problems.

Pick: Perfect for punching through heavy armor, a pick held in your hands can pin enemies in place. You're not a subtle combatant, and you employ extraordinary force when others would use more discreet options. You have a talent for reaching the heart of any problem quickly, if messily.

Polearm: The polearm's primary asset is reach. You can keep enemies at a distance and make it hard for them to strike back. If you're a warlord who fights behind the front lines, a polearm is ideal. With a polearm as your primary weapon, you display a penchant for teamwork.

Sling: This inexpensive alternative to the hand crossbow offers you similar damage and range without the expense. A peasant weapon, the sling is more commonly found in the hands of shepherds and small game hunters than in those of veteran warriors. Your use of the sling suggests a common or rustic origin.

Spear: The spear is a widespread weapon. It makes a warrior out of even the worst troops, since the basic fighting techniques require little study. Spears are also cheap to manufacture, giving rulers a steady supply of arms for their legions. As a spear wielder, you might have started out as a part-time warrior or a dabbler in the martial arts. As an adventurer, you have devoted your training to mastering this simple weapon, elevating it from its humble roots to being the equal of more complex weaponry.

Staff: Although most warriors are experienced with staffs, few rely on them in combat. You might have started using a staff because you couldn't afford finer tools. You probably began your career among common folk, as a peasant or brigand. This simple weapon reflects your uncomplicated nature and your practical, common-sense approach to problems.

Seeking Riches

Few adventurers are immune to the lure of gold. They consider gaining wealth to be part of rising to power. For mercenaries, dwarf fighters, and other martial archetypes, riches can be their own reward. Whether you are dutifully providing for your kin, sensibly setting aside something for your retirement, or seeking to drown the memory of humiliating poverty beneath an ocean of finery and largesse, you'll want to take on minor quests that offer stepping stones on your road to riches. It's best if these quests can be achieved without spending your precious gold.

If you have treasure on hand that you can easily convert to items that aid your character, do so. Gold pieces are your operating capital, and you can maximize your future earning potential by investing in superior gear and in martial practices such as Thorough Search. To gain fantastic wealth, you'll need to leverage intangibles and seize opportunities others might overlook. If you have to kill an enemy, see if there's someone else interested in seeing that person dead as well. When you clear out a haunted castle, determine if you can sell the property to a land-poor baron, find a buyer willing to haul away the ancient furnishings that were too bulky for transport, or use

Named Weapons

The greatest heroes of fantasy literature have borne weapons that had minds of their own, and in the earliest edition of the Dungeons & Dragons game, every sword that was magical was also intelligent. Nevertheless, martial characters would rather use their weapons as tools that serve their ends instead of the other way around. Legendary weapons gain names for themselves over time. A weapon that starts with a name might have already accomplished great deeds. On the other hand, a weapon could receive a name from those that witness its power over the course of the wielder's career. The usual source for a weapon name is the wielder or creator.

A few warriors, such as the hero Tral in his later years, have claimed that their weapons spoke to them in voices no one else could hear. Whether or not this tale is true, it's common for warriors to talk to their weapons, just as a lonely hunter might hold conversations with his dogs. This kind of nuance can be a great roleplaying hook. Your character might call his or her morningstar Big Biter, and when the party bogs down in debate over whether to take a rest you announce, "Big Biter's getting hungry!"

Mundane details can add character to a weapon as well. A blade that bears one notch for every foe it has killed is an evocative addition to the game whether you find it in a treasure parcel or start the tally yourself during play. Your DM might encourage players to treat a magic weapon they've found as a personality by giving it minor powers that aren't under the player's control, such as a flail that glows a dim red in the presence of reptilians and grows warm to the touch when such a foe is bloodied.

the site as the base for a new money-making organization of your own.

These aims might lead into skill challenges, and because in business it's vital to know whom you can trust, Insight is a key skill. Diplomacy is important for negotiating favorable contracts, and Streetwise and Thievery can help you stay ahead of villains who would seek to enrich themselves from your growing coffers.

Seeking Fame

All heroes seek to perfect their skills. For many martial characters, it's not enough to be the best unless everyone knows about it. You might want your name repeated in bards' songs for your own vain satisfaction, or you might desire to prove yourself to doubters and naysayers.

For you, a good minor quest is one that contributes to your legend. You might hope for a feast or a parade to be held in your honor, or you could seek an invitation to a prestigious conclave of adventurers. You will achieve your goals in tandem with the main quest of an adventure. When the party defeats the scourge that has been terrorizing a farm community, your job will be to make sure the group receives the credit it deserves. When you eradicate a nest of villains, you'll want to make an Intimidate check to be sure that one of their lackeys escapes to spread a properly impressive tale.

You might attempt skill challenges to persuade important personages to celebrate your legend. Because the tales of your accomplishments should always stretch the limits of believability without going too far, Bluff and Insight are key skills. Acrobatics and Intimidate can show your audience a little bit of your bluster and derring-do, while Diplomacy and Streetwise make sure your tale reaches the right ears.

As your fame grows, it can create complications that lead to further adventures. You might need to squelch malicious rumors spread by a rival, rescue a youngster who got into trouble trying to emulate your legend, or strive to live up to the inflated expectations of someone you can't disappoint without losing face.

Seeking a Legacy

Many martial characters harbor an ambition to create something greater than themselves. You might want to establish a stronghold for yourself and your cause, organize a thieves' guild, start a mercenary company, open a weapon shop, or found a military academy to pass on your martial lore.

At first your minor quests will be individual steps toward this goal, such as recruiting followers or acquiring a site where you want to build. Diplomacy is a key skill for challenges during this phase, since you have to negotiate a place for your organization within the existing social structure. You must also set an example for your followers, working and training alongside them using Athletics, Endurance, and Thievery. Martial practices such as Forge Weapon, Forge Armor, and Master Artisan can help to equip your followers or start a retail venture, while Peerless Exploration is invaluable for locating a good site for a stronghold and patrolling its environs.

Once you establish your organization, its growing pains will inspire additional quests, such as discrediting the slander of a rival school or making the roads safe for traders to reach your territory. Although the possibilities for skill challenges in this phase are as wide as the range of obstacles that might block your path, the History skill will always help you learn from the mistakes of your predecessors.

As you build, expect to pursue this goal in parallel with the party's main quests. Don't fall into the trap of depriving yourself to pay your organization's bills, and don't expect the organization's income to support you unless you have retired from adventuring. When the baron pays your adventuring party a chest full of gold, you should join the rest of the party in using the reward to improve your gear. You can try to gain further gratitude by making your academy the official training center for the barony's troops, or lending to the baron the services of your master mason.

Hiring Help

Once upon a time, every well-planned expedition into the dungeon began with a visit to the nearest tavern to recruit hirelings and henchmen. Although this practice is useful at low levels, its use declines as the heroes' power outstrips that of common warriors. Mercenary recruits can still be helpful to martial characters in certain circumstances, though. If you're lucky, you and your companions will find a treasure so massive that you need help hauling it back to

Regaining Exploits

Each martial character does something while resting that renews his or her ability to perform mighty deeds of arms, achievements that wouldn't be possible if that individual were forced to press on. One character might resharpen a weapon, honing the edge to better hew through foes. A ranged expert might sort through ammunition, balancing arrows or tossing and catching throwing knives to stay familiar with their centers of gravity. Other heroes might light pipes, chew leaves, or swig from wineskins to steady their nerves and refresh their courage. A few characters perhaps close their eyes and turn inward to regain their poise or pull out lucky talismans and kiss them. Some might offer prayers to the ones they worship, chant invocations to ward off harm, or meditate on their connections to nature, even if they draw upon only the martial power source in battle.

civilization. The wages of a gang of burly mercenaries roughly match the cost of components for the Tenser's Floating Disk ritual, and the recruits can defend the loot against minor threats if the party must divert its attention away from protecting it.

While searching for that big score, adventurers might hire sentries to maintain a base camp, guard mounts and prisoners, or secure an area. The party could also find use for hirelings other than soldiers. A legion of beggars can, for little pay, watch for an enemy who has gone to ground in an urban area. Paid bands of hunters might monitor the routes leading out of the city. The major disadvantage of mercenaries is the ever-present possibility of disloyalty, desertion, or betrayal. Wise adventurers address this problem before it can arise through careful recruiting and Streetwise background checks that guarantee a hireling's trustworthiness.

A promising group of lackeys will stay loyal if they are treated well. Successful parties aren't stingy with their employees, and don't ask them to take a share of an adventure's risks without an equal share of the rewards. Although good wages are important, maintaining good morale ultimately counts for more. The feral fighter Zar was famous for never paying on time and even more famous for splurging on lavish banquets for her hired soldiers and giving them the opportunity to boast that they had fought by her side, even if it was in a bar fight that she provoked. And Baok Bonebreaker always prized the +1 thundering warhammer given to him by the adventurers who first took a chance on hiring his ragged gang of dwarf bravos, wearing it proudly long after he became a famed warrior in his own right and realized that to his patrons, the hammer was an obsolete hand-me-down.

Martial Destinies

How can the different epic destinies of a group of martial characters be woven into a unified and satisfactory climax to a years-long campaign? Your DM can accomplish this by identifying plot threads that tie to the choices the players have made, as shown in the following example. As their game enters the epic tier, the DM talks to the players about their plans for their characters and finds out that the fighter will pursue the Invincible Vanguard destiny (page 157), the ranger has chosen Godhunter (Martial Power), the rogue will become a Demigod (Player's Handbook), and the warlord plans to become a Warmaster (Martial Power).

After browsing through the Dungeon Master's Guide with the campaign's previous plotlines in mind, the DM decides that the final arc of the story will center on the prophecy that a warrior wielding the Axe of the Dwarvish Lords will win a victory that dooms the world.

Characters and nonplayer characters might attempt to wield the legendary artifact, becoming entangled in the prophecy. Previous adventures in dwarven kingdoms introduced a politically ambitious dwarf whom the party mistrusts, and both the party's fighter and one of the group's chief rivals are dwarf warriors. The DM decides that the climax of the adventure will involve an attempt to destroy the Axe of the Dwarvish Lords so that the prophecy can never be fulfilled. If the characters don't hatch a plan to destroy the Axe themselves, the DM determines that a rival party will pursue this solution. The unique method required to destroy the Axe can involve fulfilling one of the artifact's benevolent goals, so the DM says it must be seared by the odious flames of the destroyed soul of the archdevil Geryon (Manual of the Planes, page 102).

For the party's fighter, standing up to Geryon will be the ultimate achievement as an Invincible Vanguard, while killing Geryon will represent the ranger's triumph as a Godhunter. The destinies of the rogue and warlord will be tested shortly after the fight, when the archdevil's death creates a gap within the hierarchies of the Abyss. The Demigod will have to choose whether to take up Geryon's crown and rule below or produce the devil's head as proof of her right to be admitted into a celestial pantheon, and the Warmaster will be presented with the opportunity to muster an army of angels or devils and establish a new balance of power.

Martial Rivalries

Parties of adventurers naturally compete with one another. Intense rivalries can develop between groups composed of several stubborn or brash martial heroes. Groups that have a stronger divine presence typically include members wise enough to avoid unnecessary conflict. Martial parties focus on worldly concerns, which can put them in competition with one another for profit, glory, and other prizes.

One famous rivalry developed after Roth Tovar's party discovered the location of the Murmuring Halls but was unable to explore them fully during a single expedition. When he yielded to the temptation to sell loot he had taken from the Halls, the distinctive style of its silversmithing alerted the half-elf ranger Meere to the find. She and her companions retraced Tovar's steps, and when he returned to find the dungeon entirely stripped of valuables, he took an oath of revenge against those responsible. The two groups met multiple times in the years to come, not always due to destiny alone. During the Witch-Hunter's War, Synjon Karsk made a point of recruiting both Roth and Meere into his army, saying that he didn't want to risk having them wind up on opposite sides and disobey his plan of battle in their eagerness to get at one another's throats.

No two warriors are exactly alike. Schools of swordplay, tactical systems, martial philosophies, and local traditions influence a warrior's basic strikes and parries. Over time, collections of moves and attacks become recognized as distinct combat styles.

Using Combat Styles

Each combat style consists of two types of feats, lesser style feats and greater style feats. Both kinds of style feats provide benefits when you wield specific weapons or use specific weapons to make attacks.

A lesser style feat modifies at-will attack powers and provides a bonus to a particular skill check. The at-will powers that a lesser style feat modifies are given at the end of the feat description.

A greater style feat requires you to have a lesser style feat. Greater style feats modify encounter powers and provide various other benefits.

Each power associated with a combat style feat is accompanied by an abbreviation to indicate which book the power appears in: Player's Handbook (PH), Martial Power (MP), or Martial Power 2 (MP2).

You can learn any number of lesser and greater style feats. However, any single attack can benefit from only one lesser style feat and one greater style feat, and those feats must be associated with the same combat style. If multiple lesser style feats or greater style feats can affect an attack, you must declare which of each type of feat you are using before making the attack.

Adamant Arrow Style

Greatbow or longbow

When faced with legions of soldiers, a skirmisher is hard-pressed to find a better weapon than a longbow. Masters of the Adamant Arrow style have learned the perfect balance of aim and power, allowing their shots to penetrate the toughest armor and send foes staggering.

Adamant Arrow Student [Lesser Style]

Prerequisite: Ranger or warlord; proficiency with greatbow or longbow

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Perception checks.

When you are attacking with a greatbow or a longbow and you hit an enemy with a power associated with this feat, you can push that enemy 1 square.

Associated At-Will Powers: nimble strike (ranger PH), paint the bull's eye (warlord MP2)

Adamant Arrow Commander [Greater Style]

Prerequisite: Warlord, Adamant Arrow Student feat

Benefit: When you are attacking with a greatbow or a longbow and you have proficiency with that weapon, you gain the following two benefits.

When you hit an enemy and at least one other enemy is providing it with cover from your attack, you deal damage equal to your Strength modifier to one enemy providing cover to it.

You can use a power associated with this feat as a ranged power instead of a melee power.

| Level | Associated Encounter Power | Source |
|---|---|---|
| 3rd | Inspiring war cry | PH 146 |
| 7th | Sunder armor | PH 148 |
| 13th | Denying smite | PH 149 |
| 17th | Deadly inspiration | MP 112 |
| 23rd | Wounding focus | MP 115 |
| 27th | Warlord's doom | PH 152 |

Adamant Arrow Hunter [Greater Style]

Prerequisite: Ranger, Adamant Arrow Student feat

Benefit: When you are attacking with a greatbow or a longbow and you have proficiency with that weapon, you gain the following two benefits.

When you hit an enemy and at least one other enemy is providing it with cover from your attack, you deal damage equal to your Dexterity modifier to one enemy providing cover to it.

You can use a power associated with this feat in place of a ranged basic attack.

| Level | Associated Encounter Power | Source |
|---|---|---|
| 3rd | Thwarting shot | MP 47 |
| 7th | Hunter's shot | MP 49 |
| 13th | Knockdown shot | PH 109 |
| 17th | Blow-through assault* | MP 53 |
| 23rd | Hammer shot | PH 112 |

*Only when used as a ranged attack

Combat Styles for Your Character

Because combat styles work with a narrow subset of classes, powers, and weapons, they are easier to use if you're creating a new character. If you want to add a combat style to an existing character, talk to your DM about allowing more extensive retraining. Also, keep in mind that you don't need every power associated with a combat style to use the style effectively.

COMBAT STYLES

| Name | Associated Weapons | Associated Classes |
|---|---|---|
| Adamant Arrow | Greatbow or longbow | Ranger, warlord |
| Arkhosian Fang | Bastard sword, broadsword, or greatsword | Fighter, ranger, warlord |
| Black Hood | Any two-handed axe | Fighter, ranger, warlord |
| Desert Moon | Any heavy blade that has the high crit property | Fighter, ranger, warlord |
| Elsir Hammer | Any one-handed hammer or one-handed pick | Fighter, ranger, warlord |
| Harrowing Swarm | Any bow or crossbow | Ranger, rogue, warlord |
| Hunting Spear | Any spear | Fighter, ranger, warlord |
| Ironstar | Any flail or mace | Fighter, ranger, warlord |
| Kulkor Battlearm | Any axe, hammer, or mace that has the versatile property | Fighter, ranger, rogue, warlord |
| Leaf Runner | Hand crossbow, repeating crossbow, shortbow, shuriken, or sling | Ranger, rogue, warlord |
| Longhand | Any two-handed polearm or two-handed spear | Fighter, warlord |
| Midnight Blade | Any melee light blade | Fighter, ranger, rogue |
| Moradin's Forge | Any two-handed axe, two-handed hammer, or two-handed pick | Fighter, warlord |
| Mountain Thunder | Any one-handed hammer, one-handed flail, or one-handed mace | Fighter, ranger, rogue, warlord |
| Nerathan High Blade | Any heavy blade that has the versatile property | Fighter, ranger, warlord |
| Ninth Legion | Any one-handed pick or one-handed spear | Fighter, warlord |
| Ogremight | Any two-handed hammer or two-handed mace | Fighter, warlord |
| Partisan Polearm | Any nonspear polearm | Fighter, warlord |
| Reaving Axe | Any one-handed axe | Fighter, ranger, warlord |
| Red Cloak | Longsword, rapier, or short sword | Fighter, rogue |
| Rending Chains | Any flail | Fighter, ranger, warlord |
| Silent Shot | Shortbow or any crossbow | Ranger, rogue |
| Steel Vanguard | Any two-handed heavy blade | Fighter, warlord |

Arkhosian Fang Style

Bastard sword, broadsword, or greatsword

The Arkhosian Fang was an ancient order of dragonborn warriors who developed a style of combat suited for the exhausting battles against Bael Turath. Proponents of this style slowly wear down opponents through patience and perseverance. Once a foe falters, an Arkhosian Fang master strikes quickly, bringing about a sudden conclusion. The order has disappeared, but lone masters and small groups of adherents remain, passing along knowledge of this style to anyone who is ready to learn.

Arkhosian Fang Student [Lesser Style]

Prerequisite: Fighter, ranger, or warlord; proficiency with the bastard sword, the broadsword, or the greatsword

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Endurance checks.

When you are attacking with a bastard sword, a broadsword, or a greatsword and you target a bloodied enemy with a power associated with this feat, you gain a +2 bonus to the attack roll.

Associated At-Will Powers: footwork lure (fighter MP), marauder's rush (ranger MP2), wolf pack tactics (warlord PH)

Arkhosian Fang Commander [Greater Style]

Prerequisite: Warlord, Arkhosian Fang Student feat

Benefit: When you are attacking with a bastard sword, a broadsword, or a greatsword and you have proficiency with that weapon, you gain the following two benefits.

Adapting Combat Styles

The new combat style feats presented in this chapter are incredible tools for customizing your martial character in new and interesting ways, letting you set your adventurer apart from other martial adventurers, even those of the same race and class. Although each style includes a description of its origins and appearance, these elements are there to enhance the style's flavor. They are not intended to be the ultimate authority on where the style originated or how it fits into the world of your game. Feel free to change names, background elements, or any other descriptive aspect to make it fit with your character concept. This option is especially useful if your game world doesn't include a race mentioned in the style's description or has existing organizations that could have created the fighting style. Check with your Dungeon Master to best adapt the style to fit within the campaign.

Sidebars throughout this section present alternative backgrounds for some combat styles.

When you miss an enemy with a martial encounter power, you gain a +2 bonus to your next attack roll against that enemy before the end of your next turn.

Black Hood Style

Any two-handed axe

The Black Hood is a loose guild of mercenary killers hired by lords to execute deserving criminals—especially criminals who haven't yet been caught. Over time, the group's techniques have evolved into a robust fighting style that uses two-handed axes. The Black Hood style focuses on delivering swift, lethal strikes.

Black Hood Student [Lesser Style]

Prerequisite: Fighter, ranger, or warlord; proficiency with any two-handed axe

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Intimidate checks.

When you are attacking with a two-handed axe and you deliver a coup de grace against an enemy, your attack deals 1[W] extra damage against that enemy.

When you are attacking with a two-handed axe and you hit an enemy with a power associated with this feat, you gain a +2 bonus to the damage roll if that enemy is slowed, or a +5 bonus to the damage roll if that enemy is helpless or immobilized.

Associated At-Will Powers: furious smash (warlord PH), marauder's rush (ranger MP2), sure strike (fighter PH)

Black Hood Butcher [Greater Style]

Prerequisite: Fighter, Black Hood Student feat

Using Associated Encounter Powers

Some combat style feats let you use an encounter attack power in place of a basic attack or use a different ability score for an attack. These combat style feats are intended to help a class's various builds gain access to powers that otherwise appeal to one or two builds. These feats change only when or how you use an encounter power. They don't alter the number of times you can use a power per encounter.

Everlost Guard Style

Worshipers of Orcus believe that the demon prince created this style and taught it to the elite cadre of mortal fanatics honored to fight alongside his undead hordes. The Everlost Guard fought brutally and without fear for their own lives. They knew that if they fell in battle, they would have the honor of fighting for Orcus again after being raised as undead.

Alternative to Black Hood

Benefit: When you are attacking with a two-handed axe and you have proficiency with that weapon, you gain the following two benefits.

Desert Moon Style

Any heavy blade that has the high crit property

The Desert Moon style arose among desert-dwelling, nomadic humans. In the blistering heat of their homelands, heavy armor is impractical, so they wear light armor that provides a full range of movement. The Desert Moon style emphasizes nimble footwork, quick reactions, and sudden attacks. The aggressive approach features spinning slashes and long cuts—attacks that favor curved blades.

Desert Moon Student [Lesser Style]

Prerequisite: Fighter, ranger, or warlord; proficiency with any heavy blade that has the high crit property

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Acrobatics checks.

When you are attacking with a heavy blade that has the high crit property and you have proficiency with that weapon, you also gain the following benefit.

When you hit an unbloodied enemy with a power associated with this feat, you can shift 2 squares after the attack as a free action.

Associated At-Will Powers: careful attack (ranger PH), sure strike (fighter PH), viper's strike (warlord PH)

Desert Moon Skirmisher [Greater Style]

| 17th | Thunderous fury | PH 150 |
| 23rd | Wave of war | MP2 93 |

Low Court Style

This form of scimitar fencing emerged from the ancient practice of trial by combat. The original law stated that the accused had to prove his or her innocence in a duel to the death against the accuser. Eventually, it became customary for both parties to hire professional champions who fought until first blood. Before Arnd acquired the Invulnerable Coat for which he is best remembered (described in the Dungeon Master's Guide), he founded an academy that taught this style.

Alternative to Desert Moon

Elsir Hammer Style

Any one-handed hammer or one-handed pick

To counter the hobgoblin populations in the mountains near Elsir Vale, local warriors developed a fighting style to reduce mobility and ignore heavy armor. Masters of this style analyze their opponents and capitalize on mistakes. Elsir defenders learn to bypass defenses using deliberate strikes. Since this style works well against any fortified enemies, it is widely practiced.

Elsir Hammer Student [Lesser Style]

Prerequisite: Fighter, ranger, or warlord; proficiency with any one-handed hammer or any one-handed pick.

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Perception checks.

When you are attacking with a one-handed hammer or a one-handed pick and you have proficiency with that weapon, you also gain the following benefit.

Fade-Away Guerrilla Style

The ranger Shalaris foresaw that her lands would inevitably fall to the Empire of Nerath. In addition to establishing training camps that spread her style of combat to resistance fighters, her forces also hid caches of elven cloaks to assist the guerrillas' hit-and-run tactics. A few of these caches remain today, guarded by angry ghosts.

Simrion's Flourish Style

The duelist Simrion Marcolicos, known for his compulsive risk-taking and his desire to impress the crowds that came to watch him fight, popularized a warhammer fighting technique characterized by a wide, looping swing. Opponents that moved in on Simrion's apparent vulnerability were caught unaware by his weapon's returning arc, to the delight of the audience. When a fighter thinks something looks too good to be true or carries a hidden danger, he or she might mutter that it is "like Simrion's hammer."

Infernal Regiment Style

This style was first codified by the resourceful commanders charged with developing military instruction manuals for the phalanxes of legion devils serving Bael Turath. None of the manuals have ever been found, but one phrase, "Time to throw down your shield," has survived and is still used by tieflings. They speak it at the moment when a defensive line breaks and they must fight on the offensive to prevail.

Veda's Honor Style

Veda arose from within an elite band of bodyguards and developed a style of fighting that those guards used to great effect. Its emphasis on opportunity attacks was inspired by the way she used her small and harmless appearance to inspire foes to relax their guard. Her legend tells of the times she defended her charge's life at the risk of her own.

Partisan Polearm Style

Any nonspear polearm

Mercenaries trained by the Partisan School are coveted throughout the world. Founded on the principles of loyalty, excellence, and discipline, their record is faultless. Warriors who study the school's fighting style master polearms, such as the glaive or the halberd. These students learn that a weapon's haft and blunt parts are as potent as its blade. A warrior trained in the Partisan Polearm style can use a weapon to shove enemies away and knock them to the ground.

Reaving Axe Style

Any one-handed axe

Not all fighting styles are elegant. Many are crude and vicious, favoring swift kills over elegance. The Reaving Axe style is such a technique. Invented by seafarers who raided towns and cities along the coastline, the style is distinguished by its grip. A practitioner of the reaving axe style chokes up on the haft for close-quarters fighting. Masters of the style hurl axes and deliver swift cuts to the legs to immobilize foes. Warriors trained in this style also employ shields to help deflect attacks from cornered victims.

Reaving Axe Student [Lesser Style]

Prerequisite: Fighter, ranger or warlord; proficiency with any one-handed axe

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Athletics checks.

House of Fallax Style

Warriors from the coastal city-state of Fallax have their own story of the origin of the Partisan Polearm style. The city-state's long-ago ruler was obsessed with the varieties of polearms, and she tasked her generals with developing new forms of combat using those weapons. The Partisan School, which teaches the style, has a shield emblazoned with the three blue diamonds of Fallax's heraldry as its symbol.

Alternative to Partisan Polearm

When you are attacking with a one-handed axe and you have proficiency with that weapon, you also gain the following benefit.

When you hit an unbloodied enemy with a power associated with this feat, it takes damage equal to your Constitution modifier if it moves more than 2 squares before the end of its next turn.

Associated At-Will Powers: brash assault (warlord MP), marauder's rush (ranger MP2), reaping strike (fighter PH)

Reaving Axe Brute [Greater Style]

Prerequisite: Fighter, Reaving Axe Student feat

Benefit: When you are attacking with a one-handed axe and you have proficiency with that weapon, you gain the following two benefits.

Whenever you score a critical hit against an enemy, you also knock that enemy prone, and the first time it stands up before the end of your next turn, it provokes an opportunity attack.

You can use a power associated with this feat in place of a melee basic attack when making an opportunity attack.

| Level | Associated Encounter Power | Source |

Red Cloak Style

Longsword, rapier, or short sword

Named for the crimson garments worn by the duelists who first mastered this style, the Red Cloak style originated within a guild of assassins in Nerath. Central to the style is the riposte, in which a warrior knocks aside an incoming attack and delivers a punishing counterstrike before the foe can offer any defense. This method requires speed, so those trained in the style use light, fast weapons, such as rapiers, longswords, and short swords.

Red Cloak Student [Lesser Style]

Prerequisite: Fighter or rogue; proficiency with longsword, rapier, or short sword

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Acrobatics checks.

Benefit: When you are attacking with a longsword, a rapier, or a short sword and you have proficiency with that weapon, you also gain the following benefit.

When you use a power associated with this feat to attack an enemy granting combat advantage to you, you gain a +1 bonus to AC and Reflex until the start of your next turn.

Associated At-Will Powers: footwork lure (fighter MP), riposte strike (rogue PH)

Deflecting Hand Style

This approach to fencing evolved in occupied territories where Nerath suppressed both the private ownership of weapons and the pursuit of blood feuds. When the empire fell, these factors contributed to a culture of duels that drew on the techniques of unarmed fighting developed during the oppression.

Alternative to Red Cloak

Red Cloak Rake [Greater Style]

Prerequisite: Rogue, Red Cloak Student feat

Benefit: When you are attacking with a longsword, a rapier, or a short sword and you have proficiency with that weapon, you gain the following two benefits.

When you score a critical hit against an enemy, that enemy grants combat advantage to you until the end of your next turn.

You can use a power associated with this feat in place of a melee basic attack when making an opportunity attack.

*Only when used as a melee attack

Red Cloak Tough [Greater Style]

Prerequisite: Fighter, Red Cloak Student feat

Benefit: When you are attacking with a longsword, a rapier, or a short sword and you have proficiency with that weapon, you gain the following two benefits.

When you score a critical hit against an enemy, you mark each enemy adjacent to that enemy. The mark lasts until the end of your next turn.

You can use a power associated with this feat in place of a melee basic attack when making an opportunity attack.

| Level | Associated Encounter Power | Source |
|---|---|---|
| 3rd | Armor-piercing thrust | PH 79 |
| 7th | Reckless strike | PH 80 |

| 27th | Indomitable battle strike | PH 86 |

Rending Chains Style

Any flail

Masters of the Rending Chains fighting style first appeared in Zoronor, a sinister city on the borders of the warlike plane of Chernoggar. The bladeling warriors there have acquired a reputation for cruelty, because they kill their foes in excruciating ways. Gladiators and pit fighters in dismal, violent cities throughout the Astral Sea and the mortal world have since copied this style. Favoring spiked chains and flails, a Rending Chains practitioner wraps his or her weapon around an enemy and then pulls the chain free to send the enemy reeling.

Rending Chains Student [Lesser Style]

Prerequisite: Fighter, ranger, or warlord; proficiency with any flail

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Intimidate checks.

When you are attacking with a flail and you have proficiency with that weapon, you also gain the following benefit.

Whenever you hit an enemy with a power associated with this feat, you slide that enemy 1 square to a square adjacent to you.

Associated At-Will Powers: hit and run (ranger PH), reaping strike (fighter PH), viper's strike (warlord PH)

Rending Chains Grappler [Greater Style]

Prerequisite: Fighter, Rending Chains Student feat

Benefit: When you are attacking with a flail and you have proficiency with that weapon, you gain the following two benefits.

Whenever you hit an enemy with a martial power, it takes damage equal to your Dexterity modifier if it shifts before the end of your next turn.

When you hit an enemy with a power associated with this feat, that enemy is slowed until the end of your next turn.

| 23rd | Wounding focus | MP 115 |
| 27th | Warlord's doom | PH 152 |

Silent Shot Style

Shortbow or any crossbow

Although the best archers scoff at crossbows and shortbows, the Silent Shot style demonstrates that these weapons can be potent in the right hands. Focusing on speed and accuracy, masters of this fighting style snap off quick shots and then speed away before foes can find the source of the attack. The style depends on positioning and subtlety, so it appeals to those who have a talent for stealth.

Silent Shot Student [Lesser Style]

Prerequisite: Ranger or rogue; proficiency with shortbow or any crossbow

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Stealth checks.

When you are attacking with a shortbow or a crossbow and you have proficiency with that weapon, you also gain the following benefit.

Whenever you use a power associated with this feat and hit a creature you are hidden from, you deal extra damage equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Passageway Ghost Style

The halfling servants in Merrendral's Hall were forced to hide their comings and goings from their elf rulers. Their lowly status proved to be their salvation when the hall was captured. Accustomed to stealth, the halflings raided the armory and hid loaded crossbows behind the castle's secret doors. By attacking the invaders from these cavities, they were able to eventually drive away the interlopers. The halflings' unseen style of attack established the legend of a haunted hall, which kept them safe for generations.

Alternative to Silent Shot

Associated At-Will Powers: careful attack (ranger PH), gloaming cut (rogue MP2)

Silent Shot Hunter [Greater Style]

Prerequisite: Ranger, Silent Shot Student feat

Benefit: When you are attacking with a shortbow or a crossbow and you have proficiency with that weapon, you gain the following two benefits.

Whenever you hit an enemy with a martial power, that enemy takes a –2 penalty to Perception checks until the end of your next turn.

When you attack with a power associated with this feat, you can shift 2 squares before the attack as a free action.

| 23rd | Blindside* | MP 84 |
| 27th | Perfect strike* | PH 126 |

*Only when used as a ranged attack

Steel Vanguard Style

Any two-handed heavy blade

An elite mercenary company, the Steel Vanguard sells its services to anyone who can pay. The fighting style from which the mercenaries take their name is far older than the company, but Steel Vanguard warriors are its most renowned masters. Using long-bladed weapons, a warrior trained in this style can hew several enemies at once, sweeping the great blade around to lop off limbs and heads.

Steel Vanguard Student [Lesser Style]

Prerequisite: Fighter or warlord; proficiency with any two-handed heavy blade

Benefit: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Athletics checks.

When you are attacking with a two-handed heavy blade and you have proficiency with that weapon, you also gain the following benefit.

When attacking with a power associated with this feat, you can score a critical hit on a roll of 19–20.

Associated At-Will Powers: cleave (fighter PH), viper's strike (warlord PH)

Steel Vanguard Soldier [Greater Style]

Prerequisite: Fighter, Steel Vanguard Student feat

Benefit: When you are attacking with a two-handed heavy blade and you have proficiency with that weapon, you gain the following benefit.

When attacking with a power associated with this feat, you can score a critical hit on a roll of 19–20.

NEW FEATS

Feats provide you with hundreds of options for customizing your character, allowing you to build almost any martial hero you can imagine.

You must meet a feat's prerequisites, if any, to select the feat. If you ever lose a prerequisite for a feat (for example, you use the retraining rules to replace training in a required skill with training in a different skill), you can't use that feat until you meet the prerequisites again. A feat that has a class as a prerequisite is available either to characters of that class or to characters who have chosen a multiclass feat associated with that class.

Heroic Tier Feats

Feats in this section are available to characters of any level who meet the prerequisites.

Action Rush

Prerequisite: Human, ranger or rogue

Benefit: When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you can shift 2 squares as a free action before or after the extra action.

Agile Running Attack

Prerequisite: Ranger, Running Attack class feature

Benefit: When you move as part of using a ranger attack power, you ignore difficult terrain.

Agile Stand

Prerequisite: Ranger or rogue

Benefit: Whenever you use a move action to stand up, you can also shift 1 square.

Ambush Tactics

Prerequisite: Any martial class

Benefit: The first enemy you damage during the first round of an encounter takes 1d6 extra damage if it has not yet acted.

Archer Captain

Prerequisite: Warlord, Archer Warlord class feature

Benefit: You and any ally within 5 squares of you ignore the penalty for attacking at long range.

Armored Endurance Training

Prerequisite: Any martial class

Benefit: You don't take an armor check penalty to your Strength- or Constitution-based skill checks.

Armored Swiftness Training

Prerequisite: Any martial class

Benefit: You don't take an armor check penalty to your Dexterity-based skill checks.

Armored Warlord

Prerequisite: Warlord, Battlefront Leader class feature

Benefit: You gain proficiency with scale armor, and you increase your number of healing surges by one.

Barreling Charge

Prerequisite: Any martial class

Benefit: When you charge with a reach weapon, you can end your charge in the nearest square adjacent to the target of the charge.

Blood Quarry

Prerequisite: Tiefling, ranger, Hunter's Quarry class feature

Benefit: The bonus to attack rolls from your Bloodhunt racial trait increases to +2 against a creature designated as your quarry.

Brawler Guard

Prerequisite: Fighter, Brawler Style class feature

Benefit: You gain a +1 shield bonus to AC and Reflex while you wield a weapon in one hand and your other hand is free.

Brutal Brawler

Prerequisite: Fighter, Brawler Style class feature

Benefit: The damage die of your unarmed attacks increases to 1d6. Your damage die for spiked gauntlets (Adventurer's Vault, page 9) increases to 1d8.

NONCOMBAT FEATS

When selecting feats, it's tempting to focus your choices solely on options that enhance or improve your combat capabilities. Battle is a large part of the Dungeons & Dragons game, but it's not the only part. In addition to delving into dungeons, you might find yourself drawn into mysteries, negotiations, exploration, and more—challenges in which combat either is not an option or is not the best one. Remember, over thirty levels, you'll pick up at least eighteen feats (more depending on race and class), so investing a feat or two in unconventional areas can go a long way toward making a more interesting and well-rounded character. Skill Training lets you contribute to more types of checks in skill challenges, and Skill Focus makes you the authority in a specific area. Linguist broadens your options to interact with monsters, and perhaps enables you to circumvent unnecessary combat. Ritual Caster alows you to contribute to the party's needs beyond firing arrows and swinging swords.

HEROIC TIER FEATS

| Any Martial Class | Other Prerequisites | Benefit |
|---|---|---|
| Ambush Tactics | — | 1d6 extra damage against enemy that has not yet acted |
| Armored Endurance Training | — | No armor penalty to Strength and Constitution skills |
| Armored Swiftness Training | — | No armor penalty to Dexterity skills |
| Barreling Charge | — | Charge to adjacent square with reach weapon |
| Crushing Mace | — | +2 damage with basic attacks using mace |
| Dragonborn Channeling | Dragonborn | Expend dragon breath for extra damage on a hit |
| Draw First Blood | — | Undamaged enemy takes extra damage |
| Formation Fighting | — | Bonus to opportunity attacks when allies near an enemy |
| Gnome Weapon Training | Gnome | Proficiency and damage bonus with hammers and picks |
| Infernal Might | Tiefling | Extra damage with infernal wrath |
| Martial Adaptation | — | Swap daily power after extended rest |
| Martial Dilettante | Half-elf | Use Dilettante power twice per encounter |
| Martial Flexibility | — | Swap martial utility power after extended rest |
| Martial Ploy | — | Ally rolls twice on attack if you use aid another |
| Martial Readiness | — | Swap martial at-will attack power after extended rest |
| Martial Versatility | — | Swap martial encounter attack power after extended rest |
| Nimble Dodge | Halfling | Second chance gives -5 penalty and enemy can't crit |
| Overrun Critical | — | Critical hit on charge pushes enemy and knocks it prone |
| Practiced Prodigy | Practiced Study | Learn two martial practices, add more as you gain levels |
| Practiced Study | — | Learn and use martial practices |

Changeling's Mark

Prerequisite: Changeling, fighter

Benefit: You can expend your changeling trick racial power to mark each enemy adjacent to you until the end of your next turn. This effect replaces the power's normal effect.

Constricting Serpent

Prerequisite: Ranger, Beast Mastery class feature (serpent)

Benefit: Your beast companion gains a +2 bonus to saving throws.

While your beast companion acts independently, it need not move adjacent to you but must remain within 10 squares of you.

In addition, if it hits a creature with a melee basic attack, that creature is also immobilized until the end of the creature's next turn.

Beast Companion Feats

The heroic tier feats in this book that have the Beast Mastery class feature as a prerequisite allow your beast companion to contribute to the fight when you have been knocked unconscious or your beast companion becomes involved in a fight that you can't join. Although your beast companion can't provide the kind of support you would in combat, your party members will appreciate the extra help.

Crushing Mace

Prerequisite: Any martial class

Benefit: You gain a +2 bonus to damage rolls with melee basic attacks that use a mace.

Darkfire Strike

Prerequisite: Drow, fighter

Benefit: When you hit a creature marked by you with a melee attack, you can use your darkfire against that creature as a free action. Using darkfire in this way doesn't provoke opportunity attacks.

Deadeye Slinger

Prerequisite: Rogue

Benefit: You treat slings as having a +3 proficiency bonus and the high crit weapon property.

Defensive Throw

Prerequisite: Ranger, Marauder Fighting Style class feature

Benefit: Whenever you make a melee attack, your ranged attacks with thrown weapons don't provoke opportunity attacks until the start of your next turn.

Directing Inspiration

Prerequisite: Warlord, inspiring word power

Benefit: When you use inspiring word, the target gains either a +1 bonus to attack rolls with ranged or area attacks or a +1 bonus to all defenses against ranged or area attacks. The bonus lasts until the end of your next turn.

HEROIC TIER FEATS CONT.

Gnome Weapon Training

Prerequisite: Gnome, any martial class

Benefit: You gain proficiency with simple and military hammers and picks and gain a +2 feat bonus to damage rolls with such weapons. This bonus increases to +3 at 11th level and +4 at 21st level.

Goliath Crusher

Prerequisite: Goliath, fighter

Benefit: Whenever you use a mace to attack a creature marked by you, you treat the mace as having the high crit property.

Goring Boar

Prerequisite: Ranger, Beast Mastery class feature (boar)

Benefit: Your beast companion gains a +2 bonus to saving throws.

While your beast companion acts independently, it need not move adjacent to you but must remain within 10 squares of you.

In addition, if it hits a creature with a charge attack, that creature is also pushed 2 squares away from the beast.

Guide the Shot

Prerequisite: Warlord

Benefit: Whenever you grant an ally a ranged basic attack, that ally's attack ignores cover and concealment (but not superior cover or total concealment).

Guiding Step

Prerequisite: Elf, warlord

Benefit: Whenever you use a power that lets your allies shift, they ignore difficult terrain during the shift.

Harrying Raptor

Prerequisite: Ranger, Beast Mastery class feature (raptor)

Benefit: Your beast companion gains a +2 bonus to saving throws.

While your beast companion acts independently, it need not move adjacent to you but must remain within 10 squares of you.

In addition, if it hits a creature with a melee basic attack, that creature grants combat advantage until the end of your next turn.

Hidden Pulse

Prerequisite: Genasi, rogue, firepulse, Sneak Attack class feature

Benefit: If you have combat advantage against the target of your firepulse racial power, you can deal your Sneak Attack damage to the target. This use doesn't count toward your use of Sneak Attack for this round.

Hip Throw

Prerequisite: Fighter, Brawler Style class feature

Benefit: Whenever you score a critical hit with a grab attack or a martial power that allows you to grab a creature, you also knock that creature prone.

Hobbling Strike

Prerequisite: Ranger, Hunter's Quarry class feature

Benefit: Whenever you would deal Hunter's Quarry damage, you can forgo one die of that damage to slow the target until the end of your next turn.

Improved Cunning Sneak

Prerequisite: Rogue, Cunning Sneak class feature

Benefit: When you make a Stealth check to become hidden using your Cunning Sneak class feature, you must end a move action at least 2 squares away from your starting position instead of 3.

Improved Insight

Prerequisite: Warlord, Insightful Presence class feature

Benefit: When an ally benefits from your Insightful Presence class feature, that ally can forgo the normal bonus to all defenses to instead gain a bonus to a single defense equal to your Charisma or Wisdom modifier until the end of your next turn.

Improved Skirmishing

Prerequisite: Warlord, Skirmishing Presence class feature

Benefit: When an ally who can see you spends an action point to attack, that ally gains a +1 bonus to attack rolls for that attack.

Inescapable Hold

Prerequisite: Fighter, Brawler Style class feature

Benefit: Whenever an enemy grabbed by you attempts to escape your grab, it must make its escape check against your Fortitude even if it uses Acrobatics.

Infernal Might

Prerequisite: Tiefling, any martial class

Benefit: When you use your infernal wrath racial power, if your next attack is a martial weapon power, it deals 1[W] extra damage. This extra damage increases to 2[W] at 11th level and 3[W] at 21st level.

Inspirational Attacker

Prerequisite: Warlord, inspiring word power

Benefit: The target of your inspiring word regains additional hit points equal to your Strength modifier if it is adjacent to an enemy you have hit during this turn.

Inspiring Breath

Prerequisite: Dragonborn, warlord

Benefit: When you hit an enemy using your dragon breath racial power, your allies gain a +5 bonus to damage rolls against that enemy until the end of your next turn.

Lend Strength

Prerequisite: Warlord

Benefit: Whenever you grant an ally a basic attack against an enemy that is adjacent to you, the ally gains a +2 bonus to the attack's damage roll.

Lethal Hammer Training

Prerequisite: Dwarf, rogue

Benefit: You can use a warhammer or a throwing hammer with Sneak Attack or any rogue power that normally requires a light blade.

Longtooth Fury

Prerequisite: Longtooth shifter, fighter

Benefit: While you are under the effect of your longtooth shifting racial power, you gain a +4 bonus to damage rolls against creatures marked by you instead of +2.

Manticore's Fury

Prerequisite: Ranger

Benefit: When you hit an enemy with a melee attack, you gain a +2 bonus to the damage roll of the next ranged attack you make against that enemy before the end of your next turn. When you hit an enemy with a ranged attack, you gain a +2 bonus to the damage roll of the next melee attack you make against that enemy before the end of your next turn. This bonus increases to +4 at 11th level and +6 at 21st level.

Marked Fury

Prerequisite: Fighter

Benefit: If an adjacent enemy that is marked by you makes an attack that doesn't include you as a target, it takes a penalty to the attack roll equal to either –2 or the number of enemies adjacent to you, whichever is worse. This penalty replaces the normal penalty for having a creature marked.

Martial Adaptation

Prerequisite: Any martial class

Benefit: When you take this feat, choose one martial daily attack power of your level or lower from your class. After an extended rest, you can swap the chosen power for a martial daily attack power you know of the same level. You can substitute the original power back in after another extended rest.

Martial Dilettante

Prerequisite: Half-elf, any martial class

Benefit: If the power you gained from your Dilettante racial trait is a martial power, you can use it twice per encounter.

Martial Flexibility

Prerequisite: Any martial class

Benefit: When you take this feat, choose one martial utility power of your level or lower from your class. After an extended rest, you can swap the chosen power for a martial utility power you know of the same level. You can substitute the original power back in after another extended rest.

Martial Ploy

Prerequisite: Any martial class

Benefit: When you use aid another on an ally's weapon attack roll, the ally can roll twice and use either result. This effect replaces the normal +2 bonus to the attack roll. An ally can benefit from this feat only once per attack.

Martial Readiness

Prerequisite: Any martial class

Benefit: When you take this feat, choose one martial at-will attack power of your level or lower from your class. After an extended rest, you can swap the chosen power for a martial at-will attack power you know of the same level. You can substitute the original power back in after another extended rest.

Martial Versatility

ADAM GILLESPIE

Mauling Bear

Prerequisite: Ranger, Beast Mastery class feature (bear)

Benefit: Your beast companion gains a +2 bonus to saving throws.

While your beast companion acts independently, it need not move adjacent to you but must remain within 10 squares of you.

In addition, if it hits a creature with a melee basic attack, it also grabs that creature.

Memory of a Thousand Battles

Prerequisite: Deva, fighter

Benefit: When you miss every target with a reliable fighter power, you can expend your memory of a thousand lifetimes racial power to reroll every attack roll.

Menacing Thug
Prerequisite: Half-orc, rogue
Benefit: Whenever you use your furious assault racial power, the enemy you hit grants combat advantage to you until the end of your next turn.

Nimble Dodge
Prerequisite: Halfling, any martial class
Benefit: When you make an enemy reroll an attack roll using your second chance racial power, the enemy takes a –5 penalty to the second attack roll and can't score a critical hit on that roll.

Opportunity Knocks
Prerequisite: Rogue
Benefit: Whenever you hit with an opportunity attack, or when an enemy misses you with an opportunity attack, the enemy you hit or the enemy that missed you grants combat advantage to you until the end of your next turn.

Overrun Critical
Prerequisite: Any martial class
Benefit: Whenever you score a critical hit against an enemy with a charge attack, you can push that enemy 1 square and knock it prone.

Pouncing Cat
Prerequisite: Ranger, Beast Mastery class feature (cat)
Benefit: Your beast companion gains a +2 bonus to saving throws.
While your beast companion acts independently, it need not move adjacent to you but must remain within 10 squares of you.
In addition, if it hits a creature with a charge attack, it can make an additional melee basic attack against that creature as a free action.

Practiced Prodigy
Prerequisite: Practiced Study feat
Benefit: You acquire two martial practices of your level or lower. Increase the number of practices acquired to three at 5th level, four at 11th level, five at 15th level, six at 21st level, and seven at 25th level.

Practiced Study
Prerequisite: Any martial class
Benefit: You can master and perform martial practices (page 147). You acquire one martial practice of your level or lower.

Precision Throw
Prerequisite: Any martial class
Benefit: Whenever you make a ranged basic attack using a thrown weapon with which you have proficiency, you can use Dexterity instead of Strength for the attack roll and the damage roll.

Razorclaw Mark
Prerequisite: Razorclaw shifter, fighter
Benefit: While you are under the effect of your razorclaw shifting racial power, any creature marked by you takes a –3 penalty to attack rolls for making an attack that does not include you as a target. This penalty replaces the normal penalty for having a creature marked.

Redoubled Efforts
Prerequisite: Any martial class
Benefit: When you use your second wind, you can forgo the bonus to defenses to gain a +2 bonus to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

Resilience of Stone
Prerequisite: Dwarf, any martial class
Benefit: You can use your second wind as an immediate interrupt when you are damaged by an attack.

Risky Shift
Prerequisite: Rogue

Rumbling Earthshock
Prerequisite: Genasi, any martial class, earthshock
Benefit: Your earthshock racial power deals extra damage equal to your Strength modifier.

Savage Wolf
Prerequisite: Ranger, Beast Mastery class feature (wolf)
Benefit: Your beast companion gains a +2 bonus to saving throws.
While your beast companion acts independently, it need not move adjacent to you but must remain within 10 squares of you.
In addition, if it hits a creature with a melee basic attack, it knocks that creature prone.

Second Shot
Prerequisite: Ranger, Hunter's Quarry class feature
Benefit: You can designate the second-nearest enemy as your quarry instead of the nearest enemy.

Shared Memories
Prerequisite: Deva, warlord
Benefit: Whenever an ally adjacent to you makes an attack roll, a saving throw, or skill check, you can expend your memory of a thousand lifetimes racial power as a free action to add 1d6 to the roll.

Shifting Companion
Prerequisite: Shifter, ranger, Beast Mastery class feature
Benefit: Your beast companion also benefits from your longtooth shifting racial power or your razorclaw shifting racial power.

Snapping Lizard
Prerequisite: Ranger, Beast Mastery class feature (lizard)
Benefit: Your beast companion gains a +2 bonus to saving throws.
While your beast companion acts independently, it need not move adjacent to you but must remain within 10 squares of you.
In addition, if it hits a creature with a melee basic attack, that creature takes 5 damage if it moves away from the beast companion before the end of the creature's next turn.

Speed of Sea and Sky
Prerequisite: Genasi, warlord, swiftcurrent or windwalker
Benefit: When you use your swiftcurrent or windwalker racial power, each ally within 5 squares of you gains a +2 bonus to speed until the end of your next turn.

Staggering Strike
Prerequisite: Ranger, Hunter's Quarry class feature
Benefit: Whenever you would deal Hunter's Quarry damage to an enemy, you can forgo one die of that damage to push that enemy 1 square.

Startling Distraction
Prerequisite: Rogue, ghost sound power
Benefit: When you use ghost sound during your turn, you can roll twice on Stealth checks you make before the end of your turn and use the higher result.

Swift Footwork
Prerequisite: Ranger or rogue
Benefit: Whenever you use a martial encounter or daily power that allows you to shift, you can shift 2 extra squares.

Telepathic Mark
Prerequisite: Kalashtar, fighter
Benefit: Whenever you score a critical hit with a fighter attack power, you can mark each enemy within the range of your telepathy. The mark lasts until the end of your next turn.

Treetop Sniper
Prerequisite: Elf, rogue
Benefit: You can use any bow with Sneak Attack or any rogue power that normally requires a crossbow.

Trickster's Mark
Prerequisite: Gnome, fighter
Benefit: As a minor action, you can expend the use of ghost sound granted by your Master Trickster racial trait to mark one enemy within 10 squares of you until the end of your next turn. This use of ghost sound does not provoke opportunity attacks.

Twilight Training
Prerequisite: Human, ranger
Benefit: You gain low-light vision.

Superior Feat Selection

With the variety of feats available to martial characters, it can be hard to decide which feat to select. Retraining helps take the sting out of a feat choice that doesn't pay off in the end, letting you replace a previously selected feat for a different or more useful one as your character develops. However, even with retraining, an unfortunate feat choice lingers for at least one level. To improve your feat choices, keep the following points in mind when making a selection.

Style: You might be a fighter, but what kind of fighter are you? Are you the first into battle, smashing through enemies with a craghammer, or are you a defensive fighter, locking down enemies and sheltering allies with your shield? Before picking your feat, keep in mind your character's style. If you're defensive-minded, Power Attack might not be the feat for you, and you might do better with Defensive Resilience from Martial Power instead.

Race: Your race grants access to feats that reinforce your racial abilities or reflect your race's cultural idiosyncrasies. These feats can help make your character stand out, and might even reveal a style that you previously overlooked. Furthermore, these feats can encourage or reinforce multiclass options, helping you combine classes in exciting and interesting ways.

Weapon: Another easy way to help determine your feats is to look at your weapon choice. The combat style feats presented in this book enhance certain powers when used in combination with specific weapons. Other feats are keyed to the use of particular weapons or types of weapons, such as Reaping Blade from Martial Power, Brutal Bludgeon in this book, and Spear Push from the Player's Handbook.

Sneaky Gnome
Prerequisite: 11th level, gnome, rogue, Sneak Attack class feature
Benefit: Once per encounter when you attack and deal Sneak Attack damage to a creature while you are invisible, the invisibility does not end as a result of the attack.

Sneaky Opportunity
Prerequisite: 11th level, rogue
Benefit: Your opportunity attacks with light blades deal 1d6 extra damage. This extra damage increases to 2d6 at 21st level.

Striking Resurgence
Prerequisite: 11th level, fighter
Benefit: When you use second wind as a standard action, you can forgo the bonus to defenses to make a melee basic attack as a free action.

Tactical Superiority
Prerequisite: 11th level, fighter, Combat Superiority class feature
Benefit: Whenever you hit an enemy marked by you with an opportunity attack, that enemy is slowed until the end of your next turn.

Unerring Ambush
Prerequisite: 11th level, rogue, First Strike class feature
Benefit: During the first round of combat, when you attack a creature that has not yet acted, you can make two attack rolls and use either result.

Wicked Blade

Prerequisite: 11th level, any martial class

Benefit: Whenever you use a heavy blade to make a melee basic attack, you treat the weapon as having the high crit property.

Epic Tier Feats

A character must be at least 21st level to select any of the feats in this section.

Allied Opportunity

Prerequisite: 21st level, fighter, Combat Challenge class feature

Benefit: Whenever you attack a creature because of Combat Challenge, one ally adjacent to that creature can make a melee basic attack against it as an opportunity action.

Driven Leadership

Prerequisite: 21st level, warlord

Benefit: While you are conscious, bloodied allies you can see gain a +1 bonus to speed.

Dual Challenge

Prerequisite: 21st level, fighter, Combat Challenge class feature

Benefit: Whenever you mark an enemy with Combat Challenge, you can mark one additional enemy adjacent to that enemy. This mark lasts until the end of your next turn.

Enabling Shot

Prerequisite: 21st level, warlord

Benefit: Whenever you score a critical hit against an enemy on a ranged attack, one ally can make a melee basic attack against that enemy as a free action.

Expert Skirmisher

Prerequisite: 21st level, ranger, Running Attack class feature

Benefit: Your bonus to attack rolls from Running Attack is +2 instead of +1.

Fate Favors the Bold

Prerequisite: 21st level, warlord, Bravura Presence class feature

Benefit: Whenever an ally makes a basic attack granted by your Bravura Presence, the ally gains a bonus to the damage roll equal to your Charisma modifier.

Whenever an ally takes a move action granted by your Bravura Presence, the ally gains a bonus to speed during that move equal to your Charisma modifier.

Heartening Exploit

Prerequisite: 21st level, warlord

Benefit: Choose a warlord encounter attack power that you know. When you hit a creature with the chosen power, any ally who hits that creature before the end of your next turn gains temporary hit points equal to one-half your level.

Special: Each time you gain a level, you can choose a different warlord encounter attack power to gain this feat's benefit instead of the power currently benefiting from it.

Learn by Doing

Prerequisite: 21st level, warlord

Benefit: When you use a warlord power to grant an ally a basic attack and that attack misses a creature, the ally gains a +2 bonus to his or her next attack roll against that creature before the end of his or her next turn.

Lingering Illusion

Prerequisite: 21st level, gnome, rogue, Sneak Attack class feature

Benefit: You gain concealment until the end of the encounter against any enemy you deal Sneak Attack damage to while you are invisible.

Marked Takedown

Prerequisite: 21st level, fighter, Brawler Style class feature

Benefit: Whenever your melee attack hits an enemy marked by you that is dazed, immobilized, or stunned, you knock that enemy prone.

Overwhelming Impact

Prerequisite: 21st level, fighter

Benefit: Whenever you use a hammer to hit an enemy with a melee attack, and that attack would slow the enemy, you can instead daze the enemy for the same duration.

Perceptive Leadership

Prerequisite: 21st level, warlord

Benefit: While you are conscious, bloodied allies you can see do not grant combat advantage from being flanked.

Reliable Action

Prerequisite: 21st level, warlord

Benefit: When an ally you can see spends an action point to use an encounter attack power that misses every target, that power is not expended.

Resilient Beast

Prerequisite: 21st level, ranger, Beast Mastery class feature

Benefit: Your beast companion gains a +2 feat bonus to all defenses.

EPIC TIER FEATS

| Fighter Feat | Other Prerequisites | Benefit |
|---|---|---|
| Allied Opportunity | Combat Challenge | Ally also attacks when you use Combat Challenge |
| Dual Challenge | Combat Challenge | Mark extra creature with Combat Challenge |
| Marked Takedown | Brawler Style | Knock prone marked enemies that are dazed, immobilized, or stunned |
| Overwhelming Impact | — | Daze instead of slow enemy when using hammer |
| Slashing Storm | — | After you hit, adjacent enemies take damage |

| Ranger Feat | Other Prerequisites | Benefit |
|---|---|---|
| Expert Skirmisher | Running Attack | +2 to attack rolls from Running Attack |
| Resilient Beast | Beast Mastery | +2 to all beast companion's defenses |
| Slashing Storm | — | After you hit, adjacent enemies take damage |

| Rogue Feat | Other Prerequisites | Benefit |
|---|---|---|
| Lingering Illusion | Gnome, Sneak Attack | Gain concealment if you Sneak Attack while invisible |
| Shadow Eyes | — | Ignore concealment; take -2 penalty from total concealment |
| Spirit Breaker | — | Creature you hit that is affected by a rattling power grants combat advantage |
| Versatile Rogue | Human | Gain another Rogue Tactics option |

| Warlord Feat | Other Prerequisites | Benefit |
|---|---|---|
| Driven Leadership | — | Bloodied allies gain +1 speed |
| Enabling Shot | — | Grant melee basic attack when you crit with ranged attack |
| Fate Favors the Bold | Bravura Presence | Increase damage and speed with Bravura Presence |
| Heartening Exploit | — | Allies gain temporary hit points when they hit target of chosen power |
| Learn by Doing | — | When granted attack misses, ally gains +2 to next attack |
| Perceptive Leadership | — | Bloodied allies don't grant combat advantage when flanked |
| Reliable Action | — | When using an action point, ally doesn't expend power that missed |
| Shared Resources | Inspiring word | Inspiring word also gives allies temporary hit points |
| Shift the Field | Battlefront Leader | Battlefront shift affects wider area and all allies in area |

Shadow Eyes

Prerequisite: 21st level, rogue

Benefit: Your attacks ignore concealment (but not total concealment). When attacking a creature that has total concealment, you take only a -2 penalty to your attack roll for the total concealment.

Shared Resources

Prerequisite: 21st level, warlord, inspiring word

Benefit: When you use inspiring word, each ally in the burst also gains temporary hit points equal to 3 + your Intelligence modifier.

Shift the Field

Prerequisite: 21st level, warlord, Battlefront Leader class feature

Benefit: Your battlefield shift power becomes a close burst 5 and targets you and each ally in the burst.

Slashing Storm

Prerequisite: 21st level, fighter or ranger

Benefit: Any enemy that starts its turn adjacent to you takes damage equal to your Wisdom modifier if you hit a creature during your last turn with a melee attack.

Spirit Breaker

Prerequisite: 21st level, rogue

Benefit: Whenever you hit a creature that is taking a penalty from the rattling keyword, the creature grants combat advantage until the end of your next turn.

Versatile Rogue

Prerequisite: 21st level, human, rogue

Benefit: You gain one additional option from Rogue Tactics.

Multiclass Feats

The following feats allow multiclass characters to sample the features and benefits gained from playing martial characters.

Agile Brawler [Multiclass Fighter]

Prerequisite: Any multiclass fighter feat, paragon multiclassing as a fighter

Benefit: You gain the fighter class feature Combat Agility (page 6).

MULTICLASS FEATS

| Name | Other Prerequisites | Benefit |
|---|---|---|
| Agile Brawler | Any multiclass fighter feat, paragon multiclassing as a fighter | Fighter: Combat Agility |
| Bravura Leader | Str 13 or Cha 13 | Warlord: training in one class skill, ally gains bonus to damage with action point |
| Brawling Warrior | Str 13 or Wis 13 | Fighter: training in one class skill, +1 attack or AC once per encounter |
| Cyclone Warrior | Str 13 or Dex 13 | Fighter: training in one class skill, +1 damage once per encounter |
| Insightful Leader | Str 13 or Wis 13 | Warlord: training in one class skill, ally gains +1 defenses with action point |
| Resourceful Leader | Int 13 or Cha 13 | Warlord: training in one class skill, ally gains benefit with action point |
| Skirmishing Leader | Str 13 or Int 13 | Warlord: training in one class skill, ally can shift with action point |
| Twilight Adept | Dex 13 or Int 13 | Rogue: training in Stealth, Cunning Sneak 1/encounter |
| Wrathful Warrior | Str 13 or Con 13 | Fighter: training in one class skill, temporary hp when hit 1/encounter |

Bravura Leader [Multiclass Warlord]

Prerequisite: Str 13 or Cha 13

Benefit: You gain training in one skill from the warlord's class skills list.

When an ally you can see spends an action point to attack, that ally can choose to gain a +4 bonus to the attack's damage roll. If the ally chooses to use the bonus, he or she grants combat advantage to the target of the attack until the end of his or her next turn. This bonus increases to +6 at 11th level and +8 at 21st level.

Brawling Warrior [Multiclass Fighter]

Prerequisite: Str 13 or Wis 13

Benefit: You gain training in one skill from the fighter's class skills list.

Once per encounter while you wield a weapon in one hand and have nothing in your other hand, you can use a free action during your turn to gain a +1 bonus to an attack roll you just made or a +1 bonus to AC until the start of your next turn.

Cyclone Warrior [Multiclass Fighter]

Prerequisite: Str 13 or Dex 13

Benefit: You gain training in one skill from the fighter's class skills list.

Once per encounter as a free action during your turn, while you are wearing light armor or chainmail and wielding a weapon in each hand, you can gain a +1 bonus to damage rolls with melee or close attacks until the end of your turn. This bonus increases to +2 at 11th level and +3 at 21st level.

Insightful Leader [Multiclass Warlord]

Prerequisite: Str 13 or Wis 13

Benefit: You gain training in one skill from the warlord's class skills list.

When an ally you can see spends an action point to take an extra action, that ally gains a +1 bonus to all defenses until the end of his or her next turn.

Resourceful Leader [Multiclass Warlord]

Prerequisite: Int 13 or Cha 13

Benefit: You gain training in one skill from the warlord's class skills list.

When an ally you can see spends an action point to make an attack, the ally gains a +3 bonus to damage rolls on a hit or gains 3 temporary hit points on a miss. This bonus increases to +5 at 11th level and +7 at 21st level. These temporary hit points increase to 5 at 11th level and 7 at 21st level.

Skirmishing Leader [Multiclass Warlord]

Prerequisite: Str 13 or Int 13

Benefit: You gain training in one skill from the warlord's class skills list.

When an ally you can see spends an action point to take an extra action, that ally can shift 1 square as a free action before or after the extra action.

Twilight Adept [Multiclass Rogue]

Prerequisite: Dex 13 or Int 13

Benefit: You gain training in Stealth.

Once per encounter, you can use a free action during your turn to gain the benefit of the rogue class feature Cunning Sneak (page 56) until the end of your turn.

Wrathful Warrior [Multiclass Fighter]

Prerequisite: Str 13 or Con 13

Benefit: You gain training in one skill from the fighter's class skills list.

Once per encounter, when you are hit by a melee attack or a close attack, you gain temporary hit points equal to your Constitution modifier.

MARTIAL PRACTICES

Beyond the exploits for which they're famed, martial heroes can push the bounds of what is possible for ordinary mortals by mastering challenging techniques called martial practices. Using these rare methods, an adventurer can run for days, swim to great depths, and even create magic items. Although martial practices approach what's possible with rituals, they exist wholly in the realm of martial power.

A martial practice is similar to a ritual. To use a martial practice, you must acquire it, master it, and perform it. The component costs sometimes include healing surges. After you finish performing a practice, you gain its benefit.

Acquiring Martial Practices

You can learn the rudiments of martial practices from a master or purchase them on the open market. Unless you find the practice as part of a treasure hoard, you'll pay something for it.

Learn through Training: Any character who has mastered a martial practice can teach it to you. The instructor can be another player character or a nonplayer character you meet. Training is costly and arduous. Usually, you pay the cost in gold or other treasure. Learning a martial practice costs half the market price if you learn it from another player character. In such a case, you are paying for the supplies needed for training, not for your ally's work and time.

Purchase: If you can find a merchant that deals in rare goods, you can pay the market price of a martial practice to acquire it.

Find in Treasure: You might also find martial practices inscribed in ancient manuals hidden away in dusty libraries or haunted castles. Practices contained within these texts offer detailed instructions so that with careful study you can master them. Your DM accounts for the market price of a martial practice you find in the treasure you acquire.

Mastering Martial Practices

You must master a martial practice before you are able to perform it. To master a practice, you must:

- Acquire the martial practice.
- Have the Practiced Study feat.
- Meet or exceed the practice's level requirement.
- Be trained in at least one of the key skills for the practice.
- Study the martial practice for a total of 8 hours.

The studying process differs depending on how you acquired the martial practice. If you acquired it through training, the study period takes place at the same time as acquiring the practice. If you bought or found the practice, the time is spent closely studying the manual and repeating the lessons and steps within the text.

Performing Martial Practices

The steps to perform a martial practice correspond to the headers of the practice's description.

Time: Martial practices take time to perform. You might have to adopt the right physical and mental state, sweat over a forge to craft an item, or painstakingly camouflage your party's campsite.

Component Costs: Martial practices are strenuous. Unlike rituals, which usually require only a monetary component cost, most martial practices require an expenditure of healing surges. This cost reflects the strain on your body and mind.

A few martial practices also require materials to properly perform them. When a practice has a component cost, you must pay the price from your store of treasure, whether you're spending gold, gems, or other valuables. The component cost represents the price of equipment and raw materials.

You pay the component cost, including both the monetary cost and the healing surges, when you complete a practice. If you cannot pay the full cost, the practice has no effect.

Skills: Each practice has one or more key skills, and you must be trained in at least one of these skills to master and perform the practice. Some practices also require skill checks to determine your effort's effectiveness. Usually, the practice succeeds regardless of the check result, and high check results produce the best effects.

Unless a practice says otherwise, you make your skill check at the end of its performance. As with rituals, you cannot take 10 on this check.

Effects of a Martial Practice

After you finish performing a practice, you gain its benefit for the practice's duration. Sometimes the duration is instantaneous: You have learned the information or completed the task. Other times, you gain a benefit for a set amount of time, or you create a permanent object.

Assistance

Typically you must perform a martial practice without help.

Interrupting a Martial Practice
You can stop performing a martial practice at any point before it's completed without expending any healing surges or other component costs. Once you stop, you cannot resume the performance; you must start the entire process over again.

How to Read a Martial Practice

Name and Flavor Text
Under each martial practice's name, a short description covers what the practice does.

Level
This entry gives the minimum level required for a character to master and perform the practice.

Time
Performing a martial practice takes a specific amount of time to complete.

Duration
A martial practice's effects usually last longer than those of a power. This entry tells you how long the practice's effects last.

Component Cost
This entry gives the number of healing surges or the amount of gold (or both) required to perform the practice.

Market Price
This entry describes the cost you pay to purchase a martial practice. This amount also tells a DM the value of a practice if he or she wants to give it out as part of a treasure parcel.

Key Skill
This entry gives the skill you must be trained in to master and perform the practice. If this entry ends with "(no check)," then performing the practice does not require a skill check.

If a practice has more than one key skill, you choose which skill to use.

Effects
The remaining text details the benefit you gain when you finish performing the practice.

Martial Practice Descriptions

The practice descriptions use the words "character" and "creature" interchangeably.

Alter Ego

With a little makeup and a bit of misdirection, you can appear to be anyone.

Level: 8 Market Price: 275 gp
Time: 1 hour Key Skill: Bluff
Duration: 24 hours
Component Cost: 50 gp plus 1 healing surge

You alter your own appearance or the appearance of an ally who is present throughout your performance of the practice. The disguise can alter facial and physical features and appear to modify height and weight by up to 10%. You can also use this martial practice to disguise gender, race, and age.

Make a Bluff check with a +5 bonus. Your result determines the Insight check a creature must make to determine that the person you are disguised as is not who he or she appears to be.

You can use this practice to impersonate another humanoid. When you interact with a creature that is familiar with the person you're imitating, that creature gains a +10 bonus to its Insight check.

Decipher Script

You might not know the language, but with some time and effort, you can decipher the meaning of any writing.

Level: 6 Market Price: 150 gp
Time: 10 minutes Key Skill: History or Streetwise
Duration: Instantaneous
Component Cost: 1 healing surge

You learn the meaning of any written text you study, even if you are not fluent in its language. You must examine the words for the entire time, after which you understand the gist of whatever the text says. You also make a History or Streetwise check, and if your result is 30 or higher, you can read the text as if you were fluent in the language. Each use of this martial practice allows you to examine about one page of writing or an equivalent amount of text.

Embalm

Ancient methods halt decay to preserve a body for a time.

Level: 2 Market Price: 50 gp
Time: 1 hour Key Skill: Heal (no check)
Duration: Special
Component Cost: 20 gp plus 1 healing surge

You use this martial practice on an adjacent corpse. The practice doubles the time a corpse can be dead and still be affected by Raise Dead or a similar ritual.

Feign Death

You slow your breathing and heartbeat so you appear to be dead.

Level: 8 Market Price: 275 gp
Time: 10 minutes Key Skill: Bluff or Endurance
Duration: 24 hours or until dismissed
Component Cost: 1 healing surge

You enter a deep trance that slows your heartbeat and breathing to become almost imperceptible. While in this state, you appear unconscious or dead, but you are aware of your surroundings. You can emerge from the trance as a free action. Other creatures perceive you as dead unless they make a Heal check or Insight check equal to your check result + 10.

Forge Armor

Although your means are mundane, the armor you forge is enchanted through your superior skill.

Level: 4 Market Price: 175 gp
Time: 1 day Key Skill: Athletics (no check)
Duration: Permanent
Component Cost: See below

You construct magic armor. Your level determines the highest enhancement bonus the armor can have (see the table below). You can create only magic armor (Player's Handbook, page 230). Armor you forge with this martial practice can be masterwork (Player's Handbook, page 212), provided the armor meets the minimum enhancement bonus.

The component cost is equal to the price of the magic armor you create.

| Armor Created | Minimum Level | Component Cost |
|---|---|---|
| +1 magic armor | 4th | 360 gp |
| +2 magic armor | 6th | 1,800 gp |
| +3 magic armor | 11th | 9,000 gp |
| +4 magic armor | 16th | 45,000 gp |
| +5 magic armor | 21st | 225,000 gp |
| +6 magic armor | 26th | 1,125,000 gp |

Forge Weapon

Using ancient crafting techniques, you forge a weapon of such artfulness that it becomes enchanted.

Level: 4 Market Price: 175 gp
Time: 1 day Key Skill: Athletics (no check)
Duration: Permanent
Component Cost: See below

You construct a magic weapon. Your level determines the highest enhancement bonus the weapon can have (see the table below). You can create only a magic weapon (Player's Handbook, page 235). You can also make the weapon silvered while you perform this practice by paying the normal price (Player's Handbook, page 220).

The component cost is equal to the price of the magic weapon you create.

| Weapon Created | Minimum Level | Component Cost |
|---|---|---|
| +1 magic weapon | 4th | 360 gp |
| +2 magic weapon | 6th | 1,800 gp |
| +3 magic weapon | 11th | 9,000 gp |
| +4 magic weapon | 16th | 45,000 gp |
| +5 magic weapon | 21st | 225,000 gp |
| +6 magic weapon | 26th | 1,125,000 gp |

Fortify Beast

Your technique ensures that your beast will carry you through difficult situations.

Level: 5 Market Price: 250 gp
Time: 10 minutes Key Skill: Nature (no check)
Duration: Special
Component Cost: 1 healing surge

You prepare up to six natural beasts that have the mount keyword for the hardships ahead. Each beast gains temporary hit points equal to your healing surge value. These temporary hit points last until you take an extended rest.

Handle Steed

Your hands and voice soothe a beast so that it will bear you as a rider.

Level: 8 Market Price: 275 gp
Time: 5 minutes Key Skill: Nature
Duration: See below
Component Cost: 1 healing surge

You convince a nonhostile creature of your level or lower that has the mount keyword to bear you as a rider. If you have the Mounted Combat feat, you are treated as being three levels higher for the purpose of determining what mount benefits you gain from riding the creature. Your Nature check determines the duration for which the creature will bear you and for which you gain this benefit.

| Nature Check Result | Duration |
|---|---|
| 9 or lower | 1 hour |
| 10–14 | 2 hours |
| 15–19 | 4 hours |
| 20–24 | 8 hours |
| 25–29 | 16 hours |
| 30 or higher | 24 hours |

Hidden Pocket

You hide an object on your person, confident that no matter how thoroughly you are searched, it will not be found.

Level: 5 Market Price: 80 gp
Time: 1 minute Key Skill: Thievery
Duration: Until object is retrieved
Component Cost: 1 healing surge

You hide a small object on your person so that it cannot be found. Make a Thievery check with a +10 bonus. Anyone searching you must make a Perception check with a DC equal to your check result to find the item. The DM can modify the DC based on the size of the object.

Long-Distance Runner

You can run without stopping, pushing past your physical limits without risk of harm.

Level: 6 Market Price: 150 gp
Time: 10 minutes Key Skill: Athletics or Endurance
Duration: See below
Component Cost: 1 healing surge

After undergoing vigorous conditioning, you can run for long distances. This martial practice requires 10 minutes of stretching, breathing, and physical preparation. At the end of that time, you make an Athletics check or Endurance check that determines how long you can run before you have to stop. You are considered to be running for the duration.

| Athletics or Endurance Check Result | Duration |
|---|---|
| 9 or lower | 1 hour |
| 10–14 | 2 hours |
| 15–19 | 4 hours |
| 20–24 | 8 hours |
| 25–29 | 16 hours |
| 30 or higher | 24 hours |

Master Artisan

You create useful objects from raw materials.

Level: 1 Market Price: 50 gp
Time: Special Key Skill: Athletics (no check)
Duration: Permanent
Component Cost: Special

You create a nonmagical item, such as a mundane weapon or a suit of mundane armor, or a piece of adventuring gear. This process usually takes at least 1 hour, and certain items might take more or less time at the DM's discretion. The component cost is equal to the item's price.

ARNIE SWEKEL

Peerless Exploration

You set off from your allies to gain a sense of your environs.

Level: 12 Market Price: 1,000 gp
Time: 1 hour Key Skill: Stealth (no check)
Duration: Instantaneous and 24 hours
Component Cost: 1 healing surge

When you are outdoors and aboveground, you can use this martial practice to survey the land around you within a 1-mile radius. At the end of the exploration, you return to the point where you began with knowledge of any bodies of water, suitable campsites, settlements, and ruins, as well as the presence or absence of hostile inhabitants (at the DM's discretion). During your explorations, you are not at risk of triggering encounters unless you choose to be.

In addition, you gain a +5 bonus to Nature checks to forage or you grant a +5 bonus to an ally's next Endurance check made against an environmental danger (Dungeon Master's Guide, page 159) during the next 24 hours.

Precise Forgery

Your falsified papers are resistant to even the closest scrutiny.

Level: 5 Market Price: 80 gp
Time: 10 minutes Key Skill: Thievery
Duration: Permanent
Component Cost: 1 healing surge

You fabricate papers or documents so that you can foist them off as being authentic. You can create forgeries of any kind, including written orders, treasure maps, paintings, manifests, and land grants. Forging a simple document takes 10 minutes. More complex works take as long as the DM decides.

At the end of the performance of the practice, make a Thievery check. Your check result determines the forgery's quality. Anyone examining the document must succeed on a Perception check with a DC equal to your Thievery check result to discern the falsehood. If the forgery contradicts other documents or orders, you might have to make a skill check or engage in a skill challenge to convince another creature that the document is authentic.

Reliable Balance

You can keep yourself stable when moving across any surface.

Level: 5 Market Price: 100 gp
Time: 5 minutes Key Skill: Acrobatics (no check)
Duration: 10 minutes
Component Cost: 1 healing surge

You focus on your center of balance and use techniques to keep your footing. For the practice's duration, you can take 10 on Acrobatics checks.

Speech without Words

No language barrier can keep you from communicating.

Level: 3 Market Price: 50 gp
Time: 5 minutes Key Skill: Diplomacy (no check)
Duration: 10 minutes
Component Cost: 1 healing surge

Through pantomime, you communicate with a nonhostile creature you can see, even if it does not speak your language. The creature must have an Intelligence score higher than 3. You can communicate simple ideas and concepts, such as figuring out where a monster went, where someone might find fresh water, if there's a safe place to camp, and so on. Conveying complex ideas might require a skill challenge, at the DM's discretion.

Survivor's Assurance

You adjust your companions' clothing and gear, and you show them techniques for breathing and marching that will help them bear the harsh conditions ahead.

Level: 17 Market Price: 4,500 gp
Time: 10 minutes Key Skill: Nature
Duration: 24 hours
Component Cost: 1 healing surge

Using the most advanced survival techniques, you prepare yourself and up to ten allies who are present while you perform this practice to endure harsh conditions. For the practice's duration, you and your allies can use the Nature check result you make to perform this practice in place of any Endurance checks against environmental dangers (Dungeon Master's Guide, page 159).

Additionally, for the practice's duration, you and your allies gain a +5 bonus to Endurance checks against starvation and thirst.

Survivor's Preparation

You prepare yourself and your companions for the dangers of cold or heat, adjusting clothing and lightening loads to make the environment more bearable.

Level: 2 Market Price: 100 gp
Time: 10 minutes Key Skill: Nature (no check)
Duration: 24 hours
Component Cost: 1 healing surge

Using survival techniques, you ready yourself and up to six allies present while you perform this practice. For the practice's duration, you and your allies do not need to make Endurance checks for the heat and cold environmental dangers (Dungeon Master's Guide, page 159). A protected creature and its equipment can tolerate temperatures between -20 and 120 degrees Fahrenheit.

Additionally, for the practice's duration, you and your allies gain a +2 bonus to Endurance checks against starvation, thirst, and any environmental dangers that require Endurance checks.

Temporary Fix

A few tools and a bit of time are all you need to make a device work again.

Level: 1 Market Price: 50 gp
Time: 10 minutes Key Skill: Athletics or Thievery (no check)
Duration: 24 hours
Component Cost: 1 healing surge

You repair a single object that can fit within a cube that is 10 feet on each side. The object functions for the practice's duration. After that time, the object returns to its prior state.

Thorough Search

You examine a room with such efficiency that all its secrets are revealed.

Level: 5 Market Price: 75 gp
Time: 1 hour Key Skill: Perception (no check)
Duration: Instantaneous
Component Cost: 1 healing surge

You scour a room for hidden compartments, secret doors, and clues. You gain a +20 bonus to Perception checks you make to search the room. Extremely large areas might require extra uses of this practice.

Tracker's Eye

From a few discrete markings, you learn astonishing information about the creatures you pursue.

Level: 1 Market Price: 50 gp
Time: 10 minutes Key Skill: Nature or Perception
Duration: Instantaneous and special
Component Cost: 1 healing surge

You examine tracks to learn crucial information about your prey. You must study the tracks and their vicinity while you perform the practice. At the end of that time, make a Nature check or a Perception check to determine what you learn. You gain information from your check result and all lower results.

In addition, you gain a +5 bonus to Perception checks to follow the tracks until you take an extended rest.

| Nature or Perception Check Result | Information Learned |
|---|---|
| 9 or lower | The tracks of any natural beasts, their numbers, and travel direction. |
| 10–19 | The tracks of any natural humanoids, their numbers, and travel direction. |
| 20–29 | The tracks of any natural creatures, their numbers, and travel direction. |
| 30–39 | The tracks of any creatures, their numbers, and travel direction. You also discern their pace, such as running, walking, sneaking, and so on. |
| 40 or higher | Whether or not the creature was encumbered, injured, and any other pertinent details related to the creature's movement. |

Travel Sense

You forecast the weather with uncanny accuracy.

Level: 1 Market Price: 50 gp
Time: 10 minutes Key Skill: Nature (no check)
Duration: Instantaneous
Component Cost: 1 healing surge

By examining the sky and the atmospheric conditions, you accurately predict the weather for the next day within a 50-mile radius.

Uncanny Strength

You can dig deep within yourself to find the strength you need.

Level: 5 Market Price: 100 gp
Time: 5 minutes Key Skill: Athletics or Endurance (no check)
Duration: 10 minutes
Component Cost: 1 healing surge

ARNIE SWEKEL

You call upon hidden reserves to gain a boost to your strength. For the duration of this practice, you can take 10 on Athletics checks.

Use Scroll

With a little luck and guesswork, you can unlock the secrets an item holds.

Level: 15 Market Price: 1,000 gp
Time: 1 hour Key Skill: Thievery (no check)
Duration: Special
Component Cost: 1 healing surge

You have picked up a few tricks that let you make use of scrolls, even though you might not have any formal magical training. During the practice's duration, you figure out how to use a ritual scroll in your possession. At the completion of the practice, you perform the ritual on the scroll and can use Thievery in place of any other skill the scroll requires.

Warded Campsite

You arrange tripwires, traps, and other devices so that you and your allies will know when an intruder approaches your campsite.

Level: 3 Market Price: 50 gp
Time: 30 minutes Key Skill: Nature or Thievery (no check)
Duration: 8 hours
Component Cost: 1 healing surge

You ward an area no larger than 10 squares by 10 squares. Whenever a creature enters the area, you and your allies within the area are awakened and cannot be surprised. You can designate any specific creatures that are able to move freely through the warded area without waking up sleeping allies.

Word on the Street

You snoop around, greasing palms and making discreet inquiries to learn the information you seek.

Level: 11 Market Price: 360 gp
Time: 1 hour Key Skill: Streetwise (no check)
Duration: Instantaneous
Component Cost: 50 gp plus 1 healing surge

While you are in a settlement or a community, you can use this martial practice to make a Streetwise check in place of an Arcana, Dungeoneering, History, or Religion check to gain knowledge.

Martial Backgrounds

The following material expands on the background system presented in Player's Handbook 2, with a focus on society and occupation backgrounds. These backgrounds give you a variety of archetypes on which to base your character's personality and motivation. You should select a background that appeals to whatever aesthetic you have in mind for your character, whether it's the quiet, steely warrior who has seen countless battles, the gallant youth who has discovered a talent with the sword through a few local skirmishes with goblins, or any one of a hundred other possibilities.

Like the backgrounds in Player's Handbook 2, the backgrounds in this book fall into specific categories, including martial, occupation, and society.

Martial

Some backgrounds are specifically aimed at martial characters. These backgrounds provide an explanation for how your character developed his or her martial prowess.

Bearer of the Heirloom

You have inherited a martial heirloom that has been passed through the generations. It might be a weapon, a shield, a helmet, a scabbard, a quiver, or any other piece of equipment. You and your family cherish the heirloom for its connection to your heritage. Perhaps the item played a pivotal role in a historic battle or was a beloved possession of a famous ancestor. The heirloom might also be the subject of a legend. Regardless of the item's history, you have acquired it through merit, necessity, or perhaps greed. How does your ownership of the item affect your decisions? How do you feel about being its owner? Do you shrink under the mantle of obligation and responsibility, or do you rise up to earn stewardship of the item?

Associated Skills: History, Intimidate

Disenchanted

You once had an undeniable talent for magic. You took to your arcane lessons and studied carefully, fascinated by magic. Then, pushed to prove your abilities to yourself or your tutor, you tried to use a spell or a ritual that was beyond your skill. The attempt went disastrously wrong, and you invoked a powerful curse that suppressed or abolished your ability to perform even the simplest spell. You became determined to restore your power or find a new kind of prowess, so you resolved to make your way in the world through wit and weapon. You are now a master at what you do, yet you can't help but feel that something is missing.

Associated Skills: Arcana, Endurance

Garrison Child

You are the child of military parents who lived in a garrison. Your parents spent your youth drilling and going on patrol, so you were often unsupervised. You might have passed idle days training with soldiers in the garrison, tending the animals, sharpening weapons, or you could have spent your time running amok. Perhaps you resented your parents and constantly stirred up trouble for them with your shenanigans. Whether forced or out of willingness, though, you learned to wield weapons and defend yourself. Over time, maybe your skill even exceeded that of your parents. When the time came to depart, did you leave the garrison full of resentment, or were you fulfilling a sense of duty or obligation to your parents after they disappeared or met with a grisly end?

Associated Skills: Athletics, History

Guild Orphan

After you were abandoned, members of the thieves' guild took you in. You have a mastery over locks, traps, and mechanical devices that is possible only for one who has grown up with thieves' tools as toys. Your upbringing has left you with a distorted view of society. Unless one member of the thieves' guild took you under his or her wing, you probably suffered cruelty during your childhood. A thieves' guild rarely lets its members walk away to pursue other careers. The guild expects a lifetime of service in return for training and care. If you are not still part of the guild that raised you, then the guild either found a good reason to let you go, or it's hunting you right now.

Associated Skills: Perception, Thievery

Local Hero

You never trained in a military academy or participated in a military company. You weren't an apprentice to a master thief or a squire to a noble knight. No famous hero took you under his or her wing. Everything you know, you learned on your own. You dueled your friends for practice, and you watched soldiers from afar, so when the goblin throngs swarmed your hamlet, you were ready. You rallied other young men and women behind you and rounded up weapons to mount a defense. You repelled the creatures, and your efforts attracted the attention of a local lord. The lord offered you the opportunity to receive proper martial training, and you accepted, beginning your life as a warrior.

Associated Skills: Diplomacy, Nature

Scion of a Legend

You have spent your life in the shadow of your mother's or father's martial reputation. You might be the latest descendant in a long line of legendary warriors, or you could be the offspring of a hero who rose to fame through recent deeds. Your parent might be proud or humble, but regardless, he or she has always been the subject of envy and praise. Your sense of who you are is defined your parent's reputation and by the expectation that everyone holds for you. Do you work twice as hard to prove yourself worthy of your family's reputation? Do you spurn your martial heritage to seek recognition of your own unique talents? Or do you hope to emerge from the shadow of your predecessor, ascending higher than he or she could ever imagine?

Associated Skills: Bluff, Intimidate

Occupation

Martial characters usually have backgrounds that entail the use of their bodies for feats of strength or dexterity.

Athlete

You spent years earning your living as a competitive athlete. You might throw hammers, spears, or discs, or you could be a sprinter, a swimmer, a gymnast, or an equestrian. You have participated in athletic competitions, both in small settlements and in major cities. In your youth, you participated in athletic challenges for your own enjoyment or fitness, and you found you had a knack for them. Now, you are in top physical condition, and your athletic training has aided you in your martial prowess. Wherever you go, people recognize your name for the great acts of strength or dexterity you perform. Locals challenge you to arm wrestling, throwing, and running, just for a chance to compete against you. Perhaps now you seek to earn renown as a hero, gaining a new kind of glory, or maybe adventuring is just an excuse to continue training and improving your prowess.

Associated Skills: Acrobatics, Athletics

Circus Performer

You were born into the circus and grew up among acrobats, performers, magicians, and animals. In your formative years, you showed a knack for feats of strength or dexterity, so you began learning from the performers. Living among the members of the circus made you tolerant of people who had alternative lifestyles. Although you never received a formal education, you learned many useful skills from the motley members of the circus. Your upbringing has left you with wanderlust, and it is this feeling that has driven you to explore a life as an adventurer.

Associated Skills: Acrobatics, Thievery

Sentry
You have served as a sentry on the far-flung borders of some realm or region. You received martial training to equip you with the skills to guard against specific threats. The peaceful existence of the people within the border depended on your vigilance. You might have traveled with a small band of fellow sentries, or you might have remained alone for weeks at a time, relying on signal fires and horns to communicate with other sentries nearby. You were versed in the use of weapons, yet you recognized that mobility and keen senses were your most valuable assets. The chance of meeting your foes in the remote lands you frequented was tiny. However, your ability to identify the signs of an intruder—a broken twig, an upturned leaf, a faint depression—meant that even unseen foes were detected. Did you weather your post stoically, or did the long, lonely days take their toll? Have you seen horrors on the borderlands that have left you taciturn, or do you remain chipper despite the duties you performed?

Associated Skills: Nature, Perception

Society
The society background element in Player's Handbook 2 describes social and economic status in the broadest terms. These additional backgrounds tell more specific stories about your character's social origin.

Beggar
You have spent time on the streets collecting coin from pedestrians. Successful beggars evoke compassion from onlookers, so you have become skillful at feigning signs of disfigurement and deprivation. Your experience as a beggar has taught you to read people. You can tell whether a stranger is kindhearted or suspicious. You have learned to judge the weight of a person's purse by the way he or she walks, and you can detect the approach of a member of the watch long before the tip of the guard's halberd comes into view. In cities where thieves and beggars form guilds, you have supplemented your income by serving as a lookout on street corners where you can loiter without drawing suspicion. Your time as a beggar has given you both skills and an unquenchable thirst for wealth and status. Now you search for a way to achieve these goals.

Associated Skills: Bluff, Insight

Borderland Nobility
Your father or mother is a ruler of an obscure fiefdom along the frontier. The territory is small and out of the way. Nevertheless, your parents are nobility, and that status awards them and their family privileges. As the youngest of many children, you might have no chance of inheriting the realm, but your heritage has afforded you other opportunities, such as attending the best schools, receiving the best martial training, and meeting people of renown. You'll never inherit your family's estate, yet you can travel the world and do as you please, carousing, adventuring, and being a layabout. With the military talents your upbringing has provided you, you can succeed in whatever endeavors you undertake.

Associated Skills: Diplomacy, History

Hellion
You grew up on the streets and learned everything you know in filthy alleys, backroom brawls, and rooftop gang fights. As a youngster you were fascinated by the culture of the bravo, the rake, and the duelist. In time, you earned a reputation as a hellion, showing a capacity for being tough and improvisational in a fight. You ran the streets and roofs, engaging in duels and brawls with other hellions. You are one with the night, and you revel in the thrills of street life. You evade guards and rivals by using your knowledge of the city, and when you fight, it's always on your terms. Above all, you live for excitement.

Associated Skills: Acrobatics, Athletics

Camp Follower
You grew up in the wake of an army on the march, surviving on its scraps. Perhaps your parents were members of the army who later died, or maybe you were in a settlement destroyed by the force. Regardless, you decided the only way to survive and learn to defend yourself was to follow the army. You slept when possible, and when you found yourself in inhospitable conditions, you made do with what you could steal. Your existence sometimes depended on keeping out of sight. You probably jumped from army to army—when one force crushed another, you would ride on the heels of the victors. Did you grow up and eventually join the ranks, or did this formative experience leave you unwilling to be in the company of any band of warriors larger than your own adventuring party?

Associated Skills: Endurance, Stealth

These epic destinies are forged with armor, sword, or arrow. Pursue a path of martial excellence and gain acclaim as an unstoppable combat force.

Dragonheart

You are the dragon's heart–forged in fire, tempered in blood, sharpened by scales.

Prerequisite: 21st level, any martial class

The dragon is more than a monster. Fearless, powerful, and nigh impervious, it embodies everything a warrior should be. You have strived to emulate such creatures, aspiring to become the equal of dragons.

Your accomplishments raise you high, and your reputation casts a great shadow. Your enemies fear your ferocity. Both allies and foes claim that you have the heart of a dragon. You shrug off attacks and hew your way through enemy ranks with ease. No matter the opponents arrayed against you, somehow you manage to stand firm against any threat. Your achievements and victories add to the legends already told of you, and your courage and battle prowess awe people across the planes.

Immortality

Toughness is the hallmark of a dragonheart. Your long journey has hardened you and taught you to shrug off attacks from weapons and spells. As you near your final quest's completion, you take on increasingly daring acts. The fear that might weaken a lesser hero instead fuels you.

Dragon's Scion: Engaged in the most difficult battle of your life, you fight as you never have before. Your heart beats faster, thudding to match each blow from your weapon. When you deliver the final strike and deliver death to your foe, a new awareness settles over you. You long suspected that dragon's blood burned in your veins, and completing your final quest dispels any lingering doubts. Finally, you have proven your worth to the ancestor who sired your line.

Your heartbeat grows in urgency and strength until you feel as though you can't bear it. After a few moments, your features shift and give way to the scales that reveal your draconic nature. Gone is your humanoid body, replaced by the magnificent form of a dragon. With glittering scales and beating wings, you reflect the level of power and majesty you have earned. Though you lack true immortality, you live out a new life in the form you always desired, finding new victories until the end of your days.

ARNIE SWEKEL

Dragonheart Features

Dragon Spirit (21st level): Your Constitution score increases by 2.

Whenever an enemy places a charm effect or a fear effect on you, you can immediately make a saving throw to end the effect on you, even if it does not normally end on a save. If the effect is continuous, such as an aura, a successful saving throw means that you remain unaffected by the effect until the end of your next turn, at which point you can repeat the saving throw.

Dragon Blood (24th level): The first time you become bloodied in an encounter, you gain temporary hit points equal to your bloodied value.

Dragon Soul (30th level): Your healing surge value increases by 10.

Dragonheart Power

Dragon Shield Dragonheart Utility 26

Girding yourself in the dragon's might, you shrug off blows that would kill an ordinary mortal.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Immediate Reaction Personal
Trigger: An attack bloodies you
Effect: Until the stance ends, you gain resistance to all damage equal to your Constitution modifier, and whenever you take damage from a melee attack, your resistance increases by 5 (up to a maximum of 20). The stance ends when you are knocked unconscious or are no longer bloodied.

Invincible Vanguard

First into battle and last to leave, you are the spear and the shield.

Prerequisite: 21st level, any martial class

When battle erupts, you throw yourself into the thick of combat. You lead the charge against any foes, no matter how tough, how numerous, how terrifying, or how deadly. Your battle cries ring out, inspiring your allies to find courage to discover what fate the gods have in store for them.

You are a blur in battle, striking, leaping away, and then striking again. Each time your weapon bites, death follows. Corpses litter the field in your wake. You are brash in combat, and for a long time, your allies believed you took unnecessary risks, putting yourself and them into danger. Then, with victory after bloody victory, you showed that your brazen courage could bring only triumph and glory.

Immortality

You do not walk toward destiny—you run. Each victory puts you a step closer to attaining glory and securing your place in legend. Each time you defeat an enemy, you set out to find the next one, leaving carnage in your wake. You seek the ultimate foe, after whose defeat you will understand your place in the world and history.

Eternal Warrior: The long road leads to one climactic battle, one in which to settle scores and complete the mission for which you were born. You have long chased your destiny and do not feel disappointment at the road's end, but rather, you are excited that the battles you fought pointed to this final conflict.

Then, after what feels like mere moments, the fight ends, and the enemy is vanquished. Before you can savor the victory, though, you realize your task is still incomplete. Battles remain to be fought, and wars remain to be won. You squeezed out of this world everything it can offer, and now you must find new realms and realities where you can test your mettle.

Invincible Vanguard Features

Invigorating Charge (21st level): Your Strength score increases by 2.

Whenever you charge and make a basic attack, that attack gains the invigorating keyword (page 7).

In addition, you can take actions after a charge.

Forever War (24th level): The first time each day when you drop to 0 hit points or fewer, you regain hit points equal to your bloodied value. As a free action, you then stand up, shift 2 squares, and make a charge attack. If the attack hits, you gain temporary hit points equal to your bloodied value.

KEREM BEYIT

Unstoppable Assault (30th level): Whenever you score a critical hit against an enemy with a melee attack, bloody an enemy, or reduce an enemy to 0 hit points, you can make a charge attack against a creature other than that enemy as a free action.

In addition, you never provoke opportunity attacks when charging.

Invincible Vanguard Power

Endless Assault — Invincible Vanguard Utility 26

You hurl yourself at your enemies, chasing them down to the ends of the earth.

Daily ✦ Martial, Stance
Minor Action Personal

Effect: Until the stance ends, you gain a power bonus to speed when you charge equal to your Constitution modifier, and if you score a critical hit with your charge attack, your attack deals 2[W] extra damage.

Legendary Sovereign

You are the long-awaited monarch destined to lead your people into a glorious golden age.

Prerequisite: 21st level; fighter, paladin, ranger, or warlord

Legendary sovereigns come to power in a variety of ways. Some are born to royalty—the scions of existing dynasties. These sovereigns reverse the flagging fortunes of their homelands, defeat ancestral enemies, or usher in ages of expansion and prosperity. Other sovereigns establish new dynasties, building monarchies to heal a land or carve a new kingdom out of the wilderness. A few legendary sovereigns seize power by deposing tyrants and leading nations to freedom. Finally, a handful of legendary sovereigns win their thrones by acclaim. They are chosen by the people to take up the mantle of leadership after performing deeds of renown and demonstrating wisdom and courage.

In the days before acceding to your throne, you won ever-growing renown throughout the land you were destined to rule. An anonymous adventurer in other lands, you were a hero to the people of your home. People crowded the streets to catch a glimpse of you. You accrued accolades, honors, and titles, and the people began to wonder whether you might someday claim the throne. As threats arose, the people of the land sought your opinions and counsel. They treated you as a great leader, and soon, your destiny to become a lord was apparent.

BEN WOOTTEN

Immortality

Though you might live for decades after completing your final quest, true immortality comes through your legacy.

The Golden Age: Upon completing your final quest, you ascend to the throne and begin your reign. For decades, your land flowers and your people prosper. Your victories shield your land from invasion and bring your ancestral enemies to their knees. Your descendants will mount the steps to your throne for centuries to come. When death comes for you at last, your tomb is a monument revered by your people.

Legendary Sovereign Features

Legendary Presence (21st level): Your Charisma score increases by 2.

Great Captain (21st level): Once per encounter when you score a critical hit, each ally within 10 squares of you can make a basic attack as a free action.

Homeland (21st level): With the DM's approval, choose a realm you are destined to rule. You are regarded as a great hero in that land. You gain a +4 bonus to any Charisma-based skill checks you make within that land. You have property or estates there sufficient to provide for your ordinary needs, including the resources to maintain a household and a small force of loyal retainers.

This Is Not My Fate (24th Level): Once per day when you would make a death saving throw, you can instead regain hit points equal to your bloodied value, end any effects on you, and stand up.

Sword of Kings (30th Level): Choose one encounter attack power you know that has the weapon keyword. Whenever you use that power, it is not expended unless you miss every target.

Legendary Sovereign Power

Sword of the Sovereign — Legendary Sovereign Utility 26

Your courageous example heartens your allies, steeling their resolve for victory.

Daily ✦ Martial
Free Action Close burst 10
Trigger: You score a critical hit or reduce an enemy to 0 hit points
Target: Each ally in burst
Effect: Each target gains temporary hit points equal to your level + your Charisma modifier. Each target also gains a power bonus to attack rolls with basic attacks and at-will attacks equal to your Charisma modifier until the end of the encounter or until you drop to 0 hit points or fewer.

Star-Favored Champion

Your greatness was written in the stars at the hour of your birth. When your tale is done, your image will live on in the night skies.

Prerequisite: 21st level, any martial class

You were destined for greatness from your earliest days. As a child, you took to weapons with a natural talent that astonished your tutors. In the early days of your career, your skill, athleticism, and courage surprised everyone. Later, your comrades came to expect nothing less of you than the utmost.

You became aware of a force at work in your life, an inexorable pull drawing you toward the most daunting challenges and the greatest adventures. Even insignificant decisions led you down the path of danger, and against each adversity, you triumphed. In time, you realized that a star in the sky was bound to your fortune.

When you suffer trouble or doubt, your star is dim and low in the sky. When you master your circumstances and defeat your foes, your star ascends and grows brighter. On the occasions when your actions and valor shake the thrones of kings or the pillars of the heavens, your star blazes with a glory marked by sages and astrologers throughout the world. Your star's passage through the constellations of great monsters matches your battles against dire foes, and its journeys into signs of wealth or fortune mark the boons you receive.

Immortality

The story of your greatness is written in the sky for everyone to see. In time, the gods themselves perceive the significance of your star's ascension. From that day on, mighty powers gather around you, and your star is drawn toward its most dangerous passages and most spectacular glories.

A Memory in the Stars: When you complete your final battle, your star comes to rest. Lesser stars array themselves around it, giving shape to a new constellation—a representation of you to inspire mortals for eternity. You are welcomed in the astral dominions of the gods who favored you, honored for your heroism and courage. Then you take a place within your constellation, your eternal presence shod in stardust and crowned with brilliance. Your story is passed on in myth as mortals give you a name—the Swordsman, the Archer, the Captain, or the Hunter—recounting stories of the hero who bestrides the skies in starry glory.

Star-Favored Champion Features

Favored Warrior (21st level): Your Constitution score increases by 2.

ARNIE SWEKEL

You gain a +2 bonus to Acrobatics checks and Athletics checks.

Favored Tenacity (21st level): Whenever your first attack roll with an encounter power misses, until the end of your turn you can make a basic attack as a minor action.

Resurgent Star (24th level): While you have at least one healing surge, you automatically get a result of 20 on any death saving throw.

Sign of Challenge (30th level): You gain the sign of challenge power.

Sign of Challenge Star-Favored Champion Feature

Your destiny, spun by your star's course, shows that you will be the one to destroy this foe.

Encounter ✦ Martial
Minor Action Close burst 5
Target: One nonminion creature in burst
Effect: Whenever you attack the target, you roll twice and use either result. Whenever you hit the target, each ally you can see gains a +2 bonus to attack rolls against any enemy other than the target until the end of your next turn.

Star-Favored Champion Power

Sign of Hope Star-Favored Champion Utility 26

You have seen your future mapped out in the sky above, and you know you won't falter now.

Daily ✦ Martial, Healing
Minor Action Personal
Effect: You regain one martial encounter attack power that you have expended, and you can spend a healing surge.

CHAPTER 1

Astral Adventuring

Experienced players and Dungeon Masters might be familiar with previous descriptions of the Astral Sea as an infinite silvery plane. In the world of the 4th Edition D&D® game, the Plane Above is that and more—it also serves as the place where many of the deities of the D&D multiverse reside.

This new view of the Astral Sea includes other aspects that haven't been part of the cosmology before, such as the border islands that surround the divine dominions. Suffice it to say that the amount of interesting territory and beings that characters might interact with in the Plane Above has been expanded. Those border islands are covered in full later in this book along with the dominions themselves.

Chapter 1, however, is designed to help you get the most out of this book for your campaign. The chapter presents seven campaign themes that weave together the rest of the elements of this book. These themes range from the predictable (Fight the Gods of Evil) to the unexpected (Overcome Heaven's Flaws) to the world-shaking (Adventure into Myth).

"Traveling the Astral Sea" at the end of Chapter 1 revisits the earlier discussion of geography, providing mechanics for navigation, vessels, and astral hazards.

The following sections of this chapter create a framework for adventures on the Astral Sea.

- The Astral Sea: The Plane Above has many facets to its nature and its history, any of which can come into play. This summary highlights each of those facets.
- Geography: Essential physical concepts that play into all the areas the Astral Sea encompasses.
- Campaign Themes: Seven diverse approaches to running a campaign that uses the Plane Above. Most of the themes are complementary rather than exclusive, meaning that you can incorporate elements from more than one to create a unique campaign experience.
- Traveling the Astral Sea: How to move around in the Astral Sea, and a look at some of the hazards that visitors and natives alike can encounter as they traverse the Plane Above.

WILLIAM O'CONNOR

THE ASTRAL SEA

Welcome to the world above the world of mortals, an infinite silver expanse dotted by countless small shards of land, scattered larger islands, and the dominions of the gods. Here are some key highlights to keep in mind as you prepare to use the Plane Above in your campaign.

The Astral Sea is a former battlefield still ravaged by the cosmic conflict known as the Dawn War. The deities were the original inhabitants of the astral realm when the world was newly created by the primordials and the mortal races had yet to find their final forms. Along with shaping and refining the creation of the world, the gods had grand plans for a single realm that would link all their dominions together with an all-powerful astral connection known as the Lattice of Heaven.

When the gods intervened to prevent the primordials from destroying the world and starting a new creation, the primordials responded by invading the Plane Above. Gods died, dominions crumbled, and the incomplete Lattice of Heaven was shattered into fragments. The astral world that had nearly become a fantastic interlocked mesh of divine dominions blew apart into an infinite silver sea. Much later, when the gods had eked out a narrow victory in the Dawn War, only a few of the divine dominions that survived the devastation still functioned for their deities, hinting at the glory that died forever when the primordials destroyed the Lattice.

Since that time, shattered dominions (those that no longer have a deity), ruins, corpses of forgotten gods and primordials, and war magic left over from the Dawn War still linger within the Astral Sea, whether on shards of matter scattered throughout the astral realm or floating freely through it. Dramatic examples of such remnants include the Golden Monolith of Erishani (page 108), the floating corpse of the primordial Haemnathuun (Open Grave: Secrets of the Undead, page 120), and the primordial energy bubble known as Frostburn (page 125).

The player characters will most likely have already met the free-willed servitors that have a preference for killing known as abominations—one of the worst consequences of the great rituals employed during the Dawn War. In the prison realm of Carceri (page 104), or perhaps on the Glorious Hunt in the dominion of Arvandor (page 37), the characters might uncover the full story of the abominations' origin and the reasons for their increasing attacks centuries after the end of the war they were created to win.

Gods such as Asmodeus took advantage of the Dawn War to seize power they didn't deserve (see the Nine Hells on page 65). Threats native to the Far Realm took advantage of the devastation wrought by the Dawn War to pry a hole into reality through which they could enter. And as always, many horrible echoes of the Dawn War are poised to enter the Astral Sea unless capable paragon and epic tier characters can set things right and create something better in the scars left over by the war.

The Astral Sea is the home of the gods. Most of the deities who survived the Dawn War maintain mighty dominions on islands scattered widely through the Astral Sea. Chapter 2 details each of the functioning divine dominions, as well as the border islands that cluster around each dominion. (The shattered dominions are discussed in Chapter 3.)

Although the deities wield much influence in the mortal world and its echo planes, the Feywild and the Shadowfell, the gods' influence has been limited due to the ravages of the Dawn War and the forceful intervention of the primal spirits. But in the Plane Above, the deities are the most powerful agents, taking direct actions and choosing paths that shape the history of the plane.

Momentous divine events that have acquired mythic force did not end after the Dawn War. Epoch-shaping events since that conflict have included Asmodeus's rise to power and manipulation of the gods (page 65), Gruumsh's invasion of Bane's dominion of Chernoggar (page 51), the destruction of the god Amoth and his dominion of Kalandurren by three demon princes (page 114), and Erathis's more recent determination to restore the dominions of the gods and rebuild the Lattice of Heaven (page 61).

Depending on the scope and interests of your campaign, the player characters might be able to reshape the Plane Above, including the agendas and life spans of the deities that reside there. The campaign themes beginning on page 9 explore these possibilities in more detail.

The Astral Sea is the setting for many separate afterlives for mortal worshipers of the gods. Each of the functioning divine dominions has its population constantly refreshed by a small number of exalted, the spirits of dead mortals restored to life in new physical bodies known as soulforms. The exalted are generally not the protagonists of the great stories of the Plane Above, since they generally maintain their immortality only while they stay within their god's dominion. But many exalted do venture beyond the protection of their dominion on pilgrimages, sightseeing voyages, or missions for their deity that could bring them into conflict or association with the player characters.

The exalted most frequently encountered in the wider Astral Sea are exalted of Bane (on missions of conquest), Gruumsh (on missions of destruction), Erathis (pursuing aspects of the Game of Making, page 62), and Kord (raising hell or training for the Dusk War, page 45).

Chapter 2 details the exalted and their less fortunate counterparts, the soulform beings collectively known as outsiders. After the destruction of the Lattice of Heaven, the divine dominions stopped functioning at full power and effectiveness. Many mortals who were traveling to their god's dominion to become exalted suffered the repercussions of that event, instead waking up on the shores of the border islands surrounding each of the dominions. They are cursed with the name "outsiders" because they are physically unable to enter the dominion of their god.

The outsiders live as well as they can in the outer islands, sometimes managing a prosperous if not perfect afterlife (as in the Green Isles around Arvandor, page 42, and in the Daybreak Islands around Hestavar, page 64). In other cases, such as in the island chain around Tytherion known as the Scales (page 88), outsiders live only by avoiding the hunting parties led by the servants of the evil deities they might once have worshiped.

Even in the best circumstances, the outsiders and mortals living on the border islands are cut off from the full protection of the dominions. Player characters will often be the only defenders standing between the inhabitants of the border islands and the ravagers of the Astral Sea: abominations, aberrants, slavers from the Nine Hells, githyanki pirates, quom searchers, and servants of the evil gods. In turn, the border islands and their outsider populations provide points of light outside the divine dominions where characters can recuperate and prepare for their next adventure.

The Astral Sea is the home of many native mortal races whose goals will shape the characters' adventures.
The four major independent races of the Astral Sea are covered in detail at the start of Chapter 3. Each of the four races has its own slant on the Plane Above that is likely to conflict with the player characters' goals.

The couatls seem like the most benevolent of the four, but their crusade against various forms of evil masks a status-oriented society that can turn player characters into pawns used in the hierarchy contests within the couatls' Cloud Court (page 93).

Of the four races, the githyanki have the most influence on events in the Astral Sea. Player characters will probably have encountered githyanki in their earlier adventures. The githyanki excel as quick-sailing raiders and pirates, preying mostly on the border islands, on those who sail between the islands, and on explorers who dare the deep Astral Sea. In a campaign featuring confrontations with astral pirates (page 12), the githyanki and their wandering city Tu'narath can become the characters' chief adversaries.

The maruts were originally creations of the deities. But they were created to have an impartial perspective to allow them to make detached rulings that would cut down on the squabbling gods' tendency to resolve arguments by force. Unless the characters have supreme diplomatic skills and some knowledge of history, it's likely that the maruts' literally interpreted contracts will force them into awkward and violent situations rather than making their lives easier.

The quom are the most straightforward of the four races. A once-peaceful race converted to violence by the accidental death of their god in a Dawn War battle between Bahamut and a powerful primordial, the quom cut the fragments of their dead god out of the bodies of anyone who had the bad luck to contain a piece of it, no matter how small. The quom rival the githyanki as fearsome raiders, but where the githyanki seek plunder and entertaining violence, the quom target random creatures, structures, and magic items. As part of a campaign, the quom's random raids can target the player characters, or those close to them. Occasionally, the quom might even target the characters' enemies, perhaps forcing the characters to choose between enemies to assist.

The Astral Sea is most suited to paragon tier and epic tier adventures.
Most of the monsters and threats found in the Astral Sea match up well against paragon and epic tier adventurers. Exceptions exist, but few heroic tier characters should count on being able to sail through the Astral Sea without falling prey to githyanki pirates or devils harvesting souls for the Nine Hells. Heroic tier characters can use portals to access specific astral locations, but most adventures in the Astral Sea are better suited for adventurers in the paragon or epic tier.

OTHER SOURCES

Certain aspects of the Astral Sea have been detailed in earlier D&D® supplements and in some Dragon® magazine articles on D&D Insider™. Here's a list of significant sources.

Manual of the Planes™, especially Chapter 5: The Astral Sea.

"Playing Githzerai" in Dragon #378.

"Tu'narath, City of Death" in Dragon #377.

"Codex of Betrayal: Alloces, the Butcher of Nessus" in Dragon #373.

"Deities and Demigods: Bane" in Dragon #372.

"Masters of the Planes" in Dragon #372.

"Hestavar" in Dragon #371.

The "silver sea" left in the wake of the destruction of the original Lattice of Heaven isn't actually a sea, but rather a fantastic version of the space beyond the world, filled with vast clouds of a luminous silver-gray substance that is not fully a mist and not fully a liquid. Thousands of stars glitter in the distance, as well as the colored veils of the astral dominions, if a traveler is close enough to see them. Vast expanses of "open sea" between the drifting clouds of astral mist provide travelers with hundreds of miles of visibility. Inside even the densest astral mist, a traveler can see objects several miles away with ease, since the wispy clouds of the Astral Sea don't impede vision as much as clouds do in the world.

The Astral Sea is not wet or cold; a cool tingle on the skin is the only sensation a traveler gets. Creatures that breathe do so without trouble. Flying creatures can fly through the astral stuff as if it were air, and natural swimmers can swim through it as if it were water. Other creatures can move slowly through the Astral Sea by sheer willpower (they have a fly speed of 2 [clumsy] and can hover). More information on flying and sailing through the Astral Sea is located in "Traveling the Astral Sea" on page 19.

The Astral Horizon

Even though the Astral Sea is a three-dimensional void, it has a distinct horizon that forms something like the surface of an ocean. The mists below this surface are darker and denser, while the mists above the surface are brighter and more open. Most creatures and vessels slowly orient themselves toward this subtle demarcation, often without realizing it, in order to travel along the "surface" of the Astral Sea. Vessels in the Astral Sea tend to meet along this nominal surface, creating encounters that begin in a space that seems two-dimensional, though it can become three-dimensional as soon as vessels begin maneuvering for position.

The functioning divine dominions all rest along this surface horizon. A vessel approaching an astral dominion normally does so from the dominion's equivalent of sea level, or from its equator for those dominions that are shaped like globes. It's unusual, though obviously not impossible, to drop in on a dominion from a pole or the zenith of its sky.

Islands in the Great Sea

Though the Astral Sea is profoundly empty, it is so unthinkably vast that it has room for divine dominions, shattered dominions, countless island motes, tumbling wrecks of Dawn War battlefields, and citadel islands. No one, except perhaps a few githyanki far wanderers or the quom, has a clear idea of everything that could be found in the deep Astral Sea—the part of the plane that surrounds the comparatively small area in which most of the gods' dominions are located.

So far as anyone knows, the only truly fixed locations in the Astral Sea are occupied by the few functioning divine dominions that still maintain some sort of connection with the skeleton of the original divine Lattice, such as Celestia, Tytherion, and the Nine Hells. The border islands that spring up around each of the functioning divine dominions don't stay in fixed positions, but each does tend to remain within the orbit of its source dominion. The rest of the islands, motes, and shattered dominions of the Astral Sea often change position slightly or drastically every year as a consequence of changes in the astral tide.

Astral navigators start with knowledge of the basic directions from one functioning divine dominion to the next. But even with that knowledge, the amount of time it actually takes to sail or fly through the entire Astral Sea from one known dominion to another varies hugely depending on flows of astral energy that are largely imperceptible. More details on astral travel appear on page 19.

The Dominions' Color Veils

Great walls of shimmering light known as color veils surround each of the functioning divine dominions (as well as the dominions that have lost their deities). Each dominion has its own color (see Manual of the Planes, page 16). Most color veils are semiopaque, offering partial or shifting glimpses of the dominion within.

Travel along the horizon of the Astral Sea is often sped up considerably by color strands, which are wide ribbons of light related to the color veil of their dominion. Whereas crossing an actual color veil immediately places a traveler inside the dominion, entering a color strand transports a traveler to a position on the edge of the corresponding dominion. If the dominion has border islands, travelers entering a color strand are transported to the edge of that archipelago, allowing entrance to the dominion only by sailing through the border islands.

A traveler using a color strand to reach a shattered dominion that no longer has border islands is transported to a place some miles from the dominion's edge, leaving enough time for preparations before reaching the ruined land. Details on each of the dominions' color veils and the rules for travel by way of color strands appear in the "Navigating the Astral Sea" section on page 25.

CAMPAIGN THEMES

No book can provide the compelling stories that you and the player characters weave together to bring your game world to life. The goal of this book is to provide a compelling backdrop and a rich selection of elements for you to draw upon for your campaign. The seven campaign themes introduced below help you benefit from this book. Several of the themes include suggested campaign arcs to use as inspiration.

The themes discussed in this section are:

- Explore the Infinite Sea: An infinite ocean opens the option of framing much of a campaign's points of interest as moments in the career of the greatest explorers of the cosmos. This theme examines the manner in which rephrasing character rewards can turn some exploration into the characters' main goal instead of a step along the way.
- Crawl Astral Dungeons: Groups that prefer old-school dungeon crawl adventures can find what they're looking for, one island at a time.
- Fight Astral Pirates: Githyanki, quom, and slavers working for the evil gods make great enemies, particularly when the characters get to feel like pirates. The Astral Incursion campaign arc suggests one way of using the githyanki as focal villains for much of the paragon tier.
- Fight the Gods of Evil: No enemies exist that are more powerful than the evil gods. Make use of the information on the dark dominions in Chapter 2 to infiltrate, assault, and perhaps ultimately destroy the realms of the evil gods. The Gods War campaign arc is a campaign that spans thirty levels, gradually revealing the nature of this theme.
- Join Heaven's Order: Epic tier characters already dabble with demigod status and positions as exarchs. This theme draws the characters into closer connection with the gods of one or more dominions, or points the way to joining the gods on the characters' own terms.
- Overcome Heaven's Flaws: The divine system hasn't worked properly since the Lattice of Heaven was destroyed. The characters attempt to solve the tragedy of the outsiders, with or without the assistance of the deities.
- Adventure into Myth: This theme offers as possible adventures the conflicts of history and myth related in this book (and in all other supplements). Venturing into deep myth makes it possible for the characters to succeed and change the world for the better or fail horribly and return to a world in worse shape than it was before. It's a delicate balance, but an exciting option for demonstrating how epic tier characters assume the mantle of cosmic power.

Explore the Infinite Sea

Part of the appeal of the separate planes of existence is that they offer you a change of pace, allowing an all-new style of adventure with an elaborate context that you can draw in as you choose.

Fundamentally, the Astral Sea establishes an otherworldly analog of seafaring adventures involving relatively rapid but perilous travel between a succession of familiar and unexplored islands. Of course, from the perspective of characters newly arrived to the Astral Sea, even the friendliest of the divine dominions count as unknown territory, to say nothing of the border islands, shattered dominions, and motes of the deeper Astral Sea. Most campaigns that make use of multiple locations within the Astral Sea can easily contain a strong element of exploration.

The assumptions of the "points of light" setting for the 4th Edition world translate well to adventures in the Astral Sea. The gods' dominions are the only truly stable points in an otherwise ever-shifting environment, and the sole fixed locations that can be confidently placed upon an astral map. Depending on the way you treat the island archipelagoes outside the dominions, a few of the border islands might contain settlements that qualify as points of light where the characters can seek refuge. Of course, raiders from one of the evil dominions or the deep Astral Sea can erase such havens at any time. Depending on their relations with the gods, the characters might need to explore large portions of the Astral Sea just to find locations they can use as safe havens.

The Explorers' Rewards

In a sense, the Astral Sea is the scene of a perpetual age of exploration. Unlike our own world, which offers merely two poles for explorers' flags and a finite number of mightiest rivers and tallest mountains, the Astral Sea perpetually renews itself with undiscovered islands and shards of ancient Dawn War battlefields newly swirled into reach by the astral tides.

To motivate the characters to explore wide reaches of the Astral Sea, draw a clear connection between exploration and loot. Fragments of ancient battlefields that have escaped or defied plunder since the Dawn War should be rich sources of magic items. Some come from the original armies of the gods. Others come from the forces of the primordials. Given the scope of the conflict and its numerous bizarre alliances, any item you want to introduce into your campaign, or that your players have asked for on their wish lists (Dungeon Master's Guide, page 125), could reasonably be found somewhere on an ancient battlefield, or within barrows dug beside the field and then forgotten.

To strengthen the association between exploration and loot, you could occasionally give the player characters "something for almost nothing." When characters have already braved astral hazards to voyage to distant reaches of the Astral Sea, following quests you set up earlier or searching widely on their own, provide them with the equivalent of a miner's lucky strike: an ancient Dawn War site, for example, that turns out to be unguarded and unplundered. After a couple of skill challenge searches and several tense moments when the characters expect to be attacked, reward them for their explorations with treasure they didn't have to fight for. Of course, navigational hazards and encounters with astral pirates or monsters on the way home can balance the adventure as you like. If you begin associating the best treasure parcels with far-ranging exploration rather than always associating treasure with monsters that fight to defend it, the characters will soon understand that in the Plane Above, they are racing to discover untapped sites before the githyanki, the quom, or other rivals can plunder them.

Rival explorers and plunderers also could become ongoing villains in your campaign. After an inconclusive encounter with a githyanki or quom ship, have one of the treasures the characters find in a subsequent adventure be part of a magic item set, as introduced in Adventurer's Vault 2. Use a subsequent quest to point to the location of another piece of the set. Then put the characters' nemesis ahead of them on the exploration path and find out how far the characters are willing to go to outrace or outfight their rivals.

Alternatively, you could shape a decisive phase of your paragon or epic tier campaign by effectively turning the exploration-savvy characters into the chief enemies, or chief benefactors, of one of the Astral Sea's principal power groups. Characters exploring the Astral Sea might find artifacts or items that are worth far more to the githyanki or the quom than to them. For example, characters who have had previous dealings with the quom could undertake a great mission of exploration that is certain to lead to an unsurpassed Dawn War treasure. What happens when that Dawn War battlefield turns out to be a great remnant of the god Lakal, the object of the quom's eternal quest? What if the characters find a source of Lakal's essence so large that it might enable the quom to succeed in their absurd quest?

Epic tier campaigns often center on plot lines that reshape the world. If you like, items and locations discovered on voyages of exploration, including earlier voyages, can turn out to be pivotal as the characters play out their epic destinies.

Exploration Resources

Several sections of this book relate directly to campaigns in which the characters cruise through the

ZOLTAN BOROS & GABOR SZIKSZAI

Astral Sea in search of adventure, glory, and loot. "Traveling the Astral Sea," beginning on page 19 of this chapter, details the types of astral vessels that the characters are most likely to obtain and provides hazards, skill challenges, and mechanics for determining the success or failure of the characters' navigational techniques. A campaign heavily based on exploration should make use of the hazards sparingly and when most dramatically effective, rather than complicating every voyage the characters undertake.

The section on astral travel in this chapter also offers images and statistics for the coveted dominion ships—astral vessels that extend the dominions' magical power. Player characters who enter a god's service, or otherwise become valuable allies of the deities (see "Join Heaven's Order," page 16), could receive the use of a dominion ship as a benefit of their service. Alternatively, if the characters' astral vehicle becomes extremely important to them, you can encourage them to expend resources to upgrade it, letting them fashion an astral vessel that rivals or exceeds the dominion ships in appearance and performance.

The dominions, border islands, shattered dominions, and shards presented throughout Chapter 2 and Chapter 3 can form the core of an exploration-themed campaign's settings. "Motes in the Astral Sea" (page 124) presents a medley of ancient battlefields, wandering comets, and bizarre cultures drifting on shards lost within the deep Astral Sea, but it is not a definitive list. The point of the section is to suggest that all varieties of cultures and adventures can be found somewhere in the infinite sea. As long as you maintain the tone that suits your game, the far reaches of the astral realm give you license to create new challenges and settings for epic tier characters who can rightly say that they have already dealt with every monster under the sun.

Crawl Astral Dungeons

Some groups of players stick to their roots—they started as dungeon-crawling adventurers in the heroic tier, and neither the powers of the paragon tier nor the cosmic responsibilities of the epic tier can budge them from their dungeon-crawling preferences. But framing a dungeon crawl-style game at paragon and epic tier can be difficult.

As discussed in the exploration theme, the Astral Sea offers an endless array of exotic and varied settings. For a dungeon crawl-style game, what's required is the sense that each session, or adventure, can be played out with little reference to the monsters or encounters from the previous adventure's location. Dedicated dungeon crawlers aren't that interested in the details of their travel between adventures; they just want to know that they rested, restocked, and can arrive at their next destination.

The Astral Sea naturally provides both ingredients necessary for an engaging high-level dungeon crawl game: variation and isolation. Combine infinitely varied shard-islands in the Astral Sea with the fact that each of the islands can be located as far from any other island as you like, and you have a recipe for a dungeon crawl-style game presented as an island-hopping campaign.

With the understanding that a dungeon crawl-style game provides most of what dungeon enthusiasts want out of their episodic games, all the adventures and encounters in this book should be usable at some point in the campaign. The fiery descent into Avernus (see "Hell's Bonds," page 70) could be followed by deeper delving into hell or a retreat to a safe base. In a dungeon-crawling campaign, the altercation with astral giants on Shom (see "Purifiers of Shom," page 122) could lead to an adventure beneath Shom's shifting sands in the vaults of the illumians instead of intrigue with Erathis and her Game of Making. The options are endless.

"The Monolith Stirs" mini-adventure (page 110) set on the island of Erishani is already set up as a one-session encounter for epic tier characters.

SIGIL

Adventurers who want to explore the Plane Above without traversing its hazardous sea often take up residence in Sigil, the infamous City of Doors. This densely populated and geometrically improbable settlement is everywhere and nowhere at once. It occupies the inner surfaces of a toroidal structure floating in an undefined pocket dimension. Countless gates and portals to earthly realms and extraplanar realities riddle its smoky, byzantine streets. The most stable gates have been used to create outposts. These fortresses and hideaways in the planes serve as way stations for travelers and miscreants of all varieties. Examples include Blackhelm, a fortified and perpetually besieged city within a city (Chernoggar), the sumptuous lagoon isle of Chapelton (Hestavar), and a dank metal chamber beneath Baator's city of Darkspine (Nine Hells), entered by leaping into one of countless small pits of lava and praying to have chosen correctly.

Residence in Sigil is not for the fainthearted; the city is anarchic and inhabited by some of the most dangerous beings in existence. Even so, it is a place driven by mortal motivations and behaviors. For this reason, adventurers might find it a more congenial place to set up house than any of the locations described in this book. Explorers commonly take lodgings in the polyglot Market Ward, a bustling neighborhood where the goods and services they require are most readily at hand.

For more on Sigil, see Manual of the Planes and Dungeon Master's Guide 2.

Dungeons

Numerous locations in the dominions and wider Astral Sea can be used as dungeonlike environments when you want to set up a dungeon crawl. Here's a small set of possibilities.

The divine dominion of Arvandor has contained Hunting Grounds in which allies of Corellon and Sehanine pursue abominations that would otherwise break out into Arvandor or the wider Astral Sea. The origins and explanations of this "Glorious Hunt" appear on page 38. The Hunting Lands that look most like dungeons are the Dead City of Carantharas (page 39) and the Reef Catacombs (page 39).

The various torture islands of the Outer Torments (page 76) are infested with dungeonlike underground environments populated by devils that have no interest in the well-being of their neighboring rival devils.

The labyrinthine plateaus and deep passages of Tytherion, the Dominion of Night, function as a sort of megadungeon populated by the warring servitors of two mutually antagonistic evil gods, Tiamat and Zehir. See page 80 for details on this location. At a somewhat lower power level, the island chain outside Tytherion, known as the Scales, has most of its culture underground, since dragon raiders from Tytherion scorch any creatures that show themselves on the surface.

Most of the gale-swept and ice-charred tunnels within the shattered dominion of Pandemonium are perfect for dungeon adventures.

The demon prince Rimmon's tomb on Kalandurren (page 115) is a dangerous place to delve, with impressive treasures. An opportunity no self-respecting dungeon crawler could refuse.

Fight Astral Pirates

Could an Astral Sea be complete without astral pirates? We'll never have to find out. Happily for those who enjoy smashing pirates' hopes of plunder, the Astral Sea is plagued by at least four principal factions of dangerous raiders, each with lethal strengths and exploitable weaknesses.

The Predators

The factions most likely to mount hit-and-run raids on vessels in the Astral Sea, the border islands, and occasionally even the divine dominions, are the githyanki, the quom, servants of Zehir operating out of the dominion of Tytherion, and devils operating out of Asmodeus's dominion of the Nine Hells.

Githyanki motivations are discussed in detail on page 94. As pirates, the githyanki function slightly differently from how they do when they are engaged in pure military assaults. Although the githyanki are sadistic and evil killers, they usually recognize that massacring all their victims and burning what they can't haul to their ships will prevent their victims from generating more wealth to plunder in the future. When attacking defenseless ships of the border islands, or poorly defended areas of the border islands, the githyanki make a point of slaying a few random victims in spectacular fashion, then killing anyone who makes any show of resistance. Other wounds and abuse are at the discretion of the raiders' captain, but it's bad for the long-term prosperity of the githyanki for them to wipe out their targets or to repeatedly raid already-plundered communities before those communities have had time to rebuild their stores.

Ironically, the military-minded githyanki don't like being reminded of the husbandry overtones of their raids. Anyone who tries to play on githyanki mercy or economic self-interest while they are being raided is likely to trigger a murderous rage, and the raid shifts into full military mode, leaving no survivors. For this reason, few of the githyanki of the Astral Sea bother with kidnapping. It might turn out to be profitable, but it's clearly a criminal act rather than a military operation, and thus beneath them.

As detailed on page 101, the quom are motivated by religious zealotry, not a simple taste for plunder and mayhem. A quom attack might be swift and surgical, but result in nothing more serious than a few minor wounds, so long as no one fights back. More commonly, someone or something dies horribly. If an entire group has consumed food that contains traces of the quom's dead god, the entire community will be eliminated. Unlike githyanki raids, quom attacks are random.

After the githyanki and the quom, the two powers that are most likely to mount far-reaching raids are cultists of Zehir (sailing out of Tytherion) and devils from the Nine Hells or the Outer Torments. Though their abilities are far different, the methods and goals of the creatures of these evil dominions have much in common. Unlike the githyanki and the quom, the creatures of Zehir and the Hells principally seek living captives, not plunder.

Both prefer to use dominion ships (page 21), but they will use any other available vessel when those rare craft are not available. Both choose outsiders on the border islands as their favored targets, settling for anyone in a vulnerable vessel if sweeps of the islands fail to turn up prey. Both want living captives, rather than dead victims.

Zehir's cult in Tytherion (page 82) is obsessed with the sacrifice of sentient beings. Captives taken by Zehir's servitors are meant to survive until they can be prepared for ritual sacrifice in Tytherion.

Those caught by hell's slavers bound for the Outer Torments or the Soul Market (page 76) can be rescued without requiring an all-out assault on hell itself. Captives added to the population of the damned in the interior layers of hell would require rescue operations more sophisticated than a smash-and-grab assault.

The Prey

The targets that have the least to fear from these raiders are the exalted inside the dominions. As a rule, none of the four raider groups have enough power to mount large-scale invasions of the dominions. Small raiding groups can slip in, in the same manner that groups of adventurers can sneak into dominions where they are not wanted. But the lethal force used against intruders within the dominions pushes the raiders toward weaker prey.

The easiest targets are lone or scattered outsiders on the border islands. Such outsiders don't tend to have much in the way of material possessions, so they're generally not targeted by the githyanki, are randomly of interest to the quom, and are perfectly suitable for the slavers of Tytherion and the Nine Hells.

Ships and towns of the more prosperous border islands are the githyanki's preferred targets: they're well defended enough to pose a challenge, require military skill to overcome, and are rich enough to bother plundering. Examples of towns and settlements that draw the most attention from the githyanki include Starhallow in the Green Isles outside Arvandor (page 42), Stouthome in the Foothills near Celestia (page 47), and Luethvar and the Townships in the Daybreak Islands outside Hestavar (page 64).

The Rewards

Characters who spend a significant amount of their time and effort tracking and smashing pirates frequently want to adopt piratical mannerisms. Indulge them. A group of adventurers who strike fear into the hearts of githyanki captains would make fine recipients of a fast dominion ship and the patronage of one of the great dominions.

Another likely patron would be a couatl using the characters as its proxies in the Great Chase (page 92).

Change the World

Of course, any campaign that follows pirate-crushing themes into the epic tier should gear up for conflicts that shape the world instead of merely eliminating certain monsters. To use the githyanki as an example, campaigns during epic tier play involving opposition of the githyanki will eventually lead to direct conflict with the githyanki home city of Tu'narath. The lich-queen Vlaakith (page 149), the githyanki empress, is a 21st-level solo controller, so a campaign arc that pits the characters against the githyanki, strength for strength, should either be timed to reach its peak in the low levels of the epic tier or designed to push the githyanki story beyond Vlaakith's death.

The Astral Incursion campaign arc could prepare the characters for just such an epic tier confrontation with Vlaakith in Tu'narath.

The Astral Incursion Campaign Arc

The characters discover a world-shattering threat from the githyanki and must travel across the planes to stop it.

Paragon Tier: Discover a Githyanki Invasion

This campaign arc begins at mid-paragon tier (about 14th or 15th level) and brings the player characters up through early epic tier. The arc begins when the player characters receive treasure at the conclusion of an adventure. Among the treasure is an ornate scroll tube that contains detailed charts of the Astral Sea, with images, navigation lines, and runes that move across each chart as the characters watch. The charts form a navigational map, stolen long ago from the captain of a githyanki vessel. When the magic of the charts activates, it acts like a beacon, sending a signal into the Astral Sea and alerting the githyanki that the charts are in the hands of the player characters. Within days, githyanki raiders travel to the world and attack the characters, attempting to recover the charts. As the characters investigate the truth behind the attacks, they learn the true nature of the charts and the map they form. They also discover the location of a great treasure within the Astral Sea mentioned on the charts.

The player characters make their way to the Astral Sea through a portal left behind by the githyanki raiders. The portal leads them to Skelzerann, the shipyards of the githyanki, where they find a huge fleet of astral vessels being amassed. On further investigation, the player characters learn that the githyanki are preparing for an all-out invasion of the Far Realm. To open a portal to the Far Realm, the githyanki need an artifact known as the Codex of Infinite Planes, a book whose pages have been scattered across the Astral Sea. They likewise learn that the portal to the Far Realm cannot be opened in the Plane Above, but only in the characters' own world, and that the invasion fleet from Skelzerann plans to use the characters' world as a staging ground for an invasion of the Far Realm. The Codex can be used not only to open this portal, but also to prevent such a portal from being created in the future.

One of the githyanki navigational charts points the way to the scattered parts of the Codex, and the characters spend several adventures racing against the githyanki (and occasionally fighting them off) to obtain the various pieces of the Codex first. As the characters acquire more parts of the Codex, they encounter increasingly fierce opposition from the githyanki, prompting the invasion force leader, General Tythorian, to mobilize the incursion into the characters' world ahead of time to secure the location where the portal is to be opened.

Epic Tier: Stop the Githyanki Invasion

With their world invaded by the githyanki, the player characters must find a way into the heart of the incursion and use the Codex of Infinite Planes to sever the tenuous connections between the world and the Far Realm. The player characters learn that a member of the Court of Stars, a powerful fey witch-queen known as Morgylla, is sympathetic to their cause and has little desire to see a gate opened to the Far Realm, fearing that its denizens could use that same gate to invade the world and the Feywild. The characters must convince Morgylla to lend them her aid—and the aid of her iron dragon allies—in breaching the githyanki defenses, which will allow them to use the Codex to prevent the portal from opening and plunging the Astral Sea into madness.

Fight the Gods of Evil

Why settle for fighting pirates and raiders when you are adventuring on the home plane of the evil gods? Most campaigns pit the characters against the servants of the evil gods at some point. As the characters grow in power and fight cosmic battles, the angels and exarchs of the evil gods often match up as the obvious foes.

Chapter 2 begins with discussions of the activities and motives of each of the deities, even those who do not have a dominion in the Astral Sea. Later in the chapter, a detailed presentation of the divine dominions discusses the motives, goals, and possible plans of the evil gods' agents and exarchs. You can use these stories as if they are the full truth, or use them as merely the first layer of deeper and more dangerous plans that the characters will have to uncover in order to succeed.

The simplest use of this theme is to treat the dominions of the evil gods as targets for the characters to infiltrate at the paragon tier, invade at the epic tier, and perhaps ultimately destroy by the end of the campaign. The dominion material, and the border island information that follows each of the dominion sections in Chapter 2, contains material that assumes that the characters will carry the fight to the evil gods' dominions. Although few heroic tier characters could hope to survive inside Tytherion, Chernoggar, or the Nine Hells, the individual dominion write-ups describe what adventuring is like in the dominion for paragon and epic tier characters.

Of all the campaign themes, the fight against the gods of evil becomes most satisfying when story elements introduced early in the campaign turn out to have cosmic consequences in the final stages of the game. The Gods War campaign arc (below) turns this form of gradual revelation into the campaign's major focus. More standard campaigns still benefit from the sense that the agents of the evil gods have long-running plans, which the characters discover slowly, glimpse in fragments, and must eventually thwart in order to achieve their own epic destinies.

Known Threats

"Bane's Strategy" on page 52 presents a god of war who stands ready to invade any other location in the Astral Sea despite the supposed distraction of his war with Gruumsh on Chernoggar. The fact that Bane has not launched a serious conquest of a dominion or a faction he considers weak should be seen as a temporary situation. When your campaign requires a new spin, consider using some of the many ideas given in "The War Expands" on page 58.

JULIE DILLON

Gruumsh is a force for chaos. When Bane sends soldiers to seize a border island, he does so to gain a tactical advantage. Outside the Chernoggar war zone, Gruumsh's battlesworn and other agents operate more randomly. As discussed in "Gruumsh's Wrath" on page 53, the god of destruction has no long-term plan aside from the destruction of Bane. But that doesn't mean he won't make new enemies.

Asmodeus engineered the murder of his patron deity and his ascension from the ignominy of eternal punishment to immortal power as a major god (see the story of Asmodeus on page 65). Many of the evils of the Astral Sea flow directly, or indirectly, from Asmodeus's perversion of a divine dominion into the Nine Hells, which Asmodeus fashioned as a torture engine for the creation of magical energy. Although the destruction of the Lattice of Heaven and the ravages of the Dawn War weakened the other gods, Asmodeus became stronger. The Nine Hells, or at least the Outer Torments that surround them (page 76), make perfect targets for characters who want to proactively strike against the worst of the world's oppressors.

Zehir's agents seem preoccupied with their endless hunt for sacrifices to their deity. Of all the evil gods, Zehir is probably the least active outside his dominion, presumably because he is preoccupied with trying to push Tiamat out of the dominion she invaded (page 80).

Gods War Campaign Arc

This campaign arc demonstrates the potential of fully embracing the fight against the evil gods as a campaign theme.

As a renewed Dawn War threatens to destroy the Plane Above, the characters discover their secret divine identities.

Heroic Tier: Divine Sparks

During character creation, stipulate that the characters all have one detail in common—they were born on the same day. For races that have especially short or long life spans, work with players to create story justifications for their unusually early or late starts as adventurers. At the first session, ask the players to specify the strange set of coincidences that brought the group together.

Initially the characters appear to be nothing more than the usual assemblage of ambitious wayfarers, wandering from one seemingly random adventure to the next. Gradually, a divine theme emerges. Their adventures take place in temples and holy sites, ruined or otherwise. Religious fervor motivates their enemies, who are sworn to evil gods. Clerics and priests become their central patrons.

As the heroic tier continues, group members gradually come to doubt the stories they've been told about their parentage. Foundlings and orphans discover the mysterious details of their births. The characters who thought they had parents and families discover that they were adopted.

As the players reveal their characters' motives and personalities through play, associate each of them with one of the good gods. You can either pick the obvious choices, or you can go farther afield if doing so seems appropriate. A cleric of Erathis who continually demonstrates gung-ho fury in combat might actually be connected to Kord. A character associated with Bahamut need not be a dragonborn, and so on.

At the conclusion of the tier's climactic battle, the victorious characters suddenly undergo apotheosis. In a shudder of radiant energy, they shuck off their early bodies, like butterflies emerging from their larval forms.

Paragon Tier: Young Avatars

The adventurers reappear on a mist-swept isle in the Astral Sea, where the angel Norellel appears to them and reveals the truth. They were not born. They were fashioned as earthly incarnations of the gods. There were others like them, but they did not survive their earthly tests. The gods fashioned them in response to a prophecy of coming war. According to the oracles, the gods themselves might be somehow removed from the field when the moment of truth comes. Now Norellel will guide the characters on a series of missions to hone their divine natures.

The young avatars roam the planes, discovering plots by servitors of the evil gods to lay the groundwork for the coming war. Inquiries into the prophesied downfall of the gods yield only tantalizing hints. If the characters resent the thought of losing their identities to the gods who made them, they run into situations that stoke these feelings.

Slowly, they realize that Norellel might not be what he seems. Partway through the tier, he is revealed as a turncoat, working for the primordials and the gods of chaos.

The final encounter of the tier is with a group of formerly mortal avatars of the same gods as the

Dueling with Deities

Since the days of the first Deities & Demigods supplement for the original D&D game, players and DMs have felt the irresistible lure of pitting their high-level characters against the gods directly. The game still makes possible this style of play, though slaying a god should be a very difficult process, even for powerful epic tier characters.

There's plenty of support in this volume for campaigns that fight against the evil gods' plans, their dominions, and their servitors. But this book isn't oriented toward setting up a god-slaying campaign.

characters, counterparts who have been turned to evil by Norellel's sibling, Karjeen.

Epic Tier: The Tomorrow Gods

The first encounter of the epic tier is a battle with Norellel as he attempts to escape. If he dies, his vengeful brother will return later, choosing a time when the characters are vulnerable.

The new war begins. Rippling energy from the destruction of immortal combatants dims the silvery light of the Astral Sea. This event inspires the conflagration's name: the Dusk War.

Many of the evil gods cast aside old rivalries to unite against the heavenly realms alongside chaos. The deities appoint the characters as their generals. They decide whether to protect their territories or invade the infernal realms.

At the upper end of the epic tier (level 28 or 29), the god each character incarnates is destroyed when Tharizdun, loosed from his chains, executes a suicide attack against them. The player characters are now the last sparks of the slain gods—and they can become those gods, if they survive the final fight against the evil gods.

Join Heaven's Order

Many epic tier campaigns experiment with the idea that one or more of the characters become exarchs serving a particular deity, or exarchs in their own right. Campaigns set in the Astral Sea place these transformations into context.

A character who becomes an exarch might have a divine dominion that now functions as his or her true home. With a small bit of negotiation, an exarch could extend the advantages of his or her new home to the rest of his or her powerful allies, as long as none of them was an actual enemy of the character's deity.

By examining the Astral Sea, a character who becomes an independent demigod understands clearly that most of the true gods have their own dominions. Is there some way a group of demigods could arrange to have their own dominion? As proven by Erathis's intention to restore Shom (page 62), the answer is probably yes. What might be true of Shom could also be true of shattered dominions such as Kalandurren (page 114) or Pandemonium (page 116). A single god might not have the power or versatility to restore a shattered dominion, but a group of epic characters with unified destiny quests to restore a dominion and make it their own is a story worth playing.

To help such grand stories grow naturally out of play, The Plane Above includes information on the motives, hidden problems, and long-term goals of the good and unaligned deities, as well as their angels (page 32). Arvandor, Celestia, and Hestavar are not just adventure sites, they are also the homes of the character's greatest prospective employers and the models for the type of environment the characters might one day create themselves.

Divine Tasks

While the characters rampage freely around the Astral Sea, the deities have to devote a great deal of their power to tasks that maintain creation, the proper functioning of the world, and the strength of their dominions.

Ongoing Creation and Defense of the World: The gods created the mortal races along with most pieces of the world that still sustain mortals' lives. Although the primal spirits have inherited an active supernatural presence in the world, helping to sustain it and making up for all the gods who died in the Dawn War, the primal spirits would not be able to keep the primordials at bay if not for the gods' continuing magical support of the world's defenses.

Maintaining the Flow of Divine Power through the Worlds: Player characters and other powerful beings that draw on the divine power source typically earn their powers through investiture. Neither a deity nor its servitors needs to personally empower a cleric's prayers; rather, the cleric has gained the ability to control divine magic through an initiation ritual particular to his or her god. But if a god does not spend some effort sending power through the world and the world's echoes, the efficacy of its worshipers' powers and rituals would eventually dwindle. In extreme cases, the divine powers of characters worshiping a neglectful god would take a –1 penalty to attack rolls and damage rolls, then a –2 penalty, and so on. Such problems would be the visible symptom of a deeper and more dangerous problem, which is why new gods usually move quickly to try to inherit a dead god's power.

Maintaining and Expanding their Dominion: Gods that are part of a functioning dominion spend a large amount of their attention and energy holding it together and trying to increase its power, particularly when their exalted are attempting to increase the dominion's size by absorbing a border island (page 36). Some deities without dominions of their own, such as Avandra and Melora, share a portion of their power with gods who provide their exalted with a home dominion.

Gathering Strength: Mythic history shows that even the strongest gods eventually require every weapon in their arsenal to survive. In periods of cosmic stalemate, such as the present day, deities gather strength, alternately concealing or revealing their power level from their peers as it suits them.

Friends among the Exalted

Even if the characters aren't on the path of ascension, the friendly dominions can be places where they naturally take part in activities normally pursued by exalted and angels.

Arvandor offers the Glorious Hunt (page 38), a dangerous hunt for abominations. Characters who excel in the Glorious Hunt earn the favor of Corellon, Sehanine, Avandra, and Melora even if they have no intention of ultimately serving those gods.

Celestia welcomes powerful warriors to the Game of Mountains (page 46), a wargame contest played seasonally among Celestia's peaks that shapes the dominion's magic for the months to come. The Game of Mountains gives allies a chance to test their strength against each other while cementing alliances that could prove decisive in real battles. Kord's fears of the final Dusk War (page 45) could prove unfounded, but if he is right, it will be to the characters' benefit to be in his good graces and have learned of his fears by excelling in the Game of Mountains.

Overcome Heaven's Flaws

It's possible that the noblest response to the current problems of the flawed heavens would be to end the injustice by which some souls become exalted and others exiled from their heaven, living as outsiders.

Bahamut thinks so; see "Bahamut's Arks" on page 46. The Game of Making (page 62) might be less concerned with the fate of individual outsiders and more concerned with increasing the power of Erathis. It's true that if Erathis's plan to restore the destroyed dominions succeeds, the next step could be to build a new Lattice of Heaven. Unless the Lattice was subverted by Asmodeus or otherwise corrupted, it could increase the number of souls that receive their just rewards as exalted.

Given Erathis's current problems getting the right help (see "Purifiers of Shom," page 122), her Game of Making might already have set off on a corrupt path. Perhaps the characters can restore perspective before it's too late.

Characters who care deeply about such issues, possibly as a consequence of friendships with particular outsiders, could come up with their own solutions that do not depend on the plans of the gods. The following campaign arc shows one bizarre path in which overcoming the tragedy of the flawed heaven eventually becomes the point.

The Outsiders Campaign Arc

Although this campaign arc grants the characters a long-delayed triumph in the end, it spends much of its time withholding the power-fantasy thrills that D&D traditionally supplies. Run it for groups that you know you can ruthlessly challenge.

Heroic Tier: The Also-Rans

The characters pursue their adventuring careers in haphazard fashion. Frequently finding themselves at loose ends, they stumble into dungeons, randomly struggle against unrelated enemies, and pick up plot hooks from the usual assortment of tavern riffraff. Their battles are as tough as any group's, but tend not to be rewarded as extensively. Whenever they seek greatness, it narrowly eludes them. They perform heroically against an orc horde, but see another adventuring band win accolades for an even more decisive victory against the orc chieftain. When they head back to the inn to boast of a zombie-killing spree, they find flagons being hoisted to a group of similar stature who managed to stake a vampire. They survive an episode of political intrigue only to learn they were pawns in a greater scheme.

Oracles, omens, and prophecies crop up on a regular basis. Whenever they peer into their future, the characters learn that they are almost destined for greatness, but that they will always be a day late and a silver coin short.

As the tier reaches its climax, the characters finally come upon the chance to make their mark. They discover a plot by an evil high priest to flood the world with abominations from the Astral Sea. Over a series of increasingly momentous encounters, they track the priest to his lair.

The priest is a 15th-level solo creature. At this point, mercilessly kill the party. For one encounter only, every tenet of fair play goes out the window. If the group seems poised to take him out, pour in more opposition.

Paragon Tier: Misplaced Souls

Just because the characters are dead doesn't mean the campaign ends. Don't tell the players right away, but things will look up soon.

The characters materialize as outsiders on the shoals of a lonely astral archipelago near the Outer Torments. The island is ruled by a cackling devil named Brethan. He captures stray soulforms, selling them to the highest bidder, and he has had his eye on the characters for a long time. They were successful enough to reach the Astral Sea, but apparently not worthy of exalted status and a place in any of the true dominions. Brethan plans to sell them to slavers from the Nine Hells who will imprison them in Baator.

By defeating Brethan and his customers, the characters win their autonomy. Now they can freely wander the Astral Sea, looking for a home. Although able to make themselves useful as wandering adventurers, they're excluded from the dominions of the gods. Run-ins with exalted induce great envy. The characters even meet their former earthly rivals, now exalted dead resplendent in holy armor and regalia.

As their reward for a climactic battle late in the paragon tier, the characters learn that their fate might not be immutable. Apparently, the tragedy of the dominions is not an inescapable consequence of the destruction of the Lattice of Heaven. According to the characters' new information, Asmodeus's remodeling of Baator is to blame. Asmodeus designed the Nine Hells to grab as many souls as possible, which overloaded the system of soulform collection that the dominions were designed to support.

Epic Tier: Beating Hell into a Heaven

By seeking to confront Asmodeus and fix the divine afterlife, the characters pit themselves against the forces of hell. They eventually learn that the architect of the problem was a servitor of Asmodeus that was locked away in Carceri by his god. The rest of the gods are powerless to release the prisoner, so the characters will have to handle the jailbreak.

Of course, the abomination plague is the first thing that breaks free. Perhaps the characters handle it themselves, or perhaps they have acquired a following of outsiders that understand the stakes and will serve the characters as an army of the dispossessed.

As the tier reaches its climax, the characters learn that the Nine Hells wouldn't be the only dominion destroyed if they were to undo its twisted magic. Many other dominions would perish also, unable to cope with the increased numbers of exalted.

The perfect solution for the characters would be to overthrow the Nine Hells and set themselves up as the gods of the outsiders. As a result, all willing outsiders—rejected by their former deities—would become the characters' exalted. Thus do the lowly become the greatest power in the multiverse.

Adventure into Myth

The final theme takes advantage of the blend of myth, history, and conflict permeating the Plane Above to suggest campaign-transforming adventures. Rather than merely learning about the pivotal moments of mythic history as past events, the characters could travel into the past to participate in, and possibly change, the events that shaped the world. You will have to determine the extent to which you want the characters to be able to alter your modern game world through their actions deep in the mythological past. This is a chance to shake up the foundations of reality that your players have taken for granted until the epic tier.

Not every DM will be interested in running this type of adventure, so artifacts, rituals, or locations that can send the characters into the long-ago world of deep myth aren't included in this book. Traveling into deep myth should be presented as an extremely significant act that is far more meaningful than normal adventures. If you are interested in including this theme in your game, feel free to make a journey into deep myth the focus of an entire sequence of adventures. One adventure might ascertain the location of the spot where the characters could enter a particular location in deep myth. The next adventure might uncover the ritual that works in that location. The third adventure might recover the artifact that allows travel into deep myth when used with the ritual at that location.

Deep Myth Structure

One possible structure is to set three possible success levels for deep myth adventures. The characters need to know something about the probable effects of success or failure, but should not have perfect understanding of all of their victory's consequences, so that they can be pleasantly surprised.

Failure: The world the characters return to is even worse than the world they knew.

Success: The world the characters return to is much the same as the world they left, but their own place in the world has markedly improved.

Complete Victory: The world is somehow greatly improved by the characters' success in the past.

Here are two examples of deep myth adventures and their possible consequences to demonstrate potential storylines.

Invasion of Kalandurren

After an adventure in "modern" Kalandurren, the shattered dominion infested with demons and arena-crazed nihilists (page 114), set a subsequent adventure back in deep myth during the original invasion of Kalandurren by Orcus, Rimmon, and Demogorgon.

Failure: The invasion ruins Kalandurren, and it also scars a portion of the Astral Sea that was previously untouched by the demon princes.

Success: Kalandurren is still in ruins, and the characters—not Amoth—slay the demon prince Rimmon, thereby gaining powers over demons and a stake in the magic of Kalandurren. Over the course of a few levels of adventures, the characters might be able to purge Kalandurren and remake it into a dominion that suits them.

Complete Victory: The characters prevent the demon invasion from killing Amoth. Perhaps the god survives by traveling forward with the characters. Now he is alive and owes the characters a huge favor. He might want to reclaim his dominion, or he might leave that to the characters. Someone also needs to conclude unfinished business with Orcus (Monster Manual, page 206) and Demogorgon (Monster Manual 2, page 42); give the characters the task they prefer and send Amoth to take care of the other threat.

Bahamut, Lakal, and Nihil

For the full story of Lakal's death from a fight between the god Bahamut and a primordial known as Nihil, see page 101. Characters who have had many of their friends and allies killed by the quom could seek an elegant solution to the ever-present problem they pose. The quom are murdering fanatics, but Lakal herself was blameless. There might be a way to save Lakal without harming Bahamut if the characters are willing to travel into the past to help kill Nihil, precluding the need to sacrifice Lakal.

Failure: Depending on the manner in which the characters fail, Lakal might survive while Bahamut is maimed. Play up the consequences of a cosmos with a maimed god of justice. Alternatively, Lakal could die as before, and the being that the quom are still diligently assembling is now Nihil, not Lakal. As the characters return to the current timeline, the quom are close to restoring Nihil.

Success: The characters return with Lakal's still-beating heart. The merciful deity extends her influence across the Astral Sea, asking the characters to protect her from quom driven mad by the shame of their fall from Lakal's merciful ways. One problem exists, however, because Nihil seems to have returned to life along with Lakal. Nihil draws some primordials up from the Elemental Chaos, and the characters must fight to prevent the second primordial invasion from destroying the rest of the Plane Above.

Complete Victory: Lakal is restored in a burst of power. The quom, except for those who have gone insane, begin helping heal the scars of the Dawn War. Lakal asks her champions, the characters, to help with the final task of "healing" those quom who can't be saved and starts the process by cursing these outcasts by warping them with lopsided features (see page 102 for the quom aesthetic of symmetry).

TRAVELING THE ASTRAL SEA

At some point, the characters might want to travel through the Astral Sea. Here are rules to keep in mind while journeying through the astral realm.

Modes of Travel

There are three common methods used for point-to-point travel through the astral realm: flying, swimming, and sailing. All three amount to the same rough speeds of locomotion and interact more or less identically with astral hazards and navigation.

Flying: Creatures that are natural flyers have no trouble flying through the Astral Sea. As flyers, they also have no problem rising above the astral horizon. Flying below the astral horizon is psychologically more difficult because it seems like being underwater.

Swimming: In theory, swimming creatures should have no trouble traveling through the Astral Sea. They can manage bursts of speed and trips of several hours as well as flyers can. But in practice, over long periods of time, swimming through the raw astral stuff drains creatures' energy, costing them one healing surge for every two hours spent swimming through the Astral Sea. These healing surges can be regained as normal with an extended rest. Traversing the Astral Sea within the color veils of dominions and other powerful motes is not as draining upon the mind and body, however, and does not cause the loss of healing surges.

Sailing: Most humanoids think of the silver astral realm as a sea. Astral skiffs, planar dromonds, spelljammers, githyanki pirate ships, quom raiders, and the various dominion ships treat the Plane Above as if it were a great ocean. They're greatly aided in this belief by the constant astral winds that make actual sailing more reliable than it is on the world's oceans. The advantage and drawback of navigation by sailing is that sailors fall naturally into the pattern of orienting themselves along the astral horizon. This mindset is an advantage because the color strands that extend out from the dominions tend to manifest along the horizon line rather than above or below it, allowing those who sail along the horizon to sometimes use the strands to greatly shorten their journey. The disadvantage is that sailors often miss more subtle sites hidden above or below the astral horizon.

See "Navigating the Astral Sea" on page 25 for rules for sailing to specific destinations point-to-point or by the quicker route of finding the right color strand and using its magic to teleport to a location a few miles from the destination.

Ship-to-Ship Combat in the Astral Sea

Ship-to-ship battles in the Astral Sea usually play out as fights between the crews and passengers of the ships. A typical fight starts with missile combat between the ships' passengers followed by a boarding action. Such combat usually ends with one side surrendering or being slain rather than with a vessel being disabled.

Few combatants want to destroy enemy vessels outright. They're worth far more as plunder than as debris. Few astral vessels carry armaments that do any significant amount of damage to other ships. And unlike seagoing vessels, astral vessels don't sink when they've been damaged, unless you rule otherwise, though they could require repairs to function again.

Most powers used by player characters and monsters are much more effective at damaging creatures than objects. At your option, characters could use appropriate powers against enemy vessels rather than against enemy creatures. In such cases, you should reduce the damage of single-target attacks while allowing area attacks to deal normal damage if those attacks target only the enemy vessel and not any enemy creatures.

Astral Vehicles

The five vessels that player characters are most likely to use to sail the Astral Sea are the astral clipper and astral schooner detailed below, and the astral skiff, planar dromond, and spelljammer detailed in Manual of the Planes (page 159).

Astral vessels aren't necessarily for sale in every port of the Astral Sea. Hestavar and the Daybreak Islands are the most likely places to find a full selection of vehicles for sale. The ports of Starhallow and Luethvar often have a full selection of astral vessels available. Other ports in the Foothills or the Green Isles usually have at least one vessel for sale, even if it's just a broken-down skiff at full price.

Of course, the time-honored method of acquiring a better vessel by seizing it from the first astral pirates who make the mistake of attacking you is still the most cost-efficient method.

Astral Clipper

Based on design concepts pioneered by the githyanki, these sleek vessels have become much more common in recent decades thanks to nongithyanki shipyards in Arvandor and in border island cities such as Starhallow and Luethvar.

Great mesh sails on multiple masts catch the magic winds of the Astral Sea to propel clippers faster than most other vessels as long as the crew remains attentive. Most have open decks similar to those on seafaring ships in order to serve as missile and fighting platforms. Clippers built to avoid combat sometimes have enclosed decks fitted with hatches, but such designs are uncommon, because they risk yielding the ship to boarders. Gleaming rods extend out from the hull to provide control and stability.

Astral Clipper

AC 3; Fortitude 20, Reflex 2
Speed fly 14 (hover), overland flight 18

Pilot
The pilot must stand at a control wheel, typically at the rear of the astral clipper.

Crew
In addition to the pilot, an astral clipper requires a crew of four, all of whom use a standard action each round to control the clipper. Reduce the clipper 's fly speed by 4 squares for each missing crew member. At fly speed 0, an astral clipper sails out of control.

Load
Twenty five Medium creatures; thirty tons of cargo.

Out of Control
An out-of-control astral clipper moves forward at half speed (not including any modifiers for its astral sails).

Sails
An astral clipper takes a penalty or bonus to its fly speed from -4 to +4 depending on the strength and direction of the wind.

Astral Attunement
An astral clipper functions only in the Astral Sea.

Fragile Propulsion
For every 100 damage an astral clipper takes, its speed is reduced by 2 squares. At fly speed 0, the ship comes to a stop.

Astral Schooner

Astral schooners sacrifice speed for carrying capacity, allowing them to hold more passengers and cargo belowdecks.

Astral Schooner

Crew
In addition to the pilot, an astral schooner requires a crew of six, all of whom use a standard action each round to control the schooner. Reduce the schooner's fly speed by 2 squares for each missing crew member. At fly speed 0, an astral schooner sails out of control.

Load
Fifty Medium creatures; fifty tons of cargo.

Out of Control
An out-of-control astral schooner moves forward at half speed (not including any modifiers for its astral sails).

Astral Attunement
An astral schooner functions only in the Astral Sea.

Fragile Propulsion

Dominion Ships

Each of the divine dominions has between five and a dozen specially designed astral skiffs, astral clippers, and astral schooners to use for important missions and military expeditions. Life in the Plane Above is not always a grim contest for survival, so dominion ships are also frequently used by the exalted for trading, sightseeing, and joyriding. The craft used by the various dominions look extremely different from each other. Use the given advantages to customize the statistics for the clipper, schooner, or skiff.

Dominion ships aren't precious simply because they look good, but rather because they allow the exalted of a particular dominion to travel the Astral Sea and still benefit from their dominion's resurrection power. The dominion ships tap into the Astral Sea's memory of the original Lattice of Heaven. Each dominion ship extends the resurrecting power of the dominion to an exalted who dies onboard or within 100 yards of the craft. The exalted are not resurrected on the ship, but return to life back in their god's dominion. Death on a dominion ship isn't taken lightly, however, because it is harder on the soulforms than death in the deity's dominion.

The rituals that power and enchant dominion ships are centrally controlled from the divine dominion. If enemies take a ship, its magic will be revoked, leaving it to drift as a powerless hunk of well-crafted wood and metal.

Politics and Shipmates

Allied deities who share a dominion have pooled their magic so that exalted of any of the gods of the dominion can be found on any of its ships. Ships from these dominions often mix features and decoration belonging to the dominion's gods.

Enemy gods who happen to share a dominion have separate dominion ships. The warring Bane and Gruumsh and the hostile Zehir and Tiamat each have their own separate dominion ships, and each considers destruction of the other's dominion ships a great coup.

Dominion Ships and the Characters

As mentioned in the "Campaign Themes" section, circumstances such as the favor of a god could lead to the characters piloting a dominion ship. If the characters prefer the independent route, use the following advantages as a guide for ways that the characters might be able to upgrade their vessels without falling back on the power of a dominion.

Arvandor dominion ships

Ships of the Dominions

Each group of dominion ships has a slight mechanical advantage that can be used to modify the statistics of a specific ship. In addition, all dominion ships carry their dominion's energy affinity, so that, for example, those aboard Hestavar's dominion ships (radiance affinity) gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls with radiant attacks and deal half damage with necrotic attacks.

Arvandor

Arvandor's graceful craft are among the swiftest ships of the Astral Sea. Corellon and Sehanine command a fleet of between eight and a dozen ships.

Advantage: The craft gains speed +4 when at least one crew member spends an action to sail it.

Bane dominion ships

JASON A. ENGLE/WAYNE ENGLAND

Celestia dominion ship

Typical Names: Names follow either elven simplicity or eladrin elegance. Known ships include Arrow of the Court, Broadleaf, Crater Maker, Falcon, and Homeward Spiral.

Bane

Bane's forces send far too many ships into the Shrapnels (page 59) and beyond to use dominion ships exclusively, especially since invasions and most military actions require larger ships. Encountering Bane's dominion ships is a sign that something serious is afoot. Compared to other dominion ships, Bane's ships tend to sacrifice speed for the ability to carry more marines for boarding actions or landings.

Advantage: +25 percent crew capacity (but -2 to overland flight speed).

Typical Names: Fist of Iron, Orcslayer, Slaughter, Tuern's Remorse.

Celestia

Celestia's ships blend the solidity of Moradin's mountains with Kord's storm magic and roosts for Bahamut's dragons. The size of Celestia's small fleet varies wildly: Moradin's workshops build new craft regularly, but the dominion's traveling exalted veer toward the reckless side, often crashing the ships into floating objects or powerful monsters. There are anywhere between four and eighteen in service at any given moment.

Advantage: +2 bonus to all defenses, +2 to overland speed.

Typical Names: Coldbreath, Mercy, Old Quarrel, Smoking Hammer, Stormking.

Gruumsh

Missions on Gruumsh's ramshackle dominion ships are often one-way trips. The vessels can't always be trusted to hold together for the return trip. Even if a ship remains viable, it's a toss-up whether the battlesworn aboard manage to get themselves killed on the craft and return to Chernoggar or head off on some other rampage, perhaps finding their way back eventually.

Advantage: When out of control, Gruumsh's dominion ships move at full speed.

Gruumsh dominion ships

WILLIAM O'CONNOR/WAYNE ENGLAND

Hestavar dominion ships

Typical Names: None—naming a ship is a fancy trick used by those who are not as strong as Gruumsh to make themselves feel better about their puny vessels.

Hestavar

The Game of Making provides Hestavar with the largest of the dominion fleets. As outlined on page 62, Erathis's plans for reestablishing the shattered dominions require a large fleet. One advantage of Hestavar's dominion ships is special lenses that enable those sailing in them to find Pelor's light no matter where they are in the Astral Sea, allowing them to orient themselves toward home.

Advantage: Improved point-to-point navigation (use the next-higher row on the astral navigation chart for the trip being taken), +2 to overland speed.

Typical Names: Glorious Path, Pride of Hestavar, Rising Dawn, Torch of the Morning.

The Nine Hells

The devils usually moor their hellships in Avernus or Dis. Such ships are rare—there are at most six. Asmodeus likes to use hellships because he prefers to present himself to the other dominions as a suave negotiator, and there's nothing diplomatic or ambassadorial about arriving in a clanking torture chariot. The "exalted" of the Hells are the damned, and hell's

Nine Hells dominion ship

JASON A. ENGLE/WILLIAM O'CONNOR

Zehir dominion ships

dominion ships are unique in that they resurrect the "exalted" riding in them quite quickly. They have to, since the screaming deaths of the damned are the only magical medium that can power the hellships. Obviously, devils are the actual masters of the hellships, and just as obviously they don't need dominion ships to get around the Astral Sea. They tend to use hellships when they want to intimidate their enemies.

Advantage: Those onboard gain a +2 bonus to Intimidate checks, and enemy boarders take a -2 penalty to attack rolls (save ends).

Typical Names: Most hellships are named after the form of torture that powers the craft: Eyeball-Gouger, Chew Your Own Heart Out, and Fourfold Impaler are a few examples.

Tiamat

Much as Tiamat would like to put mighty battle-wagons with roosting spots for many dragons into the sky, her magic seems limited to creating fairly small stealth craft. Tiamat's dominion ships have one marked advantage: They have magic foci that amplify the breath weapons of dragons that are onboard.

Advantage: During each turn, one dragon onboard can double the range and area of its breath weapon.

Typical Names: Ships are named after dragons that win Tiamat's favor. A ship is never named after Tiamat herself, since ships are occasionally lost.

Zehir

Like Tiamat, Zehir has ships that are somewhat smaller than he would like. Zehir's craft are quick and maneuverable, even for their small size.

Advantage: The craft gains speed +2 when at least one crew member spends an action to sail it. In addition, once per day, the craft can regain 25 percent of its hit points when one of its own exalted crew members is ritually sacrificed upon it.

Typical Names: Fang of Shadow, High Poison, Rendered Sacrifice, Slither.

Navigating the Astral Sea

The stuff of the Astral Sea is to some extent amenable to the willpower of those traversing it. A navigator can fix a firm idea in mind of any destination that is at least as big as a dominion and head in the direction that seems right. Eventually the traveler will get there, though the route might not be swift, safe, or optimal. Therefore, in games that don't use dramatic tension caused by faulty navigation attempts or the exhilaration of spot-on-navigation, run navigation through the astral realm as a combination of presumed navigational skill and DM fiat. On the other hand, if you want a quick and dirty navigation system to provide player characters with some control over their course, here is one option.

Free Sailing

Point-to-point navigation without using a color strand takes time. Sailing through the entire Astral Sea is best reserved for travel to astral motes and citadels that don't have color strands, or for unobtrusive approaches to avoid riding a color strand that enemies might be monitoring. Of course, it's also what characters will fall back on when they can't find the proper color strand.

EMPTY ROOM STUDIO - ADAM PAQUETTE

POINT-TO-POINT ASTRAL NAVIGATION

| Destination | Best Option | Secondary Options | Time with Success | Time with Failure |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Active Divine Dominion | Religion (easy), Nature (easy) | Arcana (moderate), History (moderate), Perception (hard) | 1d4 days | 2d3 days |
| Ruined Dominion | Arcana (moderate), Nature (moderate) | History (hard), Religion (hard) | 1d6 days | 3d4 days |
| Familiar Astral Mote | Arcana (moderate), Nature (moderate) | History (hard) | 1d6 days | 1d10 days |
| Mapped Astral Mote | Nature (hard) | Arcana (hard), History (hard) | 2d4 days | 4d4 days |
| Rumored Astral Mote | Nature (hard) | Arcana (hard), History (hard) | 2d6 days | 2d6 days, and location isn't found |

The accompanying table assumes that the characters are traveling on a skiff of average speed or flying at average speed and are starting from one of the divine dominions rather than the far astral. Use the skill of the character that is navigating. Add a day of travel time if the characters use one of the secondary options. If the characters are in a notably quick or slow vessel, subtract or add one or two days of travel time per travel time die, with a minimum of one day per die. Reduce days from the trip if the navigating character rolls a natural 20.

Using Color Strands

Traveling on color strands is the quickest way to reach a dominion's environs. Most color strands deposit a vessel a couple of hours or half a day from the central dominion.

The number of color strands in the vicinity of a dominion or mote varies, because color strands fade in and out of existence. Generally, 1d3 -1 color strands can be found in the vicinity of an active divine dominion and 1d2 -1 color strands around a shattered dominion. It takes 1d6 hours to find a new color strand (if there's one to be found).

You can roll on the color strand table below to determine which color strands might be in the area, then the characters can decide how long they spend sailing around the area searching for the strand they want. If they find it, they can sail straight in. If they can't find it and don't want to use one of the other found strands, they'll have to take the long way.

While traveling along the astral horizon, there is a 50% chance of encountering a color strand each day.

To determine which color strand has been located, roll a d20 and consult the table below. There can be more than one of the same color strand in an area. The first time a color strand is seen from an active dominion, it might look like a series of quick flashes: iconic images from the dominion. The color strands from shattered dominions are just colored light with no images or texture.

COLOR STRANDS

| d20 | Dominion and Color |
|---|---|
| 1-2 | Arvandor—a dark green strand with flickering glimpses of trees and rushing water |
| 3 | Carceri—a deep rust-red strand |
| 4-5 | Celestia—a brilliant gold strand with glimpses of mountains |
| 6-7 | Chernoggar—a red-orange strand with fleeting shadows of marching troops |
| 8-9 | Hestavar—a beautiful sapphire strand with glimpses of high towers |
| 10 | Kalandurren—a pale gray strand |
| 11-13 | The Nine Hells—a swirling ruby red strand with glimpses of the globe of Baator; sometimes it's embellished with horns or grinning mouths |
| 14 | Pandemonium—a magenta strand |
| 15 | Pluton—an iron gray strand |
| 16 | Shom—a pale blue strand |
| 17-18 | Tytherion—an indigo strand with a fleeting impression of flowing scales |
| 19 | "Gambler Strand"—a strand that flickers with all colors that leads to a random destination in the Astral Sea, possibly nowhere near a dominion |
| 20 | Planar—a multicolored strand that leads to a different plane entirely, determined by you, or randomly at your option. Silver strands lead to the natural world, emerald green strands lead to the Feywild, black strands lead to the Shadowfell, mottled opal strands lead to the Elemental Chaos, and swirling dark purple strands lead to the Abyss |

Gambler Strands and the Githyanki

Veteran captains know that finding a gambler strand substantially increases the likelihood that there are githyanki in the area. The githyanki seek out gambler strands, using them as escape routes when they can't outfight or outsail pursuers. The githyanki have little fear of ending up in a random location in the Astral Sea. They trust their skills, and their connection to Tu'narath (pages 94 and 96) helps them quickly orient their ships. Nongithyanki might feel less confident about plunging into a gambler strand and will be more reluctant to enter one.

Adventures on the Astral Sea

The eerie tranquility of astral travel is often shattered by eruptions of sudden danger. Characters aboard skiffs or other conveyances could face magical storms, arcane anomalies, hostile ships, or hungry free-flying creatures, such as astral dreadnoughts. Depending on the game's pace, such a moment of navigational menace can be resolved with a single skill check, as a skill challenge, or as an extended combat or action set piece.

General Shipboard Actions

The following skills can be applied to nearly any shipboard emergency.

- Acrobatics: Perform stunts requiring precarious climbing up, down, or through the ship's masts and rigging. Tumble through falling obstacles to secure a critical piece of equipment knocked loose in the struggle.
- Athletics: Momentarily hold stressed or breaking ship pieces in place. Man the ship's helm, executing audacious maneuvers or steering the vessel in the face of great resistance.
- Arcana: Pour additional magical fuel into the engines, momentarily (and dangerously) increasing the vessel's speed or maneuverability (to compensate for missing crew members, for instance).
- Endurance: Perform tasks while battered and nearly destroyed; survive with minimal food and water after supplies are lost or stolen.
- History: Identify oncoming vessels by size and configuration, naming the origin and likely intentions of their crews.
- Perception: Spot trouble before it starts, determine the weak point in an enemy's hull, or see a creature's vulnerability.

Interactions with Rival Crews

Battles between ships can play out as distant exchanges of ranged attacks, or as boarding actions. In either case, add drama to ship combat sequences through interaction with enemy crews before hostilities commence.

- Bluff: Fool target crews into believing you're an ally, acting at an unexpected moment to obtain surprise.
- Diplomacy: Persuade pirates, slavers, and other predators to select an easier or richer target; determine what bribes are needed to secure escape if things go sour.
- Intimidate: Persuade potential attackers that you'll hurt them more than they'll hurt you.
- Insight: Identify crews planning to attack you while they pose as friendly or helpless travelers; make an important mental connection about an enemy's ship or tactics.

Chase

When the crew of one vessel tries to engage and the other tries to escape, a chase ensues. If you know that a fight will ensue when one vessel catches up to the other, resolve the chase as a single Athletics check by the character at the helm. In instances when the conclusion of the chase won't necessarily lead to ship combat, run the chase sequence as a skill challenge of its own.

- Arcana: Spot astral eddies to gain increased speed; locate nebulae or other astral bodies to hide behind; find portals allowing magical teleport to another sector of the sea.
- Nature: Spot or avoid schools of astral creatures that impede navigation.
- Stealth: Plot a confusing course while fleeing; identify a confusing course laid in by a fleeing vessel.

Disable or Destroy Enemy Vessels

In some ship combats, the object of the skill challenge is to disable or destroy the enemy vessel. On the Astral Sea, destruction of a ship is less disastrous than on an ocean in the world. Crews and passengers are left slowly floating in astral space and need not fear drowning or exposure-related injury. On the other hand, without a fast ship, they become easy targets for predators.

- Arcana: Use onboard magical weaponry (if available) to modify arcane ranged and area attacks to damage ships from a distance. This check allows subsequent uses of the attack powers themselves. Expending a daily arcane power grants a +5 bonus to the attack roll.
- Religion: As above, but using divine attacks.
- Weapon Attack: Use onboard mechanical weapons such as harpoons and ballistae to damage the enemy vessel.

Depending on how open you are to collaborative description, you might let players specify how their ships are equipped with long-range weapons and where those weapons are located on the vessel. There should be enough weapons and other important mechanisms (such as steering) for each character to act in a given round. Alternatively, you could treat the acquisition of these weapons as a story obstacle of its own.

Conquering Enemy Vessels

In a skill challenge to board and overrun an enemy vessel, the characters contend for the opportunity to stage a fight on the enemy crew's deck. If they lose, the targets successfully disengage before a fight can occur. Alternatively, a lost challenge could result in the fight occurring on the characters' ship. Victorious invaders not only defeat their opponents, but can then seize control of the vessel.

- Acrobatics: Use a piece of loose rigging to swing onto the target deck.
- Intimidate: Frighten crew members into backing away or otherwise ceding ground.
- Stealth: Sneak aboard from a different direction to achieve surprise.

Allow movement attacks and racial powers to substitute for skills as the logic of the scene permits. For movement powers such as fey step, where no skill modifier pertains, ask for an Arcana check to determine if the character's "aim" is correct, or treat the use of the power as an automatic success.

Repulsing Boarding Attempts

In the reverse of the above scene, the characters are trying to repulse would-be boarders and avoid a fight on the deck of their own ship. Depending on how they describe their intent, success indicates that they avoid the fight and also evade pursuit, or allows them to conduct the fight on the enemy ship.

- Bluff: Lure an invader into making a false step or into an improvised trap.
- Intimidate: Scare off the invaders.
- Stealth: Surprise an invader attempting to move between vessels, shoving it overboard.

In addition to these boarding-specific actions, other player characters might be undertaking actions inspired by the "General" and "Chase" sections, above.

Environmental Hazards

Characters traveling the Astral Sea can face dangers beyond those presented by raiders, pirates, and creatures roaming the astral domain. Environmental factors can come into play as well.

Storms, Whirlpools, and Other Anomalies

Boiling with the unresolved magic of creation and powerful residual magic from the Dawn War, the unpredictable Astral Sea continually generates arcane storms to bedevil the unwary traveler. Storms move fast, tending to sweep through an area and move on. Less commonly, they spontaneously dissipate on the spot, leaving a ship eerily becalmed.

Other astral hazards are stationary and permanent. The most common of these is the whirlpool, a swirling vortex of energy that draws objects inexorably to its center to be battered by the force of astral space as it folds in on itself.

Astral navigators refer to other permanent astral hazards as anomalies. Most anomalies move slowly through the Astral Sea, with a third of them staying in the same place for months or years before drifting again. Movement patterns might follow a predictable geometric course or flow arbitrarily, buffeted by astral currents. Many anomalies indirectly owe their existence to the activities of the gods, whether recently or deep in the mythic past. A relative few anomalies are intentional creations of the deities or their ranking servitors, though most arise as a ripple effect from the marshaling of massive divine or primordial energy.

Whatever their effects, the checks used in challenges to avoid these various hazards remain the same.

- Arcana: Employ the vessel's magical instruments to detect oncoming hazards.
- Endurance: Physically shield an ally from harmful or disorienting energy, bearing the brunt of the damage and shrugging off the injury.
- History: Recall the location of anomalies to be avoided.
- Nature: Predict oncoming weather conditions through observing the astral eddies and the behavior of astral wildlife.
- Religion: Sense divine energy indicating the immediate presence or past activities of deities and their champions. Identify mythic ruins floating in the Astral Sea since the catastrophic events of the Dawn War.

With a successful skill challenge, the vessel avoids or effectively minimizes the ill effects of a storm, whirlpool, or anomaly. On a failure, the characters suffer the results associated with the hazard.

Specific Astral Sea Hazards

The hazardous terrain types described below are but a few of the possibilities encountered in the Astral Sea.

Brainswell Nebula

These gigantic cloud formations resembling a diseased and pulsing brain are often encountered in githyanki-controlled sectors of the Astral Sea.

Effect: When a creature uses a daily power or a random recharge power within a brainswell nebula, it takes 10 psychic damage per tier.

Usage: Add a brainswell nebula to a difficult encounter with githyanki pirates that understand the danger of the nebula and change their tactics accordingly.

Chainstorm

These phantasmal, shrieking chains are thought to be the echoes of an imprisoned deity's rage manifesting in the Astral Sea. Typically, chainstorms take up large areas (at least 10 by 10 squares) and can last a few minutes, days, or even weeks.

Effect: When a creature scores a critical hit or uses an action point while within a chainstorm, the spectral chains physically manifest and wrap themselves around the triggering creature, restraining it (save ends).

Usage: Chainstorms are a useful way to slow down mobile characters and work well when combined with creatures that can take advantage of immobilized enemies, combat advantage, or both.

Devouring Cloud

This anomaly takes the form of a chittering cloud of bright-red astral beetles. The sages of Kerith-Ald (Manual of the Planes, page 95) believe this blight was created and unleashed into the Astral Sea by Kyuss, the Spawner of Corruption, to further his ultimate goal of true apotheosis. Devouring clouds often manifest as small wisps of about 10 contiguous squares, but they can swarm into areas hundreds of feet across.

Effect: Devouring clouds are difficult terrain that affects both overland movement and flight. When a creature is bloodied or takes ongoing damage while within a devouring cloud, the cloud's astral beetles go into a frenzy, and the triggering creature and each creature within 2 squares of it take 5 damage per tier.

Usage: Use a devouring cloud as a replacement for a controller to divide a group of characters who are fighting brutes and soldiers.

Mask of Zorthos

This Gargantuan phantasmal clay mask, believed to be the hollowed-out head of Zorthos, the slain god of doubt and lassitude, spins endlessly through the Astral Sea.

Effect: When a creature touches the mask, or ends its turn in a space adjacent to the mask, it suffers the following effect until it reaches three milestones or until the effect is negated with a Remove Affliction ritual or similar effect.

Whenever the triggering creature saves against an effect that includes a dazing or stunning effect, it takes 10 psychic damage per tier.

Usage: This strange artifact could be used as a surface on which an encounter takes place. Astral marauders that have the power to daze or stun enemies would take full advantage of its effect.

Psychic Storm

Psychic storms darken the astral clouds and reach the size of earthly hurricanes. To escape one, those traveling in the Astral Sea must outrun the storm's leading edge as it sweeps through a sector of astral space.

Effect: When the escape attempt fails, the cloud either pushes the vessel or creature through a nearby color veil or leaves it in the storm's area of effect. In the latter case, when a creature starts its turn while within a psychic storm, it is dazed until the end of its next turn. In addition, psychic attacks made within a psychic storm gain a +2 bonus to the attack roll and deal half damage.

Usage: A psychic storm is a good way to introduce a skill challenge. Failure can lead either to travel to an unwanted location, or an encounter with creatures hiding inside the clouds.

Sehil's Guts

Legend suggests that this Huge phantasmal knot of blood-red tubes is the remains of the intestines of Sehil, a primordial that Kord slew barehanded during the Dawn War's final battle.

Effect: When a creature comes into contact with or ends its turn adjacent to Sehil's guts, it suffers the following effect until it reaches three milestones or until the effect is negated with a Remove Affliction ritual or similar effect.

When the triggering creature becomes bloodied, it and each of its allies within 3 squares of it grant combat advantage (save ends).

Usage: Use Sehil's guts as a fitting set piece in an encounter with aberrations or abominations that benefit from enemies that are granting them combat advantage.

Nihilath Shroud

This roiling wave of gray ectoplasmic matter continually sprouts tentacles, which pull and tear at each other and are then reabsorbed into the larger mass. The Nihilath shroud is a creation loosed into the Astral Sea by the ancient illithid empire of Nihilath (see Underdark, page 82). A shroud is usually a Huge piece of mobile terrain; some shrouds move randomly, while others seem to follow and hunt githyanki and githzerai travelers.

Effect: When a creature starts its turn in a square of Nihilath shroud, it is slowed until the end of its next turn or until it hits a githyanki or githzerai with an attack. In addition, any creature that ends its turn within a Nihilath shroud loses a healing surge.

Usage: Since it was designed by the illithids, a Nihilath shroud works well in an encounter with mind flayers, because the slow effect makes it harder for foes to avoid their attacks.

CHAPTER 2

Divine Dominions

JULIE DILLON

This chapter goes deeper into each of the functioning divine dominions, from the bright but dangerous Hunting Lands of Arvandor to the murderous tunnels and plateaus of Tytherion.

The dominion write-ups are accompanied by detailed treatment of each dominion's associated archipelago, which are the border islands that are home to most of the outsiders and mortals who live in the Astral Sea.

This chapter includes basic information about the gods and their servants, as well as the astral dominions and their border islands, and the challenges of adventuring there.

- The World of the Gods: Basic background information on the gods, angels, exalted, and outsiders of the dominions and border islands.
- Arvandor: A look at the convoluted mythic history of Corellon and Sehanine, and the present "heaven" of Arvandor, a beautiful land in which the Glorious Hunt is a religious duty and a practical necessity.
- Celestia: Details of the current purposes of each of Celestia's three gods and the Game of Mountains, which brings their followers together for war games that keep the dominion prepared for battle.
- Chernoggar: A dominion rocked by war between Bane and Gruumsh with multiple battlefields. It includes a skill challenge for characters wanting to cross those battlefields.
- Hestavar: Erathis's great mission to reconstruct heaven, the Game of Making's role in that mission, and the complementary agendas of Pelor and Ioun.
- The Nine Hells: Information on the realm of the damned, including Avernus and the River Styx, as well as an examination of devils' motives as plot hooks, including a six-page adventure that takes place on the surface of Avernus.
- Tytherion: Separate treatments of the nightmarish realms of Tiamat's Azharul and Zehir's Samaragd.

Each of the divine dominions detailed in this chapter is the home of one or more deities, countless angels and other divine servitors such as exarchs, and the embodied soulforms of mortal worshipers known as exalted enjoying an afterlife in the presence of their god.

An archipelago of between a dozen and two hundred smaller islands surrounds each functioning dominion. The border islands rise from the substance of the Astral Sea, apparently as a consequence of the leftover magic of the Lattice of Heaven. The border islands share many characteristics with the dominion that spawned them. Most of the inhabitants of the border islands are outsiders, the soulform beings who would have become exalted if the Lattice of Heaven had not been destroyed during the Dawn War. Mortals, unable to survive for long within the divine dominions, live among the outsiders in the border isles.

The following brief descriptions discuss the gods, angels, exalted, and outsiders who populate these realms.

The Gods

Even the gods who hate each other the most (Bahamut and Tiamat, Avandra and Zehir, Moradin and Asmodeus) seldom launch direct attacks against each other. No matter how much they might hate each other, the gods fought on the same side to survive the Dawn War while a great number of other deities were destroyed.

The primordials have been beaten down, but they are still a threat. Evil gods who ultimately intend to pin all the other gods and the world below beneath their heel are conscious of the fact that as the cosmos is presently balanced, their moment of victory would pass too quickly, replaced by eternal despair as they were themselves crushed by the resurgent primordials. The good and unaligned gods are likewise conscious of the fact that the full might of all the gods is what contains the primordials, no matter how much one god might want to permanently eliminate or maim a hated rival. The god slain today could be the god who was destined to be your savior in the next war against the primordials or the Far Realm.

As gods of chaos, Lolth and Tharizdun have demonstrated that they might side with the primordials in a new war. Gruumsh is chaotic and unreliable, but odds are that he would fight against chaos and the primordials more often than against the gods, much as he did in the Dawn War.

Exarchs

The gods' exarchs vary greatly in power, background, and life span. Unlike the gods' other servants, the angels, each of the exarchs took an individual path to power that led them to share their gods' secrets. The exarchs' widely varying levels, powers, and capabilities make them an invaluable tool at high paragon levels and the epic tier. You might not want to turn your campaign into an all-out war with Gruumsh, but any group of player characters could have an escalating conflict with Baghtru and Vaprak, Gruumsh's exarchs.

Each exarch is unique, but it's a safe assumption that a deity who has two or three exarchs could have another two or three that the characters don't know about yet, so campaigns hinging on high-powered conflict in the Plane Above can easily introduce new exarchs as needed.

The characters' choices of epic destinies could in fact demand such interactions. Demigods, Chosen, and many other epic destinies flow easily into roles as exarchs-at large for the deities the characters have become familiar with during their rise in power.

Some exarchs spend a lot of time in their god's dominion. Others roam the wider world. Like their god, most exarchs are uncomfortable on the border islands, but being an exarch means having a willingness to handle unpleasant tasks, which allows the god they serve to focus on the important tasks.

Angels

Angels are made from the same material of creation as the gods and were created as part of the original compact of heaven in which the gods agreed to share power in the natural world. The gods also share angels. The vast majority of angels are nameless servitors that pride themselves on having little personality so they can flow smoothly into the service of any god who calls them. The angels' mission is to perform the will of the deities, one god at a time, not to cling to a single god and promote its cause above those of all other deities.

For this reason, gods often want to have other servitors than angels. Angels can be trusted equally to give their all in service of any one of the gods, so each god looks for an edge: servants who are loyal only to him or her personally.

There are, of course, exceptions to the standard angelic behavior. Some angels find that they seem suited only for service to a single deity, adapting elements of the deity's ornamentation and symbolism into neutral angelic dress. A few angels develop strong personalities and choose names. Sometimes these angels go on to become exarchs, while at other times they carve bizarre paths in the Astral Sea before they disappear, are destroyed, or fade from existence.

Duty and Constraint

Angels serve the gods. Gods sometimes fight each other. Therefore, angels sometimes fight angels. Even so, angels cannot be persuaded to lend their energy to certain rituals or sacrifices that would imperil the deities or eliminate a great number of rival angels. They are willing to fight each other one or a dozen at a time, if that is what a god or a character wielding divine power commands, but they will not willingly destroy planar gates, shatter dominions, or slay deities as the primordials did in the Dawn War. Angels commanded to slay deities or exarchs destroy themselves before they can succeed.

Several of the evil deities are difficult for angels to serve with their customary efficiency and dedication. The problem is not evil alignment: Angels have no problem serving Bane, Tiamat, and Zehir, for instance, who are evil but have goals, methods, and magical environments that do not conflict with the original compact of heaven. The following gods, however, pose some problems.

Asmodeus: As a deity who is often at odds with the other gods, Asmodeus employs his devils for most of the tasks that angels perform for other deities. Still, it pleases the Lord of the Nine to have seven or a dozen angels near him, to be brought out when others need a subtle reminder that he is a full god. The angels that serve Asmodeus almost never fall into his control.

Gruumsh: The original compact of heaven did not include chaos. By embracing chaos, Gruumsh lost some of his ability to command angels. He occasionally employs angels in the world, and does so even less often in the astral realm. When he gets a good

THE ANGEL TRAILS

A golden road of sunlight opens in a high arc above the silver sea, thousands of miles above the horizon line where astral captains usually choose to sail. Testament to the angels' still existing connections to the original divine lattice, the Angel Trails are temporary roads between the dominions. Most arcs last for a day or three (at most a week) as angels of two dominions trade positions, information, and tasks, flowing back and forth along the trail almost too quickly to be perceived. The trails don't appear to work for any creatures other than angels. It seems likely that if the gods wished, the trails could be used to quickly transfer angels from one dominion to the other to respond to a renewed threat from the primordials.

HOWARD LYON

batch of angels, he likes to send them against Bane's angels to see what will happen.

Lolth: Lolth has broken her connections to the compact of heaven too systematically to enforce angelic obedience. Given that she lives in the Elemental Chaos and that her chosen people live in the primordials' Underdark, angels are seldom called into Lolth's service. When individual angels are summoned by Lolth's priests, they can expect to be sacrificed to a demon, set to guarding a door that cannot be trusted to a creature of darkness, or simply thrown into combat.

Tharizdun: An angel that finds itself working for Tharizdun is the victim of magic that has nothing to do with angelic duty.

Torog: Torog is locked in the Underdark and surrounded by miles of rock in what is effectively an alien creation. The few angels that work for Torog in the Underdark do not operate in comfort, and their losses are not quickly replaced. Torog prefers to use servitors of his own creation in the Underdark, employing the angels that are due to him as his agents in the world and in the Astral Sea.

Exalted

Exalted are soulforms—physical beings created from the souls of newly deceased mortals. Only a few of the mortals who are fervent worshipers of their deity become exalted. Many other mortal souls spiral out of the Shadowfell and past the dominions of the gods into unknown fates or are born again in new bodies with no memory of their previous incarnation. Other mortal souls might remain in the world among the primal spirits as ancestor spirits or guardians.

All Races, All Shapes: There are no racial or type-based restrictions on which intelligent worshipers become exalted. Dragons frequently become exalted, magical beasts sometimes become exalted, and even an occasional aberrant that has served a deity well slips into the dominions. Krag-Ik Eight Eye, the infamous beholder exalted of Kord, is probably the most sensational example, but realms such as Tytherion and Chernoggar are home to as many diverse forms of exalted as there are forms in the world.

JASON A. ENGLE

The Afterlife Isn't Forever: Exalted don't actually live forever. In the current damaged state of the divine dominions, exalted can expect to live for centuries or occasionally dozens of centuries.

Exalted who die violent deaths while within their god's dominion generally come back to life within 24 hours having all their memories. Exalted who die within an allied god's dominion might benefit from such resurrection, but not always. Exalted who die in enemy dominions or elsewhere in the silver sea just die. As soulforms, exalted cannot be affected by normal resurrection powers; they are resurrected only by the dominion magic of their deity or not at all.

Toward the end of a soulform's "lifetime," the exalted often understands that it is about to pass on. Some go on final pilgrimages to the rest of the dominions, often requiring characters as bodyguards to ensure that they aren't eliminated during the pilgrimage. Other exalted start aging and die, as if from old age. Still others gratefully add their souls to the fabric of the dominion in elaborate rituals.

Soulforms Stay in the Astral Sea: Exalted (and outsiders) who venture into the world, the other planes, or even Sigil, can expect at most a month of existence before the divine magic that binds them within their soulforms disintegrates. Within the Astral Sea, exalted can go where they like or where they are forced to go, without fear of dissolution.

No Children: When mortal children become exalted, they age normally to maturity, then stop aging. But neither exalted nor outsiders breed or bear children. Mortals in the astral realm can have children normally, but not with exalted partners.

Lustrous: There is a sort of glow or dark sheen to exalted that other creatures don't have. Unless an exalted being disguises its slightly too bright or crisp-edged soulform using magic or subterfuge, anyone within 20 feet can usually tell that the creature is exalted. Outsiders lack this sheen and sometimes refer to the exalted as "shinies."

THEMES FOR EXALTED

Nearly any creature could be an exalted of one of the deities. Ordinarily you should use creatures that match expectations for the deity involved, saving exceptions for dramatic or pivotal moments in the campaign. The game statistics for exalted are usually the same as the statistics of normal creatures. If you wish, you can also use tools such as the monster themes found in Chapter 4 or in Dungeon Master's Guide 2 to give some exalted (and outsiders) powers that correspond to their deity.

Corellon and Sehanine: Use the Feywild Denizen theme (Dungeon Master's Guide 2, page 108).

Erathis: A monster theme for creatures devoted to Erathis appears on page 140.

Kord: A monster theme for creatures devoted to Kord appears on page 141.

Nine Hells: Use the monster theme for the Legion of Avernus (Dungeon Master's Guide 2, page 112).

Tiamat: The powers of Tiamat's Red Hand cultists (Dungeon Master's Guide 2, page 122) work well for exalted of Tiamat.

Zehir: The Snaketongue Cultist theme (Dungeon Master's Guide 2, page 118) can also apply to exalted of Zehir.

Outsiders

If the Plane Above functioned properly, the soulforms that end up as outsiders would be exalted, rising as newly incarnate beings inside their gods' dominion instead of on a border island or in a random location in the Astral Sea. Most rise on border islands outside the dominion they should have been part of, but others are shuffled into other archipelagoes—the characters won't always be able to judge an outsider's history by the individual's current location. Outsiders enter the astral realm anywhere between two and five times as often as exalted, depending on what you want in your campaign.

No Reason, No Rhyme: Exalted often suspect that outsiders are subtly flawed. The exalted of evil gods such as Tiamat and Zehir are certain that outsiders are entirely inferior. Unless you decide to change the dynamic in your campaign, that assumption shouldn't actually be true. The tragedy of the dominions is that there isn't any true difference between souls that become exalted and souls that find themselves as outsiders; the outsiders are the final accidental casualties of the destruction of the Lattice of Heaven during the Dawn War.

No Entry: Outsiders waking from death within sight of their god's dominion don't understand that something has gone wrong. Sometimes other outsiders, exalted, or mortals will be on hand to advise them, but most don't believe that they could be exiled from their gods' dominion when they can see it glowing on the horizon and will try to swim toward it. Assuming they make it through the miles that separate them from the color veil around their god's dominion without being eaten by a monster or picked up by sympathetic travelers in a skiff, they're in for a horrible disappointment. Outsiders are incapable of entering the active dominion of any deity. Those who attempt to cross the color veil of a functioning divine dominion either press up against the veil as if it were an impassable wall or are instantly teleported between two and twenty miles above or below the dominion, where they might be attacked by predators that know to hunt in those zones.

There is one unfortunate exception to the rule that outsiders can't enter divine dominions: Asmodeus built his dominion to take advantage of the disorder of the heavens. Outsiders can enter the Nine Hells. And many do.

Outsiders Are Purely Mortal: Outsiders do not age, unless they came into the astral realm as children. Unlike exalted, they get only one new life. Only the most powerful magic can resurrect a dead outsider—in a sense, outsiders are more mortal than mortals. Once they have been removed from their soulforms, they are really and truly gone to whatever their soul's next destination will be. If one manages to avoid violent death and soul-draining madness, an outsider can exist between 50 and 100 years in its new form.

Outsider Morale: Responses to the curse of being a near-exalted vary widely depending on personality, god, contact with other outsiders or exalted, and the culture of the local border islands. Rage and despair are common reactions. Most get over it and decide that another 50 to 100 years of existence is good, even in exile from their god. Others treat their exile as a curse and see their former life as a regrettable mistake.

Outsider Culture: The majority of the inhabitants of each border archipelago are outsiders devoted to one of that dominion's deities. Former devotees of good or unaligned gods either live as well as they can in the shadow of their gods' dominions or travel by ship, portal, or flight to a new home in the astral realm. Outsiders of some of the evil gods, notably Tiamat and Zehir, would be better off if they fled their gods' archipelagoes, while Bane and Gruumsh's outsiders often find themselves drawn into their gods' expanding conflict.

Members of cultures and communities heavily influenced by outsiders are generally more sarcastic and self-mocking than similar populations not influenced by outsiders. Even outsiders who remain steadfast worshipers of their god are likely to acknowledge the irony of their position.

A Third Chance: It is rare, but not unheard of, for an outsider that has lived well to die and wake again within the Astral Sea, this time inside the appropriate god's dominion. It is much more rare for an outsider to choose a new deity, devote itself to a new cause, and become an exalted of a different god.

Dominions and Border Islands

Despite proximity and a common wellspring of divine power, the dominions and their border islands operate like separate worlds with entirely different magical environments.

Freedom of the Dominions: Servants of the deities such as exarchs, angels, and exalted can move freely through each other's dominions without a problem—nothing prevents an exalted of Zehir from entering Celestia and staying indefinitely, except for the displeasure of the inhabitants of Celestia, and the fact that an exalted who is slain outside his or her home dominion can't be resurrected.

Mortals Can't Stay in Heaven: Unlike outsiders, player characters and normal mortals can enter dominions freely. But unlike the exalted, mortals who enter the gods' dominions are capable of staying for only a short time, usually between two weeks and two months. Epic tier characters can withstand the pressure of the dominion for as long as a year. When a mortal stays too long within an active divine dominion, the all-powerful will of one of the dominion's deities reshapes the mortal's personality, giving it traits and goals that are more in line with the god's personality. The transformation is temporary if the mortal leaves. If the mortal stays, the transformation becomes permanent and the mortal is transformed into a minor aspect of the god, burning out a short time later.

The exception to this is in the Nine Hells, where mortals are welcome to survive as long as they can endure the pain.

Islands of the Broken Lattice: It's not impossible for the gods and their strongest servants to visit the border islands. It's just not comfortable. The aftershocks of the broken Lattice of Heaven weaken beings of pure spirit while they're on the border islands. Gods, aspects, angels, and exarchs take a –2 penalty to attack rolls and all defenses while in the border islands. For this reason, among others, a deity will rarely travel to a border island.

Exalted on the Border Islands: Exalted are not discomfited by the border islands. A few exalted even choose to live in the islands around their gods' dominion. They lose their dominion's promise of resurrection, gaining in return a bit of freedom or the sense that they are helping others who might have deserved a better afterlife than they got.

There's also a concrete reason that some exalted choose to live in the border islands. If enough exalted live long lives and die eventual natural deaths on a border island while performing rituals devoted to their deity, it is possible for a god's dominion to expand and absorb the border island into the dominion. Given the time required for the transformation, and the fact that outsiders on the island cannot be taken along, exalted attempting this transformation generally choose one border island at a time, succeeding every four to eight centuries at slightly expanding their god's power.

Astral Diamonds

Astral diamonds are clear, faceted crystals that glow with a faint silvery light. Each astral diamond is worth 10,000 gp. Astral diamonds appear naturally in dominions and shards across the Astral Sea and are thought by some to be side effects of the destruction of the Lattice of Heaven. They are regularly found and mined in Celestia and Hestavar, being less common (and found in smaller mines) in other dominions, the shattered dominions, and the border islands.

In the world of mortals, sages and poets speak rapturously of the eternal glories of Arvandor, the fragrant breezes of its flower- and tree-strewn wilderness, and the endless revelries of the Court of the Seldarine.

The skalds and sages who prattle on about these glories are usually neither elves nor eladrin, and not even well-informed worshipers of Corellon and Sehanine. Perfect beauty and unceasing leisure are human ideas of heaven. Those who fully understand Corellon and Sehanine, the original gods of the Feywild, know that their heaven couldn't be that simple.

It's true that the gods of Arvandor have created an amazing realm: a place of awesome beauty and heart-stopping rapture fit for powerful gods of love, beauty, arcane magic, the wilderness, and freedom. It's also a place fraught with constant danger, wild battle, and the call for valor. Unlike the sheltered aesthetes of the mortal world, Corellon understands that beauty means more when it must be protected from horror, and unlike foolish romantics, Sehanine understands that love means more when it's hard earned and bears the risk of loss.

Three great events shaped the realm of Arvandor and the destinies of all who come to dwell within it: the destruction of the original fey pantheon, Sehanine and Corellon's subsequent emergence as universal gods instead of being gods only for the fey, and the pair's leadership in the dissent against the Carceri Compact (page 104) that created the prison of the gods. The Arvandor that has been reshaped in the wake of these events is a deeper world that is a testament to the manner in which some gods have reinvented themselves in the shattered heavens after the tragedies of the Dawn War.

Triune Harmony Lost

Before the Dawn War began, Corellon and Sehanine spent their time beside their sister-god Lolth; the three deities headed the fey pantheon, and their power was unchallenged. Sehanine was wise and as changeable as the shifting moon, Lolth was quick and as unflinching as fallen night, and Corellon shone like the stars. He created the mortal fey from his tears of sorrow, beauty, and mirth—all qualities that the fey love. Most of his tears were those of laughter, whether brought on by an arcing leap performed by Sehanine or by a cutting jest offered by Lolth.

Together the three gods shared a life to which most gods (much less mortals) can only aspire, in which acts of compassion and trust alternated with those of power and splendor. Sometimes the laughter was dark and mocking, but more often it was heartfelt and true. Insofar as was possible, the chosen people of the three fey deities (a race that would eventually become the elves, the eladrin, and the drow) followed their gods' example, living in a rapturous dream that balanced control and desire, adventure and harmony.

The fey deities spent little time in the astral dominions before the Dawn War. Insulated in the Feywild, they experienced time differently from how the other gods did, so when the war began, they were slow to react. What the other gods experienced as an invasion and the destruction of the Lattice of Heaven came to the ears of Corellon, Sehanine, and Lolth as mere rumors of violence. The Dawn War was being fought in earnest, but the Feywild still functioned as the timeless echo of a world that had not yet spiraled into chaos. Lolth, however, saw opportunity in the Dawn War that her companion deities did not.

The Astral Sea was changing, and the fey deities' triune harmony was not to last. Even Corellon and Sehanine cannot say whether it was the Dawn War that changed Lolth or if she had always thought differently. Lolth's rebellion is distorted by too many shadows and echoes for anyone to be certain about her earliest act of treachery. Did she consort with demons before she tried to elevate her dark-skinned drow over the other members of the race? Did she try to kill Sehanine first, or Corellon? The best-known version of the story is that Lolth nearly killed Corellon before he realized that her attack was not one of her usual dark jokes. Sehanine intervened and saved Corellon's life, but Lolth escaped.

Whatever its chronology of treachery, Lolth's war upon the Feywild was synchronized with the war in the Astral Sea: The Lattice of Heaven was shattered, the half-constructed dominion of Arvandor (meant as a pleasurable retreat for the three deities of the fey) was ruined, and in the Feywild, Lolth's children—the drow—razed the cities of the eladrin and the shadowed forests around them. Thus, Corellon, Sehanine, and their people fought two wars at once in the era of legend. The war in the Feywild ended when Lolth fled into the earth, taking her drow into the Underdark and out of thought of those who remained on the surface. At the same time, Corellon and Sehanine, as well as Lolth, fought in the Dawn War alongside the rest of the gods out of necessity, and in doing so they transformed themselves into universal deities.

Gods of All Races

As Corellon and Sehanine fought beside the other gods and came to know them and their mortal people, Sehanine realized that mortals other than their own chosen fey might deserve love and attention. Corellon was slower to see her side, but her earnestness quickly swayed him—that, and the beauty he came to see in the nonfey races. In the middle of the war, from the vantage point of the Astral Sea, Corellon and Sehanine learned what they could of the other mortals. The universe opened to them like a bloom in spring, and they took mortal form to explore it—not the petal where they had lived (the Feywild), but the mortal world at the center of the flower. They moved quietly among the peoples of the world, wearing aspects that enabled them to pass as eladrin or elf.

And during their wanderings, they found beauty, love, and grace in the other races—perhaps in less refined form than in their own people's, but of no less virtue. Given the taint in their own house—the dark path of betrayal and chaos taken by their beloved Lolth, whose icy beauty stretched over hidden depravity—Corellon and Sehanine were amenable to a certain straightforward lack of refinement.

Some in the world still think of Corellon as an eladrin god and Sehanine as an elven deity, but over the ages, the two deities have deliberately moved to share their power with the nonfey, forging close alliances with gods whose ways they found congenial. Most notably, Sehanine helped Melora create the halflings, either to serve a special role in the Dawn War or as an unintended but welcome consequence of some great event (sages' accounts on this question differ). Regardless of the reason for the halflings' creation, neither deity had time to care for the new race during the fury of the Dawn War, so Avandra adopted the halflings and guided them through the hardest days of their infancy as a race. Through this connection, Avandra, Melora, and Sehanine strengthened their bonds of friendship, and Corellon joined their company easily.

In the aftermath of the Dawn War, when the gods were deciding how the world might be arranged once the fighting was done, Sehanine suggested that the exalted of Avandra and Melora would be welcome in Arvandor; though neither deity wanted a dominion of her own, exalted sworn to the two of them thus could dwell in a dominion when they chose to do so. This agreement strengthened ties not only among all four deities, but also between their respective clergy.

The Glorious Hunt

The idea of Arvandor as a world of graceful forests, brilliant sunsets, and splendid islands tells only a piece of the story. Rather than living in safety, as do most of the exalted of other dominions, the exalted of Arvandor, known as the ruesti, are aware that they are part of what Corellon and Sehanine refer to as the Glorious Hunt. As such, the ruesti know they can be called on at any time to help track and slay an abomination that is carving a path through the dominion. Exaltation alone, however, doesn't make a mighty warrior or magician, and the ruesti of Arvandor are constantly training their bodies and minds for their sacred duty—and their own safety.

To avoid the same tragedy created in other dominions with the shattering of the Lattice of Heaven as a testament to how far the heavens have fallen, the strange necessity of the Hunt has served a secondary purpose that Corellon and Sehanine wanted in their dominion—danger. Corellon and his exalted aren't satisfied with an endless succession of perfectly happy days—lives without loss. Sehanine cherishes bonds that are formed under pressure—bonds that would never be as strong without the chance of death or worse. Most in Arvandor see the Hunt as a glorious calling and a never-ending quest to preserve the fierce beauty of the realm.

To this end, the Glorious Hunt is a dangerous proposition. A ruesti who dies while on the Hunt can expect to receive only between three and a dozen resurrections inside Arvandor before dying a final death. Additionally, some abominations have soul-rending powers, which are worse than death because they can obliterate victims from the dominion immediately. The ruesti accept these drawbacks as the price of a reward in limited supply: Corellon and Sehanine cannot accept all their followers into Arvandor, and in theory, the constant attrition of ruesti frees up more space for their fellows. Ironically, the afterlife of elves and eladrin—the longest-lived mortal races—is shortest of all the immortal beings.

The Four Free Gods and Carceri

The creation of Carceri, the Red Prison of the Gods, cemented the alliance of the four deities and established why they became known as the free gods. Carceri was originally conceived as a magic laboratory that spawned abominations to help the gods win the war against the primordials, but at the end of the war, the flow of abominations could not be shut off. The gods had to wall off the dominion that had served as their arsenal, so many of them pooled their magic to create a nearly foolproof jail. Some deities, such as Torog and Zehir, would not cooperate until all the gods agreed to respect and enforce the prison of Carceri.

But Sehanine and Avandra objected. They mistrusted the solution, saying that no prison could truly succeed against the abominations, and that the cosmic prison's negative effect on the Plane Above would be greater than its success in containing the abominations. Corellon and Melora sided with their friends.

Rather than contribute to Carceri's walls, Corellon and Sehanine sacrificed a portion of Arvandor. Corellon used his mastery of arcane magic to create a metaphysical funnel, ensuring that abominations that attempted to escape from the folded space inside Carceri would land inside Arvandor instead of out in the wider Astral Sea. Through this act, it has fallen upon Corellon, Sehanine, Melora, Avandra, and their exalted to hunt down and slay these abominations before they can emerge into the Astral Sea.

The exalted of Melora and Avandra also find purpose in the Glorious Hunt. The roving exalted of Avandra are pampered as honored guests while not on the Hunt, if they so choose. Exalted of Melora frequently live in the Hunting Lands, venturing into the tamer areas of the Court of the Seldarine only once every couple of decades. On occasion, exalted of Kord, Bane, Pelor, and even Zehir have been known to join the Hunt. If slain while on a Hunt, these exalted (not the ruesti of Corellon and Sehanine) are reborn through the normal process within Arvandor or in their home dominions (or in the case of Avandra and Melora, in a random dominion).

Corellon and Sehanine try to protect a few sections of Arvandor from the intrusions of the Glorious Hunt. The island of Estaira (see below) and the Court of the Seldarine, for instance, feature strong magic wards and powerful guardians that protect the ruesti residing within, keeping them in peace and comfort while they await the call for the Hunt. Only twice throughout history have abominations broken through and attacked these protected areas.

The Hunting Lands

The abominations that surge out of the terrible folds emanating from Carceri frequently emerge within the Hunting Lands—swaths of land that Corellon and Sehanine maintain as rugged and untamed wilderness. In truth, Corellon didn't choose the locations of the Hunting Lands; he merely let the wilderness erupt over the areas where infestations of escaped abominations began to take hold. These places, touched by the history of Arvandor, resonate with the power of ages. Below are described four such locations; scores of other similar locales exist within the Hunting Lands.

The Dead City of Carantharas: Among a great stand of trees on a small island near the edge of the dominion are the ruins of an exalted city whose wards fell centuries ago to a concerted abomination attack. Carantharas has been maintained as one of the Hunting Lands instead of being rebuilt.

By day, the island appears deserted, but by night the echoes of the lost ruesti who ruled the place whisper through the leaves of the trees. Characters who listen to these whispers can make Nature checks in place of Arcana checks or Religion checks to learn about the abominations, exarchs, deities, and history of Arvandor. Those who succeed on a DC 30 Nature check learn the truth of Carantharas: It once bounded a portal from Carceri that burst open and allowed the city to be overrun, before a party of great heroes sealed it at the cost of their own lives. The portal possibly still exists in the catacombs below.

In recent years, abominations in the ruins repeatedly have escaped or overwhelmed hunting parties. Nullifiers (page 132) have chosen the city's catacombs as a lair, instead of attempting to break out of Arvandor entirely. After a number of unsuccessful Hunts in Carantharas, the ruesti now have begun actively recruiting planar adventurers to investigate the ruins.

The Endless Forest: Outside the eladrin cities, great swaths of eternally virgin woodland swarm with monsters, abominations, and traditional game, grown far more powerful than such creatures in the mortal world. Chief among such places in the Hunting Lands is the Endless Forest, a weaving maze of trees, boulders, and streams. Mortal elves and ruesti alike hunt along the forest's winding paths, whispering soft prayers to Sehanine over game felled by arrow or spear. Active moongates (Manual of the Planes, page 90) and Carceri funnel points, whose specific locations are unknown, keep the forest well stocked with terrors. Escape from the Endless Forest into Estaira or the Court is impossible without luck or the blessings of the Seldarine, who favor those that have defeated various foes beneath the forest's boughs.

The Reef Catacombs: Frequently, the Glorious Hunt travels to a chain of tiny, boulderlike islands off the coast of Estaira where abominations from Carceri have lodged with increasing frequency. In reality, these islands are the tops of great trees petrified with age and submerged beneath the water. They were ancient even before the battles of the Dawn War and are riddled with cavities, some filled with water and others with stagnant air. Diving hunters who swim from tree to tree or those who find a way through the air pockets within the petrified limbs must pry out the abominations that find refuge among the underwater tree caverns.

Rumors suggest that Gloaminghold, a house full of curiosities built by the renowned tiefling warlock Duskmoon, is located in one of the Reef Catacombs; it offers sanctuary to those who can bypass its magical defenses.

The Wasteland of Burnt Blood: One sizzling stretch of badlands blights Arvandor's pure landscape. The Wasteland of Burnt Blood, a ravaged black desert pitted by pools of scalding red liquid, was forged in a battle between Corellon and Gruumsh that took place before the Dawn War.

Avandra's and Melora's Exalted

Exalted of Avandra and Melora can awaken in any of the dominions other than the Nine Hells. They are most welcome in Arvandor and Celestia. Unlike other exalted, the exalted of Avandra and Melora come back to life regardless of the dominion in which they were slain. Usually, though, they come back in a dominion other than the one in which they died. Neither Avandra's nor Melora's exalted care about immortality the way other exalted do. Frequently, they are found traveling far from any dominion.

Gruumsh entered Arvandor to destroy the dominion before it could be properly built, and Corellon met him in battle atop a mountain. Sehanine and Lolth respected Corellon's wish to face Gruumsh in single combat; however, while Sehanine had eyes only for Corellon, Lolth watched Gruumsh in secret, admiring his rage. Corellon came out the victor, and Gruumsh's blood fell in thick droplets that scalded the land for ten miles in all directions.

Abominations are drawn to the seething Wasteland of Burst Blood, since memories of Gruumsh's fury and power seeped into the land there. For this reason, the Glorious Hunt often sweeps through the site of Corellon's ancient victory.

Any creature in the area gains a +2 bonus to damage rolls, but takes a -2 penalty to AC. For bloodied creatures, the bonus and penalty are +5 and -5 respectively.

Major Areas

The dominion of Corellon and Sehanine is split between civilized splendor and rugged wilderness. Visitors to the realm find relative peace in Estaira or the Court of the Seldarine, but once they venture beyond the aegis of the wards and the fey guardians, they are on their own in the eternal Hunting Lands.

The Bark Fleet: A "site" in constant movement, the bark fleet consists of huge, three-masted ships shaped from living trees that sail or drift along Arvandor's seas, great rivers, and hidden waters. Creatures of all races and faiths dwell in the fleet, particularly halflings and the exalted of Avandra and Melora, who pass pleasant seasons in the dominion of Arvandor. These ships are sometimes known to sail beyond the shining waters of Arvandor and into the Astral Sea. The greatest are so large and complex that they resemble small forested islands. The wanderers of the fleet are known for their curiosity and willingness to gamble, making them popular trading and traveling companions for planar adventurers.

Court of the Seldarine: Atop the tallest hill in Arvandor stands a ring of fey-touched menhirs in the middle of a glorious fey palace. This hallowed place is Nath Seldarie, where Corellon and Sehanine

Corellon, Gruumsh, and Lolth

The enmity between Corellon and Gruumsh is legendary. It began before the two deities expanded their power bases to include non-eladrin and non-orc worshipers respectively, before their grudging cooperation out of necessity in the Dawn War, and even before the creation of the mortal races. In part, they hate one another because they are diametric opposites: Gruumsh, with his strength, impossible vitality, and berserker rage, against Corellon, with his grace, intelligence, and magic. Some stories cast Corellon and Gruumsh as divine echoes, showing Corellon blessed with the power of beautiful creation, while Gruumsh can only destroy. Where Corellon famously cut out one of Gruumsh's eyes, however, Gruumsh has never grievously wounded Corellon.

Or has he? Some divinations suggest that Lolth's betrayal of Corellon was due in part to a secret alliance with Gruumsh, with whom she is said to have dallied in the ages before the Dawn War. If this story holds any truth, then Lolth must have betrayed Gruumsh as she had betrayed Corellon, for Gruumsh hates Lolth as much as he has ever hated the Lord of the Seldarine.

hold court with numerous lesser powers and exarchs called the Seldarine. These powerful soulforms make up the core of fey belief and legend; they are considered patrons or saints to elves and eladrin. Most fey stories involve them and their exploits.

First among them (in infamy if not in power) is Erevan Ilesere, the Fey Jester, patron of tricksters and mischief. He serves as messenger and intermediary between his king and queen, taking no side but his own, and tends to make a situation worse in the name of jest. He has found a way out of every scrape, however, and never seems to mind being caught in his own schemes (which often occurs). He favors mortals at whim, bestowing upon them a mark of his affections, usually in the form of a starburst tattoo. This mark is both a blessing and a curse, indicative of a great, chaotic destiny.

Two other Seldarine frequently encountered by adventurers are Fenmarel Mestarine, the Lone Wolf, and Shevarash of the Black Bow. The patron of rangers, Fenmarel is a taciturn, perpetually aloof spirit who roams Arvandor, aiding in the various Glorious Hunts (though he does so indirectly and silently, maintaining his solitude). As patron of fury and vengeance, the exarch Shevarash is quick to take offense at mortals (who irritate him just by existing) and chooses to join wholeheartedly in doomed Hunts. He has led hundreds of ruesti to their final, albeit glorious, deaths.

The Empire of Estaira: Estaira, the most built-up realm in Arvandor, is an evolving blend of a perfect fey kingdom and a realm touched by humans, halflings, and exalted of all races. With banners lifting in the wind, fantastic fluting towers rise from the cliffs of Estaira to stand vigil over those who would enter the seas of Arvandor. A spray of sapphire water under a perfect blue sky welcomes travelers from the turbulent Astral Sea into the veritable cradle of elven myth and the heart of forests born before time.

The capital of Estaira is the great city of Faen Verdaya, whose art and culture remain true to the land's origin as a fey paradise. Exalted beings lounge on divans among vibrant blooms in the atria, dance in great halls open to gentle sunlight and perfect breezes, or swim in lakes as pure and clear as glass. The crystalline towers of Faen Verdaya resonate with songs and prayers of ages past; they catch the divine light of Arvandor and cast it rippling through the streets, bathing everything in a perpetual glow. Coronal Lysildya, the eladrin mistress of Faen Verdaya, rules in Corellon's name and encourages her folk to honor ancient works of artistic beauty as well as to create their own.

Inland, Estaira's maze of rivers and lightly forested islands provides homes, groves, and communities for the exalted of Arvandor who are not involved with the Glorious Hunt, or who seek months or years away from its demands.

Adventure Hooks

The Glorious Hunt provides opportunity for dangerous adventures in the exotic and ever-shifting Hunting Lands. Threats from outside the dominion also can complicate matters.

Poisoned Hunt: Exalted of Melora in a hunting party that left ahead of the characters are revealed to be exalted of Zehir. What magic covered their identities? Do the darksworn (page 80) want to slay specific exalted that are on the Hunt, or are their targets also the abominations?

Easy Travel for a Price: Sehanine's moongates to other dominions and other worlds are scattered through Arvandor, sometimes opening where least expected, whether triggered by jumping off a high ledge or passing through a hidden grotto. Offering her gates as launch points for quests and adventures pleases Sehanine, as long as those borrowing the use of the gate can provide her or her people with a gift fit for the deity of love and the moon.

The Remade Abomination: A dangerous, desperate soul trapped in Carceri has remade itself as an abomination and escaped into Arvandor. Corellon wants to give this villain a swift death before the world pays the price for its escape.

Encounter Groups

The most frequent encounters in Arvandor involve animals and beasts grown to prodigious size and power, followed by abominations that are the target of Glorious Hunts. Voracias (page 133) in particular abound in Arvandor, owing to their undying hatred for the fey races. Since Sehanine's moongates connect to hundreds of locations outside Arvandor, and since the moongates' seals sometimes break, characters might encounter a creature that has passed through one. A more diverse range of encounters exists in Arvandor's border islands—known as the Green Isles (page 42)—because getting into the border islands is easier than encroaching into Arvandor. (The level 28 encounter below is a typical one of this sort.)

Level 16 Encounter (XP 7,600)
- 1 guulvorg (level 16 elite brute, MM 265)
- 2 thunderfury boars (level 15 brute, MM 35)
- 1 rakshasa warrior (level 15 soldier, MM 216)

Level 22 Encounter (XP 23,000)
- 1 dark naga (level 21 elite controller, MM 194)
- 1 voracia (level 22 elite skirmisher, page 133)
- 1 astral stalker (level 22 elite lurker, MM 10)

Level 28 Encounter (XP 67,000)
- 1 phane (level 26 elite controller, MM 13)
- 1 balor (level 27 elite brute, MM 53)
- 1 efreet karadjin (level 28 soldier, MM 100)
- 2 efreet pyresingers (level 25 controller, MM 99)

The Green Isles: Arvandor's Archipelago

Verdant islands are situated on the borders of the dominion of Arvandor, floating in a silvery medium that is half Arvandor's waters, half Astral Sea. They are forested places of great beauty, though they can't match the glories found nearby in Arvandor.

Corellon, Sehanine, and the other two free gods hope for the best for their people on these border islands, but they and their servants rarely offer direct support due to the effect the border islands have on them (see "Islands of the Broken Lattice," page 36).

Food grows easily in the fertile soil of the Green Isles, and hunting is plentiful. The islands are rich in natural resources, but the people of the Isles discourage mining.

Many of Corellon's and Sehanine's deceased followers who end as outsiders are happy with the world they have carved for themselves in the Green Isles. Because Arvandor is host to the Glorious Hunt, life in the Green Isles resembles life in the dominion in large measure. A few of these outsiders reawake in Arvandor when they die.

Major Areas

Starhallow, the Wild Islands, Tael Faris, and the Twisted Temples of Lyef Thierre are but a few of the interesting locations where the characters can adventure in the Green Isles.

Starhallow

This island city-state takes its name from the bright star shining over it, put there by the magic of outsiders and visible for leagues across the Astral Sea. The star's purpose is to offer a guiding light to those traveling the Astral Sea, and perhaps to rival Arvandor's light. Depending on the angle of approach from the silver waters, a traveler might see the star burning even more brightly than the dominion behind it.

The folk of Starhallow have not accepted their fate as Arvandor's castoffs. They have chosen to live passionately and fully, to prove that even if their heaven has rejected them, they are worthy of remembrance. They defend themselves well; softer targets exist elsewhere in the Green Isles.

The largest port for travelers bound for Arvandor, Starhallow is notably less radiant than its sister city, Faen Verdaya. While the capital of Estaira is pure and bright with arcane miracles, Starhallow feels like the world below, where passions lead to trouble and blood leaves stains. Folk of every race and background fill the streets. Merchant vessels float into Starhallow, bringing mundane or exotic goods from other parts of the Astral Sea.

Starhallow's current ruler is a mortal eladrin wizard named Coronal Deliyl, whose power stems from a history of excellent decision-making and the fact that anyone who threatens Starhallow's existence suffers a bizarre magical death. Deliyl frequently accepts other mortals as temporary consultants.

The city is divided into three parts: the Docks, the Hallows, and the Family Towers.

EMPTY ROOM STUDIO - ADAM PAQUETTE

The Docks: The ramshackle docks ward is the center of the adventurer's life in Starhallow. It is hardly as fabulous as the port in Hestavar, but the place is infused with a certain fey ambiance that puts visitors into a good mood, letting inhibitions fade. Visitors who never sing are heard humming, those who normally say they can't dance are seen skipping for a moment, and folk who are rowdy and uncouth to begin with make the docks area one of the Astral Sea's most exuberantly dangerous scenes.

The Docks function as a thriving black market that deals in stolen goods: coins from a thousand worlds and dominions, objects of curious and exotic artistic value, and a wide assortment of magic treasures. Merchants pay extra to obtain items from Arvandor and in turn charge exorbitant fees when selling bladesinger swords, eladrin mantles, and the like. Let the buyer pay heed, however, for such purchases bear no guarantees; items bought on the black market might function in unexpected ways or not at all.

The Hallows: Most of the folk of Starhallow reside in the central Hallows, a rambling district built of stone and living forest. Houses lie stacked upon one another, and awakened trees move folk to and from their destinations. Towers where eladrin wizards practice their arcane arts border elven groves. Products take on a more consistent quality in the Hallows than in the docks, and those who shop here can commission the production of fantastic magic items or works of art from the finest spellcasters in the Astral Sea.

The Family Towers: Most border islands last for a few centuries at most, but the Family Towers are thousands of years old. Elves, eladrin, and creatures of other races dwell here within graceful spires fraying with age. The Towers' magic depends on the housing of inhabitants who are related to each other. Outsiders from a specific extended family occupy each tower. Even exalted from various dominions sometimes are drawn to the Family Towers to greet and live alongside extended family members who did not become exalted.

Sometimes only one or two residents occupy a tower, but if a tower empties completely, the next pair or group of outsiders that has rediscovered family ties in the border islands claims it. Once the Towers had only elf and eladrin lines. Now a smattering of halfling, human, shifter, and gnome families is represented, along with one extended family of four half-orcs.

The Wild Islands

Heavily forested, the scattered wilderness islands in the Green Isles have little to distinguish them from each other, at least in the eyes of outsiders. Small groups of outsiders, mortals, and even occasional exalted of Sehanine, Melora, or Avandra live peacefully in the shelter of the trees; they fish with spears and lines from canoes in the Astral Sea, and defend themselves as best they can against monsters and raiders.

The people of Starhallow refer to the four largest wild islands as Crownwood, Blood Tongue, Destruction Island, and Badger, though the people who live on the islands perhaps have other names for them. Crownwood is named after its most common tree. Blood Tongue is the name of a small tribe of outsiders that has re-created the traditions of the primal way even though they lack its magic, since only adventuring characters can draw easily on the power of the primal spirits from the Astral Sea. Destruction Island has witnessed at least three spectacular airship crashes and still yields trophies from the crashes to those who can dig them out of the thick forests. Badger looks like its namesake when viewed from the air. Coincidentally or not, the island's most notable inhabitants are a loose-knit association of magical beasts; they are former worshipers of the gods of Arvandor that became outsiders, instead of appearing in that dominion.

Pirate ships and other covert travelers make landfall on the far side of the Wild Islands, away from Arvandor, to gather supplies before raiding bigger targets. Landing on the far shores might not be necessary, but flyers from Arvandor occasionally spiral watchfully over the islands, and pirates don't prosper by risking needless exposure.

Tael Faris

Home to the House of Moon and Stars, a mighty temple to both Corellon and Sehanine, Tael Faris is less a tranquil island than a city built upon the silver waters, sculpted from trees, stone, and moonlight. The night is twice as long as the day in Tael Faris, and the moon bathes the temple in radiance and shadow.

With each daybreak and nightfall, beautiful songs resonate through the city's vine-wrapped pillars and carven embankments. Travelers to Tael Faris are captivated by the music, although those who speak Elven soon realize that the words serve cunning double entendre, simultaneously as hymns of praise and ironic counterpoint.

The outsiders of Tael Faris are mostly elves, eladrin, and gnomes. Nonfey outsiders lack the taste for both bittersweet melancholy and savage jest.

The Twisted Temples of Lyef Thierre

At first glance, Lyef Thierre looks like another of the large wilderness islands that dot the sea around Arvandor. A mile into its interior, however, pines, redwoods, and oaks give way to thicker jungle plants. Ancient pyramids, half choked with creeping vines, depict scenes from cults having nothing to do with the gods of Arvandor. The mortals and outsiders who occupy this island don't want to be seen by others. At various points in recent history, devils, aberrations, shattered godlings, and a rogue primordial have benefited from the scattershot worship of these cultists. Though the full meaning of their acts is lost to the ruined souls of Lyef Thierre, the consequences are bloody enough.

CELESTIA

Green hills and majestic mountains cover the isle of Celestia, which is home to the deities Bahamut, Kord, and Moradin. Each god claims one of the realm's seven great peaks as his seat of power and competes for temporary jurisdiction over the four unoccupied mountains in a ritualistically complex and tactically subtle competition called the Game of Mountains. In the rugged archipelago known as the Foothills, the nearly exalted live in the shadows of the competition on the peaks.

The isle of Celestia is one hundred twenty miles long. Its tallest summit towers ten miles above the Astral Sea below. The gods live on the three tallest mountains, which are collectively known as the throne peaks. Each deity can reshape his peak at will to suit his personality and needs.

Travelers nearing Celestia sail into the gray waters that surround the islands of the Foothills. After navigating the Foothills, they come to the dominion's shimmering golden veil. Piercing the veil brings them onto a band of soothing green water lapping at Celestia's shores.

A nightless realm, Celestia is lit by the radiance of its mountains. The light emanating from them varies throughout the day, from rosy and glowing to yellow and bright. At noon, the golden light reaches its brightest, before slowly shading back to orange and then pink again. Generally, silver clouds hang in the sky, providing shade where needed and an occasional brief, refreshing shower; if Kord is in ascendance in the Game of Mountains (see page 46), however, the silver clouds build into thunderheads and let loose their storms.

Verdant forests and lush meadows cover the mountains' lower reaches. Cities clad in gleaming tiles of snow-white clay fill the plateaus. Higher up, mystic monasteries precariously perch atop sheer purple cliffs, briefly shadowed by the wings of mithral and gold dragons or other flying creatures that live in the valleys and on the high slopes. Blanketing each summit, the ice and snow of eternal glaciers reflect and amplify the realm's beauteous light.

Whether a visitor stands near the pluming exhaust of Moradin's forges or in a glacial field, the dominion's temperature remains pleasant and mild. The fragrance of wildflowers wafts through the realm,

THE SEVEN PEAKS

Celestia's seven peaks, in descending order, are as follows:

- Venya, also known as Snowbeard, the rampart peak, home to Kord and his warrior retinue.
- Solania, the clouded peak also called the Rainfather, where Moradin keeps his forge.
- Mertion, the dragon aerie, where Bahamut holds sway.
- Jusor, the least steep of the seven mountains, ascended by way of wide slopes that function as giant ramps.
- Fulghen, a rough and dangerous mountain of knife-edged ridges and crevasses, regularly climbed by those who want to swear great oaths upon its summit.
- Perantia, riddled by ever-shifting caverns and underground rivers that break onto the surface to form ice cascades.
- Chronias, the final pilgrimage site for Celestia's exalted and keeper of the final mysteries.

EMPTY ROOM STUDIO - ADAM PAQUETTE

competing with steam from the forges and the sharp scent of lightning-crackled air.

Major Areas

Although Celestia is generally considered safe, adventures can occur anywhere, especially if Kord's warriors are nearby and bored. Here are three sites (among many) in the dominion where the characters might find trouble.

Torzak-Belgirn

Near the summit of Solania, lorded over by Moradin, hums the metallic forge city of Torzak-Belgirn. Extended by metal platforms buttressed into the mountainside, the city's precious metal surfaces turn it into a reflective beacon whose glow is visible throughout the dominion. In Torzak-Belgirn, the soulforms of master dwarf smiths work to fashion resplendent armor of unrivaled quality. The city's smokestacks emit wispy vapor that coalesces with the realm's silvery cloud cover.

Empyron

The so-called City of Healing on Jusor offers succor to wounded mortals and waning souls. Pilgrims afflicted with curses, poisons, and ailments that are curable nowhere else make the trek to consult Empyron's immortal healers. Many have their health restored by the mere sight of the city's walls and need no further treatment. The city rests on the shore of a cold, dark mountain lake. Reflected in its gently rippling surface is the mirrored light of otherwise unseen stars.

Asiryet

Crowning the summit of Chronias is the heavenly city of Asiryet. Its sections appear to hover in the air, but in fact they occupy platforms of magical force. Asiryet is where Celestia's exalted gather when their inner lights finally dwindle. Impelled by the sense that their time has come, they proceed to a mithral gate, behind which lies the Bridge of al-Sihal. An angel of great beauty stands guard there to turn back those who have not earned the right to cross. Whether the souls who walk the bridge enter a state of oneness with the universe or step through a portal into yet another heaven isn't known by any mortal being.

Gods of Celestia

In times past, the gods of Celestia have been allies, rivals, and briefly even enemies. In the centuries since the Dawn War, their interests have diverged. One or another of their aspects might join in the Game of Mountains, but otherwise each god pursues his own agenda. The trio is probably capable of joint action, but such hasn't been required of them for some time.

Moradin's Forge

Moradin embodies the taciturn self-reliance—rivals might call it self-absorption—of his favored people, the dwarves. His preoccupation is the refinement and perfection of the smithing arts. Moradin dismisses as frivolous any other divine business, assigning it to his exalted functionaries. The most honored members of his retinue are his exalted armorers and weaponsmiths. Together they work ceaselessly to make ever more sturdy, beautiful, and powerful weapons, shields, and armor. Although the products of his forge already are acknowledged to be the greatest ever brought into existence anywhere, improvements to them are constantly attempted, though difficult to attain. Whenever a new technique fails, Celestia's entire surrounding archipelago quakes with Moradin's ire.

When the god's agents leave Solania, it is usually to hunt down lost weapons and methods of manufacture. Moradin's focus on weapon-building and defense appears to be justified monomania, because the point of his work is protecting the dominions of the gods from attack. The small number of offensive incursions into the Astral Sea supports the viewpoint that Moradin's efforts are succeeding. Certainly, fear of Moradin's weapons keeps assorted primordials from resuming catastrophic battles reminiscent of the Dawn War.

Kord's Battles

Kord, yearning for action, paces the reverberant iron halls of his palace atop Venya. Ever ready for cosmic battles that are slow to arrive, Kord has formed the notion that the current chapter in the history of the cosmos will conclude with the Dusk War—a conflict to match the ferocity of the Dawn War that started the chapter. He is as yet uncertain whom the Dusk War will be fought against. The Far Realm? The primordials again? The evil gods? An unknown entity? If outside observers were privy to Kord's thoughts, they might realize that the god of storm and battle is growing increasingly likely to start a great cosmic conflict of his own, in order to stop wondering from which quarter the next attack will come.

As a god of war and as the last nearly successful invader of Celestia—when he attacked the realm as part of the failed coup by his mother Khala—Kord knows how to prepare for great battles to come. (For details of Kord's role in that incident, see "The War of Winter" on page 67 of Divine Power™.) He perpetually hones his horde of exalted warriors into an irresistible force. When no battle is being fought, the warriors joust with each other. They sharpen their lust for victory by participating in the Game of Mountains. Bloodless combat with no risk of utter destruction, however, keeps Kord's warriors amused only briefly. Kord occasionally sends his favored exalted out into the Astral Sea to find enemies in need of a smiting. Sometimes the war god's exalted join in the Glorious Hunt in Arvandor; at other times, they cruise in a dominion ship, hoping to run into devils or githyanki pirates. Since such foes aren't easy to find, and since Kord's exalted aren't particular about whom they fight, any worthy opponent that has the least touch of darkness (or even character-style shadiness) can expect a sudden assault from Kord's elite.

Bahamut's Arks

Possibly because of his ongoing skirmish with Tiamat, Bahamut is the most outward-looking of Celestia's gods. He keenly regrets the injustice of the present divine dominions. To him, the flawed mechanism by which some deserving mortals are arbitrarily excluded from their gods' heavens is obviously unjust. Bahamut truly regrets that his divine responsibilities and his struggle with Tiamat prevent him from fully addressing the injustice, but he has harnessed the skills and the will of his exalted to take a small step of redress toward balance.

Bahamut's exalted are building several great arks intended to cruise the Astral Sea around the Foothills and to provide a more comfortable and enjoyable existence to outsiders that are devoted to the deities of Celestia or other friendly gods. The ark project is a compromise solution, since Bahamut and his exarchs and angels can't use their full power on border islands, and Bahamut can't invite outsiders into Celestia.

Bahamut's first great ark is nearly finished. When launched, it will sail through the Foothills, taking on outsiders judged worthy and able to help crew the ark. The ark will have room only for about two thousand outsiders, so Bahamut's exalted know that justice will remain limited. Also, because Bahamut has such vindictive enemies, arranging functional security for an ark straying far from Celestia is a thorny problem. The ark project's success or failure, at least temporarily, might depend on the involvement of planar adventurers.

The Game of Mountains

Moradin's and Bahamut's exalted are not immune to pride and rivalry, and Kord's exalted consider those qualities to be virtues. After a series of unseemly incidents in the early centuries of their joint occupation of Celestia, the three gods joined to create a tradition that channels friction between their followers into friendly competition. Over time, the tradition has developed into its current form as the Game of Mountains, a once-per-season contest whose objectives combine the determination and occasional subtlety of Bahamut, the raging force of Kord, and Moradin's love of creation.

The Objective

The Game of Mountains is a team sport played for ceremonial control of the four great unclaimed mountains of Celestia, where the gods do not dwell. The game is contested between three teams, one representing each of Celestia's gods. Contestants score points for their team by solely occupying the summits of the unclaimed mountains for short intervals; they gain a dramatically greater number of points for each additional summit simultaneously controlled by the team. After three consecutive days of play, an overall winner is declared.

The Setting

Although a few isolated settlements, observatories, temples, and guard posts are built on the other four mountains (including the city of Asiryet on Chronias), the unclaimed slopes are preserved as untamed wilderness. Exalted, occasional elementals, and spirits roam and hunt on the wild slopes, but those playing the Game of Mountains have the greatest impact. The winner of a given episode of the game is responsible for repairing damage to keep the mountains from looking like a war zone. Adding new geographic features and magical marvels to the slopes instead of just repairing them is customary, so that the topography of the cliffs, chimneys, and wind-blasted glaciers changes frequently.

The Rules

Part of the game's appeal is that rules and team sizes change each season, resulting in each contest playing out differently. Teams can include epic-level mortals as well as exalted. Such "ringers" are sometimes allies rather than worshipers of the god for whom they play. Most of the names of the four standard versions of the game indicate the team sizes needed for play: the Seven Champions Game, the Game of Twenty-Three, Seventies, and the Full Game (144 players per team).

At least one contest each year uses few rules, other than forbidding contestants to interact with or harm those who live on the mountains. Variations that keep the other contests unpredictable include the following.

Climber's Game: No flying or teleporting is allowed; all contestants must ascend or descend each mountain the hard way.

Deathmarch: A contestant can use healing magic only on himself or herself.

Flyers' Game: All contestants must be capable of flight. (Mithral dragons that live in the mountains year round become popular recruits in this format.)

Mixed Teams: Each god's team must contain more or less equal numbers of exalted or devotees of its god.

Resurrection Game: Slain contestants are resurrected in 30 minutes instead of the next day.

Adjudication

Five exalted act as officials. Four of them each take position on a different summit, noting when points are scored. The fifth member of the judging team, bearing the title of Four Mountains Master, adjudicates rules disputes. By original agreement, the Four Mountains Master is a follower of Bahamut. The dragon god's retinue complains that this is a disadvantage, believing that the Master overcompensates against accusations of bias.

An overall game winner is declared after a tally of points scored on all mountains. The winner determines the weather on the four lowest peaks in the season to come, which in turn tends to determine the weather in Celestia's border islands. Victory is considered good luck for the winning god's followers in the world.

The Foothills: Celestia's Archipelago

To sailors heading along the astral horizon toward Celestia, its surrounding island chain looks like a set of hills contiguous with the realm. For this reason the archipelago was dubbed the Foothills.

In fact, its rocky green hills emerge from the Astral Sea. Beautiful from a distance, they become more rugged and forbidding the closer a traveler comes to them. Occasional patches of grass or moss cling tenaciously to naked stone. Rain, sleet, and hail materialize from nowhere to lash cold slopes, particularly when Kord has gained ascendance in the Game of Mountains.

Inhabitants and Culture

The Foothills provide a home to refugees throughout the Astral Sea, both mortal and soulform. Of the mortals, one in ten are recent arrivals born in the earthly realms, and the others are descendants of mortals who became lost in the Astral Sea and have never set foot on mundane soil. Represented among them are cultures long since vanished from the world.

Whether new refugees or old, the inhabitants of the Foothills came here because the archipelago seemed the safest port amid the Astral Sea's manifold dangers. Newcomers arrive expecting a modicum of protection from heavenly Celestia and its trio of benevolent gods, and a modicum of protection is exactly what they get. On a random schedule, the exalted of Celestia venture out in dominion ships to vanquish githyanki raiders, quom comet-ships (page 102), and scouts from the Nine Hells. The exalted don't patrol regularly, however, and they notice large-scale threats, not minor problems. Small numbers of monsters and ships have little trouble slipping into the Foothills undetected.

Bored by the splendors of the palace on Venya, members of Kord's exalted retinue periodically swarm into the Foothills in search of a rougher place to spar. Residents of the Foothills regard these incursions with a mixture of hope and trepidation. When the residents are beset by pirates or other exploiters, the champions of Kord direct their martial fury at the oppressors. But without obvious villains to rout, Kord's hordes spell nothing but trouble. His champions hack away at each other, heedless of the collateral damage they wreak.

Major Areas

Eight of the key locations in the Foothills are described below.

Stouthome

The dwarf community of Stouthome, also called the Stout, grimly scatters across a dome-shaped island known as the Anvil. One-fourth of its inhabitants are mortal; the rest are outsiders. Few exalted stay amid the community for long. Whether mortal or outsider, six in ten Stouthomers are of dwarven origin; the rest are of mixed backgrounds. They supplement their meager means by trawling the green seas for edible astral beasts. There are few meals served in Stouthome that do not feature the tough, pungent flesh of the fist-shaped astral "fish" (really a tiny aberrant creature) called the zilul. Stouthome's dispirited residents have given up trying to make the creature palatable. They take a taciturn pride in the hardship of their lives and the depths of their ancestral disappointment. Stouthomers might disapprove of everyone from anywhere else, but they don't let that attitude stop them from addressing their financial desperation. They grumblingly offer chilly hospitality to visitors who seem trustworthy, and as hosts they do their best to squeeze exorbitant fees from their guests for as long as those guests can stand to stay.

Ruins of Bentsword

The clash of spectral weapons against soulformed armor rings across the flattened ruins of Bentsword. Although the ruins mainly hold a legion of outsider warriors, a few maddened mortals also dwell there. The warriors of Bentsword dedicated their lives to warfare and to Kord, but now believe that they have dishonored themselves and that exclusion from Celestia is the price they pay for cowardice in their life. (They're probably wrong, but saying so to a drunken berserker who has a guilty conscience is pointless.) In an attempt to redeem themselves, they stage epic battles, hoping that Kord or one of his exalted will recognize the valor of the best warriors and elevate those who are worthy to exalted status in their next life, if not in this one. Warriors who believe they have proved themselves are not shy about fighting to the death and taking their chances.

Others have given up hope of joining Kord. They now fight to impress the occasional recruiters who come to Bentsword seeking warriors. They take positions as bodyguards, pirates, or even mercenaries in the armies of Bane. Bentsword's fame as a recruiting center for sellswords increasingly attracts warriors who have no desire to join Kord's host, including a smattering of mortal wanderers. Characters who find themselves at loose ends can seek paid assignments from Bentsword's recruiters.

Fleece Isles

The seven meadow-covered islands collectively called the Fleece Isles provide a home to a graceful, bucolic society of shepherds. Its people are mostly outsiders, although they allow mortals to stay with them as short-term guests, and are rumored to host two long-term exalted citizens who come from Hestavar and Arvandor, rather than Celestia. Resigned to their outsider status, the Fleece Islanders devote their remaining existence to the pursuit of refined and gentle pleasures. They value music, poetry, and the culinary arts. Merchant ships dock at the Fleece Isles to purchase butter, cheese, wool, and exquisitely woven garments. These commodities attract the attention of pirates, including githyanki. Unwilling to perturb their serenity with martial pursuits, Fleece Islanders rely on friends from Bentsword or hired buccaneers to defend them against raids. It's rumored that they can pay for such assistance with riches from a secret astral diamond deposit somewhere within one of the isles.

The Gallows

This landmass takes its name from an L-shaped rock formation jutting out from its hilltop. Arrayed around this formation are conical iron huts belonging to the Golden Noose, a band of vigilante outsiders. Its members, former worshipers of Kord and Bahamut, maintain a heavily armed fleet of astral warships. They rove the local waters and the Astral Sea in search of evildoers, whom they capture and bring back to the island. There, in the shadow of Mertion, Bahamut's mountainous eyre of justice and virtue, they mercilessly hang their captives from the rocky formation.

The leadership of the Noose consists of a seven-soul council. Whether revising its strict code of behavior or choosing targets, the council makes decisions by consensus. Nonmembers treat the council's spokesperson as its leader, even though he or she is in fact its most junior member. Council members, serene in their immovable righteousness, view the duty of dealing with others as a distasteful annoyance. Councilors serve until they die or choose to resign. Then, after a month-long period of campaigning, a successor is chosen by voice vote. All duly initiated members of the Noose can participate in this vote, provided they're physically present on the island. Captains of Golden Noose ships are the individuals most likely to be elevated to the council. Because councilors aren't allowed to endanger themselves by taking active part in missions, captains who prefer to remain on the hunt resist this promotion. They might campaign against themselves but, if elected, they are obligated to serve.

Ships of githyanki pirates and quom fanatics, two of the Noose's frequent targets, attack the island on a regular basis. From offshore, they bombard the iron huts with catapult fire or attempt to place the Gallows under blockade. This latter tactic rarely works, because Golden Noose siege engines rain destruction on them from above.

While pursuing their designated quarry, Golden Noose crew members keep their ears open for news of other wrongdoers. Their scouts gather evidence for consideration by the council. Applicants seeking the punishment of particular enemies often approach Noose personnel in distant ports rather than make the treacherous journey to the Gallows to address the full council, since the council can order the hanging of applicants who enter its home to make wrongful accusations.

Highcliff

Fishlike dragonborn populate the ramshackle settlement of Highcliff, which rests on a sheer plateau above a deceptively placid cove. Skulking residents roll human-sized boulders off the cliff onto any astral vessel unwisely moored below. Aided by their pet stone golems, the residents salvage whatever is left of the shattered ships. Highcliff's dragonborn are mortal; they worship a nameless oceanic primordial that was felled during the Dawn War. They claim that Celestia dropped onto their primordial lord in the same way their rocks drop upon unwary ships. The Highcliff dragonborn sacrifice valuables and food items on dark altars dedicated to the primordial, even though they believe it to have been irrevocably destroyed. Bahamut warns his servants to steer clear of the primordial's followers, perhaps being unsure whether or not the nameless one might return.

DAVE ALLSOP

The Pillar

This tiny isle is dominated by a massive watchtower, which stretches high above the astral horizon. The bitter and eccentric souls dwelling in the tower's dusty chambers claim to be former gods who were reduced to mere outsiders during the Dawn War.

They promise the secrets of the gods to those willing to brave the tower's collection of arcane traps. For the effort of navigating these hazards, daring seekers receive a stream of mad babble that later worms its way into their thoughts and dreams; seemingly inane, tantalizing nuggets of useful information can be extracted at times from the distressing gibberish. Some travelers come away from the Pillar certain that a deeper and more troubling truth lurks behind the insanity.

Among the common petitioners to the watchtower souls are prospective contestants in the Game of Mountains. They painstakingly transcribe the ramblings of Pillar residents, believing that these mad entities provide veiled clues to successful strategy in the next game. When the game is afoot, the weather around the Pillar shifts according to the identity of the current high-scoring team—thunder for Moradin, tempest winds for Kord, or a soothing breeze for Bahamut.

The Tangle

Former worshipers of Kord and Melora disport on the steep-sided, heavily forested island called the Tangle. The name refers to the island's thick vegetation, which makes travel difficult for all but experienced woodsfolk. Inhabitants inure themselves to outdoor living in extreme climatic conditions, because the island's magic makes it impossible to erect a roofed building anywhere on it; as soon as a structure is built, the island's roots, trees, and bushes muster to break the building down. As with the Pillar (see above), the weather on the Tangle depends on the most recent victor in the Game of Mountains.

Thousands of outsiders and a few rugged mortals live on the Tangle by foraging and hunting. Residents divide themselves into clans of a few dozen members. New arrivals wishing to live there must petition a clan for membership and prove themselves acceptable, usually by being companionable, uncomplaining, and physically able to forage. Those who don't join a clan soon learn that the magic of the island rejects them, preventing them from finding forage or drinkable water anywhere on the island. This effect is so strong that even imported food spoils within a few hours, and nonmagical liquids in containers, such as water, beer, or wine, quickly evaporate.

Inhabitants of the Tangle recognize no law or authority, except when a crime of violence occurs. They then gather their clan to decide if the accused will be allowed to remain in the clan. Social taboo prevents clan members from providing food to individuals who don't have clan membership, making exceptions only for hospitality provided to visitors staying less than a day. To protect themselves from pirate raids, residents store no food and keep no goods of value to the outside world.

Touchstone

The largest of the Foothills is Touchstone, a grassy hummock bounded by a field of ice. Standing at Touchstone's center is a protuberance of exposed and gnarled rock. A close inspection reveals that this so-called soul rock is composed of countless petrified humanoid figures. Touchstone is a final resting place for expiring soulforms; it draws dwindling souls in the same way that elephants are drawn to a mythic graveyard. With their final steps, the dying struggle to the rocky bulge in the island's center, turn to stone, and merge with the island for all eternity. The stony figures might retain a flicker of identity, though. Occasionally someone can commune ritually with otherwise extinguished spirits by touching their rocky remnants. A hardscrabble mortal population ekes out a chilly existence on the sparse grasslands ringing the central soul rock. The residents herd goats and sheep and occasionally help a heavy-limbed outsider to complete his or her final ascent.

Adventure Hooks

The following hooks and plot ideas are possible adventures in the Foothills.

Dead God Sabotage: Some of Bahamut's exalted approach the characters regarding a bizarre problem. The exalted suspect that the materials they used in constructing the first great ark might contain too many fragments of Lakal, the quom's world deity (page 101). The quom already consider Bahamut to be their great enemy; his launching an ark laced with Lakal-motes into the Astral Sea would provoke the quom in ways that could only end badly for the outsiders coming aboard the ark. Bahamut's faithful need someone who can obtain a quom or quom magic to establish whether the ark is sabotaged, as divinations show it to be. If true, the exalted need to catch the culprits responsible for the sabotage and to deal squarely with the quom.

Honored Ancestor Rock Stolen: A githyanki raid hits the Foothills while the characters are in the area, destroying something that they value or stealing some of their possessions. Simultaneously, the githyanki search through the stone soulforms atop Touchstone and take a specific statue. Witnesses report that the statue started moving and struggled as the githyanki hauled it aboard their ship. The characters discover, sooner or later, that the stolen statue had family ties to someone in their group, being a grandparent or relative of one of them, and somehow that person has been revived from his or her statue-like state. The plot works better if it's established that the character in question had a notable ancestor a few generations earlier who left unfinished business with the githyanki.

Environmental Features

Terrain effects in the Foothills derive from either their forbidding environment or the influence of Celestia's deities. Those resulting from the gods' influence are often field effects. Such effects are created when a deity's exalted linger in a place for an extended period, and they occur when the god in question is ascendant in the Game of Mountains. Fields potentially affect all or most of an encounter area. They remain dormant until certain actions are undertaken during an encounter. These actions establish small zones that remain active until the end of the encounter. Typical field effects are described below.

Armorfields

Where Moradin's exalted tread, armorfields spring up.

Effect: When a creature in an armorfield area takes cold, fire, force, lightning, necrotic, poison, radiant, or thunder damage, the space that the creature currently occupies becomes a zone until the end of the encounter. While a creature is within the zone, it gains resist 5 damage to that type of damage per tier. If the damage that created the zone has more than one type, the creature that triggered the creation of the zone selects one of those damage types as the resistance the zone confers.

Usage: Enemies that recognize the presence of an armorfield will use it to their advantage by moving into the zone's space. Because of the resistance, they will use attacks of the same type of damage against enemy and ally alike, trusting the resistance to protect their friends.

Drainer Lichen

The Foothills' rockier slopes are mottled by drainer lichen.

Effect: When a creature leaves a square of drainer lichen, it takes ongoing 5 radiant damage per tier until it reenters the drainer lichen square. Each square of drainer lichen can confer this ongoing damage only once each encounter.

Usage: Move enemies to a square of drainer lichen that a character leaves, forcing that character to take ongoing damage until the enemy can be moved off the square. Use soldiers with a high AC to make this tactic very effective.

Gramble

The Foothills' rugged heaths are covered in patches of gramble, a dense, thorny bush with carnivorous instincts.

Effect: Gramble is often difficult terrain, and can also be blocking terrain, as some bushes are also tall and thick enough to block line of sight. When a creature ends its turn in or adjacent to a square of gramble, it is restrained until the start of its next turn. When a creature starts its turn in or adjacent to a square of gramble, it takes 5 damage per tier.

Usage: Combine patches of gramble with ranged attackers to create an area of difficult or blocking terrain that the characters have to move through or in between to reach their enemies.

Mercyfields

Locations visited by Bahamut's exalted dragons develop into mercyfields.

Effect: If a creature in a mercyfield area is bloodied, the space that the creature currently occupies becomes a zone until end of encounter. When a creature starts its turn within the zone, it gains temporary hit points equal to one-half its healing surge value.

Usage: Put enemy brutes or soldiers in a mercyfield zone to make those creatures more difficult to defeat, especially if the space creates a choke point that the characters need to pass to get to a leader.

Valorfields

When Kord's exalted gather to fight, they leave valorfields in their wake.

Effect: If a creature in a valorfield area is bloodied, the space that the creature currently occupies becomes a zone until the end of encounter. While a creature is within the zone, it grants combat advantage.

Usage: Have skirmishers and other mobile enemies try to maneuver characters into valorfields. Soldiers with the ability to mark and lock down enemies can maneuver a character onto a valorfield zone to make that character an easier target for its allies.

Encounter Groups

Level 13 Encounter (XP 4,900)

- 1 angel of battle (level 15 skirmisher, MM 14)
- 2 angels of protection (level 14 soldier, MM 15)
- 1 githzerai mindmage (level 14 artillery, MM 131)
- 2 angel of valor veterans (level 16 minion, MM 16)

Level 18 Encounter (XP 10,000)

- 2 quom enforcers (level 17 brute, page 156)
- 2 ice archon rimehammers (level 19 soldier, MM 20)
- 4 renegade souls (level 18 minion*)

  * Use abyssal ghoul hungerer (MM 119); rename claw to soul sword and dead blood to final oblivion; the latter deals radiant damage instead of necrotic.

Level 22 Encounter (XP 24,550)

- 1 angel of authority (level 22 controller, Monster Manual 2 8)
- 1 durud slayer (level 23 lurker, page 158)
- 2 rakshasa dread knights (level 24 soldier, MM 218)
- 4 angel of valor legionnaires (level 21 minion, MM 16)

CHERNOGGAR

When mortal soldiers slog through the blood-soaked fields of a seemingly endless war, when enemies trap themselves in escalating cycles of violent revenge, or when someone stumbles onto a scene of senseless slaughter, they say, "We've entered Chernoggar." The roar of Chernoggar's battles thunders in the hearts of mortal warriors.

But few mortals can conceive of the panorama of war playing out in the dominion of the god of war and his enemy, the god of destruction. The noise alone shakes the soul—the rumble of thousands of booted feet, the ceaseless clash of sword and shield, the keening of forests of arrows, shouts of triumph and screams of pain, and death rattles as a battle-sworn exalted dies its temporary death.

In Chernoggar, all the glories and horrors of war play out second by second through eternity, as the devotees of two great powers engage in a proxy battle for their deities.

Origin Stories

Bane was either a mortal hero or a demigod who slew Tuern, the previous (and less disciplined) god of war in single combat, then took Tuern's power and wielded it well during the rest of the Dawn War. Confusion over Bane's identity comes from several sources, including his goblin worshipers, which want to think of him as a brother to both Kord and Tuern for reasons connected to goblins' extended family social structure.

Gruumsh is a mad god of destruction who deliberately crashed his dominion, Nishrek, into Bane's dominion. It's said that Gruumsh decided to take down Bane the moment that Bane pried the god of war's sword from Tuern's dead fingers, but preparing his dominion to soar across the Astral Sea and smash into Chernoggar apparently took eons of planning and the exercise of tremendous divine power. During the intervening years, Bane and Gruumsh fought on the same side in several battles, and on opposing sides in others. With a god as chaotic as Gruumsh, it's difficult to ever fully know where he stands. He finally wrenched Nishrek free of its original position in the splintering Lattice of Heaven and slammed it into Chernoggar—after the Dawn War was over, fortunately for the rest of the deities.

When Dominions Collide

Thousands of years after Bane had defeated Tuern to become the god of war, Gruumsh brought Nishrek, his unstable realm of destructive volcanoes and constant carnage, crashing into Chernoggar—an act that should have torn both dominions apart. Bane's iron will held Chernoggar together, but he succeeded only by fusing the dominion with Nishrek.

Nishrek had been a place of self-destructive savagery where souls favored by Gruumsh butchered one another for no reason other than to see things end. Yet the melding of two dominions gave that destruction a new purpose, and new victims for Gruumsh's favored to turn their fury upon. Bane, in turn, marshaled forces of his own, conscripting the souls of tyrants, war heroes, and strategists to battle alongside angelic hosts. The two deities became entangled in a war to prove superiority that neither has conclusively won in the centuries since.

Some sages believe that such a battle, once begun, cannot end: War cannot overcome the devastation it creates, and turmoil cannot resolve the wars it foments. The reasons they cite for the never-ending conflict include the recusal of Bane and Gruumsh from direct influence in the cosmos, the regular resurrection of the combatants, or the fact that other deities might want the war to continue. Regardless, Bane's ordered armies continue to press their tactical advantages while the crazed hordes of Gruumsh howl down upon them in endless avalanches.

A Geography of War

Chernoggar spins violently through the Astral Sea as two conjoined realms still rocked by their ancient collision. The concussion caused by their merging crumpled volcanic peaks and created massive cracked canyons that continue to shift and burn. Although Bane's will fused the dominions, both the antagonism of the two deities and Chernoggar's whirling as it reels through the silver mists constantly threaten to tear it apart.

Volcanic peaks seethe all across Chernoggar, sullenly exhaling black ash when in Bane's iron grip and bursting to fiery rage where Gruumsh's faithful gain the upper hand. Quakes rumble through the earth, and new crevasses tear open the face of Chernoggar even as older canyons become clogged with corpses. Although some of the dominion burns with the heat of molten rock or is scoured by freezing winds, most places are oppressive and depressing to those who visit here. The rust-red sky hangs low over the land, and whether the weather brings fog, wind, hail, rain, or warmth, it lingers long past the point of comfort, making inhabitants short-tempered and distracted.

The Crash Peaks still scar the dominion, evidence of the ancient wound that sprang up where Nishrek and Chernoggar were joined. Yet so much of the territory has been claimed and reclaimed by the two warring sides that few could say for certain which deity once ruled an area without access to a map. Great fortresses, watchtowers, aeries, dungeon passes, patchwork redoubts, walls, battle trenches, ports, and bunkers have all been built, lost, claimed, ruined, abandoned, and rebuilt many times over. Battlements run the dagger's edge of mountain ridgelines, ramble through bramble-choked valleys, and sink into swamps so soaked with blood that life there has adapted to being nourished by blood rather than by water. Weapons of war lie discarded all over the dominion; many riverbanks are strewn with more arrowheads than stones. Most who see Chernoggar for the first time wonder if they have entered the Nine Hells, but those who have seen that place appreciate Chernoggar for its brutal beauty. Unlike in the Hells, each day in Chernoggar offers moments of triumph and the slim chance of personal or cosmic victory.

Gods of Chernoggar

Bane and Gruumsh each have their own motivations and goals, both in their seemingly endless war and in their greater struggles within the Astral Sea.

Bane's Strategy

The deities eventually relied upon Bane to lead them in the Dawn War, and many will look to him for leadership if the primordials or another threat to divine order arises. At the same time, Bane's constant struggle against Gruumsh is a matter that concerns those same deities. Shouldn't the best of all generals be able to defeat one deity, especially one so undisciplined as Gruumsh? Shouldn't Bane have seen Gruumsh coming, even if no one else did?

What the questioners fail to realize is that Bane is capable of strategic thinking beyond others' comprehension. Bane aims for nothing less than total domination. The Astral Sea, the Elemental Chaos, the world, its shadowy and twilit reflections—Bane will hold them all in his iron grip. Fully capable of fighting multiple wars at once, Bane allows others to believe that his war with Gruumsh preoccupies him while he makes subtle moves in a long-term plan. It suits his purposes to keep his servants honed for war, and the various thrashing offensives by Gruumsh's wild adherents resemble the tactics employed by demons and other elemental forces of chaos. Similarly, devils bound by contract stand among Bane's rank and file, and their efforts in the field inform those they fight alongside. When the next great cosmic battle erupts, the Iron General will understand all the contingencies, and his soldiers will know all they need to prevail.

Gruumsh's Wrath

The struggle between Bane and Gruumsh represents a conflict between pride and rage. Despite the pointlessness of the carnage, Bane will not concede to Gruumsh, and Bane's determined resistance keeps Gruumsh's fury in full swing. With immortal angels and resurrected battlesworn on both sides, the conflict cannot end unless an event significantly changes the field.

Bane might be content to test the mettle of his faithful in an eternal war, but Gruumsh forever seeks the killing stroke. His forces frequently take bold risks that impress even Bane's battlesworn, but they also make wild and even suicidal attacks that have little chance of success.

Chernoggar's war is thus in constant flux. Bane's forces make steady advances until a bizarre ploy by Gruumsh's armies opens a devastating break in Bane's ordered ranks. Then the battle lines change and the combatants begin fighting a wholly different war.

Major Areas

The vast landscape of Chernoggar hosts countless sites of note. Many locations have hosted battles that would be legendary if later conflicts hadn't obliterated all traces of them.

Stairs of Woe

Bane's portion of Chernoggar is filled with fortresses within fortresses. The first walls someone faces when entering it are the mile-high cliffs that raise the dominion high above the dry seabed that surrounds Chernoggar. Of the few paths that exist up or through the cliffs, the best known is the Stairs of Woe. This steep and winding series of staircases runs from guard tower to guard tower, giving those who ascend the stairs little shelter from attacks from above. Bane's soldiers have controlled the stairs for the past hundred years, and those who earn Bane's wrath find themselves imprisoned in crow's cages along the ascent.

Tuer-Chern

The massive fortress-metropolis of Tuer-Chern, high above the perimeter of the dominion, is the seat of Bane's power. In all its long history, it has been besieged only a handful of times. No siege has truly had any hope of taking it.

Clangor

Maglubiyet, hobgoblin exarch of Bane, rules this fortified city of goblinoid battlesworn, bladelings, and their trained beasts and slaves. Clangor is known far and wide for its arena, where captives fight for their lives against one another or against merciless monsters.

Tower of Skulls

Amid blasting peaks and billowing clouds of acidic smoke totters the Tower of Skulls, a massive structure of skulls of every variety, lashed together by chains and the innards of the slain. This fearsome palace is the seat of Gruumsh's power. The largest skulls are those of primordials and deities that Gruumsh slew. Others are offerings left by his followers. No enemies attempt to take this place, for fear that Gruumsh would send it crashing down upon them and use their bones to heap it up again.

Zoronor

This bleak bladeling town leans over the cliffs that surround the high plateau of Chernoggar. Although the Stairs of Woe are better known, the bladelings offer another route of ascent. For the right price, individuals who make the trek across the salt flats can purchase a ride on the city's series of elevators to the top. Of course, once within Zoronor, few see any of the rest of the dominion without being in chains. Visitors usually are captured, smuggled across the battlefields, and sold as gladiators to the arenas in Clangor.

Tower of the Adamantine Mage

Koth-Amar, a wizard of great power, uses this heavily guarded and trapped tower to store the magic and knowledge he has plundered from across the planes.

Crash Peaks

Although mountain ranges run across the dominion, the Crash Peaks dwarf all others. These extremely steep peaks stab high into the orange sky, surrounded and riddled by sheer-sided canyons that gouge deeper into the earth than seems possible. Over the centuries, Chernoggar's two opposing forces have made paths through the wreckage of the dominions' collision. Bridges of swaying chains connect the walls of crevasses, steep trails cut passages through peaks, and networks of dungeons intersect to make cavernous highways through stone. The Crash Peaks are now such a maze of pathways that the one-time barrier has become yet another place where ground changes hands with the fortunes of war.

Climbing Caves

The Climbing Caves is the third-best known ascent into the upper reaches of Chernoggar, consisting of winding and diverse chambers and passages that writhe through the cliffs on the Nishrek side of Chernoggar. Several changing pathways run through them, sometimes opening to exposed ledges on the cliffs. The area is a wilderness inhabited by all manner of savage beasts, but both Gruumsh's armies and Bane's soldiers use the caves to move troops around the outside of the domain, and the forces of one deity or the other sometimes lay claim to a portion of the caves until dislodged by the enemy or by the predations and disasters that take lives amid the shifting stone.

Stone Sea

These vast badlands frequently roil like a storm-tossed ocean, with waves of rising rock tossing splashes of shrapnel into the air. Across them grind the sailing citadels—rocky tors carved into fortresses and piloted across the roiling landscape like ships across an angry sea. Armies of Gruumsh and Bane clash here in a chaotic melee of armadas made from behemoth stones. When the moving castles plow courses that come near one another, soldiers leap free to battle on the quaking ground between them, or board and besiege the enemy fortress. If one side gains the upper hand in this strange war, it sends a sailing citadel to aid a battle elsewhere in the dominion.

Lakes of Lost Hope

A sailor in the middle of one of these huge bodies of water could be forgiven for thinking it a sea. Warring fleets and swimming beasts brave the hurricanes, waterspouts, great waves, and whirlpools that frequently rake across the lakes to come to grips with one another or to outflank a land-bound army. Yet even the land around the Lakes of Lost Hope offers no respite from danger, because deadly marshes, rushing rivers, broad quagmires, and waterlogged jungles surround them.

Adventures

Chernoggar is roughly 350 miles across, providing plenty of room for adventures. Ideas for adventures are scattered throughout the descriptions of Chernoggar's major areas, but the topics below might help you present events in a way that makes them feel unique to the warring realm of Bane and Gruumsh.

Themes

Combat occurs in every adventure, but in Chernoggar, battle or the threat of conflict should be constant. Bane's forces should seek to capture, conscript, or kill the player characters, while Gruumsh's followers try to tear them apart at every opportunity. It should swiftly become obvious which of the two sides the characters can speak to, but it should also be obvious that talk is cheap. What matters in Chernoggar is action, and nothing speaks more loudly than sword and spell.

Mass destruction, slaughter, and chaos are the hallmarks of Gruumsh's forces, while rigid chains of command, duty, strategic planning, and powerful authority mark interactions with Bane's soldiers. There's nothing noble about Gruumsh's savagery. The heroics of Bane's battlesworn are merely brief flashes of light amid the unending darkness of their bloody pragmatism.

Of course, there are many separate armies in Chernoggar. In the course of a few days of travel, the characters might come across a few different armies of Bane and Gruumsh, each with its own leaders. These forces likely communicate with one another, but a bargain struck with one group might not be honored by another. Generals on the same side might be in competition or direct contention. Mercenary bands of monsters and bladelings offer even more unpredictability.

In addition to encounters with scouting parties, spies, and other small groups common to large armed conflicts, the characters should experience massive battles. You can accomplish this by using minions arrayed in screaming hordes or ordered ranks. Alternatively, you could run combats across a large battlefield the same way you might run them in a dungeon. The characters fight a battle, and then the flow of combat gives them choices of the same sort as a left or a right turn in the dungeon: head for the hill where the catapults are, or try to skulk through the brush between the two armies before the battle lines move there. You might also consider using skill challenges to represent the characters' actions in a battlefield conflict. See "Between War and Destruction" (page 56) for one way to handle this.

Encounters

Beyond typical combat, the characters might have encounters in which they have a specific goal aside from winning the fight. Success or failure in such a secondary objective should have a broader implication for a future encounter or for the rest of the adventure. The characters might need to kill a number of minions before a certain number of rounds elapse. They might need to move a particular enemy to a certain point on the battlefield, or capture a certain enemy and then retain that enemy when others attempt a rescue. Or, alternatively, they might need to keep a specific ally alive throughout an encounter.

Skill challenges can be added to combat encounters to give them a military flavor. The characters might need to make skill checks to rally demoralized troops, command the tactics of nearby forces, or repair an important war machine while combat rages.

Plot Ideas

Great successes and grave reversals occur each day and night somewhere in the domain, and the characters should be a big factor in what happens in the war around them. Adventure plots should either involve the characters influencing the war directly, or swiftly entangle them in the war, even if their goal is something unrelated.

The characters might come to Chernoggar for a number of reasons, possibly including one or more of these.

- Pursue someone hoping (foolishly?) to hide in the chaos of Chernoggar.
- Stop someone who has come to Chernoggar to gain an army or a weapon for conflict elsewhere.
- Gain a great weapon needed to slay a primordial, perhaps by stealing it from Bane.
- Claim a warship or a sailing citadel for their use.
- Help Gruumsh or Bane win the war, upsetting the status quo of the deities.
- Reawaken the spirit of Tuern, which is rumored to be "slumbering" as a flame trapped in the shape of an axe.
- Gain the service of a famous exalted general as the leader of a coming war.
- Convince followers of Gruumsh and Bane to turn their fury upon a common enemy.

Monsters and NPCs

The characters might face leftover servants of Tuern (fiery and militaristic creatures such as salamanders or efreets), but most of Chernoggar should be filled by bladelings, followers of the two deities, or monsters the two forces brought there to fight their battles. The breeding pits of goblinoid battlesworn offer a potentially limitless variety of creatures the characters might face, either as part of one of the armies or as small groups roaming the dominion. Angels, devils, and maruts might be found on both sides.

Chapter 4 provides statistics for battlesworn of both deities and for exarchs of Gruumsh. For exarchs of Bane, see "Deities and Demigods: Bane" in Dragon #372 at www.dndinsider.com.

Between War and Destruction

This skill challenge represents the characters attempting to move about in an active war zone in Chernoggar. Rather than a single skill challenge for one trip across a battlefield, this skill challenge should be used several times during the course of an adventure whenever the characters need to move through battlefields where fighting is taking place. You can use it as an abstract representation of the characters' movement from important battle to important battle in a conflict in which they participate, or you can use it to represent their attempts to avoid being drawn into a war that rages around them as they pursue their own concerns.

Level: 25 (XP 35,000).

Complexity: 5 (12 successes before 3 failures).

Segments: Unlike other skill challenges, this skill challenge has different components each time you use it. Whenever you start the skill challenge, choose three skill challenge segments from the eight described below. Each segment represents a scene or smaller challenge within the context of the larger skill challenge. That segment introduces the scene currently taking place within the skill challenge.

The characters accrue successes and failures as is normal in a skill challenge. If they accrue a total of 3 failures across all segments they have attempted, they fail the skill challenge. If the characters earn 4 successes in each of the three segments, they succeed on the skill challenge. The end result is still a skill challenge requiring 12 successes before 3 failures, but the successes are distributed over three segments.

The time frame for skill checks in any of the segments is highly variable. The characters might be involved in other dealings that make it difficult for them to progress in the challenge more often than once an hour (for instance), or they might be making checks in rapid succession (perhaps once per minute) if nothing else is occupying their attention.

Each segment is tied to a specific area on the battlefields of Chernoggar. You can choose segments that come from the same area, or each segment can come from a different area. The areas are:

Fields of the Dead: Each of these areas is a wasteland of heaped bodies and muddy hills. The battle has largely left the area, but small skirmishes frequently erupt between scavenging units. Troops are wary of conflict here because they lack support, making social solutions to problems simpler, but the soldiers don't give their trust easily.

Wracking Landscape: Gruumsh's forces have gained the upper hand in these areas, and the broken ground is wracked by tumultuous weather, quakes, landslides, and volcanic activity. Bane's forces are on the lookout for allies, while Gruumsh's forces are difficult to impress. The environment makes movement and understanding the battlefield difficult.

Grip of Iron: Bane's forces have established a strong presence in these areas, putting Gruumsh's army on the run and taming the landscape. Bane's camp is wary of trickery, while Gruumsh's followers seek easy victories.

Battlefield in Flux: These areas are in near-constant conflict, as the two armies contest the field. Neither side welcomes strangers, but the chaos of the conflict provides opportunities for either strategy or stealth.

Success: Each time the characters gain 4 successes in a segment, they move on to the next one. If they complete three segments successfully, the skill challenge ends and the characters reach their destination safely.

Failure: Whenever the characters accrue their third failure in the skill challenge, the segment they are engaged in at the time determines the failure condition. See each segment for a description of its failure condition.

Fields of the Dead: Banesworn

The characters encounter several lost Banesworn (page 134). They assume the characters are allies and ask for directions back to their unit. If the characters seek to properly direct the Banesworn, they can attempt to set them on the path they want. Alternatively, the characters can attempt to divert the Banesworn toward Gruumsh's forces.

Primary Skills: Bluff, Diplomacy, Intimidate, Nature.

Bluff (DC 17): The character tricks the Banesworn into going even farther off course, convincing them that they are receiving good directions, when in reality the directions will lead them to the battlesworn of Gruumsh.

Diplomacy (DC 26): The character gives the Banesworn good advice, convincing them to either follow the right path back to their encampment or to leave the battle altogether, preserving their own lives by refusing to fight.

Intimidate (DC 26): The character runs off the Banesworn, threatening them with death and leaving them with no direction as to how to proceed.

Nature (DC 17): The character discerns the quickest path for the Banesworn to return to their companions' camp, or the most circuitous one to delay them for a good deal of time.

Failure: Any characters who have an action point lose that action point.

Fields of the Dead: Fallen Leaders

The characters encounter a wounded leader of one side or the other (your choice) trapped beneath a dead mount or war machine. They can free the leader or trick the leader into giving them directions in exchange for the (presumably false) promise of aid.

Primary Skills: Athletics, Bluff, Diplomacy, Endurance, Insight.

Athletics (DC 26): The character pries the leader out from under the obstruction.

Bluff or Diplomacy (DC 26): The character convinces the leader to give the information the party needs to move on in exchange for freeing him or her.

Endurance (DC 17): The character picks up and holds the object pinning the leader, lifting it slowly to minimize any wounds the leader might have sustained.

Insight (DC 26): The character figures out from which direction the leader was riding when he or she was ambushed, cluing the characters in to the location of other, similar forces in the vicinity.

Failure: Each of the characters loses a healing surge.

Wracking Landscape: Angelic Spies

An angelic spy for Gruumsh's forces notices and confronts the characters. They can attempt to talk the angel into leaving them to their own business or try to convince the angel to switch sides in the conflict.

Primary Skills: Diplomacy, History, Intimidate, Religion.

Diplomacy (DC 26): The character reasons with the angel, convincing it that joining the characters is in its best interest, or perhaps to work as a double agent.

History (DC 17): The character determines something about either this particular angelic spy or the past deeds of a famous angelic spy, using that knowledge to convince the angel that other angels in the past have not been so strict in their duties.

Intimidate (DC 31): The character convinces the angel that if it reports on the party to its master, bad things will happen—both to the angel and to its master.

Religion (DC 17): The character determines some of the habits and mannerisms that this particular angel is likely to have and to what kind of arguments it would be more likely to listen.

Failure: The characters take a –5 penalty to Charisma-based skill checks until they take an extended rest.

Wracking Landscape: Best-Laid Plans

The characters learn of a suicidal strategy by the followers of Gruumsh, either by finding the plans on a dead soldier or overhearing the planning. The plan is crazed and destined to fail, so informing the followers of Bane does nothing. The characters can decide to intervene, attempting to dissuade the foolhardy soldiers and providing an alternative, or they can warn the Banesworn about the ambush and make it a total rout.

Primary Skills: Athletics, Diplomacy, Insight, Perception.

Athletics (DC 31): The character races ahead to the farthest point in the battle plan's path, warning the defenders against the impending attack.

Diplomacy (DC 26): The character convinces the battlesworn of Gruumsh that their plan is doomed to failure and, possibly, that the plan the characters have put together would work better.

Insight (DC 17): The character determines the best way to modify the battle plan to cause it to either fail more spectacularly, reducing the number of lives lost, or to succeed.

Perception (DC 26): The character searches for remnants from past battles that can be used by one side or the other during the attack, such as siege weapons buried in the mud or naturally occurring barricades.

Failure: Any characters who have an action point lose that action point.

Grip of Iron: Ambushed

The characters are surrounded by Bane's forces, but they notice Gruumsh's battlesworn are ready to ambush their erstwhile captors. They must either convince the Banesworn of the danger or hide their knowledge and distract them from the surprise attack.

Primary Skills: Bluff, Diplomacy, Insight, Stealth.

Bluff (DC 31): The character hides his or her knowledge of the impending ambush, ensuring that the Banesworn are wiped out.

Diplomacy (DC 26): The character convinces the Banesworn to trust the party, warning them of the ambush in time to turn the tide.

Insight (DC 26): The character discerns who might come out on top of the eventual ambush, which will inform the party on which side to support.

Stealth (DC 26): The character helps the group hide from both forces, making sure that neither group of battlesworn sees them.

Failure: Each of the characters takes damage equal to his or her bloodied value from being caught in the middle during the ensuing melee.

Grip of Iron: Move That Artillery!

The characters encounter a siege machine or an artillery piece stuck in the mud and entangled in brush. They can help to free it for the followers of Bane or try to seize the weapon for themselves.

Primary Skills: Athletics, Dungeoneering, Endurance, Heal.

Athletics (DC 31): The character physically moves the large piece of artillery, using his or her strength to force it out of the mud.

Dungeoneering (DC 26): The character determines the best way to disassemble and reassemble the artillery, as is done with dungeon traps, to move it more easily.

Endurance (DC 17): The character rocks the siege weapon back and forth to remove it from the entangling brush, taking a slow and steady approach to freeing the device.

Heal (DC 17): The character provides first aid and revitalizing assistance to the others who are trying to extricate the artillery, giving them more energy for their task.

Failure: Each of the characters loses a healing surge from exhaustion.

Battlefield in Flux: Bladeling Mercenaries

The characters encounter a troop of bladeling mercenaries fleeing the battle, and not far off they can see a general of Bane surveying the battle from a high promontory. The characters can call out to the general about the deserters or keep quiet. If they call out, the bladelings are captured, and the characters might gain information from the general.

Primary Skills: Diplomacy, Nature, Perception, Stealth.

Diplomacy (DC 26): The character convinces the general to pursue the bladelings, ensuring that they are captured quickly.

Nature (DC 17): The character finds the fastest route by which to cut off the bladelings' escape, giving the Banesworn an edge in the pursuit.

Perception (DC 26): The character acts as a lookout or an advance scout, physically following the tracks left behind by the bladelings to ensure their capture.

Stealth (DC 31): The character sneaks up on the bladelings, forcing them to turn back toward the general's forces.

Failure: The characters do not count this encounter toward their milestones for the day.

Battlefield in Flux: Crossfire!

The characters are caught in a crossfire. A rain of arrows or a blast of magic affects them as they take cover and escape the area, requiring them to flee the area quickly.

Primary Skills: Acrobatics, Arcana, Insight, Perception.

Acrobatics (DC 26): The character physically evades the incoming missiles, dodging nimbly out of the way.

Arcana (DC 26): The character determines the nature of the spells (if any) being used to create the bombardment, using that knowledge to predict attack patterns.

Insight (DC 17): The character predicts where the heaviest density of incoming projectiles is to be found and evades those areas.

Perception (DC 31): The character watches the skies for incoming missiles, dodging them reactively.

Failure: Each of the characters takes damage equal to his or her bloodied value from narrow escapes and glancing blows.

The War Expands

Even if the characters never visit the war in Chernoggar, the war might come to them, as the conflict between Gruumsh and Bane spirals out from the contested dominion. Despite the desperate battles fought in Chernoggar, Bane's forces periodically choose to conquer astral motes, border islands, and sections of the shattered dominions far from his kingdom. Bane's battlesworn cast off for distant battlefields in astral armadas, heedless of the dangers to their immortal souls if they die far from their deity's dominion. Furious at being ignored, elements of Gruumsh's hordes sometimes follow Bane's ships in commandeered or cobbled-together skiffs or, more rarely, in dominion ships.

The increasing intensity of the war beyond Chernoggar's borders is wreaking havoc on astral motes and border islands occupied temporarily or permanently by Bane's forces. Not only must the denizens of those places contend with would-be conquerors, but after the devastation of battle and the occupation by their new masters, they must ally with their occupiers to defend themselves from an inevitable assault by the crazed hordes of Gruumsh.

Bane's battlesworn regularly command and serve as the rank and file of these forces despite the fact that their deaths so far afield will result in the dissolution of their souls. The permanent loss of any of Bane's battlesworn presents a threat to Bane's power, but he tends to lose fewer battlesworn than Gruumsh in these wide-ranging skirmishes. Whether these assaults represent true attempts at conquest or training exercises for a future battle, none but Bane can say.

Discussed below are a few ways in which the ongoing conflict might crop up in your campaign.

Gruumsh's Faithful: An army of devils has claimed a corrupt city in the world, just as the devils did in the last days of Bael Turath. The characters have unwelcome allies in their attempt to fight the devils: an army of orcs and other monstrous faithful of Gruumsh. A number of the devils are secretly allied with Bane, and the worshipers of Gruumsh received divine visions of their deity's enemies. Although the orcs are a source of possible aid against the devils, they aren't likely to spare any of the innocent citizens.

Sprung Traps: The battlesworn of Bane have come and gone from Kalandurren (page 114), but they left traps behind for Gruumsh's allies. Now the characters must contend with both the native dangers of that shattered dominion and those imposed by Bane's faithful. When the savage foes of Bane arrive, the characters have the opportunity to turn the traps upon them.

Up the Ante: While the characters are exploring the white deserts of Shom (page 119), the forces of Bane arrive to negotiate for aid from the maruts. While there, those forces don't mind press-ganging the characters, particularly if they can be used as a bargaining chip with the guardian maruts the characters have been fighting.

Unwanted Company: Fresh from crushing a recruiting expedition by Bane's forces, Gruumsh's followers wreck their ship near Bentsword in the Foothills of Celestia (page 48). They must be defeated before Bane's armies arrive and use the orcs' continued presence as an excuse to launch a "pacifying mission."

Servants of the Gods: In a strange twist of the mirrorlike nature of the Shadowfell, the souls of those faithful to Bane and Gruumsh begin fighting their deities' war before they reach the Astral Sea. Although few are faithful enough to enter their deities' dominion, the undead think they can earn their places by their acts of faith in the afterlife. Now a host of undead that are faithful to Bane makes conquests in his name while a horde of undead that honor Gruumsh chase after them. Both are pursued by agents of the Raven Queen that seek to reclaim these wayward souls. All of this would likely be beyond the characters' concern, but the Bane-worshiping undead have set their sights on conquest in the world as their tribute.

Misguided Hunters: Maglubiyet, exarch of Bane, has ordered a Great Hunt to collect a huge quantity of strange beasts for the breeding pits, gladiatorial arenas, and battlefields of Chernoggar. Now goblin battlesworn have set out all over the planes in raiding parties to capture monsters for their lord and leader. A particularly crazed and ambitious crew seeks to awaken and subdue a bestial primordial. Gruumsh's followers follow behind secretly, in hopes of freeing the primordial to cause more havoc in Bane's camp.

The Shrapnels: Chernoggar's Islands

As with other astral dominions, islands crowd around Chernoggar. Thrust outward from the collision of the two deities' realms, these massive astral isles hurtle around Chernoggar in a slow yet dangerous orbital storm. The Shrapnel Islands spin through the Astral Sea in a variety of trajectories, sometimes colliding and fusing together in a reenactment of the dominion's creation and other times ricocheting off one another into new trajectories.

The Shrapnels do not align with the astral horizon, and each island has its own gravity relative to that isle's surface. Those on the surface of an island cannot feel it moving on its orbital path as it careens about Chernoggar. Yet anyone looking up from one of the Shrapnels can see the rusty glow from Chernoggar's color veil as the veil passes over or under the island and can watch other islands whirl overhead in deceptively graceful arcs. With miles of distance between their paths, other islands appear as specks passing slowly overhead.

From time to time, two of the Shrapnel Islands collide. The outcome of that collision depends on the size, speed, and composition of the bodies involved. In general, the larger of the two islands survives such a clash, absorbing the smaller islands within itself or deflecting it away. At times, however, a smaller island smashes into a weak point on a larger one, slicing away a section of it or bursting it apart to form more Shrapnels.

The Shrapnels frequently play host to the predations of monsters such as astral stalkers (Monster Manual, page 10), astral dreadnoughts (Manual of the Planes, page 115), primordial colossi (Monster Manual 2, page 37), and other abominations. These attacks might be due to the influence of Gruumsh, and they seem to form a pattern of aggression against any settlement or army on the islands that grows too large. Warlords among the Shrapnels come and go, but any who gain enough influence to command more than a few hundred troops are beset by mass desertions or find their forces split by mutiny for fear of attracting the attentions of a behemoth terror.

Of course, the orbital swarm of border islands also means that outsiders who are randomly teleported away from Chernoggar when they try to cross its color veil often find themselves near one or more of the Shrapnels rather than floating in the empty astral space above or below other divine dominions.

Inhabitants and Culture

The Shrapnels are home to the souls of some of the most destructive and domineering individuals throughout the planes. Through accidents of fate, these spirits pass through the Shadowfell and end up among the Shrapnels instead of on Chernoggar or at their other rightful destinations. Many are the faithful of Gruumsh and Bane, but numerous other outsiders begin their second life in the Shrapnels. Some even survive and stay.

Life in the Shrapnels is tough and risky. Charismatic or intimidating individuals gather allies about themselves and attempt to make small gains that make life more comfortable, but any grand plans are doomed due to internal strife or external disasters. No one caught in the Shrapnel Islands is an optimist. Bladelings, githyanki, renegade angels and devils, and pirates and mercenaries of all sorts live among the Shrapnels, in addition to outsiders. Nothing but sword or spell imposes order upon these islands. The dangerous nature of the Shrapnels and their lawlessness makes them an opportune hideout for many.

Bane and Gruumsh don't pay attention to the border wars in the Shrapnels. An armada from Chernoggar might stop off to press-gang individuals or to hire mercenaries for a venture into realms beyond, but it's plain to all that the angels and the battlesworn of Chernoggar consider these bit players nothing other than fodder. The followers of other deities occasionally scout the area for outsiders that follow neither Bane nor Gruumsh and need a ride to an archipelago away from the gods of war, but flying into Bane's territory is risky business.

Navigating the Shrapnels

Fortunately for astral travelers, navigating through the Shrapnels isn't as dangerous as living on them. The distance between islands is large enough that posted sentinels can watch for oncoming isles and pilot around them. And if a traveler approaches too rapidly, there is still enough time to orient to an island's gravity and avoid an upended fall to the island's surface.

The dangerous moments occur when something blocks vision of a moving island. Such an event can happen when a traveler is leaving or arriving at an island, or when astral storms or other phenomena obscure sight. In such situations, a ship or a traveler can suddenly enter the gravity field of an island when improperly oriented. Flying creatures rarely have difficulty; either they right themselves and fly in to land, or they soar away from the island. Astral vessels that are improperly oriented immediately go out of control and crash if the crew cannot remain in the vessel and right it. Swimming creatures and other nonflyers fall a long distance (usually to their deaths).

Inhabitants of the Shrapnels thus rarely attempt to leave their islands unless provided with a vessel or flying mount. Some take the risk when a collision can be predicted, hoping to exchange certain death by crushing for the mere mortal peril of the resultant explosion, or when another Shrapnel looks like it is approaching close enough that it's worth the risk of going out to wait along the orbital path.

Major Areas

A variable number of islands circulate in orbit around Chernoggar, as the Shrapnels combine and explode. Rather than being barren shards of rock, however, the Shrapnels swiftly rejuvenate, even after destruction. Forests reclaim land occupied by craters, rivers carve new routes, and blood-soaked souls from across the planes replenish those lost to calamity.

The Shrapnels consist of about two hundred islands at any given time, and this variety offers plenty of space for you to devise your own Shrapnel Island locations. An island might be in such an odd orbit that it hasn't come near other islands for centuries, while another one might be regularly threatened with collision. Neither Bane nor Gruumsh is capable of using magic and battlesworn to expand Chernoggar by bringing any of these chaotically orbiting islands into the dominion.

A few of the islands that have lasted long enough to become known to travelers are described below.

Isle of Rage

Inhabitants of the other islands pray to whatever deity hears them in hopes of avoiding a collision with the dreaded Isle of Rage. This volcanic island whirls erratically about Chernoggar faster than any other island, trailing a plume of cinders and smoke like a fiery comet. It smashes through smaller Shrapnels and scrapes across larger islands, all the while belching lava and toxic clouds. Crazed outsiders of fire from all over the planes inhabit the isle, and they tumble out of their home like a pyroclastic flow to burn and slay whatever they encounter. Only an insane person or an adventurer would intentionally set foot on the Isle of Rage. Of course, the island's mythological history provides incentive for both kinds of visitors. The Isle of Rage is rumored to be the spot where Bane slew the fire god Tuern, and it was cast off from the dominion when Gruumsh crashed his realm into Bane's conquered lands. Tuern's still-hot blood fuels the isle's volcano.

Reavers' Haven

The scarred island of Reavers' Haven presents an imposing sight. It looks like a massive, irregular block of stone marbled by thick veins of pure iron that glint in the orange glow of Chernoggar's color veil. The plentiful iron has brought pirates, freebooters, and mercenaries to the place, granting it its name. Mortal, outsider, and immortal reavers live in fortified caverns that pockmark the surface of Reavers' Haven. A huge variety of independent groups use the caves, and they battle over resources, knowledge, and employment.

Weak-looking vessels can expect hostility, intimidation, or extortion, but travelers who give evidence of their power can hire crew or trade for goods or repairs in the raucous port caves. The light from the Astral Sea doesn't shine very deeply into the caves, and the reavers rarely travel farther down than the light goes. Danger dwells in the depths of their haven—danger that the reavers would prefer to leave in the dark.

Gnashing Teeth

Astral travelers call three of the Shrapnels the Gnashing Teeth because as they travel together in their shared orbit, they spin around one another in unpredictable eddies that slam them together and rip them apart. Once a single island used as a military outpost by the forces of Bane, the military settlement grew large despite repeated attacks by monsters. It was abandoned after another island burst through it, causing it to break up. Now the remaining three islands serve as a home to factions of bladelings and outsiders battling for control. The war takes place on the three fronts of the islands, periodically changing in great sweeps as the Gnashing Teeth collide or draw apart. Bladelings and githyanki fight for the islands specifically because the defenses left by Bane's battlesworn are strong enough to defend against all threats, making the Gnashing Teeth an excellent base of operations near Chernoggar.

Rimeval

The polar opposite of the Isle of Rage, Rimeval is dominated by glacier-shrouded peaks. A ceaseless blizzard swirls over the center of the island, forever feeding the press of ice that moves in a crushing creep or a sudden avalanche to the edges of the isle. At the verges of Rimeval, the massive glaciers constantly cleave off into icebergs that guard its shores before floating free to become part of the Shrapnels. The bitter souls cursed by happenstance to freeze in Rimeval take refuge in ice tunnels in the glaciers, eking out a desperate existence. No one would remember Rimeval as anything other than a place to be avoided, yet a foolhardy few who braved the cold death that awaited them in Rimeval returned with astral diamonds and strange treasures frozen in the ice since ancient days. The glaciers act like a planar depository for things cursed to be lost. They fall from the storm to be buried by snow and then ground down by the weight of the ages, gradually compressing over time to form astral diamonds.

Hestavar

Floating atop gold and silver clouds, Hestavar showcases the best and brightest in the world of the deities. Fantastically wealthy and bright with innovation and design, Hestavar functions as a meeting point and a trading zone for the various creatures of the Astral Sea, including exalted from other dominions, maruts, visitors from the world and its echoes, and even the occasional githyanki or devil protected by diplomatic promises of good behavior.

Pale clouds of bright metallic hues look down on Hestavar. The first glimpse of the Bright City that visitors get is of a terraced city thirty miles wide and just as high, held aloft on a cascade of earthmotes that drift in set patterns or remain in place if they are locked in by silver bridges.

Astral vessels that enter the cloud veil emerge a few minutes later sailing on the surface of a great lagoon that occupies the lower third of the dominion. Travelers that fly or swim through the clouds come out above one of the sandbars that dot the lagoon, perhaps within easy reach of a home or a palace built in the lagoon, or perhaps out among the fishing boats.

It is always the height of daytime in Hestavar, though the sun walks the city as a deity instead of waiting in the sky. The clouds above the dominion serve to reflect Pelor's glory, shedding brilliant radiance from overhead. Sometimes the clouds darken to a silvery cast, but usually they shimmer gold.

Despite its problems and its occasionally haughty citizens, Hestavar remains a city of marvels. Many of these, as well as some of its dangers, have been covered in other sources. The following section focuses on the broad elements of the deities' plans as they might intersect with the characters' adventures.

Gods of Hestavar

As discussed in Chapter 1, each of the deities spends a great deal of time and effort sustaining his or her dominion and projecting his or her divine power through the world and its echoes. Over the centuries, if the deities carefully marshal their power, they can gather the resources to undertake great new projects of creation, such as Moradin with his massive mythological weapons, Gruumsh's invasion of Chernoggar, and in a fashion, Arvandor's Glorious Hunt. In this respect, Erathis is the most active of the three gods that reside in Hestavar, but Pelor and Ioun also have plans of their own.

Erathis's Mission

Of all the deities, Erathis felt the destruction of the Lattice of Heaven most keenly. Like Moradin (and to a lesser extent, Corellon), she had been integral to its creation. Unlike Moradin, Erathis hoped that the communication and immediate transportation the Lattice would have fostered might create a new type of community among the deities, turning what had resembled a widely scattered group of city-states into a single densely populated and integrated nation. As the god of civilization, Erathis understood that she would play a major role in an integrated heaven, even if other deities hadn't fully realized the implications of the Lattice.

Now the Lattice is gone. Its remaining vestiges are fragments of their former glory, such as color veils around the dominions, color strands, and the so-called gambler strands that transport those who enter them to a seemingly random location, which was originally a fixed point on the Lattice. Looking at the world of mortals and seeing how monstrous tides of barbarism and chaos nearly outnumber the spheres of progress and civilization, Erathis has decided that the world cannot be reshaped until the Plane Above is rebuilt. She still supports her worshipers as they seek to hold back the tribes of ignorance and the hordes of destruction, but she no longer personally believes that her worshipers and others who believe in their cause will be able to remake the world until they remake the Lattice.

In Erathis's mind, the original plan for a unified heaven is lost. Too many fragments have been destroyed or reconstituted in monstrous configurations. So she has designed a new plan to remake heaven, using pieces of the existing Lattice.

Erathis's Plan to Remake Heaven

First, to recreate a new Lattice of Heaven, Erathis must learn to create everything that can be created. She must learn, understand, and put to use the current laws of creation, so that the final laws of creation can be codified and improved. The exalted of Hestavar are engaged in a fever of invention and craftsmanship known as the Game of Making. All types of creation can be part of the Game of Making. Poetry, oratory, watercolor, tea ceremony, combat magic, invention, siege work, dance, creating new rituals, creating new life—all these forms of creation are of utmost importance to Erathis's mission. The exalted of Erathis do not see how these disparate elements come together to build a vision that can restore the universe, but they trust their deity to see to that. In turn, Erathis encourages them to do their best, inviting all the exalted of Hestavar, not just her own, to participate in the Game.

Second, the simplest and most direct approach to creating a new Lattice is to start by restoring the shattered dominions that once had a deity, or deities, but are now wastelands populated by monsters and constructs. Shom and Kalandurren are the first targets of Erathis's restoration. Pandemonium and Pluton will follow, though both those dominions are complicated by the influence of their original deities. Just as is anything connected with chaos-crazed Tharizdun, Pandemonium is dangerous; and like anything associated with the original death god, Nerull, action in Pluton is likely to irk the Raven Queen.

Third, new gods must be installed in the restored dominions. As set forth in Chapter 3, even restoring Shom and Kalandurren is going to be a long and difficult task. And in the end, pacifying, restoring, and colonizing the dominions won't be enough—each restored dominion will need a new deity. In the case of Shom, Erathis hopes that Ioun might one day be convinced to accept the dominion that she was unwilling to take earlier in the history of the cosmos. But worthy candidates for Kalandurren, much less Pandemonium and Pluton, are nowhere in sight, since Erathis has no desire to leave Hestavar.

Character Involvement

Of all the current divine plans, Erathis's is the most far-ranging and the most likely to involve the characters at some point in their paragon and epic careers.

The Game of Making might not be adventurous enough to be a lifestyle for most characters, but occasional involvement with the Game should interest any creative, ambitious, or magic-hungry group. If the characters don't go looking for the Game of Making, it's likely that Erathis's agents will try to enlist their unique skills, asking the characters to come to Hestavar to demonstrate their abilities in Erathis's temple.

Simultaneously, the dark side of the Game of Making might turn the characters against Erathis. Erathis can't trust the exalted of Hestavar to conduct the worst experiments her project requires. She has to subcontract. Erathis's subcontractors could turn out to be the characters' worst enemies or creatures associated with Vecna. Since the worst experiments can't be conducted in Hestavar, or even in the dominion's Daybreak Islands, Erathis sends small groups far out into the Astral Sea. Some are searching for pieces of shattered dominions. Others are looking for sites to conduct experiments. The characters might thwart what appear to be the actions of slavers and evil magicians, only to realize later that they had come up against servitors of Erathis.

On a more positive note, Erathis would probably be happy to sponsor a group of characters intent on pacifying (and yes, looting) one of the shattered dominions, such as Kalandurren. Erathis is a pragmatic deity willing to recruit almost any heroes, regardless of past differences, as long as she thinks she can trust them once they have joined her cause.

The final hurdle in reestablishing the shattered dominions promises to be a high one. Finding a new deity isn't easy, and that might be where the characters come in. As individuals with mighty epic destinies, one or more of the characters, possibly as a group, might impress Erathis as the potential new deity or deities of a troubled dominion. Given that Erathis can't be fully in control of the mechanisms she is putting into place, the characters might make themselves the deities of the dominions without her full approval. For dramatic purposes, you'll probably want to marry this plotline to a terrible enemy's attempt to take advantage of the chance for apotheosis, forcing the characters to become deities instead.

Pelor's Vigils

Pelor, or at least one of his most magnificent aspects, holds court in the radiant palace of Aurosion. Though he approves of Erathis's mission in its general outlines, he considers the plan still in its early days and has promised to contribute with his magic when the plan is closer to fruition and when divine dominions are waiting to be reignited. To this end, Pelor bides his time, gathering strength for the great rituals ahead.

Pelor's patience has another purpose. He understands that if the Game of Making is to run as Erathis desires, it will eventually have to experiment with twisted creation and evil consequences. Erathis has delayed or hidden such work, and Pelor reserves his full approval and magical support until Erathis makes the extent of such research clear. By making his support conditional, Pelor might succeed in restraining the worst of Erathis's machinations, or perhaps not.

As well as devoting a great deal of his attention to the mortal world, Pelor has a post within Hestavar that is secret to all but the other deities of the dominion and a few of their exarchs. The largest fragments of the shattered Living Gate (see the sidebar), which provided the Far Realm's first entry into the Astral Sea, are locked within Hestavar's Sun of Suns, a cosmic orb guarded by Pelor deep within the mote that contains his palace. The fragments cannot be destroyed. However, as long as they are locked within the aspect of Pelor that functions as an underground sun, Pelor believes that the fragments cannot be accessed, detected, or manipulated, at least not by anyone other than Ioun, who was there when Pelor first saw the Living Gate and who helps shield the Sun of Suns' secrets.

The Living Gate

Three great enemies of the Far Realm have strong links to the original Living Gate, its current disposition, and its eventual fate. The shardminds, the githyanki, and the gods all agree that the Far Realm broke into the cosmos as a consequence of the destruction of the Living Gate. What these groups cannot agree on is the purpose of the gate's fragments and whether rebuilding the gate would help repel the Far Realm.

The githyanki have no intention of re-forming the Living Gate. Instead they use its fragments as weapons against the aberrants, forging their distinctive silver swords (page 95) around slivers of the original gate. Meanwhile, the shardminds consider themselves to be energy creations of another type of fragment of the Gate. The three major shardmind philosophies (Player's Handbook 3, page 13) agree that the way to seal the Far Realm away forever is to rebuild the Living Gate. Neither the githyanki nor Pelor share this view. In fact, Pelor secretly preserves the largest fragments of the Living Gate within his inner sun beneath Hestavar. Is Pelor certain that rebuilding the gate would be a mistake, or is he hoping to use the fragments of the gate to one day reclaim his home dominion, lost during the Far Realm's original incursion? Ioun might know; she simultaneously preserves the secrets of Pelor's inner sun and encourages the shardminds within Hestavar who seek to build an entirely new Living Gate.

Ioun's Poise

By choice, Ioun remains something of an outsider in Hestavar. She keeps to her tower of Kerith-Ald, observing long-ago events, distant events, and events that have not yet come to pass. Her exalted aid those of Erathis in the Game of Making or serve their deity in her temples. Though Pelor controls the element of time, some have observed that Ioun seems to be the god of timing. She does not act often, but when she does, she is decisive and sure.

In your campaign, feel free to use Ioun as a wild card, an unaligned god who sees farther than other deities and who might act swiftly and decisively when everyone else has been lulled into regarding her long centuries of relative inactivity as a cosmic constant instead of a short pause to gain perspective.

As discussed in the section on Shom (page 119), the moment Ioun might be waiting for will shape the fate of that shattered dominion.

The Daybreak Islands: Hestevar's Archipelago

Hestavar's border islands are oriented toward the perpetual slanting light from the clouds above the dominion. The Daybreaks received their name because the light slants in on them as if the sun were just rising. On the islands most distant from Hestavar, it's difficult to shake the impression that the sun is setting instead.

The Daybreaks are blessed with wealth and an expansive society. Secondhand products of Hestavar's Game of Making provide inhabitants with a standard of living that rivals anything found in the world of mortals. Ongoing trade between Hestavar and the rest of the Astral Sea provides outsiders with employment as traders and crew members of astral vessels.

The relatively rich afterlife that the Daybreaks promise paints the isles as a rich target. The githyanki seldom attack the islands directly, but they happily prey on vessels that head out of the Daybreaks to other dominions. Similarly, agents of Bane, the Nine Hells, and other dread powers use the Daybreak Islands as a haven that is both profitable and comfortable to hide within. Plots against Hestavar, and indeed against the rest of the cosmos, often originate in the cities and towns of the Daybreaks.

Major Areas

Two main types of islands exist in the Daybreaks: heavily populated urban areas that bear the name of the city or town that entirely covers the island, and unpopulated wastelands.

Luethvar

Luethvar is a neutral trading zone where all are welcome, as long as they keep the peace. Squadrons of hippogriff knights run by the enterprising High Minister Kemuel make an obvious show of power, flying circuits around nearby islands. Marut mercenaries quell serious outbreaks of violence.

Anything can be found in Luethvar, though the correct word should probably be "purchased." The outsiders of Luethvar still venerate the deities, but they also know that coin and treasure will see them through the afterlife, and the only limit on commerce in the city is that slave trading must take place elsewhere. You can have slaves in Luethvar, and you can make deals to purchase slaves in Luethvar, but it's poor form and a bad idea to finish the deal in a city so close to Pelor's high palace. One possible exception to the slavery rule is that no one can be certain what goes on in the city's strangest temple, a public place of worship to Vecna that spares a few niches for worship of other evil deities such as Zehir and Torog.

Scar

A densely forested isle known as a bad place to stumble onto, Scar is home to all sorts of twisted creatures, the results of magical and alchemical experimentation. The only sign of civilization is the Tower of Broken Men at Scar's center, occupied by a mad artificer named Cassalanter Vegna. A secret known to few is that the meticulous Cassalanter is perfectly in control of his wits. He is a devoted servant of Erathis, and his broken people and sculpted animals are part of his contribution to the Game of Making.

Shine Point

This small island on the far side of the Daybreaks, where dawn turns to twilight, holds a strange rock lighthouse. The "keeper" of the lighthouse is not mortal. One by one, angels take it in turn to spend a season, a year, or a decade within the lighthouse, sending their inner illumination outward through a prism made of force, rather than anything physical. Some say the angels are serving penance. Others say they are taking a vacation.

The Townships

Two dozen separate islands with names such as Morrow Town, Sun Town, Barter Point, and Middletown form a collective known as the Townships. Each little island town has its own distinctive emblem for its trading vessels, which ply the waters between the Daybreaks and Hestavar, although some go farther afield. If outsiders could have children, these little sea towns would seem like happy communities from the mortal world. As it is, children do appear, either being raised by their mortal parents or, as sometimes happens, having been bought or shipped in from other mortal realms. Outsiders who become foster parents consider themselves blessed. It's unclear whether this is a heartwarming occurrence, or something more sinister involving slave trading and githyanki piracy.

Perhaps no dominion is better known, or more feared by mortals, than the Nine Hells. And between Asmodeus's schemes and the depredations of its residents, this infamy is well earned.

Welcome to Hell

A shimmering veil of red smoke parts, leaving your ship far above a barren, fire-blackened wasteland. Instantly, you are falling, much like the rebellious angels fell, and a lake of fire rushes toward you trailing smoke. This is the descent into the Nine Hells—a descent from which few return, let alone repeat—and your torments are only just beginning.

Planar adventurers who fall to this blasted surface can except a harsh, brutal ruin far beyond anything they know—and this is merely Avernus, the first of the Nine Hells. The deeper layers are deadlier.

ZOLTAN BOROS & GABOR SZIKSZAI

A campaign to destroy devils and free the souls trapped in hell is the most straightforward path to lead characters into the Nine Hells, but such a goal is not at all easy to accomplish. The devils are entrenched, organized, and very numerous. Even though they indulge in jealousies and rivalries, they mobilize quickly to counter a common threat (such as a group of intrusive adventurers). For all but the most powerful adventurers, the key to surviving the Hells is to keep a low profile and muster through the schemes of the damned.

Asmodeus's Fall and the Foundation of Hell

Long ago, Asmodeus was a great general in the army of a deity of law and good who ruled the dominion of Baator. By rights, this myth should start with the name of this master, the god who had originally elevated Asmodeus as an exarch. But the god's name is lost; Asmodeus used his magic and influence to make sure that the original god of Baator is remembered only as "He Who Was," an awkward name for an awkward god.

Asmodeus was the most powerful warrior exarch in service to his god, but over time Asmodeus's methods became increasingly brutal. After another massacre in which innocents had fallen alongside enemies, there was a falling-out between Asmodeus and He Who Was. Asmodeus warned that relieving him of his duties would prove his master's undoing, but the god of Baator was resolute: Asmodeus was thrown from his master's palace along with all those who had followed in his brutal wake. At one stroke, the realm's greatest warrior and his army were

The Nine Hells—A DM's Toolbox

Manual of the Planes offers an effective layer-by-layer travelogue of the Nine Hells. That information is not repeated here. Instead, this section begins with information on the devils' motivations and on running adventures in the Hells. It's followed by a section on Avernus, hell's outermost layer, including a sample adventure detailing what characters landing in hell might encounter. From Avernus, the River Styx flows into the Inner Hells, so information for traveling the Styx into those infernal lands is also included. The final section looks at hell's archipelago, the Outer Torments, which float around Baator like many small moons, each with its own plots hatched by mortal, outsider, and devil alike.

exiled. Because the god of Baator was soft and merciful, Asmodeus did not perish; instead, he suffered, stripped of his beauty, broken in mind and body, on the fields of Avernus. Perhaps He Who Was believed that Asmodeus would come to regret his pride and disobedience.

Asmodeus's pride was greater than his guilt, however, and he and his followers grew into their new and broken forms. As Asmodeus suffered, he planned revenge against He Who Was and the other gods who had stood by and forgotten about his sacrifices during the Dawn War. Asmodeus waited until a grim time in the Dawn War when the gods appeared to be losing. He Who Was was partly to blame—he had no stomach for war, had exiled his most powerful general and army, and though he was a powerful god, he could not handle the brutal work of war.

Choosing his moment, Asmodeus rose up and slew his master. The god couldn't save himself, but his dying curse trapped Asmodeus and all of Asmodeus's followers in Baator. Those followers, who eventually would become devils, blamed Asmodeus for botching the job, but the situation turned to his advantage soon enough. Most of the gods cursed Asmodeus as a traitor, but many understood that he had cunningly rid the gods of a failed leader whose efforts seemed destined to lead to the ruin of all. Thus, while they overtly shunned the rebel exarch, some gods bargained secretly with Asmodeus, soliciting his aid in the war with the primordials, while other evil gods treated with him out of gratitude for slaying a self-righteous god who was just in the way.

For decades, the gods did not trust Asmodeus enough to release him from the Hells, which would allow him to claim the full divine power that had been released when he slew his overlord. Asmodeus claimed that he, and only he, could use that power to win the Dawn War for the gods. But the gods' mistrust was warranted: Asmodeus was making overtures to the other side as well. He plotted with titans and giants in service to the primordials, striking bargains that would favor him if their side won the Dawn War.

The deities must have made the better offer, though they didn't realize it at the time. The gods forged a pact of alliance with Asmodeus, granting him his former master's divine power temporarily "until the primordials were vanquished." Asmodeus assured them that he and his forces would annihilate the primordials quickly, and he would then give up his borrowed power. (He also inserted language into the contract that would provide for the preservation of Baator through the use of souls—and did not mention that those clauses were effective in perpetuity.)

Distracted by their fury at the primordials and their desperation to finish the war, the gods did not all muddle through the implications of the wording in Asmodeus's pact. Some fell prey to his honeyed assurances.

Asmodeus has, of course, ruled the Nine Hells ever since.

Devilish Motives and Adventures

The devils of the Nine Hells are motivated by several general forces, and these influences drive most adventures in the Hells. Discussed below are the key components of what it means to be a devil, each followed by suggestions for related adventures for characters of all tiers.

Arrogance and Ambition (Making a Heaven of Hell)

The devils were originally rebels from their old calling, and thus their politics are defined by pride, which drives their schemes to rise higher.

Every devil constantly scrabbles at power or tries to curry favor with its superiors, simply because—in its pride—every devil in the Nine Hells is utterly convinced it is better than every other one. Upward mobility comes through success—either in claiming souls or eliminating one's rivals—and even though the process of promotion to a new, higher form of devil is infinitely painful, most devils long for this advancement with a kind of desperate affection that gives mortal lovers pause.

Devils are also extremely stubborn: Each one is certain of its path and deviates from its favored methods only under duress, or when it thinks there is favor to be gained.

Planar adventurers are an important aspect of hell's political struggles, because they make convenient cat's-paws to be used against rivals, or scapegoats who can be disposed of with relative ease when a scheme goes awry. Adventurers who prove themselves useful (and survive treachery) acquire powerful patrons that can supply them with important information, treasure, or even magic items to aid their efforts. Devils are miserly by nature, but the wisest among them use rewards to motivate their servants.

Adventures related to this theme could incorporate any of the following three ideas.

The Least of These (heroic): A fawning imp has acquired information about a pit fiend's fierce desire to own a device of great power and has enlisted the characters to recover the item with the hope of currying favor and being promoted to a higher form.

The Bad Seed (paragon): Jealous of his master's favor for a cambion sellsword, a barbed devil is seeking to frame her for disloyalty to their superior; it hires the characters to investigate her.

The Devil You Know (epic): The characters have been approached by agents of Mephistopheles to gauge their interest in a strike against Asmodeus, lord of the Hells. This proposal might be a trick to demonstrate Mephistopheles's power and loyalty (see the sidebar), or a legitimate coup in the making, in which case the characters must decide if it is better to maintain the status quo or place a new, possibly more dangerous ruler on the throne of the Hells.

Avarice and Greed (Give the Devil His Due)

The Nine Hells are a wealthy realm, thanks primarily to Asmodeus's economic savvy. During the Dawn War, he foresaw the damage to the universe and the malfunction of the afterlife and made certain pacts with forces divine, primordial, and beyond in order to prepare. Individually, these pacts seemed innocuous to the signers, but when the pacts started functioning together after the Dawn War, their perfect combination has allowed for a substantial soul harvest in a broken universe.

The full scope of Asmodeus's wheeling and dealing is unknown and might never be revealed, but one fact is clear: It has paid off well. The Hells do not suffer from the diminished distribution of souls that afflicts other realms. In fact, the devils have a steady flow of souls of their own, plus the freedom to pluck unclaimed souls that end up in the border islands of their destined realms. Unlike all the other divine dominions, the Nine Hells admits outsiders, though their relatively fragile soulforms can die only once in hell's torments. In their despair, some of these lost souls come willingly—to fall as Asmodeus did and devote themselves to rebellion against their former deities. Others are forcibly constrained.

Devils are ever mindful of harvesting souls with an eye toward advancement. Wealth and power are treated in the Hells in the same way they are in most mortal tyrannies: They are tightly held by the elite as a lure for the lower classes. Rather than coin, devils trade in the plentiful souls constantly appearing in their realm, which are collected in bulk by lesser devils, processed, and shipped to the lord of a given layer (and those archdevils who pay the proper tribute). The ownership of souls that a devil seduces or tricks through pacts and the like, however, tends to be less clear-cut—a successful succubus or other tempter devil can amass a considerable amount of power.

Adventures related to this theme could include:

A Lost Soul in Hell (heroic): In the world, a mortal friend or loved one begs the characters for help against a succubus with whom he has made a pact, but before they can aid him, the devil engineers his death. Now the characters must venture into the Hells to find and rescue his soul.

Soul Theft (paragon): A bone devil responsible for gathering souls for Lord Mammon's keep has come up short on his manifest and is offering great rewards to any outside auditors who help him find the thief.

Soul Influx (epic): The flow of souls into hell has dramatically increased of late, and the characters need to discover why.

Vengeance and Retribution (Hell Hath No Fury)

Devils are big on revenge—grudges are in their nature. Since Asmodeus first turned upon his forgotten master, the Nine Hells have been the realm of traitors and mutineers. Devils avenge slights made against them by gods, mortals, and (especially) their fellow devils—whether from offended pride or out of mere spite. Planar adventurers can be easily caught up in such feuds, or even be the target of such enmity themselves, whether immediately or at a future time. Devils have a strong sense of fairness and measured response—an eye for an eye—but their understanding is far different from that of humans: They prefer to inflict as much retribution as they can in the name of grievances that are sometimes difficult to measure. For instance, a mortal who banished a devil back to the Hells in a battle might be held responsible for physical damages, mental duress, and the insult to the devil's pride, image, and self-confidence. Time, however, is not a good method of escape from

Scheming or Bluffing?

Traditionally, Asmodeus has always been so powerful that he doesn't have to fear any single archdevil, though a union of lesser devils might overpower him. To prevent such a union, he has plied his talents at diplomacy and intrigue to foster rivalries and feuds among those in the other eight hells, while always seeming to side with the winner in a conflict (much as he did in the Dawn War).

This state of affairs might be changing, however. It is rumored that Mephistopheles, Lord of the Eighth (whose jealousy of the mightier Asmodeus knows no bounds), has obtained a shard of godhood that enhances his own powers to the point that he might be able to move against his master, given aid. The veracity of this claim is unknown, and Mephistopheles isn't telling. True to devilish form, Mephistopheles keeps the truth of his power secret and will continue to cater to Asmodeus as long as necessary, seeking to lull the Lord of the Nine into a false sense of security and make himself seem weaker, until he decides the time is right to make his move.

infernal vengeance, because devils have notoriously long memories.

Adventures related to this theme could include:

Sins of the Fathers (heroic): A devil banished to the Hells a century ago by the ancestors of one or more of the characters has returned looking for revenge, either against its foes or the living family of those foes—the characters or their loved ones.

A Dish Served Cold (paragon): A devil nursing a grudge against the characters transports them to Cania for a confrontation, wounds them, and leaves them to freeze to death. The characters must regroup, figure out a way to escape the frozen realm, and find the culprit.

A Woman Scorned (epic): Glasya, the recently appointed ruler of Malbolge, has been making advances to one of her fellow Lords of the Nine—advances that have been rejected. Bristling with indignation, she has employed the characters to wreak her vengeance.

Avernus, the Burning Wastes

Consisting of the entire blasted surface of Baator, the first layer of the Nine Hells is the largest and the first place most visitors ever see—and sometimes the last. Many have mistaken the surface realm for the softest of the Nine, but it is the most dangerous in many ways.

Much of the surface layer of the Hells is watched by vast camps of legion devil armies under the strict control of Bel and the Dark Eight. No invasion of hell by demons or angels has ever made it past Avernus, though vast stretches of badlands are drenched in the blood and gore of thousands of years of near-constant conflict. The Blood War (Manual of the Planes, page 89) between devils and demons might have ended or gone dormant, but the forces of Avernus haven't relaxed.

The soul harvesters do excellent work in Avernus, since those souls condemned to the Nine Hells most often materialize on the top layer. The damned souls fall into the Lake of Despond (Manual of the Planes, page 99) or streak flaming out of the sky to break craters in the blackened ground. The "crater makers" are the fortunate ones. If their bodies are not found by the bearded devils and spinagons who hunt constantly for errant souls, they might return to life through the magic of the dominion before they can be captured and taken below to spend the rest of their lives and deaths in torment. Escape is unlikely, but a few last moments of painful freedom are beyond value.

JIM NELSON

Bel, Master of Avernus

The master of Avernus didn't reach his position through carelessness or luck—he holds Avernus tightly considering the realm's size, and his imp and spinagon spies are everywhere. Bel's circle of pit fiend advisors, the Dark Eight, are extremely loyal to him and have been for centuries. Given that they would probably turn upon him at the first sign of serious weakness, Bel's control remains absolute.

With such forces at his command, Bel could probably march against any of the other eight archdevils with some success, but unlike the other Lords of the Nine, he strangely has no further ambition or desire to displace one of the other lords. He likes his appointed task and wants nothing more than to remain in his position as sentry to the Hells and first general of its armies for all time. He is loyal first to Asmodeus, second to the Nine Hells in general, and third to himself.

Using Bel in the Game: Bel is a consummate general—cunning, calculating, and impossible to surprise. He is also a shrewd negotiator—one who keeps his promises to the letter and cares more about the letter than the spirit of the law. He is evil but not necessarily malevolent, enjoying inflicting pain but preferring to do his duty first and foremost. Nothing the characters do is likely to catch Bel off guard; if he has one weakness, however, it is his mistrust of and contempt for magic. Bel prefers the way of the sword and spear.

Inhabitants and Culture

Avernus is a militaristic realm where strength is respected more than cleverness, and valor more than wisdom. Arguments are settled mostly through strict disciplined processes or through prescribed dueling procedures in the absence of an overseer. Laws are particularly important in this realm, and the halls of the Bronze Citadel are always filled with devils seeking arbitration on some technical point. Many devils take great pleasure in such disputes, showing an almost masochistic delight in legal battling.

The damned have little in the way of an established culture, being mostly prisoners who are too frightened to resist their torments or to try to escape. Those few who do manage to escape usually seek to avoid the beasts set on their trail by hiding in the mountains or in the ruins of Darkspine. Some of these are set free purposefully in order to give their keepers quarry for their hunts. Terror from the chase is but one of the torments in the Hells.

Avernus is also home to the highest percentage of nondevils in the Nine Hells who aren't slaves. Tieflings and cambions are common, though they are often in league with one archdevil or another (who might or might not be the source of the devilish taint in their blood). Other mortals or nondevils are not unknown in Avernus: most are advisers to an archdevil in exile, powerful mercenaries in the employ of Bel or one of the Dark Eight, or lords in their own right that have carved out a dwelling place in the burning lands for their own purpose.

Adventure Hooks

Avernus adventures generally involve firestorms, packs of slavering beasts, and legions of devil soldiers. The characters would do well to keep a low profile, lest the armies of the Hells descend upon them in force.

A number of demons enter Avernus from time to time through intermittently functioning portals to wreak havoc; the days of abyssal invasions ended with the Blood War, but demons are nothing if not unpredictable.

For a three-encounter adventure set in Avernus, see "Hell's Bonds" beginning on the next page.

Environmental Features

All of Avernus's surface is scorched by extreme heat, which poses an environmental danger (Dungeon Master's Guide, page 159). To withstand the heat, DC 22 Endurance checks must be made while traveling the surface, or DC 26 Endurance checks in certain areas such as the volcanic mountains, where ash and pervasive smoke linger. Hellfire (Manual of the Planes, page 22) is a common climatic terrain phenomenon.

Despond's Draining Waters

Unsurprisingly for the birthplace of the Styx, the Lake of Despond has a diminishing effect upon living creatures that touch it.

Effect: While a creature is within the Lake of Despond, it takes a –2 penalty to attack rolls and to Will as despair leaches into it.

Usage: Creatures that have powers that can pull, push, or slide, as well as minions that might lead the characters into the lake, are useful here, especially when combined with a creature that has a strong Will attack.

Encounter Groups

Appropriate encounters for Avernus include those given in the Monster Manual entries for the devils, as well as those in the devil entries in this book beginning on page 136.

Level 5 Encounter (XP 1,026)
- 2 magma claws (level 4 brute, MM 182)
- 1 blazing skeleton (level 5 artillery, MM 234)
- 4 burning devils (level 4 minion skirmisher, page 136)
- 2 imps (level 3 lurker, MM 63)

Level 8 Encounter (XP 1,800)
- 2 spined devils (level 6 skirmisher, MM 66)
- 3 hell hounds (level 7 brute, MM 160)
- 1 succubus (level 9 controller, MM 67)

Level 17 Encounter (XP 8,950)
- 1 cambion hellfire magus (level 18 artillery, MM 39)
- 2 firebred hell hounds (level 17 brute, MM 160)
- 5 legion devil veterans (level 16 minion, MM 64)
- 1 Avernus cinderstorm hazard (level 18 blaster, Manual of the Planes 23)

Adventure: Hell's Bonds

This three-encounter adventure, suitable for 12th-level characters, is typical of what characters might face upon arriving in the Nine Hells. After crashing to Avernus, the characters are quickly assaulted by devilish slavers serving their archdevil mistress, an exiled chain devil princess named Baelzra. The adventure ends in Baelzra's camp, where the characters face the devil princess and her servitors, either as slaves or as liberators of the souls she has captured.

Encounter 1: Fiery Descent

Encounter Level 12 (XP 3,600)

Setup

6 whitefire burning devils (B)
3 spined devil ravagers (S)

Owing to the turbulent storms just inside the smoke veil of the Nine Hells, the characters' astral craft enters the Hells not through the storm over the Lake of Despond but rather in the empty skies of Avernus. They and their craft are now falling to the rocky plain below, and a horde of devils swept up by the storm falls upon them as they descend.

This is a more difficult encounter than it seems, owing to the time pressure and the need for one or more of the characters to devote his or her attention to controlling the ship.

When the characters cross the color veil into the Nine Hells, read:

The smoke parts, and you hang weightless among the storm clouds for a moment before falling toward the ground. As you descend into the fire and lightning, half a dozen humanoid forms—lurching, emaciated things burning with white flame—latch on to the vessel seemingly out of nowhere. They are just below the railing, tearing at it and jabbering madly with agony and hatred.

Three bulky spined devils land before you, their claws clicking on the deck. "Fleshy, fleshy, in peril now, it is," says the first. "Going down to join the damned? Give us a taste, fleshies!"

The characters must defend the deck of their planar vessel from the marauding devils and try to control their mad plummet as best they can. If they don't try to control the ship, or if they try and fail, they might fend off the devils but will surely crash, making the next encounter much harder.

The burning devils are clinging to the sides of the ship just below the rail. Melee attacks affect them normally, but line of effect for ranged attacks requires the attacker to be in a square adjacent to the target (along the railing), which provokes opportunity attacks from the burning devils. The burning devils pay more attention to destroying the ship, while the spined devil ravagers engage the characters. Both groups must be handled, or piloting will be difficult.

Tactics

The spined devil ravagers delight in toying with their foes. They're more interested in delaying and frustrating their enemies' efforts to control the ship than an outright fight to the death. The whitefire burning devils occupy themselves with tearing at the ship (see "Controlling the Ship," below), but they disengage and move to attack a character who attacks them.

The Ship's Descent

The falling ship crashes onto the surface of Avernus on its 11th turn (the ship has a +10 initiative modifier). When the encounter starts, and for at least the first 2 rounds of the combat, the ship is falling. If the characters don't successfully control the ship (see below), the descent becomes more severe—first the ship begins to tumble, and then it goes into a mad spin.

Falling: The ship is simply falling during the first 2 rounds of combat (or possibly longer if a character successfully controls it). Whenever a creature is hit by a critical hit while the ship is falling, the creature is also knocked prone. Pull, push, and slide effects increase by 1 square. If the characters fail to successfully control the ship, it begins to tumble after its first two turns.

Tumbling: When the ship begins to tumble, it rocks back and forth and spins. Whenever a creature is hit by an attack while the ship is tumbling, the creature is also knocked prone. Pull, push, and slide effects increase by 2 squares. If the characters fail to successfully control the ship while it's tumbling, the ship enters a mad spin in the following round.

Mad Spin: While the ship is in a mad spin, it spins crazily in all directions. Controlling the vessel will no longer help. Any creature without a fly speed that takes any action must spend a move action to hold on or be thrown from the ship and take 9d10 falling damage. Creatures thrown from the ship are removed from the encounter. Thrown characters who survive will rejoin the rest of the group during Encounter 2: Hell's Chain Gang.

Controlling the Ship

Controlling the ship requires a character to stand in one of the two helm areas (marked on the map with triangles inside circles). As a standard action, a creature at the helm can make an Arcana check or an Athletics check to control the ship. The check's DC depends on which phase of the descent the ship is currently in.

Falling: DC 18

Tumbling: DC 23

Each round the characters succeed in controlling the ship, they delay the progression to the next stage of the descent on the ship's next turn. Only one controlling success can be gained during a turn, and the ship can't be returned to an earlier descent phase. Each time the PCs drop a burning devil, the DC to control the ship is reduced by 1.

The Crash

When the ship crashes, the impact kills all the remaining burning devils but not the spined devil ravagers—they fly away, seemingly abandoning the fight. But they will return with reinforcements during the next encounter.

The crash's effect on the characters depends on the ship's descent phase when it crashed.

Falling: Each character takes 2d10 damage.

Tumbling: Each character takes 4d10 damage.

Mad Spin: Each character takes 7d10 damage.

ENCOUNTER 2: HELL'S CHAIN GANG

Encounter Level 13 (XP 4,000)

SETUP

1 pain devil captain (P)
2 bearded devils (B)
3 chain devils (C)
0-3 spined devil ravagers (any that survived from Encounter 1)

Having crashed on Avernus, the characters must defend themselves from a devil slaver gang seeking to pillage the ruins of their astral craft.

When the characters gather themselves from their crash, read:
The broken ship has finally come to rest on a rocky stretch of shore at the edge of a vast, glassy black lake. A chorus of screams resounds across the churning waters, and the ground shakes from the thunderous impact of flaming meteors piercing it from above. The sky is filled with gray smoke that clings to your lungs, choking your breath.

The characters' situation at the beginning of this encounter depends on the outcome of the previous encounter.

If the ship was falling when it crashed and no spined devil ravagers escaped, the characters spot the slaver gang's approach 5 minutes in advance, enabling them to take a short rest, and they can set an ambush, gaining a surprise round.

If the ship was tumbling when it crashed and no spined devil ravagers escaped, the characters don't gain a surprise round and the slaver gang's attack happens immediately.

If the ship was in a mad spin when it crashed or any of the spined devil ravagers escaped, the slaver gang sneaks up on the characters and gains a surprise round, attacking immediately.

When the characters see the devils, read:
You hear rhythmic chanting as a group of dark figures marches toward you. Many appear at first to be chained slaves following the commands of a fearsome taskmaster and herded by a pair of bearded lieutenants. As they draw closer, you realize the chains clothe the figures—or perhaps they're part of the creatures' bodies.

"Your souls belong to Baelzra now, mortals," says their leader, a muscular creature in blood-smeared leather whose face is hidden behind a mask. "Submit, or perish and suffer still more!"

Tactics

The chain devils are the first wave of the assault, followed closely by the bearded devils. They want to pummel the characters into surrendering, but will not hesitate to use lethal force as needed.

The pain devil captain commands the attack from a distance and attempts to avoid joining the fray until one of the other devils is bloodied or the captain is directly attacked.

Any spined devil ravager that survived the previous encounter returns in the second round of combat, flying down to wreak its vengeance, preferably against any character not already engaged in melee.

Development

If the characters surrender or are defeated (the devils won't deliver killing blows when they drop a character if they can help it), they are taken in chains to see Baelzra. In that case, she is prepared for their arrival, and the encounter is correspondingly more difficult.

If the characters defeat the devils, they can easily tell where the devils came from—the prison camp a few minutes' travel around the lakeshore, with its thousand wailing souls crying out for release, is difficult to miss.

Features of the Area

The Broken Ship: The characters' astral vessel is nonfunctional for now, but it can still be useful. The squares of wreckage marked with triangles are difficult terrain.

The Lake of Despond: The lake offers cover to a creature that submerges itself therein; however, any creature that makes contact with its soul-draining waters takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls and to Will until the end of the encounter.

ENCOUNTER 3: PRINCESS IN CHAINS

Encounter Level 15 (XP 6,800)

Setup

Baelzra, Chain Princess of Jangling Hiter (B)
1 yuan-ti malison incanter (Y)
2 warder devils (W)

At Baelzra's camp, souls are harvested and secretly unbound from the Hells by a dark yuan-ti ritual to make them easier to use in transactions. Baelzra's reasoning is that if the souls are no longer "damned," then they do not by default belong to Asmodeus or one of the Lords of the Nine. Therefore, Baelzra can claim them without difficulty.

If the characters manage to sneak up on the camp, they might have had time to take an extended rest. Additionally, if they attack Baelzra and her yuan-ti incanter with surprise, they have 3 rounds before the warder devils arrive.

If the characters are prisoners, Baelzra will have her full retinue (the yuan-ti and both devils) present. Additionally, the characters can take only a short rest, not an extended one, during their journey to the camp.

Baelzra has grown bored without a proper fight lately, so if the characters are brought to her as prisoners, she sees an opportunity to relieve her tedium as well as to sweeten their souls with despair by seemingly offering them a fighting chance before crushing them. She commands the warder devils to "soften them up" (in game terms, each character loses a healing surge as an indirect result of a severe beating), and then release them and return their equipment for a full battle with Baelzra and her entourage.

When the characters see Baelzra, read:
A line of cowering souls in chains leads to a large sacrificial circle on which is set an altar of black stone. Standing before the altar is a beautiful female human bound in a series of chains that slither around her like living serpents. A second look reveals her clearly devilish appearance: horns, mad eyes, and a long, forked tongue. At her side is a snake-headed humanoid.

BAELZRA

An exiled archdevil clad only in blood-soaked chains slick with poison, Baelzra is the product of an affair between the corpulent archdevil Sagirsa, queen of Jangling Hiter (Manual of the Planes, page 101), and Mammon, the lord of the Third Hell, Minauros. In contrast to her parents, the raven-haired Baelzra is almost too beautiful—in body, anyway. All her ugliness is within, and there she surpasses either of her horrendous parents; her voice hints at this, sounding like that of a withered crone rather than an alluring young woman.

"You are the ones!" the devilish woman cries in a ragged voice. "Baelzra shall enjoy punishing you for daring to oppose her."

Her chains rustle and snake toward you as she cackles a battle cry.

Tactics

Baelzra enjoys battle and throws herself into the fray with wild abandon, mocking her opponents in her loud, broken voice, or else simply cackling to frighten her foes. The yuan-ti malison incanter is loyal to her, but it will try to preserve its own life and keeps out of the melee. Baelzra and the yuan-ti are each defended by one warder devil. If the warder devil defending Baelzra is slain, the surviving devil shifts its focus to her, leaving the incanter to fend for itself.

Features of the Area

Soul-Unbinding Circle: This circle is infused with healing energy. If a healing power is used or a healing surge is spent on a target in this circle, the target regains 2d6 additional hit points.

Menhirs: These great stone pillars provide cover.

Rubble: Piles of rubble are difficult terrain.

Chained Souls: Squares marked with skull images are the locations of cowering souls being led to the altar in the circle. The souls are intangible and take no actions, but they provide concealment to any creature occupying the same space as one. They can be attacked and eradicated; each soul has 1 hit point and all its defenses are 15. Any successful attack against a creature using a soul for concealment destroys the soul in that square.

Development

If Baelzra is slain, the captive souls are freed from their captivity and begin to dissipate—in effect, they are going through a reassignment, gaining another shot at going to the correct afterlife. A character who succeeds on a DC 18 Arcana check or Insight check realizes what's going on and understands that the adventurers might be able to reap some long-term benefit from having ruined Baelzra's plan.

If Baelzra's crimes are subsequently brought to the attention of Bel or one of the Dark Eight, the characters might be rewarded for their efforts, or at least permitted to travel unmolested through Avernus. Regardless of whether they understand what they have done, the characters will almost certainly have made an enemy of Mammon by their actions, who—despite Baelzra's exile—still doted on his daughter and was secretly deriving some soul profit from her actions.

The Outer Torments: Hell's Border Islands

Like the other astral dominions, the Nine Hells have their own borderlands—hunks of rock and air floating like moons around the blasted planet of Baator.

Hell's archipelago—called the Outer Torments—is made of terrible islets of all sorts, has no central authority, and is rife with island-by-island despotisms and fortresses. The power that Asmodeus wields does not function in the islets. In fact, many of the Lords of the Nine seem unaware of the existence of the Torments, and those who live there are not automatically damned. Legion devils and other would-be tyrants stake claims upon the outer islands, playing out dreams of tyranny that are not available to them inside the fully hierarchical Nine Hells.

Inhabitants and Culture

Several of the Outer Torments are well known beyond the borders of the Nine Hells—in particular, the Soul Market (also known as Fair Trade Island) and Hell's Bastion, which most astral travelers visit in lieu of entering the Hells proper.

The Torments are hospitable to nondevils and trade on the great wealth of the dominion belonging to Asmodeus. Equally as many mortals (and displaced exalted) as devils can be found here, though unclaimed souls face a particular hazard. They are considered property rather than free entities and must submit to a master or risk damnation. Any souls that are already damned must be yielded immediately to agents of Asmodeus or those of another Lord of the Nine. Other souls imported, enslaved, or purchased from githyanki or the like can be employed in the Torments as slaves. Also, a number of these souls are purchased or stolen by hell's harvesters and dragged down through the burning skies to Avernus.

The mortals in the Outer Torments are mostly tieflings, humans, dwarves, and dragonborn, in that order of frequency; eladrin, elves, and halflings, typically passionate individuals, are inclined to find the drudgery enervating and the constant cries of pain disturbing. As though by a certain taint of the proximity of the Hells, the folk of the Outer Torments are prone to take on a number of devilish characteristics over time; they become proud, ambitious, and greedy, and their tolerance for insults wanes over the years.

Major Areas

There are many Outer Torments islands, and not all have been discovered among the constant cumulonimbus clouds that cling to the color veil of the Hells. The islands are diverse, each representing a different sort of hell, similar to the way in which the nine layers of Baator present different sufferings. Several of the islands are more insidious, however, and most visitors do not realize their peril until it is far too late.

The Soul Market

Most neutral of the Outer Torments, where the agents of various devils and astral forces come to trade, the place also called Fair Trade Island is a hospitable entry point for the Hells. On the surface, it is a pleasure palace full of endless winding platform streets shaded by multicolored awnings, where succubi serve exotic drinks and money changes hands under heavily perfumed tables. Coin rules this island city, and folk come from many distant realms in the Astral Sea for this reason.

In the market, substantial trade thrives between the denizens of the Hells and merchants of the Astral Sea, at least for those who pay the proper tariff: typically a sacrificed mortal or a captured soul offered to the guard, which is a small price to pay for a chance at the wealth of the Hells. Under the eyes of watchful warder devils and osyluths, prisoners and slaves are traded for goods crafted from harvested soul energy or the powerful minerals mined from deep in the Hells. The oddest combinations of folk, from eladrin and cambions to devils and githyanki, can be encountered doing business in the market.

Strict order is maintained throughout the island city, thanks to the watchful guard of warder and legion devils, as well as a number of angels sworn to the service of the Hells. They are commanded by the city's hags, who control the flow of coin and run most

Archdevils of the Outer Torments

Many of the Outer Torments are claimed, whether appropriately or not, by one or more exiled archdevils that have been unable to leave the Nine Hells because of bindings—a number of which are purely psychological, though several are magical in nature. An example of the latter is the planar commitment, a forbidding curse that Asmodeus bestows. In their pride, these archdevils cannot bring themselves to give up the struggle for power in the Hells, convincing themselves that a chance remains for them to be restored to favor. They treat the Outer Torments as their own private playground, brutalizing the inhabitants in an attempt to bolster their own injured pride.

Kept continually in the loop by planted succubi, spinagons, and other spies, Asmodeus is not nearly as oblivious to events in the Torments as the impression he gives. Occasionally, he pulls one or more archdevils back into hell to punish them for daring to imitate his rule, for political scheming (favors to devils Asmodeus wants to remain loyal), or for his own dark amusement.

JIM NELSON

of the trading houses as well as a number of houses of ill repute.

The peace of Fair Trade Island is a delicate veneer; most of the significant business takes place in the shadows through underhanded deals and stealthy assassinations. The merchants do not take kindly to being robbed. But since most of them end up being robbed, they do their best to bilk customers in turn. Folk can make powerful enemies at the Soul Market; at the same time, they can gain treasures there.

Archdevils of Fair Trade Island: No single archdevil rules the market; rather, heads of several "families" of devils compete for an advantage on the island of trade. Each thinks that by dominating the coin flow, he or she can amass enough wealth and power to allow for a return to grace in the Hells—or, alternatively, by financing a coordinated strike against one Lord of the Nine or another, it might be possible to claim a vacant throne. The archdevils, however, are too occupied with their own infighting to move against Asmodeus or any of his chosen lords.

Three archdevils are the most powerful in Fair Trade Island at the moment: the ruthless Verginion the Virile, called the Vile by his detractors; bloated Svidanfi, the queen of assassin devils; and the ascended bone devil Strezgaz the Crackling, so named for the sound his bones make when he walks.

Malharak, Hell's Bastion

The last loyal holdout of Baator's now nameless master, He Who Was, Malharak was taken over only after a century-long siege. It is a tribute to both the might of the fortress and the ferocity of its defenders that it lasted so long. Asmodeus sent the surviving angels within Malharak to join the community of angels that flows through the dominions, an act of apparent mercy that confused a few of his critics. He went so far as to spare a number of servitors of He Who Was—mortals and immortals that had defended Malharak—as long as they swore fealty to him. Several consented; the others were slain.

Malharak stands as impregnable as before, at the top of a towering cliff from which its defenders mount sweeping aerial attacks upon potential invaders. It has never been conquered in battle and rivals Dis in that respect. Since Malharak is sworn to no particular archdevil except Asmodeus, who is beloved by the Bastion's current ruler, anyone and everyone who can pay for the protection of the fortress uses it. Powerful weapons and rare rituals are locked away in the earthmote below the castle, as are a number of devils too mighty and dangerous for simple exile.

Sometimes one devil or another wants to obtain an item, rescue an ally, or slay a rival imprisoned in the Bastion. Wandering adventurers fill this need nicely. Occasionally, particularly powerful or important mortals are imprisoned here rather than elsewhere in the Hells—often during a dispute in jurisdiction between two or more archdevils or Lords of the Nine.

Archdevil of Hell's Bastion: Assailra, a warder devil who rose to prominence through her service to Asmodeus, had a falling-out with the devil king's daughter, Glasya, over a shared lover and was exiled from the Hells. She soon took over leadership of the Bastion and has been quietly hoping to impress her beloved master with her skill and brutality. She hates the queen of Malbolge with a burning passion.

Screamstone

A windswept, black rock floating at the edge of the Astral Sea, this Outer Torment contains a spiraling underground set of catacombs and torture chambers where the most talented sadists of the cosmos do what they do best. New tortures are created and put into practice in Screamstone, and each of them is tailored specifically to the intended victim. Though the island is silent on its surface, screams reverberate up through the glassy stone and cause it to tremble slightly underfoot.

For good reason, devils fear Screamstone as they fear few locations in the Nine Hells. It is the place to which devils are exiled when the Lords of the Nine want neither to see them again nor to grant the mercy of a quick death. Execution by Screamstone is a process lasting centuries—if the torturers work true to form.

Archdevil of Screamstone: Veris, the Weeping One, is the self-appointed lord of Screamstone—a master of pain and suffering who takes a keen pleasure in both. His teacher Alloces (Dragon #373), the favored torturer of Asmodeus, makes frequent appearances in Screamstone as a guest torturer. His visits are also fact-finding missions, during which he scouts for talented torturers to recruit for service elsewhere in the Hells.

Shores of Sorrow

The black sand shores of this seemingly beautiful, paradisiacal island are initially welcoming to visitors—a phenomenon unheard of in the Nine Hells. Folk are greeted by spirits resembling those they loved and lost—such as a child killed accidentally in a tragic wagon accident, or a lover who wed another despite pleas to the contrary. The visitors remember all the love and none of the loss, awakening within them memories of the happiest moments of their lives. This curious effect has led many to conclude that the Shores of Sorrow is an unblemished fragment of the heaven that Baator used to be.

Such joy is fleeting, however. Inevitably, the spirits vanish without a trace into the thick forest, are slaughtered by ravening devils, or turn upon the dreamer, forcing him or her to kill them directly or be killed. This turn of events happens again and again, injecting visitors with the same sorrow and despair that afflicted them upon the original loss. Such is the torment of the Shores of Sorrow.

A number of devils dwell on the island, as do a small number of undead creatures such as wraiths, specters, and ghosts—folk wasted away by the pervasive despair.

Substantial stores of magical treasures discarded from such unfortunates lie in wait, though seekers should beware—a number of these hoards are just more illusions meant to toy with the mind.

Archdevil of the Shores of Sorrow: The archdevil Islin—once a queen in Baator, though now she barely remembers her reign—dwells in the center of the great Forest of Lament, feasting on the tragic memories of visitors. A great, bloated, spiderlike devil, she is said to know many secrets of the Nine Hells, some of which could wound several Lords of the Nine. However, having given herself over to despair, she has lost all ambition to use them. Characters could persuade her to part with such secrets if they can safely penetrate the forest and bargain with her. Islin is interested in happy memories, which she can wrench from a willing being's mind.

The Danger of Despair: The island is extremely dangerous; treat its soul-wrenching effect as an environmental danger (Dungeon Master's Guide, page 159) requiring a DC 25 Endurance check to withstand. In addition, each character takes a -1 penalty to Will for each healing surge lost to this effect until he or she regains those healing surges.

Thronerock

A floating earthmote hidden among thick clouds and composed mostly of a single broken mountain, this island was once a sort of scrying tower attuned to the powers of good, though its powers have waned and grown corrupt like the rest of the Hells. The throne that gives the island its name is hidden deep in a jungle of serpent-trees. Carved from obsidian and constructed to fit a Huge creature, the throne is badly weathered and lacking in prominent features, but archdevils kill each other for the chance to sneak onto Thronerock and sit upon the Obsidian Throne.

Legend of the Obsidian Throne: A devilish legend holds that, with the proper ritual, a spellcaster sitting upon the throne can view any place in the Hells, regardless of protective wards or barriers. Various folk suggest that He Who Was surveyed every single aspect of every single life in Baator from this high seat, and that it was in part such obsessive need for control that contributed to the disloyalty that Asmodeus developed within himself: The fallen angel wished for self-determination. Although the theory is not widely held, particularly considering that Asmodeus has given himself the status of the greatest tyrant in existence, individuals who subscribe to this legend tell the story as a sort of cautionary tale against becoming what one most hates.

The Obsidian Throne Today: Millennia after the fall of He Who Was, the Obsidian Throne intrigues many devils. Although its original powers have waned, the throne is still a strong source of magical power. It appeals strongly to devils' obsessive need for control, and so it is an enduring legend in the Hells. Various archdevils are engaged in a cold war that sometimes blossoms into a bloody king-of-the-mountain game to control the island of Thronerock. The machinations in these power games could easily involve the characters.

On the other hand, the Lords of the Nine don't often concern themselves with the Obsidian Throne. They might suspect the hidden truth: Asmodeus exercises control over the throne, subtly infiltrating the mind of anyone who sits upon it. He not only sees whatever the possessor sees, he can also see every thought and memory in the possessor's head. He has gleefully turned this knowledge to his benefit on several occasions, in particular unraveling a scheme of Levistus against Nessus several decades ago. The control that Asmodeus exerts is not widely known—hence his great power. He also enjoys allowing archdevils who sit on the throne to think they are greatly increased in power, when all they are doing is fueling his own schemes. The throne doesn't exercise any overt control, and so the subtlety Asmodeus utilizes has been rewarded again and again.

Archdevils of the Obsidian Throne: No archdevil rules the isle of the Obsidian Throne, though many are active in hiring adventurers and explorers to search for the throne. In particular, Moloch and Raamoth—exiled archdevils in Avernus—are keenly interested in the throne, as is Phrenicia, a powerful succubus cast from Glasya's court, who wants to gain control of the throne to spy upon her former mistress. None of the three is aware that Asmodeus holds control of the throne's curse.

The deity Ioun has also sponsored incursions into the forests of the Obsidian Throne, seeking the lost seeing-place for her own purposes. It is uncertain if Ioun's will can contend with that of Asmodeus, or whether the devil king would be able to see into her agents' minds like any others.

Adventure Hooks

The Outer Torments make for a series of dungeonlike environments on the outer borders of the Nine Hells, especially since devils of the Torments are not much inclined to go to each other's rescue. The border islands can be an excellent preliminary test for delving into the Inner Hells.

The various islands suggest adventures, from breaking into the legendary fortress of Malharak to braving the maddening visions of the Shores of Sorrow. Devils from the Hells proper often have interests in the Outer Torments as well—those who cannot travel there physically often use planar adventurers as their agents.

The Outer Torments are also sometimes a battlefield for devils that cannot move openly against one another in the Hells. Intrigues abound, from theft and random dueling to cold-blooded assassination. The characters could be embroiled in such schemes, as agents, targets, or innocent third parties pulled into the struggle.

Powers and Dangers of the Throne

Though the Obsidian Throne's full capabilities are unknown to most of the Hells' denizens, its basic powers are well established. Anyone who sits upon the throne can perform any divination or scrying ritual at only half the component cost and gains a +5 bonus to Arcana checks, History checks, Nature checks, or Religion checks associated with the ritual. Upon rising from the throne, the caster feels invincible and gains a +1 bonus per tier to attack rolls with arcane or divine powers until he or she takes a rest.

Environmental Features

The Outer Torments are likely to be more temperate than the rest of the Nine Hells; they maintain temperatures and weather that are somewhat soothing to mortal visitors. Thunderstorms are common, since the islands lie within the smoky color veil of the Hells. A number of the Torments (in particular Malharak and Screamstone) are prone to oppressive heat (Endurance DC 22 to withstand).

Encounter Groups

Any encounter that can occur in the Hells or in the Astral Sea could occur in the Outer Torments. Astral dreadnoughts are common threats to crafts moving between islands, and more often than not take on a certain fiendish character from absorption of the energy of the Nine Hells.

After passing through a murky veil the color of falling twilight, the unfortunate traveler arriving in this realm finds a dark and blasted land. Cracked deserts stretch outward to form the slopes of jagged crags in one direction and fall away into dark canyons in the other. Hot winds wail, carrying black clouds that are the only features of a sunless, starless sky. From the deepest chasms, the glow of rolling magma sheds the dominion's only light, except for the occasional flash of lightning. Dust chokes the air, and sickening vapors rise from volcanic vents. The rains, when they come, are bruising but brief, swallowed by the thirsty earth.

Like a winding serpent, the canyons twist and turn, folding back on themselves and leaving mesas and "islands" of raised earth in their midst. Upon these, and on the brooding cliffs and chasm walls, great ziggurats and foul temples loom. These terrible edifices glisten black, because light rolls off them like the rare falling rain.

This is Tytherion, a realm of unending gloom and despair so palpable that one can smell it on the arid winds, and home of two of the darkest deities to torment the cosmos. In the high mesas and plateaus of Samaragd, the murderous serpent god Zehir coils through an endless labyrinth of caverns beneath the temples and sacrificial shrines. Throughout the lowland deeps called Azharul, the voracious dragon god Tiamat broods over ancient hoards and covets all that is not already hers. The exalted of both deities are known as darksworn. Their paths seldom cross, so one of the few mercies that uninvited guests in Tytherion can expect is that they won't have to fight the forces of both deities at the same time.

Descriptions of Tiamat's realm, along with statistics for her and her exarchs, have appeared previously in Draconomicon: Chromatic Dragons and Manual of the Planes. Rather than repeating that information, this section reveals how contradictions in accounts of Tiamat's activities are deliberate misinformation spread by the god of evil dragons. Subsequently, this text examines Zehir's realm in the high mesas.

Tiamat's Realm: Azharul

The depths and lowest flatlands of Tytherion are Azharul, a hellish nightmare of towering stone walls, jagged ceilings, sheer chasms, and rivers of sluggish magma. The domain of dragons, Tiamat's realm boasts few artificial structures, consisting primarily of natural caverns and passageways, some vast enough to contain entire cities. Thus Azharul hosts few locations of any proper title; the caves are the lairs and kingdoms of Tiamat's greatest exalted, but few are sufficiently demarcated to have been recorded by mortal sages.

The Five Great Lies of Azharul

Tiamat is as deceitful as she is fearsome. She and her servitors have flooded the cosmos with half-truths and falsehoods designed to confuse her mortal and immortal enemies. Here are the truths behind five of her highly effective distortions.

The Peace of Tytherion

Remarkably, this dominion—shared between the deity of murder and the god of greed and envy—suffers no open warfare. The wilds of Tytherion are dangerous, and the servants of Tiamat and Zehir skirmish frequently, but on the whole, the serpent god keeps to the crags and highlands, and the dragon deity stays in the depths. Yet this "peace" might be only temporary (although "temporary" among the gods can encompass eons), because Tiamat is never content with what she has.

When Tiamat arose from the body of the slain god Io, she had no lair of her own. As the Dawn War ended, she set her sights upon Tytherion; its dark, dismal nature called to her, and she deemed Zehir the god that could be most easily overthrown, but she misjudged his power and determination. Although Tiamat's exalted stole a portion of Tytherion from Zehir's coils, he and his servitors were too entrenched to be utterly unearthed. Zehir's soldiers drew back to their fortified bastions, and the god retreated to the most familiar portions of his winding maze, leaving Tiamat to carve her domain from what remained. The result was the dominion's current (and peculiar) division: Azharul, a mostly underground realm of dragons, where flight is constrained; and Samaragd, a domain of serpents far above the deepest crevices in which they prefer to crawl.

For ages, the two gods have maintained this truce, each unwilling to expend the strength to oust the other. Still, Tiamat craves the open lands and the peaks that claw at the sky, where her dragons might spread their wings. She spies constantly upon Samaragd, orders her dragons to expand the tunnels below, and sends darksworn to prey upon the outsiders of Tytherion's outer isles so that Zehir cannot someday call upon them. She waits, as only an immortal can, to claim all of Tytherion.

Being somewhat intelligent, Zehir undoubtedly is aware of Tiamat's intentions. What precautions he has taken, as he winds through the tunnels of the upper mesas, only he knows.

A Scarcity of Souls

Most sources maintain that Azharul contains few mortal spirits, exalted or otherwise, for Tiamat prefers interacting with nonmortal beings; she cannot be bothered even with those exalted that find their way through the indigo veil.

Anyone who rightly considers Tiamat's covetousness should see this deception for what it is, and yet—by playing up her innate draconic haughtiness—she has convinced priests and scholars that she cares little for mortal souls. In truth, Tiamat's worshipers are hers, and the Dragon Queen never surrenders her possessions. By spreading her exalted throughout the twisting caverns of Azharul, trading them as pawns among her exarchs and consorts, or even locking them away for millennia at a time, Tiamat makes Azharul's population of souls appear far smaller than it is.

Darksworn Set Free

A common belief is that souls that pass through the indigo veil to take their place as the Dragon Queen's exalted are left largely to their own devices. Sources claim that Tiamat asks little of her darksworn, as long as they offer fealty. This is not a complete falsehood as much as an extreme exaggeration. Tiamat does allow darksworn the leeway to do as they please, but only to keep them occupied until she needs them. In fact, at any given time, more than half of Tiamat's exalted are operating in her direct service: guarding holy sites, hunting particular enemies, retrieving an artifact or a bit of knowledge, and spying on rivals. Because Tiamat keeps these agents secret from one another and gives them opportunities to pursue their own agendas, each believes it is one of Tiamat's chosen few, assuming that the rest of the darksworn are engaging in their own activities.

This deceit ensures that Tiamat's enemies underestimate the eyes and hands she has scouring the planes, and the lie is aimed as fully at her own servitors as at her foes. Not only does their ignorance mean that they cannot betray her other endeavors, but the belief that their afterlife is largely their own attracts certain worshipers who, though avaricious, might otherwise turn toward other gods.

The Dragon Queen's Redoubt

Some texts describe Tiamat's lair as a great mountaintop fortress, with five looming watchtowers shaped like the heads and necks of sentinel dragons. Others say that the so-called Caverns of Fiery Splendor, a winding complex of stone ramparts and flowing magma, is her true lair.

Both statements are true—and neither is. The fortress is the gateway to the Caverns of Fiery Splendor, a broad entryway through which even the largest dragon can swoop, swiftly making a journey that would otherwise require hours of wending through the various catacombs. Guarded by Tiamat's fiercest warriors, the fortress is nearly impregnable.

EMPTY ROOM STUDIO · ADAM PAQUETTE

In the Caverns of Fiery Splendor, Tiamat holds audience with those she deigns to see. Of course, no creature as paranoid as Tiamat would slumber where others know she can be found. Thus, while these passageways make up a portion of her lair, her true inner sanctum—her "bedchamber" and the most precious parts of her hoard—are in a hidden catacomb beyond those caverns.

Evils Without Exception

In the depths of the Caverns of Fiery Splendor stands a pair of adamantine doors that are over a hundred feet tall and covered in mystic sigils. Astral travelers glimpsing the doors through scrying rituals have speculated as to what might lie beyond, from bound primordials, to treasures worth worlds, to Tiamat's own offspring. They are wrong.

Most mortals believe that all evil dragons worship Tiamat above the other gods. Most mortals are wrong, too. Since she is the god of dragons, as well as of greed, envy, and vengeful anger—everything that defines evil dragons—it's true that the overwhelming majority of evil dragons worship her. Still, one evil dragon out of twenty is devoted to another deity: A ravager reveres Gruumsh, perhaps, or an ambitious schemer venerates Asmodeus. Tiamat can't send servitors to destroy all such traitors while they live, but she can attempt to claim their souls once they're dead—at least the souls of those who are bound for another deity's dominion. She has a veritable web of divinations throughout the Plane Above, which alert her whenever an evil dragon's soul appears and makes its way toward another deity's dominion. Then Tiamat or one of her exarchs sets out to intercept that treasonous soul before it reaches its destination.

This is what waits beyond Tiamat's adamantine doors: the exalted soulforms of evil dragons devoted to other gods, caged eternally in a prison strewn with warding and other magic that thwarts divinations. The souls of evil dragons that end up as outsiders—failed exalted—are not worthy of joining her special enemies behind the adamantine doors. After all, they are merely mortal; they perish. Tiamat is happy, though, when her allies and servitors eliminate traitorous outsiders wherever they're found in the Astral Sea.

Samaragd, the Serpent's Kingdom

From the chasms that form Tytherion's blackened heart, a belt of cracked badlands and arid steppes stretches for miles. Sheer crevices—not as deep as those at the center, but formidable enough—slash the land like wounds in a desiccated corpse, and jagged peaks turn scree-covered slopes and imposing cliffs toward the rest of the domain. Dead trees and dried brush suggest a distant age when life once thrived, but today they signal only death's ubiquitous presence.

Light is as foreign to these dusty reaches as is hope, and equally unwelcome. The glowing magma that illuminates Azharul is absent here, except in a few of the deepest crevices. The occasional flicker of lightning and the brush fires it ignites are the realm's only natural illumination.

And much of this realm is far from natural. From the flatlands, great obelisks protrude, graven with sigils and imagery in honor of the Midnight Serpent, Zehir. Ziggurats rise, step by step, toward a sky forever cloaked in night—great shrines from which the screams of sacrifices roll to shame the thunder. Ridges and the sheerest cliffs are carved with precarious steps and gaping doorways. Flanked by columns chiseled from the native stone, these entryways lead into the twisting labyrinth that honeycombs Tytherion's outer reaches. Not all who dwell here can see in the dark, so torches and braziers flicker, casting fearsome shadows upon the stone and sickening smoke into the air.

This is Samaragd, kingdom of the serpent god Zehir.

Inhabitants and Culture

Zehir's realm is notable for containing a greater number of nonsentient or semisentient serpentine monsters than intelligent exalted and servitors. The monsters might be the souls of exalted who have displeased Zehir, or they might be newly made magic beasts. Of the wildly diverse varieties of serpent monsters, some serve Zehir's exalted priests, while others roam wild.

Among the multitudes of serpents, Zehir's exalted busy themselves by preying on the weak, fighting for status, and raising ziggurats. The lowest of the low are the exalted of other deities separated from their dominions and captured by Zehir's forces or purchased from slavers. Enemy exalted spend their days performing slave labor in poisoned agony until their souls expire. Next up the ladder are Tiamat's exalted, captured during the incessant skirmishing in the dark passageways between the realms. Tiamat's exalted provide greater amusement. Since they will be punished horribly by Tiamat for failure when they return to life in her realm, their agonies offer meaty satisfaction to Zehir's exalted, which the suffering of foreign exalted that die only once cannot match.

The bulk of Samaragd's exalted population is known as "worms." These creatures are mostly mammalian worshipers of Zehir (primarily humans, elves, and tieflings), along with yuan-ti and reptilian worshipers that haven't managed to become priests. The priest caste is composed mainly of yuan-ti and sentient serpent monsters, though worms occasionally carve cunning paths into the priesthood. Conspiracy and murder stand in for teamwork and accomplishment, because, as a rule, only by disgracing or eliminating one's superiors does one rise to a higher position. Worms compete for the priests' attention, priests compete for the favor of high priests, and high priests maneuver for the attention of Zehir's exarchs. Only two laws exist: A worm must not murder a priest, and all must obey the will of Zehir.

Daily existence is a monotony of toil for exalted that are not currently engaged in murdering one another for social advancement. The worms of the outer villages labor at the command of the priests, constructing new temples and expanding existing villages and underground passageways. On occasion, they "accidentally" wander into Azharul to test Tiamat's defenses.

Since Tytherion has no sun, moon, or stars, the priest caste keeps time by administering precisely calculated poisons to specific victims. When the priests want the "hours" to drag on, they choose a victim whose organs will last a long time. When they want time to move quickly, they choose a worm whose physiological failings are clear to all. Woe to the worm whose pace of death perfectly matches the high priests' timekeeping needs. The exalted spend hours each "day" attending rites and sacrifices. When an exalted falls behind in the conspiracy curve, it often becomes the next sacrifice, reawakening and having to work its way back up from wormhood.

Though they lead a foul existence, Zehir's exalted continue to labor as demanded, the lowest hoping to impress the priests, and the priests wanting to impress the exarchs. They do this not merely out of fear, but because Zehir or his exarchs occasionally elevate those that they find truly impressive, giving those lucky few not only status but power. Some are sent beyond Tytherion, sometimes beyond the Astral Sea, as messengers, emissaries, or assassins, accomplishing Zehir's will without needing to grovel in the darkness.

HOUSES OF THE UNHOLY

Before the coming of Tiamat and the division of Tytherion into two domains, Zehir's priest caste occupied the lowermost reaches of the dominion. The commoners, not yet known as worms, dwelt in the highlands atop the mesas and on the mountain slopes. The priests had great temples constructed above, where they would go to perform ceremonies and sacrifices, because common exalted were not welcome below.

For these reasons, Tiamat invaded the depths first, targeting the priests while granting the lower castes time to pull back to higher bastions. The priests were eventually forced to retreat as well, ceding the depths to the dragons and holding the high ground above. It's possible that both gods and all of Tytherion's exalted would be happier with a simple trade, granting Zehir and the serpents the depths, and Tiamat and the dragons the open heights, but neither god would admit such a desire to the other.

Currently, Zehir's priest caste dwells primarily in the great temples inside the deepest catacombs that encroach neither on Azharul nor on Zehir's personal labyrinth of darkened corridors. The rest of the Midnight Serpent's darksworn dwell in the hovels and smaller structures surrounding the great temples, or in the higher levels of the underground.

Hunting for Sacrifices

As a break from the enforced monotony of their day-to-day life in Samaragd, Zehir's exalted frequently form "hunting parties" that travel to the Scales (Tytherion's archipelago) and to the Astral Sea, seeking outsiders, other mortals, and the exalted of other gods for sacrifice. Outsiders are the lowest grade of victim. They can't enter Tytherion, so they must be sacrificed at impromptu ritual sites or on permanent altars maintained in the border islands. Exalted of any other deity make splendid sacrifices, and depending on the ritual season and Zehir's needs, mortals sometimes count for even more.

If a mortal is kept alive within Tytherion for several weeks, its personality becomes warped by one of the dominion's two gods, Tiamat or Zehir. Mortals who "swim with Zehir" are sacrificed soon after they begin to manifest the Midnight Serpent's traits. Mortals whose psyches are scarred by Tiamat, however, are kept alive until the moment when the god's personality entirely takes over but the mortal hasn't yet been imbued with any of her divine power. A minor aspect of Tiamat squirming beneath sacrificial knives is a perfect sacrifice to the glory of Zehir.

The priests must maintain a constant stream of sacrifices to Zehir. Only murder satisfies his needs, and if the populace cannot provide enemies to die a second death upon the altars, one of the exalted must serve instead. Death is usually temporary for Zehir's exalted inside Tytherion, but in this circumstance, it's final. Given this pressure, exalted of Zehir sometimes use the god's dominion ships to hunt down mortal vessels, particularly ones already operating as pirate ships. If the mortals aboard fight well, they are given a chance at life. The priests give their new recruits a virulent but slow-acting poison, telling the hapless mortals that if they die from the poison, their souls belong to Zehir. They are informed that they will be given a temporary antidote in a month's time if they return to Tytherion with captives for the priests to sacrifice: The greater the number of captives, the longer the dose of antidote will last. In this fashion, the unluckiest pirates of the Astral Sea spend the poisoned twilight of their final lives carving paths of carnage for the Midnight Serpent.

Major Areas

A smattering of communities exists throughout Samaragd, each based around a temple, whether on the surface or below. Presented here are a few such places that stand out, along with important features of Samaragd of which mortal sages might have heard.

Amun-Atl

Located directly above Zehir's labyrinth, the ziggurat of Amun-Atl (Manual of the Planes, page 110) is Samaragd's largest temple. It is ruled by Atlathessk, the serpent god's infamous yuan-ti exarch.

Ennek-Vul

The largest of Samaragd's cliff-face temples, Ennek-Vul can be seen for miles. Its great entrance resembles the yawning maw of a serpent, and the stairs that rise toward it could accommodate a congregation of giants. Said to be the first temple constructed in Tytherion, Ennek-Vul fell out of use thousands of years ago when the Midnight Serpent offered it as a home to his greatest servant, whose name is commonly given as Merrshaulk.

The Labyrinth

Although some sages refer to all the winding passageways beneath Samaragd as the Labyrinth, the exalted of Tytherion use the term more specifically. To them, it refers to the maze of tunnels in which Zehir dwells, coiling and slithering through supernatural darkness while thinking alien thoughts and plotting convoluted schemes. Legend tells that only the most potent magic can create the slightest light within the Labyrinth, and that Zehir shares these tunnels with his most loyal darksworn, who have been transformed into shapes incomprehensible to mortal minds.

Supposedly, this complex has dozens of entrances, each so well hidden that only the gods can find it. A few legends suggest that not all the entrances lie within Tytherion; instead, some allow Zehir easy access to the Scales, or even to the Shadowfell and the mortal realm. The approximate locations of only two entrances are known: One lies beneath Amun-Atl, and the other on a cliff face overlooking the Obelisk of Night (see below).

The Murder Pit

This gaping pit near the Obelisk of Night appears to be a great dark pool filled with viscous blackness. Said to be bottomless, the pit connects to none of Tytherion's other passages. According to legend and to Zehir's secret dogmas, by listening at the pit, those that use the proper meditative rituals can hear echoes—and occasionally see brief images—of any murder occurring anywhere in the cosmos.

The Obelisk of Night

The Obelisk of Night was present when Zehir first drew Tytherion from the shadows of the Astral Sea and claimed it as his own. This towering monolith of smooth, ink-black stone rises from a crater near the border of Samaragd. Its surface is carved with winding symbols that vaguely resemble Supernal. These sigils resist all magical attempts at translation and seem, on occasion, to shift and waver. Mortals and exalted who study them for too long go blind. Rumor says that Zehir spends days at a stretch examining the Obelisk of Night from within his Labyrinth, perhaps struggling to translate the symbols or contemplating ancient secrets he has already interpreted. No one dares ask which it might be.

The Ravenous Wood

This place is the largest of Samaragd's copses of dead trees, dried brush, and desiccated brambles. Navigating the Ravenous Wood is nearly impossible, for the thick, flesh-tearing thorns shift deliberately, disorienting travelers and closing off pathways. Zehir's darksworn believe that the brambles reach out to snag passersby, dragging them within. They also believe that the Ravenous Wood hides the entrance to the lair of a terrible horror that predates or defies both Tiamat and Zehir.

Tabrol-Akla

Several of Zehir's temples are built on the cliffs of the great chasms that plunge into Tytherion's depths. Tabrol-Akla has the dubious distinction of being the lowest of these, hovering near the border of Azharul. Unsruuk, the exalted soul of an abnormally intelligent troglodyte, is the temple's high priest and one of Zehir's most potent darksworn. Similarly, the other priests who dwell in Tabrol-Akla and the warriors that serve them are among the most formidable of Samaragd, because Zehir's exalted believe that if Tiamat's forces ever move openly against Zehir, Tabrol-Akla will be one of their first targets.

Adventure Hooks

Samaragd offers a vast array of story, plot, and adventure opportunities, primarily for epic tier characters. This domain is home to one of the most overtly evil societies in the known planes, ruled by a zealous caste of beings whose entire purpose is sacrificing not only lives, but souls, to their dark god. The characters might come to rescue a specific mortal or exalted from the clutches of the serpent-priests before it can be slaughtered. Alternatively, the characters might have been taken for sacrifice, or dumped in Samaragd by a mysterious portal (the priests sometimes cause portals to Tytherion to assume other hues, in hopes of trapping new victims) and forced to find some means of escape. The characters might need to obtain information available only by listening at the Murder Pit, or hope to record or decipher the peculiar writings of the Obelisk of Night. An assassins' guild dedicated to Zehir might be run by an exalted soul from Tytherion, forcing the characters to travel to Samaragd to end the organization's evil efforts.

Of course, the characters might go to Samaragd to challenge the greatest foes. Zehir has potent exarchs, and a truly powerful, well-prepared, and well-informed group might just be able to challenge the serpent-god himself. Whatever happens to Samaragd at that point—whether it's claimed by one of the Midnight Serpent's exarchs, conquered by Tiamat, or affected by something else entirely—opens the door to further epic adventure.

Environmental Features

The following terrain features can be found throughout Samaragd's high mountains, deep pits, and terrible cliff temples.

Constructed Terrain

Altar: Stepping onto an altar requires 1 extra square of movement, and the altar provides cover. Some larger altars are more than 1 square across; depending on how covered by serpentine carvings an altar is, each square of it might qualify as difficult terrain.

Altar, Sacrificial: As above, but these altars are enchanted to prevent sacrifices from escaping. A prone character on one of these altars cannot stand (save ends).

Arrow Slits: Few of Samaragd's structures have full-sized windows, instead using arrow slits (Dungeon Master's Guide, page 66).

Fantastic Terrain

Blood Rock: Parts of Samaragd near the altars or the lairs of certain monsters have become blood rock (Dungeon Master's Guide, page 67).

Carpet of Serpents: These patches of ground are covered with swarms of serpents (or other venomous creatures) that dart in and out of various hidden dens.

Effect: A carpet of serpents is difficult terrain. When a creature starts its turn in a carpet of serpents area, it takes 5 poison damage per tier, or 10 poison damage per tier if it is prone.

Usage: Combine a carpet of serpents with creatures that have poison resistance or immunity, or as part of a trap that drops the characters into a chamber that has this feature.

Choking Vapors: These fumes rise from volcanic vents, venomous incense—or both, in the case of rare sacrifices involving yuan-ti priests that expect to rise again after dying within the vent where the sacrifice is conducted.

WAYNE ENGLAND

Effect: These squares are lightly obscured, and creatures in them must hold their breath or suffocate. (See "Suffocation," Dungeon Master's Guide, page 159.) Creatures that have immunity or resistance to poison are immune to this effect.

Usage: Add complexity to an encounter by introducing the vapors after a fight starts. Or have a creature that has poison resistance use the vapors to hide in while it attacks from concealment.

Cursed Obelisk: These black, stone obelisks are usually covered in ruins and stand between 2 and 20 squares high.

Effect: While a nonworshiper of Zehir is within a number of squares of an obelisk equal to the obelisk's height, that creature takes a –2 penalty to attack rolls and skill checks, and gains vulnerable 2 per tier to all damage.

Usage: A chamber full of these objects could provide cover to the characters' enemies, while the characters take the penalty for being nonworshipers. The penalty to attack rolls allows enemy skirmishers to take more risk from opportunity attacks, and all enemies will benefit from the extra damage they can deal because of the characters' vulnerability.

Dried Brambles and Brush: This vegetation functions as razorvine (Manual of the Planes, page 22).

Earthen Maw: Parts of the broken badlands open and close like jaws, seeking to snare passersby.

Effect: Whenever a creature without earth walk remains on the same square of earthen maw throughout its turn, it takes 5 damage per tier and is grabbed (escape DC moderate based on the encounter level).

Usage: Use earthen maw terrain to force the characters to make difficult movement choices, or to funnel them into a disadvantageous position.

Pocket of Night: In the darkest places of Samaragd, the shadows have an unnatural weight, and no natural light can penetrate the darkness.

Effect: When creating magical light, a character in a pocket of night must make an ability check using his or her class's primary ability score against a hard DC. On a failure, the magical light fails to illuminate anything; on a success, it casts only dim light.

Usage: Use a pocket of night with creatures that have darkvision and powers that take advantage of the concealment this terrain offers.

Soul Venom: These areas of Samaragd contain tainted atmosphere.

Effect: While in an area of soul venom, a creature gains vulnerable 5 poison per tier, or vulnerable 10 poison per tier while bloodied. Creatures that have immunity or resistance to poison are immune to these effects.

Usage: Add patches of soul venom to an encounter with medusas or other poison-using creatures that have poison resistance or immunity to give them a bigger punch.

Venomous Air: These are clouds of nigh-undetectable poisons that hang in the air and amplify other poison attacks.

Effect: When a creature within an area of venomous air is hit with a poison attack, it takes 1d6 extra poison damage per tier.

Usage: Use venomous air in an encounter with a large number of weaker creatures or minions that have poison attacks to turn them into a greater threat.

Outdoor Terrain

Cliffs: The cliffs of Samaragd are sheer and precarious. Handholds and footholds exist, but they betray the climber who tries to use them. Regardless of the level of adventure, use hard DCs for climbing.

Rain, Deluge: Precipitation is rare, but when it comes, it comes in torrents. Rain makes an area difficult terrain, causes flying creatures to become slowed, and makes all squares in the area heavily obscured.

Sand and Dust: Much of the desert of Samaragd is difficult terrain.

Slope, Steep: The slopes of Samaragd's peaks are steep, requiring Athletics checks to climb (easy DC, or medium DC if the slope is also covered in scree). On a failed check, a character slides 2d8 squares downslope, taking 1 damage per square of movement, and falls prone. Additionally, pull, push, and slide effects increase by 2 squares in a downslope direction and are reduced by 1 square in an upslope direction.

Smoke: Areas of smoke (put forth by volcanic vents and some braziers) are heavily obscured.

Wind, Arid: On occasion, the hot winds that blow across Samaragd's deserts are more than merely uncomfortable. These gusts drain the moisture from living creatures, causing thirst to set in and worsen after hours rather than days. (See "Thirst," Dungeon Master's Guide, page 159.) In addition, all nonmagical liquids kept in nonmagical containers are destroyed (evaporated) after 1 hour of exposure.

The Fate of the Exalted

Death is frequent (and often brutal) throughout Samaragd, but it isn't necessarily final. When Zehir's exalted are slain, they normally rise again after a week or so, resuming their endless toil for the glory of the Midnight Serpent. This cycle of resurrection isn't perfect, however; a minority of deaths are permanent, with the souls going on to whatever waits beyond the Astral Sea, returning to the cycle of life in the mortal realm, or meeting some other unknown fate.

The deaths of those souls who perish screaming on the Zehir's altars are permanent. Their essence is poisoned and consumed to sate Zehir's unending hunger.

Encounter Groups

Most encounters in Samaragd are linked, thematically if not directly, to the realm's ophidian master. Many of its monsters are serpentine, others are venomous, and still others are known for dealing swift and hidden death.

Level 21 Encounter (XP 18,800)
- 1 dark naga (level 21 elite controller, MM 194)
- 1 giant mummy (level 21 brute, MM 193)
- 1 yuan-ti anathema (level 21 elite skirmisher, MM 271)
- 1 altar of zealotry (advanced to level 20 lurker trap, DMG 92)

Level 26 Encounter (XP 47,800)
- 1 primordial hydra (level 25 solo brute, MM 165)
- 2 yuan-ti anathemas (level 21 elite skirmisher, MM 271)

The Scales: Tytherion's Archipelago

The Scales of Night, or simply the Scales, are the border islands radiating out from the heart of darkness that is Tytherion proper. The archipelago contains scores of islands, ranging in size from several miles across to little more than a slight rise above the surrounding Astral Sea. Those nearest the indigo veil are usually chunks of broken stone, dusty desert, and rocky badland, like Tytherion's outer rim. Farther from the dominion, the isles show greater signs of life, sprouting thick jungles that thrive despite the thin soil covering the rock. The foliage does not grow high, and numerous clearings remain, either naturally vacant or blasted empty, but the canopy is thick enough to hide those who want to remain unseen.

Hiding is essential, even for intrepid adventurers, to avoid unwanted attacks from Tiamat's or Zehir's vile creatures. The outsiders who dwell on these islands face death from the skies if they linger too long in the open.

Although the border islands lie beyond the color veil, deities throughout the Astral Sea still offer the inhabitants of these isles a portion of protection, considering them to be—at least to an extent—their own people. Tiamat and Zehir disagree with that assessment.

The Dragon Queen believes that the outsiders traveling to Tytherion that made it no farther than the Scales aren't worthy of exaltation. She sees them as failures and weaklings unworthy of sharing her domain. Not only does she not protect the people of the Scales, she actively encourages her exalted and darksworn to prey upon them, honing their skills in combat and hunting for the sheer sport of it. Dragons and draconic creatures haunt the skies above the Scales, frequently alone but sometimes in numbers so great they blot out the glow of Tytherion's veil. All too often, these flyers choose the "scorched earth" method of hunting, obliterating entire reaches of land with breath weapons and destructive magic.

The Midnight Serpent is less concerned with the outsiders of the Scales; in fact, since they have proved unable to join him, aid him, or threaten him in any real way, he's indifferent to their existence. Zehir's evil darksworn hunt outsiders not at their god's behest, but because they know they can. Some are murdered in honor of Zehir; others die purely to sate the bloodlust or boredom of their killers. Snakes and serpentine monstrosities slither beneath the jungle's undergrowth or within the crevices of the badlands, accompanied by other minions of Zehir that, though humanoid, are no less cold-blooded than the serpents.

Nor are the exalted of these two deities content with tormenting only outsiders. Though the gods maintain a sullen peace within Tytherion proper, no such rules or boundaries apply within the Scales. Combat, ambush, and attempted massacre between the forces of Tiamat and Zehir are common here. Usually, such conflicts erupt when darksworn of Azharul stumble across those of Samaragd, or vice versa. In a significant minority of occasions, however, the bloodshed is planned ahead of time. Exalted beings holding grudges lie in wait for their rivals.

The constant violence of the Scales does not encourage the long-term survival of large communities or aboveground structures. Endless strafing runs by draconic exalted obliterate all but the sturdiest or best hidden of edifices, and they scatter (or incinerate) aboveground villages as swiftly as they appear. Although Zehir's darksworn aren't as broadly devastating as Tiamat's, few of the Scales' inhabitants (whether outsiders or travelers from beyond) want to be found. Competition for resources and safe living space in the Scales is great enough that nearly everyone has made enemies; between deliberate assassination attempts and murders committed by bored Samaragd exalted, average individuals are safer if they are not known to reside in a specific area or structure.

For this reason, the bulk of the Scales' inhabitants do not dwell aboveground at all. The islands are riddled with a series of underground tunnels and caverns, within which the populace largely dwells. These passageways aren't as ubiquitous or complex as the systems within Tytherion, and not all islands are as replete with them as are others. As a rule, the desert and badlands isles have larger systems of passageways and larger individual caverns; the jungle isles have fewer passageways and caverns, and those that exist are narrower, but they wind about with greater frequency, making them more difficult to navigate.

Other factors beyond the convoluted nature of the caves make them confusing to traverse. The various isles of the Scales are mystically linked, sometimes to another isle and sometimes to other locales. Thus, while most of these catacombs follow traditional rules of nature, some deposit travelers in caves on other islands, in caverns deep in the rocky earth of Tytherion, or in the mortal realm. It's said that the shrewdest inhabitants of the Scales, and a small number of Zehir's darksworn, have mastered and mapped a portion of these "portal tunnels," which they use to navigate the archipelago. Most individuals, however, including those who have studied the tunnels, can reliably find few, if any, of these locations.

Inhabitants and Culture

As mentioned above, most of the Scales' inhabitants live belowground. They might gather in small, semi-permanent communities that call either one great cavern or several linked caves their home. These entrenchments are a combination long-term camp and defensive fortification. Here, the inhabitants can take shelter from dragon raids and similar threats, while using guerrilla tactics to strike back at foes that might appear in manageable numbers.

Entrenchments normally take the form of simple camps within the tunnels, with various sleeping mats, tattered blankets, and perhaps a leather lean-to providing the only sense of personal space. Occasionally, camps that have existed for some time feature small structures—built primarily of wood or of loose-stacked stone—within the housing cavern. Nearly all have multiple exits, both to the surface and leading deeper into the caves, so that the populace can retreat easily when attacked, move farther into the darkness to hide if the entrenchment is breached, and reappear swiftly to deliver a counterattack.

These communities are governed by the strongest warriors or by whoever displays the strength to protect the entrenchment (often by rebuffing anyone who challenges his or her right to lead). Skirmishes between entrenchments are common when one encroaches on another, threatening to take away any of its tunnels or its resources, such as edible plants or pools of fresh water.

Even so, a scattering of communities and structures does survive aboveground. They are hidden deep in the thickest jungles of the outer isles, where the dragons cannot easily spot them from above or conveniently navigate the close-packed trees. In such places, a few wooden villages and the occasional stone temple or ziggurat still stand. These communities are especially likely to war with anyone who encroaches on their territory, hoping to exterminate all newcomers before their presence can be revealed to others.

Adventure Hooks

The Scales provide substantial adventuring opportunities, with the advantage that their challenges can be set at paragon as well as epic levels. The characters might arrive by accident, shipwrecked here or sidetracked on their way to Tytherion proper. They might appear within one of the isles while exploring deep caverns in the mortal realm, if they happen to stumble through one of the "portal tunnels" mentioned above.

Adventures in the Scales don't have to be accidental—the characters might come deliberately for any number of reasons. Because these isles house few communities and those that do exist are small and rugged, githyanki pirates rarely bother to raid them, which makes the Scales a viable hiding place for creatures seeking to avoid those astral marauders. Adventurers could be seeking a secret way into Tytherion, hunting specific servants of Tiamat or Zehir, or searching for treasures lost by prior visitors. Alternatively, they might be hiding from the powers of Tytherion, hoping to find the time to regroup before returning to, or utterly escaping from, that dark dominion.

Of course, the characters might be trying to assist the outsiders of the Scales, who constantly face danger from every direction. From the strafing runs of the dragons to the poisonous murders by Zehir's darksworn, plenty of evil to be destroyed lurks in the Scales.

Environmental Features

Across the various isles, the Scales experience all the environmental characteristics—mundane and mystical alike—appropriate for rocky desert, badlands, and jungle regions.

Encounter Groups

Although encounters with all sorts of humanoids are possible here, the characters' foes are likely to be dragons and draconic servitors of Tiamat or reptilian followers of Zehir. Certain plant creatures appear on the jungle isles as well.

Level 16 Encounter (XP 7,700)

- 2 shadow snakes (level 16 skirmisher, MM 240)
- 1 six-fingered slayer (level 15 lurker, Manual of the Planes 133)*
- 1 yuan-ti malison incanter (level 15 artillery, MM 269)
- 5 dark acolytes (level 15 minion, Manual of the Planes 133)*
- 1 warthorn battlebriar (level 14 controller, MM 28)

*Although these are written as followers of Graz'zt in the source material, treat them as worshipers of Zehir for this purpose. Alignment is evil; change languages to Common and Supernal, and resist 10 psychic to resist 10 poison (six-fingered slayer only).

Level 24 Encounter (XP 30,600)

- 2 bluespawn godslayers (level 22 elite brute, MM 89)
- 1 elder blue dragon (level 20 solo artillery, MM 79)

CHAPTER 3

The Deep Astral Sea

RALPH HORSLEY

The Astral Sea seems empty only because it is so huge. Thousands of islands and shards are scattered throughout the silver sea like oases in a great desert. As many as a dozen civilizations, great by the standards of the world, are scattered through the wide expanse of the silver sea. Most of these establish themselves on astral motes or in the ruins of shattered divine dominions. Others, such as the couatls, fashion their own palaces in the astral clouds, while the githyanki deliberately choose a nomadic existence pivoting on a single central point.

This chapter details four races of the Astral Sea that do not reside in the deities' dominions, among them the two greatest raider threats of the Plane Above—the githyanki and the quom.

It continues with stories and adventure hooks associated with the shattered dominions—places the gods have left behind or otherwise ruined.

Aside from the shattered dominions, many smaller fragments drift in the Astral Sea—motes and shards that offer endless variety for paragon and epic tier exploration and dungeon crawling.

This chapter presents the following topics.

- Races of the Astral Sea: The cloud palaces of the couatls, the history of the githyanki, the origin and philosophy of the maruts, and the quom who live only to re-create and avenge their dead god.
- Shattered Dominions: Discussions of Carceri, Erishani, Kalandurren, Pandemonium, and Shom, including one short adventure set in Erishani and an encounter with astral giants in Shom.
- Motes in the Astral Sea: Glimpses of ten locales in the deep Astral Sea that you can use as springboards for adventures that take place far from the purview of the deities and other denizens of the Plane Above.

Races of the Astral Sea

The deities, their servants, and the outsiders that have failed to join the dominions are not the Astral Sea's only inhabitants. Several powerful races are native to the Plane Above, weaving their separate cultures as arbiters, mercenaries, and predators. The most powerful and numerous are the couatls, the githyanki, the maruts, and the quom.

Couatls

The resplendent winged, feathered serpents known as couatls fly serenely above the notional surface of the Astral Sea. Demons, devils, and githyanki scuttle for cover when they hear the searing sound of couatl wings flapping overhead.

Folklore portrays the feathered serpents as selfless paragons of virtue. Those who actually meet them discover a harsher truth. Couatls are self-obsessed strivers that just happen to have chosen all the right enemies. They pursue the forces of evil as part of a ceaseless struggle for rank. Although they're happy to take credit for any good this does for the universe at large, that is hardly their main concern.

Outlook and Interaction

Couatls refer to the pursuit of status as the Great Chase. A couatl's honor, worth, and influence can be measured by the number of kills it racks up, directly and indirectly. Couatls commemorate their victories by seizing and displaying souvenirs. To mark a victory against an overtly monstrous creature, a couatl takes a choice part of the creature home to its trophy hall, where it might display a demon's horn or a stuffed and mounted beholder. When its foe is more humanlike in shape, the couatl confines itself to taking treasure and equipment. A trophy hall must be tasteful, never gruesome.

Functionaries recruited from the Astral Sea's population of rootless outsiders carefully make lists of their masters' kills. They stand ready to recite them ritually at any time.

A couatl claims the deaths not only of enemies it personally dispatches, but also of those killed by its servants. The Great Chase's unwritten rules allow couatls to treat members of other races as their designated agents, so an ambitious couatl scours the Astral Sea for likely proteges.

To the stouthearted astral wayfarer, the sudden appearance of a couatl might represent salvation from certain doom—or an annoyingly imperious interruption of important plans. Often a couatl will introduce itself to a new prospect by snatching the creature from the jaws of certain defeat. (The mere appearance of a couatl is often enough to send evil astral denizens of lesser power scuttling to safety.) The couatl gently grasps the wounded creature between its opalescent teeth, ferries it to the deck of a ship or safer ground, and tends to its injuries. The rescuer introduces itself and reveals what it has learned by watching the creature from afar. Before distrustful words can be fully uttered, it promises a bountiful material reward for the minor services it will eventually request in return for its momentous rescue.

Couatls prize adventurers as retainers. Bringing a promising new adventuring band into the fold wins status all by itself. Since adventurers are rare, most couatls have to settle for less desirable servitors, such as mercenaries, ex-pirates, or wandering soulforms.

Under constant pressure to win favor, a couatl can become overzealous when it comes across a likely prospect. Couatls don't take refusal lightly, sometimes resorting to subterfuge, veiled threats, or similar forms of mild coercion.

Working with a couatl has its benefits. A couatl patron shares its wealth, spending from its treasure hoard to finance new missions against evil. It might perform additional rescues—though it hates to let its servitors grow soft or dependent. A couatl mentor can also make important introductions, granting entry into the politics of the divine and semidivine.

Although sellswords and astral riffraff might covet positions as couatl servitors, true heroes come to chafe at couatls' attentions. The feathered serpents feel no need to justify themselves to inferiors. They abruptly yank part-time allies away from their current business when the couatls need missions performed, or they unashamedly lecture their adopted adventurers on their perceived tactical failings. Some assign other servants to monitor their allies' behavior, all the better to second-guess them.

Characters who value their freedom could find themselves physically resisting a couatl's commands. The average couatl regards such skirmishes as a regrettable consequence of firm discipline. It defends itself vigorously, perhaps summoning other members of its entourage to assist. When fighting recalcitrant disciples, it never strikes to kill. No matter how serious the break, couatls believe that any ruptured relationship can be repaired. Eventually, they confidently believe, their mortal followers will see the error of their ways and gratefully bow down before them.

Wise adventurers learn to persuade their way out of sticky situations involving a demanding couatl. The serpents' constant quest for status leaves them vulnerable to flattery, and they're also open to negotiation, such as someone making a promise to do a greater deed for them later if left alone now.

Cloudlands

Couatls live in floating communities called cloudlands. These edifices of rosy-colored celestial matter slowly spin across the Astral Sea, far above its horizon. Though they look insubstantial and fanciful, cloudlands and their structures are quite solid.

The most magnificent of these is the Cloud Court, the palace of the couatls' Glorious Feathered Emperor, Nahua. Configured as a series of soft-edged concentric rings, it ascends ever higher toward the center. At the midpoint of the insubstantial-looking complex floats a stepped pyramid. From inside its hazy walls, the emperor oversees his dominion, surrounded by the golden trappings of mythic wealth.

The Cloud Court's stunning beauty is a hazard to mortal sanity. Once they set foot there, normal mortals often desperately plead to stay forever. If the petitioners are powerful combatants, a couatl courtier will be only too happy to arrange this—in exchange for a pledge of eternal service.

Life and Culture

Couatls attend the Cloud Court on days of ceremonial observance, at the command of the emperor, and when they want to announce fresh victories against the forces of evil. Their dignity discourages them from bragging directly. Instead, they rely on poets and bards to do their crowing for them. If such tales of a couatl's exploits win the emperor's favor, the emperor permits the couatl to take up temporary residence on the Court's outer rings. When that same couatl is eclipsed, it is asked in hushed tones to vacate the ring so that a new favorite might take its place.

If a courtier fears that it will soon be ejected—or if an aspirant believes that it is on the verge of an invitation to the Court—it will redouble its attempts to score spectacular victories. This pressure might lead it to risk the lives of its servants and allies.

Efforts to undermine other couatls' victories are officially deplored; nevertheless, they are widespread. Jealous courtiers send servitors to sabotage missions, lure away allies, and steal kills. In extreme cases, couatl entourages wind up fighting each other. The couatls themselves never openly attack each other. For that, they have servitors. Occasionally, the disappearance of a fast-rising couatl leads to scurrilous whispers against its rivals, but no instance of murder between members of the Court has ever been proven.

Factions

Grudges arising from the Great Chase occasionally lead to schisms in couatl society. Over time, splinter movements fade, leading to reunification with the Cloud Court. At present, two splinter groups remain active.

Spirals

Nahua's faction refers to one group of breakaways as "spirals" because the vertical cloudland where its self-proclaimed true emperor, Xihue (pronounced chee-way), dwells is named the Spiral Spire. This group maintains all the same traditions as the larger Cloud Court. The break between the two groups stems from a dispute over succession. Emperors die infrequently; when one does, he or she is replaced by the highest-ranking courtier. Nahua became emperor when his predecessor died, days after taking over from the older Xihue as vizier. Xihue claims that the previous emperor never formally replaced Xihue with Nahua as second in command, and therefore Xihue should rule the Cloud Court.

The spirals periodically suspend their version of the Great Chase to attack Nahua's loyalists. Nahua prefers to lure Xihue's followers with bribes but makes defensive war on them when necessary.

Deniers

Nahua's court calls the second splinter faction the "deniers." This group calls Nahua's forces the "imperials" and refers to itself as the "reclaimers." A growing force representing perhaps one in five couatls, the reclaimers renounce the vanity and splendor of the Cloud Court. They still kill evil beings to gain admiration and influence, but they live in austere conditions and reject the accumulation of treasure and trophies. Under the tutelage of their spiritual leader, Tzotl, they daub their golden feathers with ashes and proclaim the virtues of self-denial. Second in importance to the battle against evil is the struggle to reform the Cloud Court and depose the emperor. A fifth column of covert reclaimers remains at court, working quietly to convert Nahua's followers. They uphold the values of bloodlust and austerity over pleasure and self-satisfaction.

In contrast to his tolerant attitude toward the spirals, Nahua loathes and fears the reclaimers. Tzotl and her followers hide from loyalist reprisals inside a stationary astral anomaly called the Smaze. Inside its billowing red reaches, the directional orientation of the Astral Sea is reversed. Flying creatures must painstakingly retrain themselves to navigate in it. Until they do so, they plummet downward when they attempt to ascend and spin up when they try to dive.

NAVIGATION IN THE SMAZE

Only aerial movement is possible within the walls of the Smaze. As they would in the open Astral Sea, nonflying creatures automatically acquire a fly speed of 2. Longstanding reclaimers can fly as easily within the Smaze as they can outside it. When a creature not native to the Smaze moves more than 2 squares on its turn, it grants combat advantage until the end of its next turn. After such a creature spends at least a day within the Smaze, this restriction ends.

Fearsome pirates of the Astral Sea, the githyanki raid and plunder, restrained only by their awareness that victims deprived of their belongings and their lives will be unable to produce more belongings for the githyanki to steal. Though they are arguably the finest navigators and sailors of the Astral Sea, they learned their trade late. Before they became astral sailors, they were unwilling planar warriors as slaves of the illithids.

History of the Githyanki

Centuries ago, in the years of mortal empires after the Dawn War, the githyanki were members of a race of enslaved humanoids known as gith, after the name of one of their greatest leaders. The mind flayers, whose dark empires stretched out of the Far Realm, into the Underdark, and across the mortal world, kept the gith as slaves. The illithids yearned to extend their influence throughout the planes, and their seemingly cowed servitors, the gith, became obvious candidates for training as planar soldiers. The mind flayers trained the gith as a slave army that could spearhead invasions across planar boundaries.

Unfortunately for their masters, the gith took to the military mindset without swallowing the poison pill of ultimate obedience. The slaves that were supposed to submit to the illithids rose in rebellion. The gith overpowered their masters and escaped through the worlds as they had been taught to do. Gith, the leader of the rebellion, declared an Eternal Crusade, calling her people to remain ever vigilant against the threat of the illithids from then on. (See "Tu'narath, City of Death" in Dragon #377 for more information.)

Since the gith were a zealous and violent lot, freedom soon erupted into civil war. The followers of Gith clung to the military traditions the mind flayers had instilled, and they wanted to put their skills to best use, building a military machine that would be able to avenge itself fully upon the illithids and the other creatures of the Far Realm. The opposition, led by a mystic named Zerthimon, thought that the time for blind militarism was over.

The leaders fought, Zerthimon won, and he and the faction calling themselves the githzerai split away from the people of Gith and moved into the Elemental Chaos. Those who chose to stay true to their militaristic ways stayed loyal to Gith, renamed themselves the githyanki, and went in the other direction, invading the Plane Above where the deities ruled.

Military discipline served the githyanki well in their desperate early years. They put their training to use and seized a few scattered astral motes, since the territories of the deities were too strong and well organized for them to confront directly. As an offshoot of the Eternal Crusade, Gith developed a long-term plan to ensure the survival and prominence of the githyanki, embodied in what were called the three great stratagems: carving out a home base, cultivating an alliance, and refining a weapon that would enable the githyanki to hold onto what they had attained.

After decades (some say centuries), the githyanki happened upon a massive floating island. They called the island, which was the corpse of a dead god, Tu'narath. By making this place their main home and the central base for their wide-flying astral ships, the githyanki attained the first great stratagem of their eventual ascendancy in the Astral Sea.

The First Great Stratagem: Tu'narath

Tu'narath is the capital city of the githyanki civilization. It is the fortress home of their current ruler, Vlaakith the lich-queen. Tu'narath serves as the nexus for the githyanki's navigational charts, the supply point for their mobile shipyards, and the major permanent settlement of githyanki culture in the Astral Sea. All of the other githyanki settlements and citadels are designed to be abandoned if superior forces should attack them; githyanki military thinking advises that it is better to preserve your troops and slay the enemy with a savage counterattack than to allow yourself to be trapped and whittled down until you are too weak to attack.

The Second Great Stratagem: The Red Dragon Pact

The second stratagem followed soon after. Although Gith was incredibly long-lived, she could sense her life ending. She summoned her trusted advisor, an ambitious female named Vlaakith, and sought counsel. How could she be sure that the githyanki would survive after she was gone? What would give them the edge they needed to thrive, ensuring that they were strong enough to defeat all who opposed them and, in time, avenge themselves fully upon both the mind flayers and the perfidious githzerai?

Vlaakith already had ideas on this matter. Though the githyanki had no affection for the deities and no more respect than anyone sane would accord to dangerous and powerful enemies, Vlaakith had been weighing the advantages of finding a divine ally. Gith's overwhelming desire for revenge suggested an alliance with Tiamat, the god of vengeance.

In the end, Gith accomplished the second great stratagem. Employing Vlaakith as her negotiator, Gith traded herself, and the eternal soul that Gith wasn't even certain she possessed, to the Queen of Dragons. In exchange, the githyanki received a pact of mutual support with one of Tiamat's chromatic dragon races, the fiery and proud red dragons. Vlaakith's soul was thrown into the bargain, as well as the souls of all the future rulers of the githyanki.

So who benefited in the bargain? Certainly, the githyanki have thrived. Even though they quickly gained mastery of astral navigation and shipbuilding, they could always supplement the speed of their ships with winged strikers and draconic firepower. Is it possible that Tiamat made an eternal deal in which she received only a few githyanki souls and yet has not tried to find a loophole in it?

Three possibilities seem likely. First, Tiamat thought that the alliance between one of her races and the githyanki would give her a new group of powerful worshipers. She judged the githyanki as if they were normal mortals looking for a deity to reassure them and aid them. However, the githyanki are not normal mortals, and they treat Tiamat as a powerful creature that happens to have a treaty with them, not even as a trusted ally, much less as an object of worship. Second, Tiamat slanted the pact toward vengeance, ensuring that the githyanki would pay penalties if they ever gave up their planned revenge on their former masters, the mind flayers. Third, those "few githyanki souls" happen to be the souls of all of the githyanki's rulers, and they might be a magic-rich commodity that holds far more power than Gith originally realized. Tiamat might eventually be able to take by magical force what the githyanki will not offer out of devotion.

However, that last is speculation. What is certain is that the relationship between the githyanki and the red dragons remains strong, even after millennia. Red dragons are welcomed into githyanki settlements, and Tu'narath has ample space for red dragons to make their homes. Though red dragons that do not live alongside the githyanki might not recognize them as allies, the dragons among the githyanki have linked their plans and desires to githyanki culture. It doesn't hurt that any githyanki who is teamed with a dragon shares a higher rank in society because of his or her mount.

The alliance between the githyanki and the red dragons is also apparent outside the astral realm. On the Astral Sea, many githyanki use sailing vessels as their primary mode of transportation. Dragon riders go where they like, but many dragon riders fly missions based off vessels or out of Tu'narath. When in the world, however, the githyanki must often rely on their red dragon allies for everything from protection to transportation.

The Third Great Stratagem: The Silver Swords

Githyanki silver swords are the iconic symbols of githyanki power, but few know their full significance. Though many believe they are badges of honor, the truth is that some of the silver swords belonging to high-ranking officers are far more than that. Forged from more than steel and alchemical silver, the best of the silver swords contain a sliver or two of the Living Gate (page 63), the original gateway through which the Far Realm breached the Astral Sea. The githyanki keep the object of their search a secret, unlike the monomaniacal quom (page 101), who search for fragments of their dead god Lakal. Some otherwise illogical voyages of exploration are actually designed to track down new slivers of the original Living Gate as they circulate within the detritus of the Astral Sea.

Swords made with slivers of the Living Gate have no extra magical power that other races can discern. In the hands of high-ranking githyanki, however, the silver swords resonate at a different pitch when the Far Realm invades the far corners of the deep Astral Sea in force. The fact that others don't realize how often these invasions occur is due to the githyanki's savage and decisive military response to such incursions.

Life and Culture

Under the yoke of their illithid masters, the githyanki trained in military tactics and acquired discipline and a rigid structure of rank. Thanks to Gith, they maintained these traditions once they were free. Githyanki society is a military force organized on a massive scale. Each githyanki has his or her place in the hierarchy. Obedience to one's superiors is important, unless the superior has obviously turned against the best interest of society. Blood ties mean little. Instead, githyanki are raised in cadres, seldom knowing their parents. They bond with others of similar rank. Upon reaching adulthood, a githyanki chooses a path for her future as fits her rank and competence or has a path chosen for her, if she is judged incompetent to choose.

Even the gods of war have no hold on the githyanki imagination. The worst you can do to a githyanki is to enslave him, and to the githyanki, devotion to the gods seems tantamount to slavery. Githyanki are not fond of philosophical debate—a suggestion that devotion to the deities is no more onerous than devotion to a githyanki cadre and the values of Gith would probably be punctuated by the point of a silver sword.

Though the githyanki have chosen discipline and conquest over faith and religion, within githyanki society is a caste that serves the same role as clerics and priests in other societies. Known as the ghustil, these githyanki are gifted with the ability to channel power directly from Vlaakith CLVII, the ruler of the githyanki, and they can bend the nascent divine power in the Astral Sea to their will. The ghustil serve not only as the voice and eyes of Vlaakith in the wider Astral Sea, but also as reminders to all who see them that Vlaakith is to be obeyed. However, many common githyanki do not trust the ghustil. Not only do they sometimes act outside the githyanki rank structure—they justify their actions by saying they are directly connected to Vlaakith, and thus their actions are the actions of Vlaakith herself—but their manipulation of divine energy is too similar to what the clerics and paladins of the deities can do. Given the fact that the githyanki disdain religion, many believe that the ghustil and the powers they wield could become the basis for an attempt to twist githyanki society into something beholden to the gods.

In the millennia since the githyanki arrived in the Astral Sea, they have become excellent navigators and masters of astral travel. Many of the islands in the Astral Sea drift over time, and finding them can be difficult, even with good charts. The githyanki have no such difficulties, thanks to the magic of Tu'narath. The body of the dead god upon which the city of Tu'narath was built still radiates waves of bizarre energy that pulse out across the Astral Sea. Githyanki cartomancers have learned to read the patterns and echoes of this energy, translating that information into the most up-to-date charts of the infinite sea. As these charts are refreshed, the captains of githyanki vessels see their own maps magically altered on the fly, ensuring that all the githyanki ships on the Astral Sea have the best navigational data. The astral charts belonging to githyanki captains are highly prized, and a captain would rather destroy such a chart than see it fall into the hands of nongithyanki.

Although the githyanki's love of raiding and conquest hearkens back to their origin as a warrior race, aggression springs from necessity. Unlike mortals, the githyanki do not seek to hang on to their conquests (with one exception, the gul'othran; see page 97). As consummate raiders, the githyanki know how difficult it is to defend fixed positions against supremely mobile enemies. In the Astral Sea, the githyanki choose to avoid staking themselves down as defenders of fixed positions. Tu'narath is a permanent base, but it, too, is mobile. The githyanki must gather food and supplies through plunder, because their overwhelmingly military culture and their refusal to permanently occupy terrain make it difficult for them to cultivate food and manufacture items that cannot be created on a ship or on dragonback.

Outlook and Interaction

Within githyanki society, everyone has his or her place, and everyone else recognizes that place. The military caste is the only major caste. Both of the smaller castes—the mlar (artisans, crafters, and other specialized professions) and the glathk (farmers and laborers)—have their own systems for determining who is less inferior to those in the lower ranks of the military.

Though it is rare, moving between castes is possible. In some ways, githyanki society is a meritocracy, where competition is fierce and deadly. Since blood ties do not matter, a githyanki's birth has no impact on her station in life. Aptitudes and skills demonstrated in youth determine caste and initial rank. As a githyanki rises through the ranks of her caste or a position in another caste, all other githyanki are expected to treat her accordingly.

The Lich-Queen's Plans

The majority of the githzerai in the Astral Sea are loyal to Vlaakith CLVII the lich-queen, current ruler of Tu'narath. A distant descendant of the original Vlaakith charged by Gith with continuing the githyanki tradition of conquest, Vlaakith has reigned longer than any other githyanki (including Gith) since transforming into a lich long ago. The githyanki admire the current Vlaakith's clever evasion of her soul's eventual transference to Tiamat, though some wonder if meddling with the conditions of the pact with Tiamat is a good idea.

Those doubters would be far more worried if they knew that Vlaakith has spent much of her life seeking a way to become a deity. Her recent attempts utilize the latent power of the dead god that empowers Tu'narath, though it seems unlikely that the combination of a dead god and a githyanki lich would somehow yield a living god. If Vlaakith finds a way to complete her apotheosis, githyanki society would be thrown into disarray. Obedience to superiors goes only so far, and if Vlaakith becomes a god, the highest rank of slaver, many githyanki would align themselves against her for being an enemy of Gith, instead of following her as loyal subordinates. Another civil war seems inevitable if Vlaakith succeeds, and likely even if she fails and her plan becomes known.

Since no one aside from Vlaakith understands her plans for ascension, the majority of the githyanki are loyal to her as their rightful commander. Ambitious githyanki who rise through the ranks of their society must be careful not to look like contenders for Vlaakith's power, since many potential rivals have been eliminated for threatening to disrupt the rightful order.

Factions

There are two main factions within the githyanki race: the far travelers and the gul'othran.

The Far Travelers

At least one group of githyanki holds itself apart from Tu'narath and Vlaakith. This splinter faction, known as the far travelers, consists of true nomads that avoid Tu'narath and its hierarchies of rank. The far travelers are the descendants of githyanki that opposed the first great stratagem. When Tu'narath was first settled, a few githyanki were unwilling to give up their life of perfect mobility and freedom. With the blessing of Gith, these githyanki loaded themselves onto dozens of ships and set forth to wander the Astral Sea.

Over time, the far travelers have lost many of their original ships and replaced them with others stolen from civilizations throughout the Astral Sea. Though they have the same military traditions as the main branch of the githyanki, the far travelers take the githyanki's aversion to being tied to specific terrain to an extreme. They never occupy the sites they plunder, not even briefly. They also fail to share in the fruits of the central culture's great stratagems: They lack Tu'narath's cartomancy, any benefit from the pact with Tiamat, and the silver swords that warn of Far Realm incursions. Instead, the far travelers either sail into the deepest reaches of the Astral Sea where no one else bothers to travel, or they roam from one place to the next, slaying and plundering.

The far travelers are not without a sense of loyalty to the other githyanki. Once a year they load a single astral vessel with a tribute of treasure, raw materials, magic items, and other goods. The tribute is then sailed to Tu'narath, where it is presented to Vlaakith to honor her and support Tu'narath. If the tribute constitutes a bribe, it has so far proven effective.

The Gul'othran

When Gith first led the githyanki out of slavery and into the conquest of the Astral Sea, she swore ultimate vengeance upon the mind flayers and their kin. Among the githyanki, no group takes this quest for revenge more seriously than the gul'othran. While the majority of the githyanki raid, plunder, and pillage throughout the Astral Sea, the gul'othran have tasked themselves with fighting a never-ending war against the spawn of the Far Realm.

It is the gul'othran that launch attacks on mind flayers and their ilk outside the Astral Plane, and it is the gul'othran that strike first at any threats to the githyanki. Some of the githyanki encountered in the world are gul'othran working to undermine the illithids and their thralls.

Of course, the gul'othran put a distinctively githyanki twist on the project of opposing the illithids. The gul'othran outlook is simple: By invading other worlds, the githyanki can ensure that those places do not become bastions of safety for mind flayers and their kind. The gul'othran seek to invade other worlds and set themselves up as rulers, using conquest to ensure that their ancient enemies have no place to go. When the gul'othran invade, it is not to plunder and then leave; it is permanent.

Fortunately for the world of mortals, the gul'othran are presently almost entirely preoccupied with the roving aberrant entity called Xurathon, a twisted stronghold of the mind flayers that eludes most of the githyanki's detection magic. The gul'othran might not be strong enough to destroy Xurathon. If that proves true, the characters might be required to solve the problem instead—a single case in which an alliance with the githyanki is a good idea for someone other than Tiamat.

Scales of War

The Scales of War adventure path, presented in Dungeon magazine as a part of D&D Insider, takes an alternate view of githyanki history. In the Scales of War adventures, Vlaakith was slain in the recent past by rebels and (reportedly) a band of adventurers from outside the Astral Plane. Part of the story arc in these adventures deals with the return of Gith and the breaking of the pact with Tiamat. Though the adventure path uses these assumptions, they are but one way that events could progress. If you design a campaign of your own featuring the githyanki, remember that the Scales of War path presents just one interpretation of the future of the githyanki. You are free to use or discard that version as you see fit.

The great githzerai sage Liricosa sat serenely upon a smooth pillow of rock floating several feet above the floor. Below him, a circle of acolytes gazed upward patiently.

"It is true," he replied slowly, never quite looking at the student who had asked, "that the maruts, with their statuelike forms, might easily be mistaken for creatures of the Elemental Chaos. They are, however, neither elemental nor chaotic in any sense of those terms.

"Legends tell of an eon of ages ago, before even the Dawn War, when the gods had only begun to show their interest in the world between, which was the plaything and playground of the primordials. The gods had not yet learned to work together—had not yet been forced to work together by the primordial threat. Yet some, such as Erathis and Corellon, and even Zehir, sought means of preventing true conflict among divinities. For even casual disagreements—over territory, over how to shape a mortal race, or even over simple insults—could wreak widespread destruction.

"Yet the deities could not agree on how to arbitrate these disputes. Few were willing to trust any other god in such cases, for fear that the 'judge' might be in league with the opposing party. Neither were mortals, nor even angels, acceptable mediators, for as Ioun is supposed to have said, 'All who live have needs and urges, and thus must all who live prove biased, no matter how they struggle for neutrality. How can we, as gods, subjugate ourselves to imperfect judgment?'

"This, then, was the dilemma of the gods—that no living being could provide the impartiality the gods themselves demanded. Even the oldest legends cannot agree on who proposed the solution, but it was Amoth and Moradin who made that solution reality. If the living were unsuitable for mediating divine disputes, then they would create mediators who were not living at all.

"Moradin forged great bodies, not from metal or stone—though it resembled such substances—but from the stuff of the Astral Sea. From the spiritual energy of the Plane Above, Amoth took the soulstuff of unborn angels. He imprisoned those spirits with the aid of Torog—who even then showed talent for trapping, though he was not yet the god of the Underdark. Then, Amoth and Tuern channeled the spirits into these waiting bodies. Together, the gods breathed animation into their creation, and thus rose the first marut—a creature unborn, burning with the spirit of an angel yet lacking the slightest urge, need, or bias of the living. The gods brought their disputes to this creature, and whether or not they agreed with its decrees, they knew those judgments, at least, to be truly impartial."

The sage bowed his head ever so slightly, the only signal that his recitation was complete. For a moment there was silence in the chamber, and then one of his students voiced a question.

"Oh, master," she asked, "you said these were legends of which you spoke. Are they true?"

"The maruts believe them," Liricosa answered. "Therefore, they are true."

Life and Culture

For the most part, maruts dwell only in populations of other maruts. Throughout the Astral Sea—and, far more rarely, in the mortal realm—stand great, blocky fortresses of stone and metal (or of astral matter that resembles stone and metal). Some of these fortresses are mundane in design, while others consist of moving wings and mobile towers, driven by clanking gears the size of taverns and chains as thick as trees. Within each fortress, one or more cadres of maruts dwell. Because they require no sustenance and scant rest, maruts spend little time on those activities that dominate the lives of the residents of other communities. Instead, they occupy themselves with martial exercise, in philosophical and hypothetical debates, and in determining where their attentions are next required. These fortresses are more than defensive bastions; they are storehouses of the contracts that maruts have signed with others or otherwise been tasked with enforcing.

The Written Word

Legend suggests that, in their earliest years, the deities had no written form of Supernal. Only as time passed did they realize the need for a form of "permanent words." The name of the god or gods who first set out to create a written language is forgotten today—many assume it was Ioun, but her own priests deny this, claiming that she learned from another.

In any event, it was not the deities alone who proved responsible. According to the maruts, they assisted in the development of the Supernal script and, far more important, it was they who disseminated it across the Astral Sea, educating angels and even gods in its use.

As to what was on those first tablets scribed with Supernal? Priests of Vecna and the Raven Queen both believe that writing to be the secrets of the ultimate fate of souls beyond the known cosmos, while Ioun's followers suggest that it's something even greater: the eventual fate of the cosmos. Nobody can say for certain, however, for these tablets were lost during the Dawn War. Not the slightest hint of their whereabouts—or even their survival—has arisen since.

Mortals think of maruts as heavenly mercenaries. Some cultures—those that know nothing else about them, not even their true names—call maruts "inevitables," due to their relentless nature. This belief, however, is only partially accurate. Even though maruts indeed hire themselves out as guards, police, and enforcers, they do so only to further causes that are in line with their own legalistic and bureaucratic tendencies. Some accept any employer, while other maruts serve only great powers such as gods, devils, and exarchs.

Maruts rarely take coin for their services. Sometimes they accept—or demand—magic items or political favors. Frequently they seek an exchange of services, and sometimes the service they are owed does not come due for years. In a significant minority of marut fortresses, natural humanoids make up a substantial portion of the population. These are not slaves per se, but rather individuals who have sold themselves into indentured servitude as payment for a marut's service. Although these servants are never deliberately mistreated, working for maruts is unpleasant, because these astral warriors are strict and unforgiving taskmasters.

On rare occasion, a marut (or a cadre of maruts) might take over as governors of a mortal society. Usually this occurs if the maruts are serving as agents of some other employer, but occasionally an entire community finds itself indebted to the maruts, who view this situation as an opportunity to reshape a significant population into a more lawful and orderly form. As with the servants in marut fortresses, the citizens of such areas swiftly realize that their lives will be short and harsh if they don't blindly adhere to every rule. However, if they have a legitimate grievance, it is also dealt with swiftly.

Outlook and Interaction

To this day, maruts still hold to the purpose given them by the gods. Maruts are, in essence, warrior bureaucrats. For the right price—or sometimes no price at all—they serve not only as mediators, but also as enforcers. To almost all maruts, the fairness or reasonability of a contract or an agreement matters little; only the agreement itself is sacrosanct. Maruts see creation as being full of imperfect creatures that cannot be trusted to obey the dictates of law and order. Although a few cadres have other priorities, most maruts prefer mercenary service that allows them to punish lawbreakers and those who violate contracts.

The deities aren't exempt from these requirements, either. Though the gods were ostensibly the maruts' creators, maruts hold no more loyalty to the gods than they do to anyone else, because harboring such an allegiance would lead to bias, and the maruts cannot abide that state of affairs.

JASON A. ENGLE

The maruts, however, aren't all of a single mind. They are not machines, though they resemble machines, and they have differences of opinion. Maruts divide themselves into cadres of like-minded individuals, and conflicts between cadres are rare but not unheard of. One cadre might take trickery or coercion into account when determining if someone has violated a contract, while others consider only the precise letter of an agreement. Also, some cadres view the cosmos through different outlooks. For instance, some maruts believe that the violation of natural laws (such as undeath) is of far greater significance than the violation of mortal laws. A cadre of maruts who hold that viewpoint serves the Raven Queen, enforcing the sanctity of death.

Fundamentally, no matter how an individual or a cadre might express this stance, maruts are beings of inflexible order and uncompromising law. Their motivation for accepting mercenary service is based on spreading their vision of law across the cosmos under the aegis of legitimate authority (their employers)—not because they choose to do so, but because they must. The lawless nature of reality, and their own internal drives, requires nothing less.

It is unclear why maruts prefer favors in payment for their services or what their ultimate objectives might be. One current theory, put forth by Ioun's priests and popular among planar sages, is that the maruts hope—though they know it will take eons—to eventually hold the entire cosmos, or at least the greater powers thereof, in their debt. When that time comes, the maruts will no longer need to serve others; they can call in all their favors at once, governing and even reshaping reality into a far more orderly form.

Major Sites

Dozens, if not more, marut fortresses are sprinkled throughout the Astral Sea and the mortal realm. Although they vary in size and shape, each fortress is similar to the next. Some others might hold greater import to the maruts, but the following sites have gained infamy among mortals.

The Tower of Judgment

Although the Tower of Judgment is not the largest marut bastion, its gears and moving sections make it one of the most complex. Built among the Daybreak Islands, the island chain beyond Hestavar, the Tower of Judgment is believed to be the oldest marut bastion. According to legends, the first marut—supposedly created by Moradin and Amoth and boasting nearly the power of a god—still oversees his own cadre from within the heights of the Tower of Judgment. Whether this claim is true or not, entities that have minor disagreements with one another that aren't worth warring over still seek the arbitration of the maruts that dwell here.

The Bastion of Inevitability

Although the known portions of the Astral Sea are finite and bounded, the Plane Above is infinite in extent. Even the most far-traveling githyanki, and the deities themselves, do not know what lies beyond the space that has been charted. The maruts don't either—but they intend to be present if anyone finds out so that they can establish themselves and defend against the chaos that lies beyond the known realms.

Reckoning the Tower of Judgment to be the "center" of the known Astral Sea, the maruts continuously move the Bastion of Inevitability farther out as explorers of all creeds discover more distant reaches of the plane. The Bastion does not travel the Plane Above like a vessel, but rather it simply appears in a new place after vacating its previous location. Within a matter of days after someone has established a new "farthest known point" from the Tower of Judgment, no matter the direction, the Bastion of Inevitability appears nearby, staying until a yet more distant destination is discovered.

The magic of the Bastion is not infallible, however. Sufficiently potent magic can mask a distant explorer from the maruts' detection, allowing that explorer to survey some portion of the deep Astral Sea without the Bastion following.

Maruts in Other Realms

Although most maruts reside in the Astral Sea, their contracts and investigations spread them throughout the cosmos. Unlike full-time agents of the gods of law and good, the maruts often operate as inscrutable observers until their survival or obscure interests are threatened.

For instance, a group composed primarily of maruts calling itself the Watchers of Tomorrow monitors the Pandemonium Stone in the Elemental Chaos (The Plane Below, page 80). The Watchers seldom drive off the slaads and chaos creatures that are also drawn to the Stone. Instead they hold themselves ready, waiting for the Pandemonium Stone to "hatch" into a god-thing they plan to serve or to slay.

JULIE DILLON

Rocketing across the Astral Sea on comet-ships constructed from the glowing remnants of their shattered realm, the implacable but fanatic quom strike fear into the hearts of adventurers and evildoers alike.

History of the Quom

These mortal inhabitants of the Astral Sea trace their history to the time before the Dawn War. At that time, the quom were the healers, mediators, and scholars of the Astral Sea. Their occultists discovered many of the arcane formulas that underpin magical powers still used today. They dedicated themselves to the service of others and recognized all peoples as one. When they performed great deeds of benefit to all, their deity, Lakal, rewarded them with ecstatic moments of personal communion. Unlike other early deities, Lakal was not worshiped as an individual god. She was the home realm of the quom and could be perceived only in those fleeting instants of spiritual connection. But in another sense, to dwellers in that realm, she was around them every moment of their lives as part of their ordinary physical surroundings.

The Doom of Lakal

The first inkling of the doom that befell the quom occurred when their mediators were unable to avert the Dawn War. Final destruction occurred when Bahamut pursued Nihil, a primordial incarnation of nothingness, across the Astral Sea for a final reckoning. Their titanic battle started elsewhere but ended in Lakal, as both deities crashed through Lakal's silvery-green veil. Bahamut blasted Nihil with his holy breath, destroying Nihil, shattering its body, and causing shards of its deceased nonbeing to permeate the body of Lakal.

On that day, Lakal died and the realm exploded into a thousand comets and countless smaller particles. Everyone present in the realm died instantly. The only quom left were the thousands that had spread out through the Astral Sea and other worlds to tend the wounded in the Dawn War.

The Vow of the Quom

As Lakal's dying shrieks reverberated in their heads, the surviving quom chose, as one, to set aside the ways of peace. From that day forward, they vowed to heal only their own. With unyielding determination, they sought to revive Lakal by tracking down and reassembling her sundered parts, slaying anyone who stood in their path without mercy or moral purpose, just as their families and their deity had been slain. If those victims were innocent bystanders in a greater struggle, so be it. They were in the wrong place at the wrong time, just as Lakal had been.

The Unsundering

The quom call their project to reassemble all the parts of Lakal "the unsundering." They work ceaselessly to gather up every fragment of Lakal, no matter how small. The largest parts were long ago discovered. Now, the quom comet-hunters, as they are called, track down tiny shards. When a hunter is within 15 feet of one, he or she is capable of perceiving a speck of Lakal as tiny as a pinpoint.

The unsundering puts the quom in conflict with all other inhabitants of the Astral Sea. Many of the tiny motes of Lakal that the quom now hunt have long since integrated themselves with other objects. They are often found in magic items that have been scattered throughout the known realms over the years. It is entirely possible that a magic ring purchased in Sigil or found in a mortal-world dungeon contains a long-lost speck of Lakal matter.

Lakal-matter also functions as a nutrient, and as such it can be found in edible plants and the bodies of living animals. Many creatures have infinitesimal bits of Lakal embedded in their bodies. Although a small incision might be sufficient to remove a mote of Lakal matter lodged in the skin or a surface muscle, a spot in one's lungs or heart requires an extraction that proves fatal to the patient. The quom perform these murderous surgeries without qualm or hesitation.

One or more characters, or their equipment, might be targeted by the quom. The quom have enough experience with adventurers to realize that few such individuals allow one member of their band to be singled out and destroyed, so an adventuring party that has one member targeted by the quom is likely to be attacked en masse.

Even if they aren't being targeted at a given time, characters need to be on their guard around the quom. One peaceful encounter with a quom does not guarantee that a future encounter will not lead to violence, since in the intervening time one or more characters might unknowingly ingest motes of Lakal.

Fragments of Lakal large enough to be seen look like softly glowing crystals. When quom comet-hunters find new motes, they press them against the hull of their comet-ship, growing each ship one tiny piece at a time. On the day when all the pieces are gathered, the ships will be set on a collision course with one another, and Lakal, the realm and the deity, will be reborn.

Some say that before Lakal can be fully reconstructed, Bahamut will have to die, to atone for his unthinking role in her doom. Until they are close to having recovered all of her, the quom see no reason to actively pursue this goal. They do, however, treat Bahamut's worshipers and clerics with special contempt, finding excuses to pursue and slay them even when they are presently free of any remnants of Lakal.

Life and Culture

Quom are nearly hairless humanoid beings. Broad-shouldered, burly, and heavily muscled, they combine the body proportions of dwarves with the average height of humankind. Skin colors range across the cool end of the spectrum, from light green to deep violet. A light turquoise shade is common, marking individuals as descendants of the long-defunct diplomat caste. Blood relatives display similar skin tones.

From scalp to tiptoe, every quom is perfectly symmetrical. Skin blemishes are unknown among the race. The quom celebrate this strange perfection and take special care to avoid scarring. When a quom is permanently marked by an injury, it slashes itself to create an identical scar on the opposite side of its body. Quom that lose extremities go into hiding until they can be healed with ritual magic. A quom that shows itself while in an asymmetrical condition violates the gravest of taboos.

A quom of great achievement undergoes a bizarre physical transformation. Over a period of weeks, the back of its skull begins to reconfigure itself. A brow ridge appears, then eye sockets, and finally, a set of functioning eyes. Eventually, the quom gains an entire second face on the back of its head, identical to the first. (In game terms, this change occurs when a quom advances to the epic tier.) From this point on, the quom is capable of sensing the presence of one of Lakal's motes within 40 feet of itself, compared to 15 feet for an ordinary quom comet-hunter.

Quom that have second faces are known as durud. This word means leader, hero, wise one, and priest, all at once. When a quom becomes old and infirm, its second face fades and is reabsorbed. It loses its durud status and enters a state of feeble-minded dotage. This change rarely occurs, since most durud die in combat or in self-sacrifice (see below) long before old age can creep up on them.

Males and females regard one another as equals, although durud are more important than anyone else. Quom society is a meritocracy, and family status means nothing. Only an individual's accomplishments have meaning in quom society, and only to the degree that those actions support the gathering of motes. Those that can no longer contribute for whatever reason feed themselves to their ships. This grim ritual, poorly understood by outsiders, sustains the comet material so that it does not burn out. Other prisoners are sometimes fed to the ships as well, even though they do not produce the same benefit as a self-sacrificing quom.

Various renegades, agents of deities, and devils have made temporary bargains with specific quom, but such arrangements never take precedence over the hunt for fragments of Lakal. As soon as one of the parties to a bargain acquires or ingests a mote of Lakal, the agreement comes to a bloody end. Even githyanki can be bargained with, bought off, or paid ransom. Quom don't care about anyone else unless that creature is a target that needs harvesting.

Outlook and Interaction

The unpredictable flows and accumulations of Lakal determine where the quom are likely to strike. When they have no solid leads on large fragments, quom vessels fall back on a few hunting patterns that have historically yielded consistent results: looking for new outsiders, preying on travelers coming out of Hestavar and the Daybreak Islands, and rummaging through the unexplored shards of the deep Astral Sea.

The quom have discovered that a disproportionate number of outsiders have soulforms that contain substantial amounts of Lakal. As a result, quom ships frequently sail around the shores of the border islands, looking for outsiders that have been missed on earlier passes, newly arrived outsiders, or better yet, swimmers trying to reach the nearest divine dominion. Against weak targets that cannot properly defend themselves, the quom frequently use surgical precision, slaying only their targets and anyone who gets in their way.

Hestavar is a never-slowing font of magic industry, thanks to the Game of Making. Quom ships that have nowhere better to go often dock in the Daybreak Islands and send out search parties, hoping for a lucky strike such as a paragon or epic tier adventuring party carrying a trove of potential Lakal-bearing magic items, though the movements of such groups are hard to predict.

The search for Lakal more or less requires the quom to systematically work through the entire Astral Sea. Characters exploring long-forgotten stretches of the Astral Sea might eventually realize that the question is not if they will encounter the quom, but when.

Ships and Shipboard Life

Each quom ship houses an entire community. The ship's captain, always a durud, acts as leader. Captains are judged not by their fairness or by the prosperity of their people, but by the quantity and quality of the motes the ship collects. A captain might be deposed at any time by a majority vote of a ship's durud. To choose anyone other than a durud as captain is unthinkable.

Combatants and crew members comprise a minority of each ship's population. Comet-ships are floating villages, supporting crafters, traders, children, and the elderly. The quom grow herbs and raise small animals on deck, but they earn most of their food through trade, salvage, and the occasional bout of opportunistic piracy. As feared as the quom are, their delicate metalwork and ceramic containers are coveted throughout the Astral Sea.

Each ship is named after an aspect of Lakal, but cultural differences between ships are minimal. For example, the Pasusap is named for Lakal in her capacity as a grain goddess. Although crew members wear a wheat-sheaf emblem, they are no more agriculturally inclined than the people of any other quom vessel.

The divine essence of slain Lakal, visible as a flaring cometlike tail, propels quom ships through the Astral Sea. In ship-to-ship fights, quom captains try to maneuver enemy vessels into these searing energy trails. They obscure line of sight and deal fire damage to opposing ships and crews alike.

Rivalries

No central authority binds the dozens of quom crews zipping through the Astral Sea. Captains coordinate efforts only by ad hoc agreement.

The quom are believed to act as a single force that is focused only on the remaking of Lakal. In reality, the various communities can't help but compete with one another. A quom prophecy tells of the Restorer, the messianic future hero who will find the last missing piece of Lakal. This individual will become truly immortal as the eternal guardian-monarch of Lakal Restored. On that day, the quom will take new individual names, and a name for their people, all palindromes.

Every generation of quom believes that it will live to see the restoration, thinking that surely only a last few motes remain to be found. That their ancestors believed the same thing scarcely troubles them. To believe otherwise is to exhibit pessimism, which undermines morale.

Each captain thinks it has a chance of becoming the Restorer—as long as none of its peers jumps in ahead of it. The quom don't openly fight one another. However, the sneakier ones have been known to covertly hire adventurers to sidetrack, slow, and frustrate rivals. This is most likely to happen when two ships discover a large mote at the same time and rush to be the first to claim it.

Enemies of the Gods

Beyond their special enmity for Bahamut, the quom believe that all gods and primordials share responsibility for the death of Lakal. They say that the divide between law and chaos and good and evil is merely a story each side tells about itself. Morality died when Lakal was slain. When she is restored, perhaps a new accord can be struck with those deities willing to bow down before her and make gestures of contrition. In the meantime, the gods and their followers deserve nothing but scorn. Clerics, invokers, and paladins are treated as dupes and charlatans.

Although their goddess is dead, the quom can still wield divine power, which they derive from the energy surrounding their ships.

Shattered Dominions

Although deities might die, their dominions endure. Each of the dominions described in this section, with the exception of Carceri, either lost its deity or was lost by its deity. These shattered dominions are easier to find than the smaller astral motes. Although the shattered dominions drift on the tides of the Astral Sea like other motes, all but Erishani have functioning color veils that extend into the Astral Sea, remnants of magic from eons past when these places were visited on purpose.

Carceri

Hidden in the farthest reaches of the Astral Sea, a deep crimson color veil blinks like a bloodshot eye. The hue is subtly wrong, grating on mortal minds. Most turn away at this point, driven by an instinct they cannot identify but dare not deny. As instincts go, it's a wise one. Going forward into Carceri could be a fatal mistake.

No matter what direction travelers come from, or what means of travel they use, those who penetrate Carceri's veil find themselves beached on a shallow swamp and staring at enormous gates of adamantine set in a seemingly endless wall. No other means of entering or leaving the dominion exists, except for the occasional treacherous portal. These are the gates to Carceri, the prison of the gods.

Carceri is an archipelago of six marshy isles, ranging from miles to leagues across and strewn beneath a starless sky. Prisoners of the deities languish here, including disobedient angels, demons, primordial servants, exalted of rival deities, abominations, and horrors from beyond the known planes. Most of the gods use Carceri to one extent or another. Evils that Pelor or Bahamut could not destroy (or that they seek to study) can be found here, as can Bane's prisoners of war, deathless beings the Raven Queen would not allow to roam free, and even vile souls and devils that have drawn Asmodeus's ire but have no place among the damned. One of the few laws that even the most evil and chaotic deities have little choice but to obey is the Carceri Compact: No deity shall interfere with the prisoners of any other. Ironically, that law is harder on good deities, and on Bahamut in particular, who disagrees with what the evil deities consider justice, than on evil gods, but the Carceri Compact binds all but the four free gods (see the sidebar).

However, there is another reason for Carceri's existence: Not even the deities can always control what they create.

On the isle known as Agathys, several deities assembled early during the Dawn War. Melora and Moradin shaped bodies both organic and mechanical; Ioun and Amoth twisted the stuff of the Astral Sea, so spirits that would have become angels entered those bodies instead; and Tuern and Gruumsh bestowed upon them the unending need to kill. Thus were born the first abominations—living weapons carved from the divine order.

Twisted Agathys birthed one abomination after another. Occasionally, the deities would return to shape the flowing energy and create new and more potent weapons, but for much of the war, they were content to let the process—the new "natural order" of this one astral dominion—run its course.

It wasn't until the war ended that the deities discovered they couldn't change it back. The astral pocket had been twisted too long by energy that had become too powerful to be stopped up. The gods could slow the hideous twisting, which they did, but still more abominations were "born" into the Astral Sea. Bizarrely, the end of the Dawn War seemed to change the rules by which Agathys operated: Abominations that had previously been created by the primordials to slay the deities now spewed from Agathys alongside the deities' original creations.

The deities set about ensuring that these horrors could not escape. Moradin forged the adamantine wall that surrounds Carceri; the other deities joined to weave the divine enchantments that prevent escape. From his lair in the Underdark, even Torog contributed to the magic that turned the pocket into the Red Prison. By confining their most potent enemies inside Carceri, the deities not only removed threats to themselves, but also stemmed the tide of the abominations—for the prisoners within can hope to survive only by banding together to battle those abominations and killing at least a few at a time.

This, then, is the truth behind Carceri—that it is a prison, but that those condemned to rot there do so,

The Dissenting Voice: The Four Free Gods

The deities who joined together to establish Carceri as an eternal prison "signed" what some exalted of the Plane Above refer to as the Carceri Compact. However, there were dissenters. Avandra, Corellon, Melora, and Sehanine acknowledged that they had contributed to the plague of abominations along with the rest of their peers. Nevertheless, they would not help establish an eternal prison. Instead, as outlined in the Arvandor section in Chapter 2, Corellon and Sehanine sacrificed a portion of their realm by opening it to the violent birth and loathsome rampages of the abominations, an act that has been incorporated into Arvandor's lifestyle as the Glorious Hunt.

at least in part, to mitigate the repercussions of one of the deities' earliest mistakes.

The Isles of Carceri

The Red Prison consists of six separate marshy isles. They occasionally shift position, as though they are merely floating on the bottomless swampy waters, rather than anchored. No matter how they shift, the isle of Agathys is always farthest from the adamantine gates.

The sky above Carceri is the dull blue-gray of dusk, without a single star. What light exists shines up from below, filtering through the marshy waters without any obvious source. This illumination is dim at best, with a crimson tint that gives the swamp-waters the look of diluted blood.

Although the general climate of the Red Prison is constant, the islands are substantially different from one another—not merely in environment, but in inhabitation. Carceri serves as a prison for thousands of entities, with the stronger dominating the weaker and even forming personal fiefdoms. Even though there's no formal assignment of specific kinds of creatures to specific isles, prisoners frequently congregate with others of similar ilk. Thus, although any sort of prisoner can be found on any of the islands other than Agathys, each isle tends to hold more of certain creatures.

As a side effect of the strong magic that inhibits the creation of new abominations, no one on Carceri can create new life, breed, or bear offspring. Carceri will never be a full society, since it renews only by having prisoners added as other prisoners die off.

More often than not, the six isles appear in the order given below, from nearest the gate to farthest away. Each entry mentions one or more of the isle's infamous features, though other sites exist.

Orthrys

The bogs of Orthrys tend to be shallow and cold but not nearly as frigid as the other isles. Channels, dug by riverlike currents that run through the marsh, cut into the murky earth beneath the swamps. Swarms of biting, stinging insects infest the isle, and the plants that grow on the rare patches of dry earth tend to be irritating, if not downright poisonous, to visitors.

The Bastion of Lost Hope: This great fortress accounts for the entire quantity of stone to be found on Orthrys. Close examination reveals that it is constructed from the corpses and bones of stone-related elementals and giants and mortared with dried blood and crushed plant life. The Bastion is ruled by King Karsos, a stone titan of nearly deific power. From here, he and a corps of other titans dominate Orthrys, ruling over the various giant and elemental creatures that make up the bulk of the populace.

Cathrys

Cathrys features a vast array of cypress trees, peculiar fronds, and clinging vines; were it not for the ever-present marsh, the isle might seem more jungle than swamp. Some of these growths appear in sporadic copses, while others are thick enough that the canopy blots out the sky.

Despite the chill in the air, the humidity causes newcomers to sweat in misery—not due to heat, but because of a caustic, venomous miasma. The plant life is equally acidic, burning exposed flesh.

The Apothecary of Sin: Constructed of a cunning array of woven wood strips and rope-suspended walkways atop a copse of trees, the Apothecary is home to one of Carceri's strangest prisoners. Called Sinmaker, the creature is an aspect of Graz'zt (Manual of the Planes, page 131). Sinmaker was summoned to battle an exarch of Pelor who managed, using divine magic, to prevent the aspect from discorporating when the battle ended. He remains imprisoned here while the deities try to determine how best to make use of him.

KEREM BEYIT

Sinmaker has remained uninvolved in the struggles for power throughout Carceri. He dwells in his Apothecary, studying the poisons and acidic plants of the isle, brewing horrid concoctions, and selling or trading them to all comers.

The Palace of Branches: Formed from woven branches, trunks, and roots, this small fortress is in one of the isle's thickest copses of trees. Uru Thalz, one of several unique angels vying for dominance over Cathrys, rules here over a band of devils and rebellious angels.

Minethys

This isle consists largely of a deep layer of clinging mud, which pulls at all who pass over it. Entire hills and even cliffs rise and fall, occasionally collapsing into mudslides that fill the swampy basins.

Great winds rage sporadically across Minethys, pulling clumps of mud into the air. On occasion, these clumps dry out as they are flung around, transforming into gritty missiles of dirt that can flay the skin from those unfortunate enough to be caught in their path.

The Tombs of Payratheon: A small city once stood upon the isle of Minethys, hurled there by one of the gods when the populace somehow enraged that deity. Today the city is long buried beneath dozens of feet of clinging mud, but on occasion, the winds and shifting mudslides reveal portions of Payratheon for several hours before the place is once again entombed. The city is home to numerous undead—some recent prisoners, others the city's original inhabitants—that occasionally struggle their way to the surface to prey upon passersby.

Colothys

Like Minethys, Colothys contains substantial rises, hills, valleys, and even the occasional small mountain, but the terrain here is more traditional swampland and bog. In many reaches of Colothys, the plants—from fronds to branches and vines to flowers—are animate and predatory, grabbing and devouring those who draw near. Some have theorized that these plants represent a single enormous organism that spreads across the bulk of the isle.

The Garden of Malice: The central wood of the isle's deadly foliage resembles a corrupted Feywild grove. The Court of Blood—one of several factions of fey and mortal souls that vie for control of Colothys—frequently gathers within.

Porphatys

One of the coldest isles, Porphatys is dominated by swamps that are fed by thick flurries of black, caustic snow. Although Porphatys closely resembles the swampy reaches of the other islands, a few large portions amid the shallower bogs are so deep that they are practically lakes, or even tiny inland seas.

The acidic snowfall invariably wears down immobile structures. Thus, many of the isle's prisoners dwell on large rafts and barges, slowly poling their way through the marshy reaches and taking shelter against the most severe of the snowfalls.

The Deep Flotilla: A gathering of a dozen long barges and rafts sails on Porphatys's lakes and deepest swamps. Although the flotilla appears to be made of individual vessels, each craft is linked below the waterline by a network of mostly watertight passageways. One of the many demonic packs that ravage the isle occupies the flotilla. The leader of this pack is Rienkov, a shadow demon (Manual of the Planes, page 122). How a being of Rienkov's (presumed) modest power has managed to dominate a pack of more formidable demons is a mystery.

Agathys

Far beyond the other isles lies Agathys, which is the reason for the Red Prison's existence. Vast arrays of the dominion's guards stand here, preventing anyone from approaching. The isle stands high above the others, atop a rocky shore. Its lands are presumably as cold and swampy as those of the other isles, but none can say for certain.

It is here that the stuff of the Astral Sea is warped and twisted, slowly but steadily giving birth to more abominations. Some remain imprisoned on the isle, others die in battle with Agathys's guards, and still more spread out into Carceri, where they compete with the other prisoners. No matter what becomes of its output, the flow of abominations never stops.

Divine Jailors

Not all of Carceri's inhabitants are prisoners. The deities placed a substantial number of guards throughout the dominion (and even put a few "undercover," posing as prisoners). These guards come from a variety of races, just like the prisoners, but the most common are angels, maruts, and devils (Asmodeus has a stake in Carceri too, after all). As an unintended side effect of the jailors' mission, they frequently turn toward the worship of Torog, not as a matter of choice but as a consequence of the changes wrought upon them by their work.

Adventures

The Red Prison is the perfect location for "prison-break" tales writ large. Epic tier characters might seek to break out one of Carceri's prisoners, whether it's an ally, someone they've been hired to free, or someone that has knowledge they require.

Alternatively, one or more of the characters might be sentenced to Carceri. By the time they reach the epic tier, the characters might have irritated one or more deities, and since no other deity will help them escape, they must find a means of doing so themselves—preferably without freeing the other prisoners, who deserve to be there, in the process.

However, Carceri isn't limited to prison-oriented plotlines. The characters might hope to discover some of the dominion's secrets, such as by exploring the hidden reaches of Payratheon or even studying the nature of the abominations' "cradle" on Agathys.

Regardless of what plots you design, one of Carceri's greatest advantages is that it can be home to literally any powerful villains or monsters that you choose.

Environmental Features

Carceri's islands have similar environments, reflected in the fact that the terrain limitations described below are constant and universal. You can ensure that each isle also has a slightly different flavor by selectively using the fantastic terrain and natural terrain features.

Terrain Limitations

Certain terrain limitations exist within the dominion of Carceri, no matter the location.

Flight: Divine magic prevents creatures within Carceri—except for guards posted by the deities—from flying higher than 6 squares.

Portals: Several portals throughout the cosmos send creatures to Carceri, but none are known that provide an exit.

Scrying: Creatures within Carceri can be observed by magic used outside the dominion, though only divine power can see into Agathys. Scrying magic used within the dominion, whether to see something inside Carceri or outside it, automatically fails.

Teleportation: Teleportation effects are limited to the isle on which they originate. Thus, creatures within Carceri can teleport to other locations on the isle they occupy, but not to other isles or beyond the dominion.

Fantastic Terrain

These terrain features can be added to encounters in Carceri to make them more challenging.

Grasping Vines: Vines, roots, and other vegetation that has become infused with aberrant energies emanating from Agathys can entangle those that come near.

Effect: When a creature starts its turn in or adjacent to a square of grasping vines, it must make a saving throw. If the creature saves, it's slowed until the start of its next turn; otherwise, it's restrained until the start of its next turn.

Usage: Creatures familiar with the local landscape might use grasping vines as part of a trap for unwary visitors, focusing their attention subsequently on the ones who remain unrestrained.

Insect Swarm: Swarms of biting, sucking insects are found throughout the area, looking for their next source of food. Fresh blood often draws them.

Effect: When a living creature starts its turn within an insect swarm, it takes 5 damage per tier and grants combat advantage until the start of its next turn. Creatures immune to this damage (considered melee damage) do not grant combat advantage.

Usage: An insect swarm can serve either as a form of controller in combat (used purposely by the characters' enemies), or as an unpredictable element in an encounter that changes all the combatants' tactics. Introduce one or more swarms a few rounds after the start of a fight and have them move to the nearest creature each round.

Natural Terrain

These terrain features can be found on any of Carceri's islands.

Cold: Carceri ranges from cold to frigid cold (Dungeon Master's Guide, page 159); a few regions even cross over into primordial cold or frigid primordial cold (The Plane Below, page 12).

Mud: Shallow mud is difficult terrain. Moving through deep mud requires a hard DC Athletics check to "swim." Deep mud is considered difficult terrain for swimmers, and the DC for Endurance checks for submerged creatures to avoid drowning increases by 4. A creature that leaves the mud is slowed by the clinging sludge (save ends).

In addition, a creature caught in a mudslide is pushed 2d8 squares and submerged as though in deep mud.

Precipitation, Acid: Much of Carceri's precipitation is normal, but on some isles, the snows and rains are acidic. Any creature exposed to acid precipitation takes 1d6 acid damage per tier for each round of exposure.

Swamp Water: Carceri's waters are cold and filthy, but not necessarily harmful. Because the water is dirty, the range of light sources underwater is reduced by 2 squares.

Some deeper bogs have flowing currents, ranging from a strength of 1 to 4 (Dungeon Master's Guide, page 45).

Water, Acidic: As swamp water (above), but any creature that ends its turn in the water takes ongoing 5 acid damage (save ends). A bloodied creature that fails a saving throw against this ongoing acid damage is blinded until the end of its next turn.

Water, Freezing: As swamp water (above), but any creature that starts its turn in freezing water takes 1d6 cold damage, and the Endurance DC to avoid losing healing surges from suffocation increases by 2.

Erishani

A veil of mist floats atop the silver waters of the Astral Sea, parting at length to reveal a blue-gray landscape broken by withered rock and gnarled gray trees that clutch the stones tightly. There is no sun or moon; rather, the light of the realm comes from a towering golden statue in the center of the island. The humanoid shape is locked in a half-kneeling posture: It appears to be poised to move forward, extending a hand in front of itself. However, the hand is not out in a shielding gesture. It seems as if the figure is about to attack, but it has not moved in thousands of years.

This is the realm of the golden monolith—a broken, unstable graveyard realm roughly one hundred miles in diameter that surrounds a petrified primordial. If the deities know who this great entity was, they aren't saying. Erishani is the name of the only angel known to have fought in the battle that shattered this realm, and she is long gone. Legends say that Erishani was responsible for petrifying the golden primordial, but that claim is by no means certain.

Major Areas

Erishani was the dominion of a deity who perished in the Dawn War and has been forgotten since. It once held cities, but most were wiped away when the primordials invaded the realm during the War. The broken husks and withered remains of what must once have been fearsome war machines and siege engines used in the Dawn War are scattered everywhere in Erishani, bearing moldering testament to the fury of the battle that transpired there.

New inhabitants have moved into the dominion since that time, however, thanks to the fact that the domain's elemental energy makes it comfortable for outsiders and other mortals.

A few of the dominion's better-known sites are described below.

Chaos Bog

Radiating around the sunken knee of the Golden Monolith is a stretch of Erishani that's clearly under enormous elemental pressure. It is a treacherous bog made up of disparate elements: a soup of scalding mud, partly submerged pieces of molten rock that give rise to clouds of acidic mist, and jets of air so cold as to freeze intruders in their tracks. The land is unstable and can be shaped by a powerful will (see "Environmental Features," page 109).

Creatures commonly associated with the Elemental Chaos are plentiful here, rising from the murk as though spontaneously generated. Perhaps there are portals to the Plane Below at the bottom of the bog, and creatures swim up through the morass with no idea that they are about to emerge beneath the monolith.

The Golden Monolith

The petrified primordial waits, eternally silent, poised on one knee, its other leg half submerged in the ground, and its arm raised to unleash a destructive blast. Its elemental nature infuses the shattered dominion. No deities have been able to bend the land to their will and claim the territory for themselves. Even Erathis's project to reclaim the Lattice of Heaven regards the Golden Monolith as a problem to address in the far future.

If the gods couldn't do it, it's no surprise that mortal magic has failed to touch the statue. There is clearly energy of unknown origin circulating inside the monolith. The truly daring find it warm to the touch. The creature is not dead—just slumbering until some conjunction of events unleashes it once more.

The monolith is big enough—over 170 feet tall—to be seen from every corner of the dominion. Even though it does not move its head and its eyes are blank orbs, those who walk upon Erishani or fly around its perimeter have the unsettling feeling that the monolith seems to be watching them.

Rhym Katal

Rhym Katal is a rarity; it's a pirate haven that aims to stay well clear of githyanki tribute or githyanki enforcement. Hidden within a cove secluded by high rocks somewhere along the edge or the bottom of Erishani, Rhym Katal is populated by the crew and hangers-on of between six and twenty-four ships of all sizes and quality. The current pirate queen of the haven, an eladrin with the uncommonly short name of Mal, has enslaved a few of the demons that slithered out of the Chaos Bog and enlisted some other creatures in her service. So far, the pirates seem safe from outside forces. Perhaps they chose their hiding place well. Or perhaps the githyanki of Tu'narath and the deities of the dominions prefer not to send powerful forces into the area around the Golden Monolith, avoiding the risk of an inadvertent triggering event.

Hovel and Twisp

No one knows how this collection of huts, shanties, and tents with rain-collecting, cup-shaped roofs got the whimsical part of its name, though the first part is clear enough. Perhaps the inhabitants want to be thought of as innocuous. Given that they are mainly the descendants of mortal primordial cultists who hoped to reawaken the monolith, their desire to keep a low profile is understandable. The pirates of Rhym Katal mostly leave them alone, though it's not clear whether that's because Hovel and Twisp's inhabitants are too poor to provide good sport or because the descendants of the cultists have magical power to adequately defend themselves.

Adventure Hooks

The Golden Monolith holds a number of adventure threads of its own. For a connected set of two encounters, see the following page.

Abyssal Portal: The Chaos Bog could be a gateway for powerful demons from the Abyss, using this dominion's remoteness as cover and the humble inhabitants of Hovel and Twisp as agents or fodder.

Pirate Haven: Rhym Katal has the advantage of owing allegiance only to itself. Characters who want to sample the pirate's life could do worse than to crack a few skulls, beat down or ally with Mal, and buckle swashes.

Elder Magic: The real prize of Erishani might be only indirectly connected to the Golden Monolith—it could be the knowledge of the magic that could freeze a primordial for eons. A mission to the bottom of the Chaos Bog might uncover the secrets of the arcane or divine magic that accomplished the deed.

Environmental Features

Like all shattered dominions, Erishani is prone to all sorts of planar hazards and fantastic terrain (Manual of the Planes, page 21). Abyssal wellsprings and elemental seepage are common, as are burning vapors, vacuum rifts, demonic slime, and entropic fissures. In addition, because of the primordial elemental energy flowing through it, the landscape of Erishani is not as fixed as that of other astral dominions.

Chaos Spots

Certain locations in the dominion are in constant (if sluggish) flux, especially the Chaos Bog and isolated "chaos spots" elsewhere in the dominion.

Effect: While in a chaos spot, a creature can attempt to stabilize or alter the area as though it were unstable (Manual of the Planes, page 10), albeit with more difficulty (increase all DCs by 5).

Usage: Put a chaos spot in an encounter to add an extra layer of depth to combat, as each side tries to turn the environment into terrain that suits its needs.

Encounter Groups

Erishani is home to a mixture of elemental and astral creatures. Meanwhile, the pirates of Rhym Katal circle as they like, sometimes dodging away to avoid the notice of roving githyanki pirates.

Level 14 Encounter (XP 5,800)
- 2 chasmes (level 14 skirmisher, Manual of the Planes 121)
- 1 githyanki mindslicer (level 13 artillery, MM 128)
- 2 githyanki warriors (level 12 soldier, MM 128)
- 2 nightmares (level 13 skirmisher, MM 196)

Level 17 Encounter (XP 8,200)
- 1 air archon zephyrhaunt (level 16 lurker, Manual of the Planes 114)
- 2 azer ragers (level 15 brute, MM 22)
- 1 azer taskmaster (level 17 controller, MM 23)
- 1 ice archon hailscourge (level 16 artillery, MM 20)
- 1 demonic slime hazard (level 16 obstacle, Manual of the Planes 23)

Level 21 Encounter (XP 19,500)
- 2 angels of vengeance (level 19 elite brute, MM 17)
- 1 entropic fissure hazard (level 22 lurker, Manual of the Planes 24)
- 2 marut blademasters (level 21 soldier, MM 185)
- 1 marut concordant (level 22 elite controller, MM 185)

Adventure: The Monolith Stirs

The Golden Monolith of Erishani has spent untold ages marking the spot where the primordials and the gods clashed—never stirring . . . until now.

Encounter 1: The Hand of the Monolith

Encounter Level 27 (55,150 XP)

Setup

1 glabrezu (G)
2 dread wraiths (W)
3 lich vestiges (L)
2 mariliths (M)
Illyram Brackz (E)

Illyram Brackz, an eladrin lich, is seeking to gain control over the Golden Monolith in a particular way: by making it his new phylactery. Mortal magic alone is not enough, and for this reason he has bound several powerful demons to his will and harvested their magic to attune his spells to the trapped primordial's magic with the hope that he can initiate an exchange of energy and eventual control. His goal might seem ridiculous were it not for his demonstrable results—last week Illyram caused the Golden Monolith to raise its outstretched arm a few feet.

With the monolith as his phylactery, Illyram would become virtually unkillable, since destroying him would entail destroying the Golden Monolith, which seems impossible. Also, if Illyram found a way to control the primordial, he could become a major danger to the dominions of the deities.

The characters have to fight through the demons and a trio of lich vestiges to attack Illyram, who is currently enacting his ritual on top of the primordial's outstretched hand. Two insubstantial dread wraiths are hidden inside the golden arm and cannot be detected by any normal means.

As the characters arrive on top of the hand, read:

On the back of the great statue's hand stands an eladrin wizard. A circle of burning runes revolves around him, as do three shadowy, wraithlike duplicate images of him. You can see demonic forms writhing in agony in the cloud of magic, as the lich drains their essence to power his ritual.

The lich and his vestiges are not alone. At his side stands a hulking hyena-faced demon with giant pincers and two six-armed creatures that are half snakes, half eerily beautiful female humans. Their eyes are blank and vacant—clearly, they are being magically controlled.

"More sources," croaks the wizard in a voice from beyond the grave. He smiles cruelly as he points at you. "Bring their corpses to me!"

Tactics

The glabrezu takes advantage of its fly speed to land among the characters, where it can best provide flanking for the mariliths. Those demons charge straight in to engage opposing defenders. The dread wraiths are poised inside the golden arm, waiting 1 round until the melee warriors rush forward, so they can fall upon lingering spellcasters and ranged combatants. The lich vestiges unleash shadow rays at the characters, waiting to hurl their orb of obliteration until one of the demons is bloodied or until one of the characters breaks through the demons. Illyram takes no part in this fight, since he is working on his ritual (see "Development").

Development

Dealing damage to Illyram is the key to victory in this encounter. While he performs his ritual, Illyram is immune to all effects other than damage. If he becomes bloodied, the ritual is disrupted. At this point, Illyram shrieks in rage and teleports to the monolith's head as a free action. If this occurs, the demons break free of his control and turn their

Falling: The arm of the Golden Monolith is a treacherous place to be. A creature that falls from the arm takes 12d10 falling damage from hitting the ground below and must climb up 120 feet (Athletics DC 26) to rejoin the fight. (A character might instead teleport or fly, which negates the need for the Athletics check.)

ENCOUNTER 2: THE HEAD OF THE MONOLITH

Encounter Level 27 (59,100 XP)

Setup

Illyram Brackz (E)
1 sorrowsworn soulripper (S)
2 sorrowsworn reapers (R)
1 thunderblast cyclone (T)

Illyram has fled to the head of the Golden Monolith, where he intends to complete his ritual. He has healed back to full hit points and invoked dark pacts with the creatures of the Shadowfell that granted him undeath in the first place, summoning them to aid him against the characters. When the characters arrive, they see Illyram and a thunderblast cyclone elemental, which swirls like a cloud around him. Two sorrowsworn reapers are clinging to the sides of the monolith's head, and a soulripper hides within a shallow depression that is covered by magical shadows (DC 40 Perception check to notice).

When the characters arrive at the head of the monolith, read:

The lich stands at the crown of the primordial's head, waiting for your arrival. A black cloud crackling with lightning swirls around the undead spellcaster, punctuated in its center with two gleaming red eyes. The area around the lich is dim and shadowy, as if the light is repelled by its presence.

"You have frustrated my efforts for the last time, fools," the lich says. "Now you will suffer what your idiocy has wrought!"

At his words, the great golden statue beneath your feet starts—horrifyingly—to move.

Tactics

In the first few rounds, the characters could pay a steep price if they try to charge Illyram, because the elemental is protecting him with its reach (as is the soulripper, with its adept positioning). If no one charges, the soulripper remains in hiding until the right moment; if it beats the characters in initiative, it readies an action to use flutter and strike against the first character to attack Illyram, then uses sorrow's rush to move into and through the main combat.

The limited size of the area can make it hard for the characters to break away from their attackers, and the sorrowsworn reapers take advantage of this. The thunderblast cyclone uses burst attacks to strike characters who bunch up, though it has been commanded by Illyram not to strike the sorrowsworn with its attacks unless that's unavoidable.

If Illyram is slain before his elemental is, the creature goes into a destructive rage and makes no further attempts to avoid the sorrowsworn with its attacks.

Features of the Area

After Illyram reaches the head, the Golden Monolith begins a random pattern of activity, alternating between rumbling and shaking, for as long as Illyram lives. Each time the monolith changes from rumbling to shaking, it fires a bolt of energy from its massive upraised hand—not at the characters, but out into the Astral Sea.

The monolith's head is 170 feet above the ground.

Monolith Rumbling: The Golden Monolith's elemental energy has been partially awakened by Illyram's magic, and the primordial's body is now rumbling (pitching and rocking). While it is rumbling, any creature that is struck by a critical hit or bloodied by an attack must make a DC 26 Acrobatics check or fall prone.

After 1d4 rounds of rumbling, the monolith erupts at the end of the round and then begins shaking during the next round.

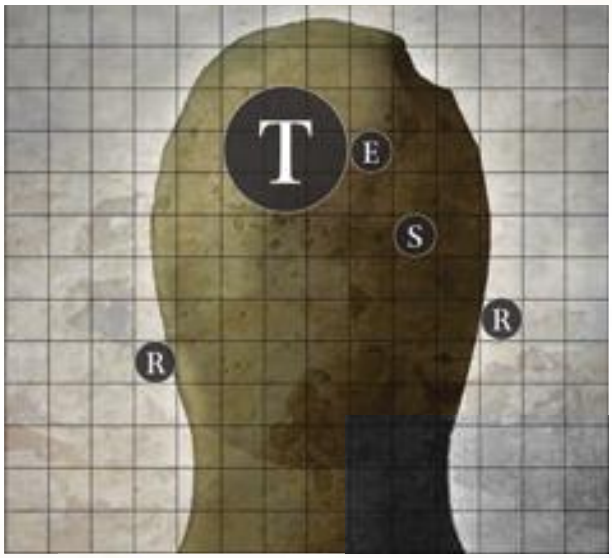
Monolith Erupting: When the Golden Monolith erupts, it fires from its hand a burst of golden energy, which speeds off into the Astral Sea. A few rounds later, the characters see a fiery golden cloud pluming into the sky from a distant explosion.

What is destroyed by the monolith's first blast is up to you to determine. The event could be beneficial to the characters, or not. If the characters don't stop Illyram and his ritual before the monolith repeats the cycle, the monolith shifts its arm position and fires again. Whatever the monolith destroys with its next shot should definitely have a negative effect on the characters, as should any further shots fired.

After erupting, the monolith begins shaking.

Monolith Shaking: The monolith notices the presence of creatures on its head and spends 1 round trying to shake them off. Each creature on it must spend a move action or make a DC 31 Acrobatics check to cling to the monolith's surface; failure means the creature is hurled from the head 50 feet in a random direction. Unconscious or otherwise helpless creatures are thrown automatically, unless an adjacent creature spends a move action to hold the creature down (in addition to maintaining its own position on the head). Thrown creatures take 17d10 falling damage, and ascending the monolith from the ground back to its head (170 feet) requires a DC 31 Athletics check.

After shaking, the monolith starts the cycle over and begins rumbling again.



Glimpsed through the pale gray of its surrounding color veil, Kalandurren's waterfalls and peaks show little sign that the dominion's deity is dead—Amoth (Manual of the Planes, page 96), the former master of this realm, was slain centuries ago in a battle against the demon princes Orcus, Demogorgon, and Rimmon. Once a traveler pierces the veil, the truth becomes apparent. A forbidding black island floats on a dead-gray sea that flows endlessly toward the observer, falling off the edge of the dominion in an endless waterfall. Overlapping stepped plateaus, each ringed with waterfalls, rise toward two immense mountains that jut into the sky like pillars. Formerly, a miniature sun and moon capped the mountains, and the dominion knew both day and night. The orbs are dark now, snow falls from a perpetually steel-gray sky, and the wind blasting down from the steppes carries the hunting cries of demons.

Inhabitants and Culture

The demons that slew Amoth are gone, but lesser demons roam the land at will, challenged only by the Doomguard, a magically potent army of nihilists that share the demons' taste for chaos. The demons and the Doomguard fight an ongoing low-intensity war over the battered ruins of the realm, but the conflict has one bizarre zone of truce. What was originally a temple to the ideals of law inside the ruin of Amoth's palace has been turned into a gladiatorial arena where demons, Doomguard, and all other visitors are compelled to sit side by side as spectators, focusing all their attention on the bloodshed in the arena. Adventurers can visit this area safely, provided they have the strength and speed to get to it and get away.

Major Areas

Kalandurren used to be filled with fortified castles and homes of the exalted and angels of Amoth. The ruins of those structures are everywhere, and they haven't necessarily been picked clean, since demons or Doomguard cut short outsiders' foraging attempts. Two of the dominion's most well-known locations are described below.

God's Dice Arena

In Exalhus, the city at the heart of Kalandurren, there once stood a golden temple dedicated to law and justice, gleaming in the light of the sun atop the mountains. Its light went out when Amoth was slain. The site languished for centuries, untouched by the demons, until the Doomguard burned and razed it.

As soon as the fires started to lick the temple walls, however, a strange energy flowed from the ruins, filling the surrounding Doomguard with hope, certainty, honor, and—above all—a sense of purpose.

That feeling was abhorrent to the nihilists, and many of those that felt the first stirrings of Amoth's sleeping power went mad on the spot. Those that survived found themselves intrigued by the traces of law and goodness that surrounded the temple. They discovered that by exposing themselves to the positive feelings for a short time, it made the excitement of committing destructive acts more intense.

Becoming addicted to the sinful rush of the vestiges of lawful thought, the Doomguard built their fortress in the ruins of Exalhus. The temple had contained an arenalike amphitheater for settling trials by combat. When they cleared the arena, the Doomguard discovered that not all of its magic had been destroyed—the wards that prevented spectators from fighting one another were still intact. In this environment, the Doomguard could lounge for a few minutes or hours in peace, without worrying about each other's plotting—as long as a gladiator was shedding blood and smashing bones in the arena below them.

Fights in the arena are most entertaining when one or more of the combatants have lawful demeanors. Lawful combatants feel compelled to fight to the death, a situation the Doomguard find delicious, particularly when such captives are pitted against their own allies. Player character combatants might be able to shake off the compulsion, but lesser warriors have no chance.

When the demons came to understand what was occurring in the arena, many of them found ways to sneak or teleport into the stands. Once in the stands, the demons are equally helpless against the arena's immense antiviolence auras. Over the decades, the Doomguard and the demons have come to an understanding for sharing spectatorship in the arena, although they frequently fight each other on its bloody sands. They also compete to see who can bring in the best gladiator slaves and most entertaining victims.

The arena is an amphitheater set around a semicircular pit with a 60-foot radius. Below the sands dyed red with blood lie the remains of Amoth's high altar, which is the focal point of Kalandurren's law-aligned energy.

Group combats (with equal numbers of foes on both sides) are as common as individual duels, and the outcome of a duel—death or mercy—is determined by a pair of six-sided bone dice carried by High Lord Nariche, the current leader of the Doomguard. Enterprising and semisuicidal gamblers from across the worlds venture into God's Dice Arena. Gambling with demons and Doomguard on the outcome of a fight, or whether the throw of the dice will dispense death or mercy, provides some visitors with a rush that can't be matched.

There is an element of danger for the audience, however. If at the end of the match Nariche rolls a total of seven on the God's Dice, as they're known, the victorious gladiator has won the right to challenge anyone in the amphitheater to an immediate death match in the arena.

The winner is entitled to all that belonged to the loser (including freedom, equipment, coin, and slaves), and the loser is made a slave, if he or she survives. Any spectator can be challenged in this way, strong or weak, and this fact is not always made clear to new visitors.

Involving the Characters

Characters of all levels can be drawn into battles in God's Dice Arena, whether as rebellious gladiators or challenged spectators when Nariche rolls a 7.

Ironically, the arena represents one of the most promising ways to survive in Kalandurren—provided the combatant can keep winning battles. It is also a way to win an audience with Nariche, who always attends (and can be challenged just as anyone else can be).

The Doomguard favors creatures infused with lawful tendencies or divine energy for the arena, such as devils, maruts, and even angels, but characters could encounter virtually any creature from the Astral Sea on the bloody sands.

Rimmon's Cairn

Before he was struck down, Amoth slew Rimmon. The demon prince's body is entombed in a magically warded cairn in the shadow of one of the dominion's great mountains. Despite Kalandurren's population of insane nihilists and demons, no one has succeeded in penetrating the cairn.

Environmental Features

One feature common to Kalandurren is areas of land that have been imprinted by violence.

Soulshocked Ground

Scattered patches of the arena floor, and some areas of Kalandurren's ruins, have become soulshocked ground.

Effect: When a creature leaves a square of soulshocked ground, it grants combat advantage until it reenters the square. Once a creature is affected by a square of soulshocked ground, it is immune to further instances of the effect from that square until the end of the encounter. Soulshocked squares cannot be recognized until the effect occurs.

Usage: This effect keeps the arena fights bloody, and both demons and the Doomguard know how to take advantage of soulshocked ground; they will occupy the soulshocked square, keeping their enemy granting combat advantage.

Encounter Groups

A war-torn place unclaimed by any deity, Kalandurren is full of dangers. Roving bands of Doomguard and demons are common, and characters can encounter any of the monsters presented in this book or Manual of the Planes, particularly in God's Dice Arena.

Dark tunnels weave together for hundreds of miles before opening onto caverns filled with terrors out of nightmares. The cold inhabits tunnels and caves alike, until sudden cruel warmth heralds the arrival of an abomination that melts flesh and bone.

But before all else is the ever-present wind, a harsh, scouring, maddening force that reduces mortals to gibbering ruin . . . and eventually to bone and ash.

This is Pandemonium, a vast, twisted shell of a ruined world that somehow attracts more than its share of mortal exiles and misplaced outsiders.

Some say that the tunnels are the veins of Tharizdun, and the stone his flesh—but if this is so, then they are the cast-off shell of a deity long since departed from the dominion he created, and the wind is his parting breath, infused with the madness of the Far Realm.

Pandemonium is not a place anyone wants to visit for an extended period, but the promise of ancient treasures hidden in its catacombs draws adventurers.

Inhabitants and Culture

Many souls of the deceased arrive in Pandemonium rather than in their deity's dominion. The outsiders who end up in this awful place are known as the banished. If they can escape from Pandemonium's darkness, they never come back.

Pandemonium has no central authority—no god-king passes down commandments from a throne of any sort—and so the folk of this dark place subsist wholly on their own. They live a skulking existence, roving from place to place for food or clean water, fighting those creatures that can be fought, and hiding from those more powerful. It's not unheard of for visitors to venture into Pandemonium, searching for treasure; a few of them even find their way back out again. Those too maddened to escape settle in the dominion, selling what trinkets or equipment they find on their journeys to those who come later.

Visitors to the dominion might feel as though they have entered a sprawling mental asylum without doors. Since madness takes many forms, the folk of Pandemonium vary widely in their behavior—some are violent, some are evasive and sneaky, and others are dull and vacant. Not one of them ever truly becomes accustomed to Pandemonium's gales, and every day is its own small torment. Whatever their standard behavior, however, the inhabitants of Pandemonium tend toward wild extremes: the angry ones attack anyone who looks at them the wrong way, the compulsive liars cannot tell the truth even if they want to, and those battered to catatonia by the winds stagger about the streets like zombies. Some of the sane folk seem the craziest, raging against fate and desperately searching for a way out.

The Doomguard maintains a presence in this forlorn place; their philosophy of entropy and (particularly) fatalism actually makes sense in Pandemonium. The Doomguard actively promote banished outsiders that prove their skill in battle and devotion to the cause, offering them passage to Kalandurren. Kalandurren might not be a better home, particularly not for those recruited to fight in God's Dice Arena. But to someone seeking escape from the winds of Pandemonium, any refuge will do.

Pandemonium is home to a number of monstrous cults, particularly in the unmappable Agathion caverns. An abomination called a malediction (page 131) prefers this dominion to all other homes. The Dying Scream, a cult of intangible undead creatures (such as ghosts and wraiths) that can slip in and out of their cavern sanctuaries, worships maledictions as the cast-off detritus of long-dead deities. The cultists love to sacrifice intelligent creatures to their ever-screaming masters. Immortal berbalangs and vampire lords maintain shrines in this dominion as well, their minds shattered by long years of constant wind.

Major Areas

Some folk of Pandemonium band together for mutual protection, but these rare enclaves are prone to threats from roving beasts and infighting caused by the madness brought on by the winds, so they are quickly swept away. A few exceptions exist, but even these balance on the edge between ruination from within and without. Described below are three that have lasted longer than most.

Keener's Wall

Perhaps the most civilized place in Pandemonium (considering what passes for civility in the Howling Depths), this century-old, high-walled settlement stands in a deep cavern at the edge of the frosty expanse known as Wintervault (Manual of the Planes, page 107). Enjoying an uneasy peace based on trade with the nearby frost giants of the lower catacombs, folk here live relatively normal lives (albeit with frequent outbursts of mad gibbering or random violence, just to pass the time). More than half the populace is functional but insane from the constant winds and occasional blizzards.

Civic life centers on the increasingly weathered temple of Erathis, whose missionaries established the city in their deity's name. Keener's Wall largely failed as a settlement and religious center, but over time, it collected a fair number of curious (and less than sane) folk.

Keener's Wall makes a good safe house for adventurers hunting for Pandemonium's fabled treasures. Rooms are available at the red-carpeted Broken Jaw Inn (because patrons frequently attack each other, the color of the carpets conceals any bloodshed). Sanity is suspect in Keener's Wall, so visitors would be well served to feign mental illness of some sort—an illness that might become permanent if they stay too long in the Howling Depths.

Secret adherents of the Bleak Cabal from the stronghold of Madhouse (Manual of the Planes, page 107) watch for new arrivals, especially those that have magical secrets that might further the cabal's cause.

Myriad of Gales

Formed by a minstrel planeswalker named Catalan the Mad, the Myriad of Gales college accepts those bards brave enough to travel to Pandemonium in search of the music of madness. Students expose themselves to the winds for hours on end, seeking inspiration. The college has gained a reputation in the dominion as a place of refuge for those unfortunate souls trapped unawares in the worst gales, but the bards of Myriad of Gales are more interested in gleaning the musical secrets from a guest's mind than saving his or her sanity. Adventurers trapped here become prisoners of a sort, purposefully exposed to the winds so that the bards can listen to their screams and find inspiration.

The mad bards have much in common with the Bleak Cabal, which has spurred constant competition between the groups, who would eliminate each other if they could.

Vecna's Tower

Rumors, divinations, and mysterious disappearances lead to agreement on one point—Vecna, the god of secrets, maintains a stronghold somewhere in the depths of Pandemonium. Some say that Vecna's Tower functions as the deity's dominion. Others say that it is merely a great black tower full of undead, and the winged beings riding the winds of the tunnels are only phantoms and shadows, not angels enforcing their master's secrecy.

Adventure Hooks

Adventurers are never without foes in the swirling depths of Pandemonium. Though characters of any level find challenges aplenty, because Pandemonium is a dangerous realm (especially for heroic tier characters) and devoid of central authority (no deities for epic tier characters to defy or devil princes for them to face), it makes an excellent battleground for paragon tier characters and a good transitional area for characters of all levels. Here are three adventure ideas, one at each tier, for those visiting Pandemonium.

Heroic Tier: To the Rescue

The ramshackle town of Keener's Wall is constantly under threat from roving bands of gibbering humanoids or monsters twisted by the winds. Adventurers can quickly build a name for themselves by shielding these folk from the dangers of the realm. The folk of Pandemonium cannot pay much, but they are grateful and pleased to be aided without the expectation of a return. In addition, they might receive hints and rumors of great treasure awaiting them in the caverns and tunnels beyond Keener's Wall.

Paragon Tier: Exploration

Many would pay well to have someone map Pandemonium's seemingly infinite depths and chart all its numerous portals. A number of explorers have tried and failed to do so, but the rewards and recognition would be great indeed for someone who could succeed. In addition, Pandemonium's status as a shattered domain might attract interested deities that seek to conquer it or merge it with their own dominions. Tharzidun left his mark on the realm, and his cultists believe he will return one day. If he never returns to reclaim the portion of the dominion that was once his, it won't be for lack of cultists' screaming sacrifices deep in the tunnels of wind.

Epic Tier: Into the Depths

Rumors say that powerful magic and great rewards lie in wait deep in the recesses of the dominion, guarded by increasingly powerful, insane horrors. Not only might the characters uncover the riches of ages past, from as far back as the Dawn War, they also might recover the lost equipment of the adventurers that have fallen before them, making the variety of loot recovered vast in scope. The Bleak Cabal also takes interest in adventurers of this level, sending agents to recruit or slay them as needed.

Environmental Features

Pandemonium is a harsh, brutal environment, made worse by the infamous and destructive maddening wind and mindscouring gusts that frequently occur.

Maddening Wind

Pandemonium is filled at all times with a howling wind that rushes through its twisting tunnels. Some believe that the wind is the last breath of the deities slain here, while others believe it is a curse laid upon the dominion by a great primordial of wind and thunder. Regardless, the wind wears at the minds and souls of those caught in it. Even those who have escaped the dominion say they can still hear echoes of the wailing howl.

Treat the maddening wind as an environmental danger (Dungeon Master's Guide, page 158) requiring a DC 20 Endurance check. Any creature that has lost a healing surge to the maddening wind takes a –2 penalty to Will and to Intelligence-, Wisdom-, and Charisma-based skill checks until it takes an extended rest.

Unpredictable Climate

The winds of Pandemonium can change radically in terms of temperature and pressure, varying the ambient conditions from arctic to tropical heat at a moment's notice. Characters prepared for one climate might suddenly be exposed to another.

Mindscouring Gust

Sometimes the wind builds quickly, becoming a deadly force in itself, often in the middle of an encounter.

Mindscouring Gust Level 13 Lurker
Hazard XP 800

The winds build to a fever pitch, enough to tear flesh from bones and shatter minds.

Hazard: Raging winds build from an origin square and make a close blast 4 attack each round for 2d4 rounds.

Perception

Characters can't use Perception to detect this hazard.

Additional Skills: Nature

DC 23: The character realizes that the wind is building in a particular square and from which direction it will attack.

Initiative +10

Attack ✦ Psychic

Standard Action Close blast 4

Target: Each creature in blast

Attack: +16 vs. Will

Hit: 2d8 + 5 psychic damage, and the target is dazed until the end of its next turn.

Miss: Half damage.

Countermeasures

✦ A character who spends a minor action to protect his or her ears against the wind gains a +2 bonus to all defenses against this hazard and a –2 penalty to Perception checks.

✦ A character who is prone or has cover takes half damage from this hazard.

Upgrade to Elite (1,600 XP)

Increase the range to close blast 6.

Increase the DC for Nature checks by 2.

Encounter Groups

Because Pandemonium is home to all sorts of creatures tormented to insanity, encounters in the dominion can vary widely. Remember that creatures encountered in Pandemonium are just as susceptible to the maddening winds as characters are, and most have already been driven mad by exposure.

Level 6 Encounter (XP 1,400)

- 1 Bleak Cabal cultist (human mage advanced to level 4 elite artillery, MM 163)
- 2 carnage demons (level 6 brute, MM 54)
- 1 mad wraith (level 6 controller, MM 266)
- 1 tiefling darkblade (level 7 lurker, MM 250)

Level 12 Encounter (XP 3,500)

- 1 balhannoth (level 13 elite lurker, MM 24)
- 1 spirit devourer (level 11 elite soldier, MM 68)
- 1 viscera devourer (level 12 controller, MM 68)

Level 18 Encounter (XP 11,600)

- 2 bodak reavers (level 18 soldier, MM 36)
- 1 nabassu gargoyle (level 18 lurker, MM 115)
- 1 nightwalker (level 20 elite brute, MM, 197)

Level 24 Encounter (XP 31,200)

- 1 dread wraith (level 25 lurker, MM 267)
- 1 earthwind ravager (level 23 controller, MM 104)
- 2 rakshasa dread knights (level 24 soldier, MM 218)
- 1 sorrowsworn soulripper (level 25 skirmisher, MM, page 242)

SHOM

Behind a brilliant blue veil, a shimmering white wasteland extends for more than seven hundred miles, broken here and there by ruined cities, mesas of orange rock, and scattered oases. This is the white desert of Shom, a dominion that lost its deity in the battles of the Dawn War. Memories of the deity, known as the God of the Word, are hazy. One day Shom will have a new deity, if Erathis gets her way.

When the God of the Word created Shom, he also created its sun and its moon—gold and silver vessels that sail scores of miles above the dominion's surface. The god is long gone, but the magic vessels maintain their orbits and their defensive wards against pirates and treasure-seekers that try to steal the sun and the moon. If the mortals who populated Shom had been as impervious to harm as the dominion's satellites, Shom might have survived.

Death of a God, Rise of the Illumians

When the God of the Word died during the Dawn War, his human and humanlike servitors kept the dominion's energy vibrant, allowing the dominion to survive the war more or less intact. The dead god had been one of Ioun's allies; where Ioun was devoted to study, the dead god's domain was creation. The God of the Word's servitors invited Ioun to take over the dominion, but she declined, opting to remain in Hestavar. Instead, Ioun said that the servants had done an admirable job of maintaining the dominion during the war, so they should be able to handle the dominion during a time of peace. Ioun gifted these loyal humans with two syllables of the Words of Creation: one for the mind, and one for the soul.

No single mortal could harbor two syllables of the Words of Creation, so half of the new race took one word and half took the other. It was thought that the new society would blend the best of both mind and soul. The members of the new race called themselves illumians. Sigils of Supernal words from the Words of Creation flowed endlessly around their heads and bodies, setting them apart from other mortals.

The illumians withdrew from contact with the rest of the Astral Sea, drawing in upon themselves to study the unfolding concatenations of each of the syllables. At first, Shom flourished as the illumians created wonders and glories, rebuilding their dominion with the gift of divine energy from Ioun and what they had managed to preserve of their god's energy.

The Shattering of the Word

Eventually, the good centuries came to a terrible end. Those that know something about the illumians' fall consider the story to be a warning about how mortals cannot handle divine power without going mad. There is a bit more to the story than that.

The illumians' problems began because of the split between those who had the syllable of the mind and those who had the syllable of the soul. Truly sharing knowledge proved to be difficult. Successive generations of illumians moved more and more toward one syllable or the other, particularly because children could not have both syllables, and often the syllable a child had was not the one its parents would have preferred. Splinter cabals devoted to peculiarities of one or the other syllable fueled discord. Illumians of the mind, encouraged by Vecna's whispers, created conspiracy theories where none existed. Holier-than-thou arrogance characterized the soul cabals, and the worst of them "determined" that the followers of the syllable of the mind no longer truly had souls and could therefore be treated in the terrible ways their actions warranted, without any fear of wrongdoing. Asmodeus provided some brilliant suggestions for this faction to use to that end.

Civil war flared, slowed, and erupted again, repeating the cycle, adding new atrocities, and unwillingly pulling in even well-intentioned cabals. When the population was greatly reduced, the

Words of Creation

The people who were given the syllables of creation are gone, but the words themselves do not die so easily. Though the illumians have been extinct from Shom for centuries, their power lingers. A character who stumbles upon a source of illumian magic or expands the body of knowledge in Shom (for instance, discovers a new ritual) might be blessed with use of one of the syllables of creation for a day or for a single encounter.

The most powerful illumians could invoke the combined power of their sigils to burn their enemies with searing light, blast them with thunderous sound, or heal or protect their allies. The syllables' current state is not so formidable. A display of glowing words in a language that is impossible to comprehend fully, even for speakers of Supernal, whirls around the blessed character's head at a distance of three to six inches. The words grant a small benefit for a short time, such as +1 to Reflex or Will, or +1 to initiative checks—a mere taste of what was once possible before the illumians squandered the words.

leaders of the various cabals agreed on a final solution. This is the part of the story that is well known.

The lesser-known truth is that since Ioun was unwilling to choose a side, saying that both of the syllables were important and that the illumians were abusing her gift, the illumians approached the maruts to arrive at a resolution. The cabals called a temporary truce and asked the maruts to study the situation and decide, finally, which of the two syllables should be superior to the other.

At first, the maruts attempted to avoid arbitrating the dispute, but the illumians were insistent. The arrogance and presumption that had become typical of the illumians carried over to the arbitration process. Each side assumed it was in the right and demanded that the contract to be drawn up assessed harsh penalties against the side that lost the dispute. When the maruts concluded their study, they ruled that neither faction was worthy of holding the Words of Creation. They further decided that each cabal was deserving of the penalties outlined in the contract for the loser and executed those penalties to their fullest, leaving Shom in ruins. The only illumians to survive this cleansing had already left Shom in the earlier decades of the war.

Is Ioun to blame, for giving a gift to those who were not worthy? If anyone understands the consequences of their actions, it is Ioun. Perhaps in her long view there is still something positive that will come from the wreckage of Shom.

It would be easy to blame Vecna and Asmodeus for their influence, but they didn't start the conflict. They just gave it a push.

Are the maruts to blame? They merely arbitrated the dispute they had been forced to rule on. As the apparent original creators of Supernal (page 98), the maruts might have been slightly prejudiced against the illumians for squandering their heritage. Nevertheless, no marut would admit to such bias.

Inhabitants and Culture

There are six categories of inhabitants in Shom, but none of the groups are numerous.

First are the maruts, some of whom came to Shom to execute the contract with the illumians and never left, and others who have come here in the years since. The maruts move about the sands of Shom in their mobile citadels. Their chief concern seems to be guarding particular groups of ruins—the best guess is that contracts requiring the maruts to guard the ruins, or items in the ruins, are still in force. If the maruts are guarding an area, it's probably worth looting.

Second, the other guardians in the half-buried cities: constructs, immortals, sphinxes, nagas, ghosts, golems, and numerous even more bizarre creatures and traps guard the illumians' treasures. The guardians were intended to protect against other illumians; no one counted on the illumians suddenly being removed from the dominion's equation. The security systems and ageless guards remain intact, still standing against those who would plunder what they protect.

Third, random opportunists that sweep across the desert to acquire water at an oasis or poke around for anything valuable sticking out of the sands. Cultists of Vecna are stubbornly persistent "archeologists." Githyanki love the oases of Shom, flying in on their dragons from ships sailing outside the dominion. The quom are less predictable—when they detect traces of a fragment of Lakal, they'll go wherever their quest might take them, so they could be encountered anywhere in the wasteland or in the ruins.

Fourth, various random creatures that adventurers consider monsters, such as brown, gray, and blue dragons, wyverns, a few serpents that have escaped from Tytherion, and so on.

Fifth, various small groups of outsiders, some of whom randomly landed in Shom, but most of whom escaped from worse areas. These survivalists have formed tiny enclaves around several of the oases, but they rarely interact with strangers, instead hiding in case flyers or travelers come to the oasis. They do this because the latest arrivals to Shom have been hunting them.

Those recent additions to Shom make up the sixth group—astral giants in the service of Erathis. By hunting down the survivalist outsiders for sport, they are exceeding the orders Erathis gave them. Erathis sees Shom as the place of the next big push in her effort to restore of the Lattice of Heaven. She contracted the astral giants to sweep through Shom and try to kill the monsters that the maruts seem unwilling or unable to destroy. Several bands of astral giants are performing the mission to the best of their ability and might even appreciate help from the characters. However, at least two of the giant bands presently in Erathis's employ are bullies that have settled for starting with easier sport. The encounter that follows,

Astral Giants

The race of astral giants is differentiated from the other more brutish and destructive giants by their advanced culture and their willingness to interact with other beings through trade and debate. When the Dawn War came, the astral giants swore allegiance to the deities in general and Erathis in particular, unlike the other giants that sided with the titans and the primordials. Over the centuries, the astral giants have settled in scattered pockets of the Astral Sea. They never feel comfortable inside functioning divine dominions, but they have no difficulty living on border islands, in shattered dominions, on astral motes, and in great palace ships of their own construction.

The astral giants currently working for Erathis in Shom are young and somewhat crude specimens of their kind.

"Purifiers of Shom," shows what happens when the characters interrupt these astral giants in the middle of their fun.

Major Areas

Ruins and oases are scattered all over Shom. A couple of notable sites are touched on below.

Oracle of Qarma-Thaal

A great sphinx known as the Voice of Sarpoth guards a spring between two mesas. If the waters of the spring truly provide hidden knowledge of things to come, the knowledge didn't save the illumians.

Tombs of Elirhondas

If adventurers can avoid the maruts on the surface and the flameskulls that patrol the shallowest halls of Elirhondas, also known as the City of Philosophers, great treasures await in the depths of the place. Intricate traps protect the secrets and wealth of the former illumians' capital, as do mummified priests and warlords. The deepest halls are utterly dark, lit only by the light of the words of creation that circle the faces of illumian mummies.

Adventure Hooks

The characters can find all manner of adventures above and below Shom's sands. The tombs beneath Elirhondas and other fallen illumian cities hide great treasures guarded by dracoliches, mummies, desiccated zombies, skeletal tomb guardians, and the like. The astral giants' ongoing war against squatters in Shom (see Revenge of the Giants, page 16) is a source of constant action, and paragon or epic tier characters who can end the conflict might find themselves with the gratitude of both Erathis and Ioun.

In addition, for characters pursuing the appropriate epic destiny, Shom holds a special promise: godhood. Erathis's overall plan for Shom requires divinely powered vassals (exarchs) to swear fealty to her or Ioun. For characters who prove themselves, the deities offer the promise of great power.

Environmental Features

Shom has all the normal environmental dangers of a desert. In addition, characters who venture into the white sands discover supernatural perils as well.

Shom's Two Deities

Erathis and Ioun didn't stop Shom from sliding into ruin centuries ago. Now, they are cooperating to bring the dominion back. Does Ioun finally want a dominion of her own? Or are Erathis's efforts just a fragment of a greater prophecy Ioun will unravel? We won't answer this question definitively. Ioun's ways are mysterious.

Deadly Mirage

The mirages of Shom's deserts sometimes take on an illusory physical form, and believing in them can be fatal. In an encounter where a deadly mirage is at play, add four illusory duplicate creatures, all of which have the normal statistics of the monsters in the encounter but only a single hit point (such that one hit slays a mirage; a missed attack never damages a mirage) and one-quarter of the normal XP. These illusory minions can make only basic attacks. They are especially deadly to those who have suffered in the desert: They gain a +2 bonus to attack rolls against a target that has lost at least one healing surge to Shom's environmental dangers.

Great Statues

Any encounter near buried ruins might take place around one or more half-buried statues left over from illumians that wanted to immortalize their glory. Some are hundreds of feet tall and up to forty feet wide. Most of the statues are dead stone and metal, but a few still have a spark of power that affects all creatures within 3 squares. Empowered statues devoted to heroes of the syllable of the mind provide a +1 bonus to attack rolls with arcane, psionic, or psychic attacks. Empowered statues devoted to heroes of the syllable of the soul provide a +2 bonus to Fortitude and Will.

Encounter Groups

Characters adventuring in Shom are likely to encounter such solo threats as blue or red dragons scouring the surface for prey, burrowing purple worms drawn to tremors in the surface sand, and bands of creatures from Shom's lost empires or its current inhabitants, roaming the wastes. For a full encounter with astral giant warriors looking to stamp out a group of survivalist outsiders, see "Purifiers of Shom" on page 122.

Level 8 Encounter (XP 1,750)
- 1 flameskull (level 8 artillery, MM 109)
- 2 mummy guardians (level 8 brute, MM 192)
- 1 rot scarab swarm (level 8 soldier, MM 30)
- 1 trap haunt (level 8 lurker, MM 116)

Level 13 Encounter (XP 4,500)
- 1 illumian mummy lord [mummy lord with words of creation; see sidebar] (level 13 elite controller, MM 192)
- 3 skeletal tomb guardians (level 10 brute, MM 235)
- 1 umber hulk (level 12 elite soldier, MM 256)

Level 18 Encounter (XP 11,000)
- 1 bone naga (level 16 elite controller, MM 194)
- 1 dire bulette (level 18 elite skirmisher, MM 38)
- 1 savage minotaur (level 16 brute, MM 191)
- 1 sphinx (level 16 elite soldier, MM 245)

ENCOUNTER: PURIFIERS OF SHOM

Encounter Level 18 (10,600 XP)

Setup

1 astral giant blazing javelineer (J)
3 astral giant warpswords (W)
1 dire bulette (B)

A couple of bands of astral giants have reinterpreted Erathis's directive to sweep Shom clean of monsters that could interfere with colonists as an excuse to eliminate small pockets of outsiders that have beaten Erathis to the oases.

The characters, approaching from the southeast, come upon a pack of astral giants and their pet bulette attacking a group of outsiders. The giants are busy eliminating the colonists, so they might not notice the characters at first. If the giants are attacked or loudly challenged, they turn their attention to the characters.

When the characters come within sight of the oasis, read:

Before you a quartet of hulking brutes, three armed with blazing swords and one that hurls javelins, are mercilessly slaughtering a group of elves, humans, and halflings. Those who have survived the attack so far begin running toward you. A mound of earth rises from the center of the oasis.

3 Astral Giant Warpswords (W) Level 16 Skirmisher
Large immortal humanoid (giant) XP 1,400 each

Initiative +15 Senses Perception +13
HP 158; Bloodied 79
AC 30; Fortitude 28, Reflex 26, Will 26
Resist 10 radiant
Speed 8; see also astral leap

⊕ Warpsword (standard; at-will) ✦ Radiant, Weapon
Reach 2; +21 vs. AC; 2d10 + 7 damage, and ongoing 5 radiant damage (save ends).

⊕ Dimensional Blow (standard; recharge ⚅ ⚄ ⚃) ✦ Radiant, Teleportation, Weapon
Reach 2; +21 vs. AC; 2d10 + 10 radiant damage, the target is teleported 5 squares, and the target is dazed until the end of its next turn.

Astral Retreat (immediate reaction when damaged by an attack; at-will) ✦ Teleportation
The astral giant teleports 2 squares.

Astral Resonance
As long as an astral giant has an unbloodied astral giant ally within 10 squares, it receives a +2 bonus to attack rolls.

Astral Leap (move; encounter; only within the Astral Sea; recharges when first bloodied)
The astral giant can fly up to 10 squares.

Alignment Unaligned Languages Giant, Supernal
Skills Athletics +20, Religion +16
Str 24 (+15) Dex 20 (+13) Wis 20 (+13)
Con 22 (+14) Int 16 (+11) Cha 17 (+11)
Equipment chainmail, greatsword

Dire Bulette (B) Level 18 Elite Skirmisher
Huge natural beast XP 4,000

Initiative +13 Senses Perception +13; darkvision, tremorsense 20
HP 360; Bloodied 180; see also second wind
AC 36; Fortitude 33, Reflex 29, Will 29
Saving Throws +2
Speed 8, burrow 8; see also earth furrow
Action Points 1

⊕ Bite (standard; at-will)
Before it bites, the dire bulette can make a standing long jump as a free action without provoking opportunity attacks; +23 vs. AC; 2d8 + 10 damage, or 4d8 + 10 damage if the target is prone.

Rising Burst (standard; at-will)
Close burst 2; the dire bulette sprays rock and dirt into the air when it rises out of the ground; +22 vs. AC; 1d8 + 10 damage.

Earth Furrow (move; at-will)
The dire bulette moves up to its burrow speed just below the surface of the ground, avoiding opportunity attacks as it passes underneath other creatures' squares. As it burrows beneath the space of a Large or smaller creature on the ground, the dire bulette makes an attack against the creature: +17 vs. Fortitude; on a hit, the target is knocked prone.

Ground Eruption
The squares into which a dire bulette surfaces and the squares it leaves when it burrows underground become difficult terrain.

Second Wind (standard; encounter) ✦ Healing
The dire bulette spends a healing surge and regains 90 hit points. The dire bulette gains a +2 bonus to all defenses until the start of its next turn.

Alignment Unaligned Languages –
Skills Athletics +24, Endurance +23
Str 30 (+19) Dex 15 (+11) Wis 18 (+13)
Con 28 (+18) Int 5 (+6) Cha 12 (+10)

Tactics

The giants attempt to lure the characters into a trap: the weakened ground above the bulette's impromptu burrow (see "Features of the Area"). While the javelineer starts throwing, the warpswords hang back and wait until the characters either close or begin using ranged attacks. They might try to goad the characters into charging by killing a few more of the frightened outsiders.

The dire bulette is belowground when the encounter starts. In the first round, it readies an action to charge the first character who moves within 5 squares of it. If no creatures approach before its action in the second round, it uses earth furrow to move through the middle of the group of characters, followed by rising burst as it emerges among the largest group of characters it can target.

If the characters rush into melee, the dire bulette attacks at its earliest opportunity, and the giants use astral leap to fly to advantageous positions around the characters.

If the characters begin with ranged attacks, the giants move toward them, seeking to enter combat as quickly as possible.

The warpswords hold off on using dimensional blow until they are near enough to set up multiple attacks on the same target by teleporting it around. Alternatively, they use dimensional blow to teleport the characters into the path of the dire bulette.

Features of the Area

Frightened Outsiders: Squares marked with a humanoid symbol on the map represent the hapless survivors of the initial assault. In the first round after the characters are spotted, the outsiders flee (speed 6) from the giants, who take opportunity attacks against them when possible. The outsiders have AC 25 and 1 hit point each (a missed attack never damages an outsider). They cannot attack or take actions other than movement.

Difficult Terrain: The hemispherical mound at the center of the camp is the area the bulette occupied before it burrowed into the ground. This area is difficult terrain, as are the other places on the map marked with triangle symbols. The bulette creates additional difficult terrain when it surfaces or submerges.

Weakened Ground: Squares marked with a cobblestone pattern on the map represent a stretch of unstable ground left behind by the bulette's burrowing. Any creature that starts or ends its turn in one of these squares falls 10 feet into a tunnel beneath the surface, taking 2d10 damage from the fall and the impact of rocks that collapse into the tunnel. This tunnel requires a DC 24 Athletics check to climb out of, and only creatures that have a reach of 2 or more can attack creatures within it (or vice versa). Creatures in the tunnel can move through it as they see fit.

| Astral Giant | Level 19 Artillery (Leader) |
|---|---|
| Blazing Javelineer (J) | |
| Large immortal humanoid (giant) | XP 2,400 |
| Initiative +15 Senses Perception +18 | |

Nearly anything can be found in the Astral Sea, if someone travels far enough. You determine which varieties of "anything" make sense for your campaign. Use the following ideas as you like, or introduce them as rumors and turn the truth to your advantage.

Archanus

Long ago, Archanus was a divine dominion ruled over by a deity sworn to creation and invention and filled with mechanical creatures roving every inch of a vast workshop.

During that time, a crafty saboteur introduced a proverbial monkey wrench into the works, creating a flaw in what was otherwise clockwork precision. The effects were subtle at first, and by the time the lords of the realm noticed, the chain reaction had spread so far as to be irreversible. The realm ground to a halt, strained, and then tore apart under the awesome forces of stuck gears and springs stretched to the limits. Within moments, the great machine realm was a ruin of broken gears and spilled fuel.

Though the clockwork dominion will never regain its former glory, its components remain to be harvested. A colony of maruts has moved into the ruin and seized some of the former mechanisms. The maruts have constructed a research station of sorts, devoted to building war machines and powerful weapons. The best and most useful components come from the various Dawn War battlefields and the unclaimed, shattered dominions—rarely do the maruts bother searching the functioning dominions, and thus they have so far eluded the notice of the deities, who might not take kindly to attempts to resurrect Dawn War devices.

The maruts are efficient in their processes but notably understaffed—they can spare only one or two search parties at a time, so they are interested in trading for curious and useful devices found by planar adventurers, and sometimes they employ bands of such adventurers to seek out new harvest sites or scavenge from tricky areas. The maruts pay for such resources with arms and armor they have created or with items of great magical power.

For all their successes, the maruts' experiments have yielded as many failures as innovations. Powerful aberrant monsters often escape from the maruts' control and wreak havoc in Arcanus or beyond. Those creatures that escape do not have to fear pursuit; the maruts are less than enthusiastic about them, preferring instead to remain on station to continue their work and let others deal with the hazards they have unleashed.

Eldregaard

Few places in the planes truly show how far the mighty have fallen better than Eldregaard, also known as the Fane of the Fallen Dragon. The home of a once-powerful battle dragon, Eldregaard is a morose place inhabited by the miserable Isaldurax.

Once in the service of Bahamut, Isaldurax was a cunning leader who commanded the armies of the dragon god across the planes. At the apex of his career, Isaldurax was tasked with defending a temple in the Astral Sea against the infernal armies of Dispater. This temple—on the mote known as Eldregaard—was the haven for a mortal imbued with a fragment of Bahamut's divine spark. When Dispater's forces assaulted the temple, Isaldurax and those under his command easily drove them away. Isaldurax left Eldregaard to pursue Dispater's forces, unaware that the initial attack was merely a cover for a covert mission to capture the mortal residing within the temple. Dispater's agents were successful, and the mortal was taken back to the Nine Hells.

Stunned by his defeat, Isaldurax retreated inside Eldregaard, becoming a recluse. The shame of his failure made Isaldurax withdraw into himself, and the temple around him twisted to match his demeanor. In time, Eldregaard transformed into a dark, morose island whose only edifice is a gloomy structure that resembles a mausoleum more than temple. Those that remained by Isaldurax's side were equally twisted by the dragon's self-loathing, and in time they became nightmarish reflections of their former selves, living in eternal sorrow. It is said that all those who enter Eldregaard now become so overwhelmed with the woe of Isaldurax that they are trapped there forever, unwilling to return to the pain of life.

Yet there is much to draw curious travelers to Eldregaard. According to legend, when Isaldurax returned to the temple, he had all the wealth of Eldregaard collected and stored in large vaults under the temple. Some, particularly the faithful of Bahamut, believe that Isaldurax could be redeemed and restored to his former glory, although none who have tried have returned. A few even think that the fall of Isaldurax is a ruse by the dragon to protect the mortal imbued with Bahamut's divine spark, who rests in stasis within Eldregaard. The tale they believe says that Isaldurax foresaw Dispater's cunning and allowed the devil to kidnap a decoy, and that the transformation of Eldregaard is intended to convince Dispater that the temple has fallen into ruin.

The Forgotten Sanctuary

When the deities defeated the primordials and sealed them away in prisons deep inside the Elemental Chaos, the world was protected from destruction. However, during the Dawn War, not every aspect of the deities' creation could be saved. Floating deep in the Astral Sea is a mote of earth and stone that, according to legend, was once part of a world otherwise destroyed by the primordials. This world might have been a forerunner to the world that the deities saved, or it might be from another time and place entirely. However, when this world was destroyed, the gods banded together to save as many of its inhabitants as possible. As a result, a massive fragment of the world was shunted to the Astral Sea at the time of the world's destruction, creating an island that preserves a long-forgotten civilization.

This island, referred to in Ioun's temples as the Forgotten Sanctuary, is an enormous landmass that is as big as a small continent in the mortal world. The process of shunting the world to the Astral Sea preserved its original ecosystem. More impressive is the fact that the original inhabitants of the mote, or rather their descendants, continue to populate the land to this day. Their civilization has grown slowly, but now cities, towns, and villages dot the mote as they would on any continent, and it people continue to live as they did before their world's destruction.

The Forgotten Sanctuary lies far from the current dominions, and is so out of the way that even gith-yanki pirates rarely venture there. According to the few visitors who have made the journey to the island, the inhabitants do not even know that they live on a mote in the Astral Sea. They believe that their world was plunged into eternal twilight during the ancient war, having no idea it was destroyed. A few powerful spellcasters from the Forgotten Sanctuary have discovered the truth about their "world," but they keep it a secret from the rest of the population to avoid the chaos the truth would cause.

Campaign Settings and the Forgotten Sanctuary

The details about the world of the Forgotten Sanctuary have been left vague intentionally. In your campaign, the Forgotten Sanctuary can be a fragment of another campaign setting, either of your own design or from an official source, allowing the characters to visit another world while traveling across the Astral Sea. For example, if you are running a campaign set in your own world but want to use an adventure set in Eberron, you might set that adventure on the Forgotten Sanctuary and use the basic assumptions of the Eberron® campaign setting to flesh out the details of the Forgotten Sanctuary.

Frostburn

This pocket of elemental energy sprang up in the wake of the Dawn War and now floats through the Astral Sea, unattached to any other region. It is unlike other pockets because instead of being composed of all elements in a chaotic admixture, the elements of fire and cold hold dominance here. Motes of earth, water, and air exist, but they are tainted by either fire or cold (or both, if there is a battle raging there).

FROSTBURN TRAITS

Type: Elemental mote.
Size and Shape: Rough sphere 50 miles in diameter, bounded.
Gravity: Elemental buoyancy.
Mutability: Unstable (+5 to DCs to create terrain without fire or ice elements).
Fire and Cold Affinity: Cold or fire attack powers gain a +1 bonus to the attack roll, and acid, lightning, and thunder powers deal half damage (ongoing damage is not affected).

VINCENT DUTRAIT

Visitors to Frostburn quickly become caught in the middle of a never-ending war between two great, opposite forces: hordes of fire archons and ice archons, eternally struggling for dominance in the astral mote that has trapped them. Due to the magic of the pocket, the warring forces have no idea how long their struggle has endured, thinking it only days.

Two elemental princesses—the cold and calculating Sisanthak and the hot-tempered Vorsheen—claim dominance over Frostburn, sending their seemingly limitless troops forth from their respective castles, Snow and Cinder, which float at opposite ends of the mote. Characters who arrive in Frostburn are quickly approached by one side or the other, demanding aid—and threatening violence if their request is not instantly granted.

The source of Frostburn is a jealously guarded central orb that radiates elemental power. The two factions—frost and fire—constantly war over this orb, with their princesses thinking that to own it is to rule the mote once and for all. Little do they realize that their constant struggle maintains the forces within the orb in opposition, preventing either side from defeating the other. If one side were victorious, the losing elemental force within the orb would perish, leaving the other dominant and free of its limitations. However, the victorious force would then burst its confines and consume Frostburn in a titanic flood of elemental energy.

The deities advise their servants to avoid this mote, though Erathis might support those with plans to destroy it, since such work will eventually be required to restore the Lattice of Heaven.

Kar'ka Dun

Kar'ka Dun is either one of the most significant sites in githyanki history or a puzzling artifact that has accumulated legends it does not deserve. Oracles say that this wide, flat plain covered in tall grass and twisted trees is the site of the githyanki's first landing in the Astral Sea, which is fitting since the island constantly moves through the astral realm.

The island has a black stone building at its center, which blends the function of a fort with the aesthetics of a cathedral. However, the architecture is all wrong. The fort is indefensible, with too-wide arrow slits and doors that cannot be shut. The figures carved into the black stones might be githyanki, or perhaps githzerai.

The far travelers (page 97) say that Gith decreed that Kar'ka Dun was the one place where githyanki and githzerai would have to meet in peace, if there should ever be a time when the races needed to meet again. You won't hear githyanki of Tu'narath repeating such legends, but you couldn't pay a githyanki captain enough to mount an attack on Kar'ka Dun.

Mutas

Mutas is a free city inhabited by mortals. Its metal buildings ring the inside of a sunken structure that drops into the dim depths of the Astral Sea. This foundational structure resembles the inside of a drinking cup several miles in diameter.

Legend says that Mutas is the cup Moradin was holding when he learned that the Dawn War had begun. In disgust, he tossed it into the lattice between realms, where it stuck. Although neither Moradin nor his followers claim any tie to Mutas, the place still apparently enjoys the deity's protection. Devils, demons, githyanki, and other hostile forces are barred from entering in large numbers.

The various fiends prevented from entering Mutas maintain an ad hoc blockade outside the rim of the cup. The inhabitants of Mutas welcome news and goods from the outside world and pay adventurers well for help escaping through the blockade.

Pluton, the Gray Waste

Pluton was the divine dominion of the death god Nerull, the deity slain by the Raven Queen. She was unable, or unwilling, to take over Nerull's dominion, preferring to make her home in the Shadowfell. After absorbing Nerull's power, the Raven Queen cut Pluton entirely out of the soulform process. Other shattered dominions sometimes receive misplaced outsiders. Pluton does not. Its "native" inhabitants are ghosts and other leftover spirits from Nerull's reign. Pluton's distinguishing characteristic is that it still has an iron gray color veil, though Astral travelers curse the sight of it, since few choose to go to this realm. For more on Pluton, see Manual of the Planes, page 111.

Shivering Spires

The Shivering Spires is a ten-mile-square pocket composed of elemental wind and air that derives its name from the high, incredibly thin pillars rising from a pool of acid and fire far below. These spires, placed at random distances from one another, are known to bend and shift as the winds rage about them, tipping toward one another to allow passage between pillars and swaying apart at unforeseen moments. Falling from the spires represents a real hazard, because the drop ends in a churning lake of fire and acid (5d10 falling damage, and 20 acid and fire damage per round of submersion), and the chance of finding another, shorter route is not certain (as decided by you, or a 40% chance of success).

Only flying elemental creatures such as fire bats, gargoyles, and elementals dwell here with any frequency, and a few dragons scour the skies for a tasty meal. The Shivering Spires is also known throughout the Astral Sea as a neutral dueling ground, principally for magicians who have a sense of drama.

The Triad Islands

A trio of motes floating near one another, the Triad Islands are three nations stuck in a cycle of conflict and exhausted truce. The islands are divided by small expanses of open space in the Astral Sea and are spaced just far enough apart that they can be seen from the other islands, but not close enough for travelers to swim from one to another comfortably. Although these islands are small enough to escape the notice of most astral travelers, they have a long and bloody history that rivals the tales of many nations in the world.

Each of the three islands is a sovereign nation. Morisia is a military state ruled by a council descended from a mortal army that escaped to the Astral Sea eons ago during one of the mortal world's great wars of empire. Algomon is controlled by a theocracy loyal to Kord. Its people's ancestors were warriors who traveled to the Astral Sea seeking the aid of their deity; after the expedition was thrown off course and stranded on Algomon, they were forced to build a new civilization. Cyrenax was once a part of Tytherion. A great cataclysm severed Cyrenax from the rest of that dominion, hurtling it into the Astral Sea. Over time, these three motes drifted close enough to be caught in each other's planar gravity, forming a group of islands that has found equilibrium at their current distance from one another.

Ever since the islands converged, their inhabitants have been fighting with one another. Cyrenaxi cultists have left their obsidian fortresses on the mountains of their island to raid the opulent, sprawling cities of Morisia. Morisian general-lords, incensed that the people of Algomon refused to come to their aid, launched their own frontal assaults on the scattered temple-villages of Algomon, forcefully taking the goods that they claim the Algomani refuse to provide. The Algomani, in turn, sail to Cyrenaxi to attempt to topple the cultists' fortresses, hoping to stall any future conflicts before they start. This endless cycle of attacks and counterattacks continued for centuries until Morisian General-Lord Golgrim, a dwarf of considerable skill in war, called a conclave of the leaders of the three islands and a monumental peace treaty was signed. Though the peace continues, its strength is that of a single thread, since it would take only one reckless act to plunge the three back into war.

JULIE DILLON

Zulkolosz

The small island of Zulkolosz is a redoubt and safe haven for githyanki pirates and other scoundrels of the Astral Sea. A githyanki settlement is built deep inside the island, accessible through tunnels large enough to accommodate astral ships. Githyanki ships sail directly into the bay of this underground haven, which resembles a city of the Underdark with buildings set into the sides of the cave walls. The center of Zulkolosz is a deep chasm that contains a direct portal to the Abyss in the Elemental Chaos, which is a feature that endears it to githyanki who want to raid the githzerai.

Zulkolosz vacillates between maintaining a githyanki-only policy and allowing nongithyanki pirates to moor. At the moment, anyone can use the moorage as long as they pay the hefty fee. In the past, such phases of openness have presaged confrontations with dominion ships or other powerful enemies during which the githyanki have used the pirates of other races as sacrificial cover for their own quick escape. For now, Zulkolosz is a neutral ground where members of various evil factions and races trade information, slaves, and roundhouse kicks.

Astral Denizens

Adventurers define themselves in large measure by the dangers they overcome. The wide range of creatures described in this chapter offers fresh challenges for adventurers willing to risk danger on the forgotten battlefields of the Dawn War, beyond the color veils of dark dominions, and in remote outposts upon the treacherous Astral Sea.

Abominations seeded by the primordials stalk the periphery of the home of the gods. Many of the worst of these creatures, such as the marut servitors designed by the gods during the Dawn War, have evolved from their original forms.

Whether they are githyanki brandishing their silver swords, or the merciless quom searching for motes of Lakal, quick-sailing raiders lie in wait upon the Astral Sea, ready to strike unwary travelers.

The Nine Hells are filled with devils of many kinds. Some are covert operatives, public emissaries, or simple scavengers looking for new souls. Regardless of their individual agendas, many devils inhabit the wider Astral Sea, looking to promote Asmodeus's plans.

The divine dominions and their surrounding areas can also contain hazards for those traveling in the Plane Above. These dangers can come from the obvious, such the rival factions of the dominion of war (representing Bane and Gruumsh), or from the less expected, such as exalted of Erathis and Kord traveling outside their realm.

RALPH HORSLEY

The majority of abominations are living weapons created during the Dawn War by either the gods or the primordials. At least one other abomination has been created recently by the strange energy of the isle of Agathys in Carceri.

Astral Render

An astral render's amorphous nature circumvents planar boundaries, allowing it to use dimensional instability as a weapon.

| Astral Render | Level 27 Controller |
|---|---|
| Large immortal magical beast (blind, ooze) | XP 11,000 |
| Initiative +21 | Senses Perception +18; blindsight 20, tremorsense 10 |

| Speed fly 8 (hover; altitude limit 3); see also planar warp | |
| ⓣ Touch of Distortion (standard; at-will) ✦ Psychic, Radiant, Teleportation | |
| +31 vs. Reflex; 3d8 + 9 psychic and radiant damage, and the astral render teleports the target 5 squares. | |
| ⓡ Distorting Ray (standard; at-will) ✦ Psychic, Radiant, Teleportation | |
| Ranged 10; +31 vs. Reflex; 3d8 + 9 psychic and radiant damage, the astral render teleports the target 5 squares, and the target is dazed (save ends). | |
| Reality Rift (standard; recharge ⚅) ✦ Teleportation, Zone | |
| Area burst 1 within 20; + 31 vs. Reflex; 4d8 + 9 damage, and the astral render teleports the target 10 squares to a space outside the burst. In addition, the target is dazed and slowed (save ends both). Effect: The burst creates a zone of altered reality that lasts until the end of the encounter. Any creature that enters the zone is subject to the following secondary attack. Secondary Attack: +31 vs. Will; the target teleports 10 squares to a space outside the zone, and is dazed and slowed (save ends both). | |
| Planar Warp (move; recharges when the astral render uses reality rift) ✦ Teleportation | |
| The astral render teleports 12 squares and gains insubstantial and phasing until the end of its next turn. | |
| Alignment Evil | Languages Supernal |
| Str 27 (+21) | Dex 26 (+21) Wis 21 (+18) |
| Con 29 (+22) | Int 9 (+12) Cha 26 (+21) |

Astral Render Tactics

An astral render uses a combination of planar warp and reality rift immediately, unless its foes are too spread out. It continues to use this combination against the most dangerous foe, even if it can't target other enemies or if its allies are caught in the burst. While waiting for reality rift to recharge, it alternates between touch of distortion and distorting ray depending on circumstances, and uses planar warp alone only if it needs to avoid being penned in.

Astral render

Astral Render Lore

Religion DC 17: Astral renders are among the earliest immortal abominations created by the gods. The gods harnessed the energy of the Astral Sea and turned it inward on itself to create them.

Religion DC 26: Astral renders can rip holes between worlds, harming, disorienting, and transporting foes, or teleporting themselves by way of planar rifts.

Hundred-Handed One

Hundred-handed ones are immense war machines unleashed by the gods to tear across the cosmos like walls of slashing swords, shredding everything in their paths.

Hundred-Handed One Tactics

A hundred-handed one takes advantage of its speed and reach to get into the center of the battle, where its avalanche of blades aura can do the most damage. It uses its hundred hands attack each round, reserving hail of steel for opponents that effectively employ ranged weapons.

Hundred Hands (standard; at-will) ✦ Weapon
Reach 3; targets each enemy within reach; +36 vs. AC; 4d6 + 8 damage, and the target is knocked prone. Special: When charging, the hundred-handed one can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Hail of Steel (standard; recharge ⚄ ⚅) ✦ Weapon
Area burst 1 within 20; +34 vs. AC; 4d6 + 8 damage, and the target is marked until the end of the hundred-handed one's next turn.

Blades of Death (when the hundred-handed one hits a creature with an opportunity attack)
The target is dazed until the end of the hundred-handed one's next turn.

Earth Reaver
A hundred-handed one ignores difficult terrain.

Indiscriminate Carnage
A hundred-handed one can score a critical hit against a prone creature on a roll of 17-20.

Alignment Evil Languages –
Str 33 (+25) Dex 25 (+21) Wis 11 (+14)
Con 30 (+24) Int 4 (+11) Cha 27 (+22)
Equipment 100 longswords

Hundred-Handed One Lore

Religion DC 28: Although dim-witted and almost incapable of speech, hundred-handed ones exhibit surprising willfulness and pride. These traits, combined with their appetite for wanton carnage, ultimately made them unreliable servants for the deities, especially when plans to drop them into in the Elemental Chaos and forget about them went awry.

Encounter Groups

Wherever a hundred-handed one goes, violence and death follow, which often attracts planar scavengers.

Level 27 Encounter (XP 63,000)
- 1 hundred-handed one (level 29 elite soldier)
- 3 shadowraven swarms (level 27 brute, MM 243)

Malediction

Grafted from thunder, wind, and the madness of dead gods, maledictions rove the Astral Sea searching for intelligent life to feed upon. Screaming in fury and agony, they are heedless of danger in combat and are drawn to the most intelligent foes, whose minds they find delectable.

| Malediction | Level 23 Controller |
|---|---|
| Large elemental magical beast (undead) | 5,100 XP |

Initiative +20 Senses Perception +15, darkvision
Grave Storm (Lightning, Necrotic, Thunder) aura 3; when an enemy within the aura spends a healing surge, it takes 20 lightning, necrotic, and thunder damage.
HP 153; Bloodied 76
AC 35; Fortitude 34, Reflex 35, Will 33
Immune disease, fear, poison; Resist 15 lightning, 15 necrotic, 15 thunder, insubstantial
Speed 8, fly 8 (hover)

Maddening Touch (standard; at-will) ✦ Psychic
Reach 2; +28 vs. AC; 2d8 + 8 psychic damage, and the target takes a -2 penalty to Will until the end of the malediction's next turn.

Necrostorm Ray (standard; encounter) ✦ Fear, Lightning, Thunder
Ranged 10; +26 vs. Will; 3d8 + 5 lightning and thunder damage, and the target is slowed and grants combat advantage (save ends both).

Keening Madness (standard; recharge ⚄ ⚅) ✦ Fear, Psychic
Close burst 5; +28 vs. Will; 3d8 + 10 psychic damage, and the target is dazed (save ends).

Alignment Chaotic evil Languages Primordial, understands all languages
Str 24 (+18) Dex 29 (+20) Wis 18 (+15)
Con 27 (+19) Int 18 (+15) Cha 20 (+16)

Malediction Tactics

A malediction confronted with living beings of noticeable intelligence opens with keening madness, then rushes forward to drain its victim's mind with maddening touch. It has little mind for subtlety and attacks without heed of danger or preamble.

Malediction Lore

Arcana DC 24: Maledictions attack by sapping the will of their foes—those who survive an attack are often left hopelessly mad and physically desiccated.

Arcana DC 29: The primordials originally created maledictions in the Dawn War by mixing the mental agonies of gods felled by psychic assault with elemental fury. It is said that Orcus prizes these creatures and uses them as the spearhead of powerful assaults on his foes in the Astral Sea.

Encounter Groups

Maledictions leave death and insanity in their wake. They are sometimes shadowed by other undead creatures that take advantage of their will-sapping powers or that consume their crazed leavings.

Level 23 Encounter (XP 29,975)
- 1 malediction (level 23 controller)
- 1 larva mage (level 21 elite artillery, MM 175)
- 5 abyssal ghoul myrmidons (level 23 minion, MM 119)
- 1 dread wraith (level 25 lurker, MM 267)

Nullifier

Nullifier

These terrible abominations are a fusion of maruts and the warped astral energy of Agathys. Created when a group of marut mercenaries broke through Agathys's defenses and merged with the energy of that place, these former inmates of the Red Prison are the result of those escapees discovering ways to replicate themselves.

| Half -Void Nullifier | Level 24 Soldier (Leader) |
|---|---|
| Large immortal humanoid | XP 6,050 |
| Initiative +20 | Senses Perception +16, truesight 10 |
| Void Feedback aura 5; when an enemy within the aura hits the half-void nullifier, as a free action, one ally within the aura can make a saving throw or gain 5 temporary hit points (the ally's choice). | |
| HP 228; Bloodied 114 | |
| AC 40; Fortitude 38, Reflex 35, Will 35 | |

Nullifier Tactics

A half-void nullifier foils its enemies' assaults by teleporting allies to the front with void fist, and then by scattering its foes with half-cosmic rip.

A void nexus nullifier fights simply, but with tactical finesse, choosing just the right attack for the target and the combat state of its allies. It will quickly use dispelling presence if an enemy throws up a zone.

Nullifier Lore

Religion DC 17: The maruts were the first to refer to these new abominations as nullifiers. It is not known what the nullifiers call themselves; they tend not to communicate with other creatures that are not abominations.

Religion DC 26: Though nullifiers are new to the ranks of abominations, they often lead groups containing other abominations. It's rumored that nullifiers make compacts that bind these groups together, but no one knows how such agreements might be couched, and nullifiers want nothing to do with any other type of contractual obligation.

Encounter Groups

Nullifiers are most often encountered in groups of their own kind or as leaders of mixed groups of elemental and immortal abominations.

Level 25 Encounter (XP 35,350)

- 3 half-void nullifiers (level 24 controller)
- 1 void nexus nullifier (level 25 brute)
- 2 blood fiends (level 23 soldier, MM 12)

Malediction and voracia

Voracia

Dripping poison from a dozen fangs, a voracia is a primordial beast that was created to be the foe of fey and the fey gods. Voracias move by rolling their five starfishlike limbs into a ball and hurling themselves forward, despoiling and devouring all in their path and leaving a trail of putrid slime in their wake.

| Voracia | Level 22 Elite Skirmisher |
|---|---|
| Large elemental magical beast | XP 8,300 |
| Initiative +21 Senses Perception +16 | |

DAVE ALLSOP

Voracia Tactics

A voracia attacks fey creatures before any others. It begins with envenomed fangs, and uses ravenous rend to move into the middle of its enemies whenever possible. A voracia uses stepper's bane to pin down eladrin and other teleporting creatures. Even if a target manages to avoid its envenomed fangs, the voracia uses acidic spittle to continue its assault.

Voracia Lore

Arcana DC 16: Created to combat Corellon and Sehanine, voracias are the particular foe of fey, seeking fey flesh above all others. They plague elven planar lands, including Arvandor and the Feywild.

Arcana DC 24: Voracias do not attack drow on sight, and sometimes fight alongside them in battle. Some rumors suggest that Lolth had a hand in the beasts' creation.

Arcana DC 29: Though originally created by the primordials, voracias are still being created. The terrible magic that produces new abominations seems to have selected them as perfect candidates for Arvandor's Hunting Lands.

Encounter Groups

Voracias can be easily followed by the trail of acid they leave behind. They are sometimes kept as particularly destructive pets by sworn foes of the fey.

Level 22 Encounter (XP 23,600)

- 1 voracia (level 22 elite skirmisher)
- 2 blood fiends (level 23 soldier, MM 12)
- 1 earthwind ravager (level 23 controller, MM 104)

BANESWORN

Of all the gods of the Plane Above, none can boast an army as vast, as disciplined, or as deadly as that of the Iron General.

From the ranks of his exalted, as well as the other souls that linger in the lands beyond Chernoggar, Bane molds perfect soldiers, transforming those who were already among the best into something even deadlier.

This section offers a sampling of the warriors, priests, and living weapons that serve at the whim of the Iron General. They can appear either among the humans of the mortal realm, or leading forces of exalted and other souls throughout Chernoggar and the Astral Sea.

Banesworn Warrior

Banesworn warriors use their superior tactical knowledge to pin down their enemies, allowing their allies to overwhelm and destroy those foes.

| Banesworn Warrior | Level 13 Soldier |
|---|---|
| Medium immortal humanoid | XP 800 |
| Initiative +11 | Senses Perception +9 |
| HP 133; Bloodied 66 | |
| AC 29; Fortitude 26, Reflex 24, Will 24 | |

| ⊕ Spear (standard; at-will) ✦ Weapon | |
| Reach 2; +20 vs. AC; 1d8 + 8 damage. Effect: The target is marked until the end of the Banesworn warrior's next turn. | |
| ➢ Shortbow (standard; at-will) ✦ Weapon | |
| Ranged 15/30; +20 vs. AC; 1d8 + 8 damage. Effect: The target is marked until the end of the Banesworn warrior's next turn. | |
| Spearmaster's Stand (minor; requires a spear; recharge ⚄ ⚅) ✦ Weapon | |
| The Banesworn warrior gains threatening reach, allowing it to make opportunity attacks against all enemies within its reach (2 squares). This effect ends when the Banesworn warrior moves. | |
| Brutal Intercept (immediate reaction, when a Banesworn warrior hits with an opportunity attack; at-will) | |
| The target is knocked prone. | |
| Chosen Foe | |
| Any target marked by a Banesworn warrior also grants combat advantage to it. | |
| Alignment Unaligned | Languages Common, Goblin |
| Skills Athletics +17, Religion +12 | |

| Con 21 (+11) | Int 12 (+7) | Cha 14 (+8) |
| Equipment scale armor, shortbow, 20 arrows, spear | |

Banesworn Warrior Tactics

These soldiers often fight in ranks or otherwise take full advantage of their reach. A Banesworn warrior positions itself in a spot where its enemies are likely to try to move past it and then uses spearmaster's stand to make opportunity attacks. Then it attempts to knock foes prone with brutal intercept, effectively ruining whatever course of action provoked the opportunity attack.

Juggernaut of the Black Hand

Banesworn War Priest

Banesworn war priests put terrible curses on their foes before joining their fellows in the slaughter.

| Equipment plate armor, mace, holy symbol of Bane | |

WILLIAM O'CONNOR

Banesworn War Priest Tactics

A Banesworn war priest uses curse of doom as soon as a few foes are grouped appropriately, and as often as possible afterward. It uses ranged attacks until its curse recharges, engaging in melee only if forced to do so.

Juggernaut of the Black Hand

These fearless warriors are the heavy hitters of Bane's forces, leaving slaughter in their wake.

Juggernaut of the Black Hand Level 18 Brute
Medium immortal humanoid XP 2,000

Initiative +15 Senses Perception +14

✧ Banesworn Wrath (standard; recharges when bloodied) ✦ Weapon
Close burst 1; +19 vs. AC; 2d10 + 5 damage, and ongoing 10 damage (save ends).

Terrible Slaughter
While not bloodied, a juggernaut gains a +4 bonus to damage rolls and resist 5 to all damage.

Unstoppable Charge
When a juggernaut makes a charge attack, it rolls twice and uses the higher of the two results.

Alignment Unaligned Languages Common, Goblin
Skills Athletics +21, Intimidate +20, Religion +16

Con 22 (+15) Int 15 (+11) Cha 22 (+15)
Equipment scale armor, greatsword

Juggernaut Tactics

A juggernaut of the Black Hand charges in combat using unstoppable charge. It then attacks with barreling strike, hoping to push its target back so that it can charge again. It will take attacks of opportunity from one enemy in order to charge another.

Banesworn Iron Bulwark

Known for their ability to stand up to vicious attacks, Banesworn iron bulwarks are the wall that Banesworn warriors drive their enemies into.

Iron Bulwark Tactics

A Banesworn iron bulwark tries to position itself where it can make the greatest number of opportunity attacks to best use impassable bulwark and brutal intercept. It prefers to use Bane's retribution against a ranged attacker that targets more than one of its allies.

Banesworn Iron Bulwark Level 19 Soldier
Medium immortal humanoid XP 2,400

Initiative +16 Senses Perception +15
Ubiquitous Threat aura 2; each enemy that starts its turn within the aura is marked by the Banesworn iron bulwark until the start of the enemy's next turn.

⸸ Shield Shove (minor; requires a shield; at-will)
Targets a creature marked by the Banesworn iron bulwark; +24 vs. Fortitude; the iron bulwark pushes the target 1 square and shifts into the space the target left. On a critical hit, the target is also knocked prone.

✧ Bane's Retribution (immediate reaction, when a creature marked by the Banesworn iron bulwark makes an attack that does not include the iron bulwark; recharge ⚄ ⚅)
Close burst 10; targets the triggering creature; +24 vs. Fortitude; the target takes 10 damage for each creature it targeted with the triggering attack.

Brutal Intercept (immediate reaction, when the Banesworn iron bulwark hits with an opportunity attack; at-will)
The target is knocked prone.

Impassable Bulwark
When a Banesworn iron bulwark makes an opportunity attack, it rolls twice and uses the higher of the two results.

Alignment Unaligned Languages Common, Goblin
Skills Athletics +21, Intimidate +18, Religion +18
Str 25 (+16) Dex 20 (+14) Wis 22 (+15)
Con 24 (+16) Int 18 (+13) Cha 18 (+13)
Equipment plate armor, heavy shield, longsword

Banesworn Lore

Religion DC 13: Many of Bane's exalted, as well as souls that do not quite achieve that status but still find themselves drawn to Chernoggar's conflict, are swept up into Bane's armies. It's said that mortal warriors who distinguish themselves in conflicts alongside the Banesworn can become promoted to the ranks of the Banesworn.

Encounter Groups

Banesworn almost always fight in groups, alongside other combatants loyal to the Iron General.

Level 14 Encounter (XP 5,000)
- 1 Banesworn war priest (level 14 controller)
- 2 Banesworn warriors (level 13 soldier)
- 3 nightmares (level 13 skirmisher, MM 196)

Level 18 Encounter (XP 10,800)
- 2 Banesworn iron bulwarks (level 19 soldier)
- 1 barbed devil (level 18 skirmisher, Manual of the Planes 124)
- 1 cambion hellfire magus (level 18 artillery, MM 39)
- 1 juggernaut of the Black Hand (level 18 brute)

The terrors of the Nine Hells are as vast as the number of sins committed in the mortal world. And while many of Asmodeus's fallen are confined to the task of keeping that grim grinder of souls churning, others go forward to collect corrupted mortal souls—the currency of their dominion.

Burning Devil

A GAUNT, WITHERED CREATURE lit eternally aflame, a burning devil seeks nothing more than to share its torment with others. No matter the color of a burning devil's flame, which consumes the residual life energy of the damned, each flame represents the devil's hate for the living.

Burning Devil Tactics

A burning devil fights best with others of its kind by taking advantage of the teleportation provided by its deadly alacrity when the fire burst abilities of its burning devil allies trigger.

Burning Devil Lore

Religion DC 18: Burning devils are usually the first devils seen by those traveling to the Hells, because they latch onto ships passing through that dominion's color veil and inflict as much damage as they can before the ship crashes into Avernus.

Religion DC 23: Particularly tormented mortals become either whitefire burning devils or blackfire burning devils, lit aflame for all eternity. Whitefire devils are a torment saved for corrupt priests and hypocrites, while blackfire devils are former necromancers and mass murderers.

Encounter Groups

Hordes of burning devils are often used as shock troops by more powerful devils or the Hells' other occupants. Left uncontrolled, burning devils roam heedlessly and scour everything in sight.

Level 6 Encounter (XP 1,276)
- 1 tiefling heretic (level 6 artillery, MM 250)

Indwelling Devil

Twisted, dark spirits that scour unsuspecting souls, indwelling devils are the unseen puppet masters of the Nine Hells. They know all and see all, making excellent spies. Their true mission is to hunt down souls that escape from the Hells.

| Indwelling Devil | Level 18 Lurker |

| ⊕ Devil's Caress (standard; at-will) ✦ Necrotic | |
| +21 vs. Fortitude; 1d6 + 10 necrotic damage, and the target is dazed until the end of the indwelling devil's next turn and grabbed. | |
| ⸸ Devil's Thrall (standard; usable only against a target dazed and grabbed by the indwelling devil; at-will) ✦ Charm | |
| +21 vs. Will; the target is dominated (save ends). | |
| ⸸ Indwelling (minor; usable only against a target dominated and grabbed by the indwelling devil; recharge ⚄ ⚅) | |
| +21 vs. Will; the indwelling devil merges with the target, sharing its space and controlling its actions. The merged creature is stunned until the merge ends. On the indwelling devil's turn, it uses its actions to control the merged creature. It can choose only actions normally available to the target, and can use only the target's at-will powers. A successful grab attack against the indwelling devil ends the merge. When the merge ends, the attacker slides the indwelling devil to a square adjacent to the creature it was merged with, and the indwelling devil is dazed (save ends). | |
| Invisibility (minor; at-will) ✦ Illusion | |
| The indwelling devil becomes invisible until the end of its next turn, or, if it is merged with a creature, it becomes invisible until the merge ends. The indwelling devil can end the invisibility as a free action. | |

Indwelling Devil Tactics

An indwelling devil uses invisibility most of the time, preferring to avoid notice so that it can ready an action and use devil's thrall on a foe engaged in combat that it has dazed, followed immediately by indwelling. If successful, the indwelling devil dominates its enemy and uses that foe to fight his or her unknowing companions. If expelled from a host, an indwelling devil becomes dazed and visible, putting it in a bad position. Unless it saves immediately against the daze and has recharged its indwelling ability, an indwelling devil will flee rather than risk destruction.

Indwelling Devil Lore

History DC 13: A well-known story tells of a city-state in the recent past that elected a dictator to protect it from a hobgoblin horde. After the threat was thwarted, the dictator refused to relinquish power and ruled the city tyrannically. The city's savior came in an unusual form. An oracle of Ioun entered the city and demanded an audience with the dictator. Once the audience was granted, the seemingly meek oracle arrogantly accused the dictator of being a soul escaped from the Nine Hells. A pitched battle ensued, during which the oracle was revealed as a thrall of an indwelling devil. The devil defeated the dictator and dragged his escaped soul back to the Hells. To this day, the city has maintained a small shrine to the Hells and the indwelling devil that liberated their city.

Religion DC 25: The services of indwelling devils are in high demand among the dukes, barons, and lords of the Hells. Some believe that all indwelling devils secretly serve a single lord, or are part of a secret society pursuing its own esoteric agenda, but those goals or the supposed lord vary depending on who is speaking on the subject. The most common claim is that the indwelling devils serve Phongor the Inquisitor, and thus Asmodeus himself.

Encounter Groups

An indwelling devil is most often encountered among a band of creatures it's secretly controlling. Its enemies often think that they've vanquished a small band of dazed-looking creatures only to discover to their peril that the indwelling devil controlling those foes has found a new host among them.

Level 18 Encounter (XP 10,000)

- 1 indwelling devil (level 18 lurker)

- 1 cyclops battleweaver (level 17 skirmisher, MM 48)
- 1 medusa shroud of zehir (level 18 skirmisher, MM 187)

Pillager Devil Tactics

A pillager devil speeds into combat, attacking first with its rake or frenzied rake before grabbing its first victim with soul grasp. It keeps potential victims close with soul's calling.

Pillager Devil Lore

Religion DC 26: Pillager devils specialize in claiming the wayward damned in the Outer Torments or claiming the souls of travelers in the Astral Sea. Many are given a quota by their masters of souls gathered, and they aren't picky about how to reach it.

Religion DC 31: Other devils consider pillager devils to be lesser beings, uncouth and malformed. It's considered punishment to have to serve with pillager devils on their hunt for souls.

Encounter Groups

Pillager devils work together in pods of two or three, or team up with other devils that are compelled to aid them by their shared infernal master. Nondevils are understandably averse to their company.

Level 24 Encounter (XP 33,100)
- ✦ 3 pillager devils (level 25 brute)
- ✦ 2 assassin devils (level 24 lurker, Monster Manual 2 64)

Warder Devil

Graced with beautiful forms stolen from warrior princes and battle maidens, warder devils carve a bloody line of defense for their hellish masters.

| Warder Devil | Level 16 Soldier |
|---|---|
| Medium immortal humanoid (devil) | XP 1,400 |
| Initiative +16 | Senses Perception +8, darkvision |

| ⊹ Whirlwind Ravage (standard; encounter) ✦ Fire, Weapon | |
| Close burst 1; +18 vs. AC; 1d10 + 11 fire damage, and ongoing 10 fire damage (save ends). If the target is marked by the warder devil, it instead takes ongoing 15 fire damage (save ends). | |
| Hell's Step (immediate interrupt; when an enemy marked by the warder devil hits an ally; at-will) ✦ Teleportation | |
| The warder devil teleports 10 squares to a space adjacent to the triggering enemy and makes a burning greatsword attack against that creature. | |

| Equipment greatsword | |

Warder Devil Tactics

A warder devil is charged with protecting a particular devil—whether an official ambassador or a petty tyrant—and gladly sacrifices its life for its master. It keeps its charge from being attacked as much as possible, halting foes in place with its burning greatsword mark while dealing fiery doom with whirlwind ravage. A warder devil seeks out bloodied foes in preference to any other, slaking its lust to slay.

Warder devil

Warder Devil Lore

Religion DC 20: Originally used as escorts for Asmodeus's fiendish emissaries traveling between dominions, warder devils have been retasked as bodyguards by several powerful devils in the Nine Hells. Many serve Dispater.

Religion DC 25: The first warder devils were once angels of protection, whose sadistic thirst for blood and destruction led them to side with Asmodeus in his rebellion.

Encounter Groups

Warder devils are usually encountered as escorts to greater devils, either as bodyguards or concubines (or both). They enjoy taking orders as much as they like inflicting suffering and pain.

Level 17 Encounter (XP 8,100)
- ✦ 1 bone devil (level 17 controller, MM 92)
- ✦ 1 sword wraith (level 17 lurker, MM 267)
- ✦ 2 warder devils (level 16 soldier)
- ✦ 6 legion devil veterans (level 16 minion, MM 64)

EXALTED OF ERATHIS

Erathis's exalted frequently venture into the Daybreak Islands and the wider Astral Sea on missions for their god to further the Game of Making, as well as Erathis's plans to restore and recolonize the shattered dominions.

Origin: The creature's origin becomes immortal.

Skill Modifications: +2 bonus to History checks; +2 bonus to Diplomacy checks or Intimidate checks.

Attack Powers

As the god of civilization, Erathis emphasizes teamwork and cooperation. As a god of creation, Erathis gifts her exalted with a deeper understanding of the nature of magic items. The following theme powers can be added to any of Erathis's exalted.

Advancing the Guard

Advancing the Guard (standard; encounter)
The exalted shifts 1 square and makes a basic attack. If the attack hits, each ally adjacent to the exalted's original or current space can shift 1 square and make a basic attack.

Best Roles: Leader, soldier.

General Advice: This power provides any group of exalted with a surge that can carry them over and through their enemies.

Great Combo: Adding this power to the deva knight-errant (Monster Manual 2, page 62) helps turn that defensive leader into an offensive threat.

Harmony of Tools

Harmony of Tools (immediate interrupt, when an enemy within 5 squares of the exalted uses a magic item power; recharge ⚅)
The exalted makes a basic attack against the triggering enemy.

Best Roles: Artillery, controller.

General Advice: This power is best for exalted creatures that have basic ranged attacks. Giving this power to more than two creatures in an encounter, however, can be overly punishing to the characters.

Great Combo: A human mage (Monster Manual, page 163) that has harmony of tools replies to an attempt by an enemy to use a magic item power with a magic missile.

Unyielding Progress

Unyielding Progress (standard; at-will)
The exalted makes a charge attack. In addition, it can't be pulled, pushed, slid, or teleported against its will until the end of its next turn.

Best Roles: Brute, soldier.

General Advice: As an incarnation of Erathis's push to bring civilization permanently to every corner of the universe, this power creates assaults that don't yield ground easily.

Great Combo: Human nobles (Monster Manual 2, page 148) and a group of human guards (Monster Manual, page 162) that have this power can create a line that does not budge on the first strike against it, but is incredibly mobile later in the fight.

Utility Powers

Erathis's martial skills are mainly defensive. Her exalted excel at holding on when they should break.

An Army Together

An Army Together (minor; encounter)
Until the end of the exalted's next turn, the exalted and each ally adjacent to it gains a +2 bonus to all defenses and a +5 bonus to saving throws.

Best Roles: Artillery, soldier.

General Advice: This power is best for creatures that fight in melee alongside many allies, or that operate as a group of artillery monsters. It also turns the weakness of minions—being killed in groups because of clumping together—into a potential strength.

Great Combo: A group of dragonborn bloodreavers (Draconomicon: Chromatic Dragons, page 215) using an army together can turn a flowing mobile attack into a strong defense.

Hold This Ground

Hold This Ground (immediate interrupt, when an enemy makes a charge attack against the exalted or one of its allies; encounter)
The triggering enemy takes a -2 penalty to the attack roll, and a -2 penalty to all defenses (save ends).

Best Roles: Soldier.

General Advice: Use this power to emphasize the defensive skills of Erathis's exalted. Simply running up to them and swinging isn't a sufficiently sophisticated plan.

Great Combo: A dragonborn warmaster (Draconomicon: Chromatic Dragons, page 216) that has hold this ground is certain to make rash enemies pay.

Heroic Sacrifice

Heroic Sacrifice (immediate interrupt, when an ally within 10 squares of the exalted misses with an attack; encounter)
The ally can reroll the attack, but if it does, it grants combat advantage until the end of the exalted's next turn.

Best Roles: Artillery, controller.

General Advice: An exalted uses this power in an attempt to pull victory out of defeat, especially when that success is particularly crucial.

Great Combo: Just about any second-rank controller or artillery is happy to have this power. But a frontline leader or soldier can also use it to aid his artillery support.

EXALTED OF KORD

Kord's exalted often travel out of Celestia in small groups, carousing and hunting in the Foothills or looking for trouble near Bane's outposts.

Origin: The creature's origin becomes immortal.

Skill Modifications: +2 bonus to Athletics checks or Intimidate checks.

Attack Powers

Few of Kord's exalted choose subtlety over force. The attack powers available to them emphasize Kord's role as god of storm and god of strength. The following theme powers can be added to any of Kord's exalted.

Storm's Shock

Storm's Shock (free, when the exalted hits with a melee weapon attack; encounter) ✦ Lightning, Thunder, Weapon
The weapon attack deals lighting and thunder damage, and ignores temporary hit points.

Best Roles: Brute, lurker.

General Advice: Kord's followers exult in matching their enemies' strength with strength and winning. Use this power with a creature that is already expected to deal lots of damage.

Great Combo: Recast the juggernaut of the Black Hand (page 135) as an exalted of Kord instead of Bane, replace its radiant and necrotic damage with lightning and thunder damage, and add storm's shock to it to put the fear of the storm into the characters.

Storm God's Judgment

Storm God's Judgment (standard; recharge ⚅)
The exalted makes a basic attack. If the attack hits, the target gains vulnerable 5 lightning per tier and vulnerable 5 thunder per tier (save ends both).

Best Roles: Artillery, controller.

General Advice: This power works only if it's paired with lightning or thunder attacks, or teamed up with creatures that have those attacks.

Great Combo: Use a human diabolist (Monster Manual 2, page 144), but recast its fire powers as lightning and thunder powers to take advantage of storm god's judgment.

Storm of Blows

Storm of Blows (standard; encounter) ✦ Weapon
The exalted makes a melee basic weapon attack against each enemy within reach. On a hit, if the attack roll is odd, the target is pushed 2 squares, and if the attack roll is even, the target is knocked prone.

Best Roles: Brute.

General Advice: This power captures the unpredictable consequences of Kord's fury.

Great Combo: With storm of blows on its side, just about any brute becomes better, and a soldier gains a big bang attack that might surprise its foes.

Utility Powers

The utility powers of Kord's exalted either provide appropriate defenses or ensure that combat concludes quickly.

Stormblessed

Stormblessed
The exalted gains resist 5 cold per tier, resist 5 lightning per tier, and resist 5 thunder per tier.

Best Roles: Any.

General Advice: This power works best with creatures that expect to be inside the area of effect of attacks that do not distinguish between allies and enemies.

Great Combo: Human lackeys (MM, page 162) stand more chance of surviving on a paragon tier battlefield when they have the stormblessed power.

Unyielding Strength

Unyielding Strength (immediate interrupt, when this creature drops to 0 hit points; encounter) ✦ Healing
The exalted makes a basic attack. If the attack hits, the creature doesn't drop to 0 hit points and instead regains 10 hit points per tier.

Best Roles: Brute.

General Advice: This power is best used on creatures that die easily. Use it as a compensation for a champion that hits hard but has poor defenses, not as a further defense for a creature that is already hard to kill.

Great Combo: A genasi fireblade (Monster Manual 2, page 116) that has unyielding strength can supply one last jolt of ongoing fire damage before it falls.

War Is for the Strong

War Is for the Strong (minor; recharge ⚅)
Until the end of the exalted's next turn, the exalted and any ally within 3 squares of it gain a +2 bonus to melee attack rolls and take a -2 penalty to AC.

Best Roles: Any.

General Advice: This power can be given to multiple creatures in the same encounter. The bonuses and penalties they provide don't stack, but a different creature can use the war is for the strong war cry each turn.

Great Combo: Multiple deva zealots (Monster Manual 2, page 62) that have war is for the strong can use their path of virtue to make multiple attacks in a single turn, while punishing those who attack in return by using radiant retribution.

The githyanki are pirates and soldiers that fight a never-ending war against mind flayers and other aberrations. As consummate pirates, they also raid, pillage, and plunder the various settlements scattered throughout the Astral Sea, striking fear into all who see them on the horizon.

Ch'r'ai Inquisitors

The ch'r'ai are a group of dangerous githyanki that are loyal only to Vlaakith and seek out anyone that might prove disloyal to the lich-queen. Relentless in their pursuit of dissidents, the ch'r'ai target other githyanki, making them less than popular among the rest of their people. Still, the ch'r'ai care little for the honor of their people, for they have been elevated to their rank by Vlaakith herself. Ch'r'ai inquisitors lurk in doorways, down dark alleys, and in other shadowy places, always on the lookout for signs of disloyalty. Should they find any, their inquisition is swift and almost always deadly. They are masters of the mind and can bend even the most strong-willed githyanki to their whims, forcing their victims to tell the truth even against their own wishes. It is whispered in the streets of Tu'narath that no secret can be hidden from a ch'r'ai inquisitor, and that all is revealed during questioning—before the questioned is given over for execution.

| Ch'r'ai Inquisitor | Level 15 Lurker |
|---|---|
| Medium natural humanoid | XP 1,200 |
| Initiative +17 Senses Perception +15 | |
| HP 114; Bloodied 57 | |
| AC 28; Fortitude 26, Reflex 28, Will 27 | |
| Saving Throws +2 against charm effects | |
| Speed 6 | |
| ⨺ Silver Longsword (standard; at-will) ✦ Psychic, Weapon | |
| +20 vs. AC; 1d8 + 4 damage plus 1d6 psychic damage. | |
| ⨽ Inquisitor's Strike (standard action; usable only against a target not affected by inquisitor's strike; at-will) ✦ Psychic | |
| +18 vs. Will; 1d8 + 4 damage plus 1d6 psychic damage, and the target is dominated until the end of the ch'r'ai inquisitor's next turn. | |
| Bend the Will (free action, when the ch'r'ai inquisitor is hit with a melee or ranged attack while dominating a creature; at-will) | |
| The creature dominated by the ch'r'ai inquisitor uses an at-will attack power of the ch'r'ai inquisitor's choice against the enemy making the triggering attack as a free action. | |
| Keep Enemies Close | |
| A ch'r'ai inquisitor gains a +4 bonus to all defenses while a creature it's dominating is within 5 squares of it. | |
| Telekinetic Leap (move; encounter) | |
| The ch'r'ai inquisitor or an ally within 10 squares of it can fly 5 squares. | |
| Alignment Evil Languages Common, Deep Speech, Draconic | |
| Skills Arcana +14, Insight +15 | |
| Str 16 (+10) Dex 23 (+13) Wis 16 (+10) | |
| Con 18 (+11) Int 14 (+9) Cha 20 (+12) | |
| Equipment leather armor, silver longsword | |

Ch'r'ai Inquisitor Tactics

A ch'r'ai inquisitor likes to turn its enemies against one another. It uses inquisitor's strike to change an enemy into its pawn, and then moves into a position where it can attack another enemy. On the dominated creature's turn, the inquisitor commands it to move adjacent to the enemy the inquisitor is attacking. In the following round, the inquisitor makes a silver longsword attack against the nondominated enemy, and then uses bend the will to have the dominated creature deliver a second punishing attack.

Duthka'gith

A twisted hybrid of githyanki and red dragon created by Vlaakith on Tu'narath, the duthka'gith are powerful new warriors in the lich-queen's army. Over the eons since the original Vlaakith urged Gith to accept the pact with Tiamat, the queens of the githyanki have learned much about the red dragons. Vlaakith CLVII put this knowledge to use, infusing githyanki warriors with red dragon blood in dark rituals designed to create more deadly warriors. The results of these rituals have exceeded Vlaakith's expectations, and though the duthka'gith are limited

Duthka'gith

in number (and mostly restricted to Tu'narath), their effectiveness has already been seen in repeated assaults on githyanki dissidents. The duthka'gith are reviled and feared by many githyanki, who believe them to be a sign of things to come for the githyanki people as a whole.

| Duthka'gith | Level 19 Brute |
|---|---|
| Medium magical humanoid | XP 2,400 |
| Initiative +14 | Senses Perception +12; darkvision |
| HP 222; Bloodied 111 | |

| Saving Throws +2 against charm effects | |
| Speed 6 | |
| ⊕ Silver Greatsword (standard; at-will) ✦ Psychic, Weapon | |
| +22 vs. AC; 1d10 + 6 damage plus 1d10 psychic damage, and the duthka'gith slides the target 1 square. | |
| ⚔ Battering Barrage (standard; recharge ⚅ ⚄ ⚃) ✦ Weapon | |
| +20 vs. Fortitude; 3d10 + 6 damage, the duthka'gith pushes the target 3 squares, and the target is immobilized until the end of the duthka'gith's next turn. | |
| ⚔ Buckle the Knees (minor 1/round; at-will) ✦ Psychic, Weapon | |
| +20 vs. Fortitude; 1d10 + 5 psychic damage, and the target is immobilized until the end of the duthka'gith's next turn. | |
| ✧ Breath Weapon (standard; recharge ⚃) ✦ Fire | |
| Close blast 5; +18 vs. Reflex; 2d12 + 5 fire damage. Miss: Half damage. | |
| Bloodied Breath (free, when first bloodied; encounter) | |
| Breath weapon recharges, and the duthka'gith uses it. | |
| Telekinetic Leap (move; encounter) | |
| The duthka'gith or an ally within 10 squares of it can fly 5 squares. | |
| Alignment Evil | Languages Common, Deep Speech, Draconic |
| Skills Arcana +14, Intimidate +20 | |

| Con 22 (+15) | Int 11 (+9) Cha 22 (+15) |
| Equipment scale armor, silver greatsword | |

Duthka'gith Tactics

Most duthka'giths are stronger than other githyanki and use this strength to their advantage. During combat, a duthka'gith uses battering barrage and buckle the knees to maneuver enemies into small groups and pin them there, at which point it unleashes its breath weapon on the group.

Githyanki Far Wanderer

The free-roaming far wanderers are githyanki that would not give up the freedom of a nomadic existence and continue to sail the Astral Sea. With nowhere to call a home port, the far wanderers travel from one location to the next, pillaging and looting in order to sustain themselves. Perhaps no group is more fitting of the iconic pirate moniker applied to all githyanki, since the far wanderers know no home other than their ships and constantly prey upon the weak to maintain their lifestyle.

Though still technically loyal to the lich-queen, the githyanki far wanderers are less concerned with the matters of the githyanki as a whole and more interested in what and where their next target will be. The far wanderers put great stock in their freedom and have embraced the idea of their liberation as a race ever since they threw off the chains of the mind flayers. Slavery, even when it involves nongithyanki, is anathema to the far wanderers, and they will do anything to retain their freedom. When captured or imprisoned, they rail against their captors day and night, and they will make escape attempts that seem suicidal if they have even the slimmest chance of winning their freedom.

| Githyanki Far Wanderer | Level 13 Skirmisher |

| ⚔ Positioning Lunge (standard; at-will) ✦ Psychic, Weapon | |
| +18 vs. AC; 1d8 + 5 damage plus 1d8 psychic damage, and the githyanki far wanderer shifts 2 squares. | |
| ⚔ Silver Step (standard; recharge ⚄ ⚃) ✦ Teleportation | |
| The githyanki far wanderer makes three silver rapier attacks, each against a different target. The githyanki far wanderer can teleport 5 squares before each attack. | |
| ⚔ Liberating Strike (immediate reaction, when the githyanki far wanderer is grabbed, immobilized, or restrained; at-will) ✦ Weapon | |
| Targets the creature that grabbed, restrained, or immobilized the githyanki far wanderer; +16 vs. Fortitude; 2d8 + 5 damage, and the githyanki far wanderer ends the grabbed, immobilized, or restrained condition and shifts 3 squares. | |
| Telekinetic Leap (move; encounter) | |
| The githyanki far wanderer or an ally within 10 squares of it can fly 5 squares. | |

| Con 19 (+10) | Int 13 (+7) Cha 19 (+10) |
| Equipment leather armor, silver rapier | |

Githyanki Far Wanderer Tactics

A far wanderer is all about mobility; it prefers to use positioning lunge to move around the battlefield quickly, saving silver step for an opportunity when it can attack three enemies.

Githyanki Blackweave

Wicked and depraved with souls as dark as pitch, githyanki blackweaves are warlocks who have dedicated themselves to Vlaakith, the lich-queen. To become a blackweave, a githyanki gives over part of its life essence to the lich-queen, sustaining her in undeath for a while. In exchange, Vlaakith bestows the ability to channel some of her dark power, giving githyanki blackweaves capabilities beyond those of other githyanki warriors. This transfer of power grants the blackweaves the ability to corrupt the bodies of their enemies, making those foes easier to slay in the name of the lich-queen. Perhaps more significant, those slain by the githyanki blackweaves do not pass into the Shadowfell as is normal; instead, their souls pass to Tu'narath, where they are claimed by the lich-queen to sustain her undead existence.

| Githyanki Blackweave | Level 14 Controller |
|---|---|
| Medium natural humanoid | XP 1,000 |
| Initiative +9 Senses Perception +8 | |
| HP 136; Bloodied 68 | |
| AC 28; Fortitude 24, Reflex 26, Will 27 | |
| Saving Throws +2 against charm effects | |
| Speed 6 | |
| ⊕ Silver Rapier (standard; at-will) ✦ Psychic, Weapon | |
| +19 vs. AC; 2d8 + 2 damage plus 1d8 psychic damage. | |
| ⊗ Eldritch Blast (standard; at-will) ✦ Implement | |
| +18 vs. Reflex; 2d10 + 4 damage, and the target is slowed until the end of the githyanki blackweave's next turn. | |
| ✧ Wracking Blast (standard; at-will) ✦ Implement, Psychic | |
| Close blast 3; +16 vs. Fortitude; 2d6 + 4 psychic damage, and until the end of the githyanki blackweave's next turn, whenever the target damages the githyanki blackweave, the target takes 2d6 psychic damage. | |
| ✲ Psychic Sinkhole (standard; at-will) ✦ Implement, Psychic, Zone | |
| Area burst 1 within 10; +16 vs. Will; 2d6 + 4 psychic damage. Effect: The burst creates a zone of energy that lasts until the end of the githyanki blackweave's next turn. Any creature that starts its turn within the zone loses its move action during that turn. | |
| Pact of the Lich-Queen (free action, when the githyanki blackweave damages a bloodied enemy; encounter) | |
| The triggering enemy loses a healing surge and cannot spend healing surges (save ends). | |
| Telekinetic Leap (move; encounter) | |
| The githyanki blackweave or an ally within 10 squares of it can fly 5 squares. | |
| Alignment Evil Languages Common, Deep Speech | |

Githyanki blackweave

Githyanki Blackweave Tactics

A githyanki blackweave attempts not only to kill its enemies, but to trap them nearby so that their souls might be sent to the lich-queen. The blackweave uses psychic sinkhole to slow enemies, preferring to finish them off with silver rapier or eldritch blast. If enemies get too close, the blackweave uses wracking blast before moving to a safer position.

Githyanki Ghustil

Githyanki ghustils are the closest that the githyanki come to having a priest caste. These warriors dedicated to Vlaakith have learned to channel nascent bits of divine power, snatched while drifting in the Astral Sea or stolen from those who channel divine power regularly. The ghustils are not widely trusted by other githyanki, mostly due to their association with the power of the gods. Still, Vlaakith has given her approval to the ghustils, and so they travel with githyanki raiding parties and incursion forces, acting as her eyes and ears. Like the blackweaves, the ghustils have the ability to channel power directly from the lich-queen, which they in turn use to bolster the efforts of other githyanki. Many githyanki tolerate the presence of the ghustils simply because they know that the ghustils have (and can confer) the favor of Vlaakith. However, if the ghustils were to fall out of favor, few of them would survive without the lich-queen's protection.

Speed 6

⊕ Silver Longsword (standard; at-will) ✦ Psychic, Weapon
+19 vs. AC; 1d8 + 3 damage plus 1d6 psychic damage.

Necrotic Smite (standard; usable only while affected by cloak of shadows; at-will) ✦ Necrotic, Radiant, Weapon
+19 vs. AC; 2d8 + 3 damage plus 1d8 necrotic damage plus 1d8 radiant damage.

Capture Divinity (immediate reaction, when an enemy within 10 squares of the githyanki ghustil uses a divine power; encounter) ✦ Healing
The githyanki ghustil regains 27 hit points.

Cloak of Shadows (standard; at-will)
The githyanki ghustil gains total concealment against all enemies until the end of its next turn.

Gift of Vlaakith (minor; recharge ⚄ ⁞⁞)
One githyanki ally within 10 squares of the githyanki ghustil gains 15 temporary hit points.

Githyanki Ghustil Tactics

A ghustil begins combat by using cloak of shadows to avoid attacks and to set up its positioning for a strike. In the following round, it unleashes necrotic smite on a single target, continuing this cycle until its foes are dead. Additionally, a ghustil uses gift of Vlaakith to give temporary hit points to allies in danger.

Githyanki Pyroclast

Masters of telekinetic power that can conjure flames with the power of their minds, githyanki pyroclasts revel in consuming their enemies with summoned fire. Sometimes referred to as holocaust warriors due to their penchant for burning their enemies to a crisp, pyroclasts turn their enemies' minds against themselves, making it more difficult for those foes to avoid the pyroclasts' deadly flames. Those that have faced githyanki pyroclasts claim that they can create hot, intense flames that sear holes in flesh in the blink of an eye. Githyanki pyroclasts believe that their minds are the true weapons that will purge the cosmos of their enemies, including the dwellers in the dark that once enslaved them. Few enemies survive the mind flames of githyanki pyroclasts once in their grip.

Githyanki Pyroclast Tactics

A githyanki pyroclast's main tactic is to use fire of the mind on as many of its enemies as it can. When it has several enemies wrapped in flames, the pyroclast then uses psychic flames to further reduce the most injured enemy. A pyroclast also prefers to use searing ray early in the fight, ensuring that its enemies that are burned do not easily recover.

Githyanki Sword Stalker

The silver sword is a sacred item to the githyanki. Some silver swords contain fragments of astral detritus, giving them the power to banish aberrations from existence. If a silver sword falls into the hands of a nongithyanki, a small but elite cadre of githyanki knights known as the sword stalkers is tasked with recovering the weapon. Sword stalkers are trained to cross the Astral Sea, travel to other planes, and even delve into the dens of their hated mind flayer enemies to recover a lost sword. For a sword stalker, recovering a silver sword is more than just a matter of pride—it's about retrieving one of the most precious weapons in the githyanki arsenal that will be used in the final battles of the Eternal Crusade—battles that many githyanki believe will take place in the Far Realm itself.

Githyanki Sword Stalker Tactics

Githyanki sword stalkers are trained to deal with enemies foolish enough to wield silver swords against them. As such, they are expert duelists and always try to use unavoidable swordsmanship to engage a weapon-wielding foe head-on. Once this tactic is successful, the sword stalker uses disarming reclamation to force its foe to drop its weapon, which can then be retrieved.

Gul'othran Marauder

Gul'othran marauders are a sect of githyanki who have devoted their lives to the Eternal Crusade, a never-ending struggle to wipe out the mind flayers across all planes, including the Far Realm. Most of the githyanki encountered in significant numbers outside the Astral Sea are members of the gul'othran. Living only to eradicate the illithid threat, they prefer to take their fight to the mind flayers rather than waiting for an attack to come to them.

Gul'othran marauders are responsible for countless incursions into various realms. These incursions are merely part of the larger war against the mind flayers and their ilk.

Gul'othran Marauder Tactics

A gul'othran marauder wants nothing more than to beat its enemies into submission. A marauder tends to focus its attacks on the most wounded foes, hoping to bloody a target so it can use slave taker. Once it has dominated a creature, it does everything it can to stay near that creature in order to maintain the saving throw penalty.

Gul'othran Dragon Raider

Dragon raiders are support artillery that specialize in making ranged attacks to supplement the attacks of gul'othran marauder ground troops. Unlike their Tu'narathi cousins, the dragon raiders of the gul'othran take red dragons from the world as mounts, eschewing those from the Astral Sea in favor of mounts that are more likely to have some familiarity with the realm being invaded. In this way, gul'othran dragon raiders are more than just weapons used in incursions into other planes; they are emissaries between red dragons and the githyanki, helping to bring the combat expertise of the red dragons to bear against the enemies of the githyanki. Most gul'othran dragon raiders train extensively in both tactics and mounted combat, allowing them to serve as field officers during an incursion.

A gul'othran dragon raider specializes in firing psychic attacks from a distance and tends to use its psychic bolt as a minor action while mounted (thanks to its master dragon rider ability), saving the standard action for the dragon's more powerful attacks. If its allies are facing trouble from the opposition, a gul'othran dragon raider uses psychic sunder to discourage its enemies from attacking, giving the other gul'othran dragon raiders a chance to recover and renew their attacks.

close quarters of the urban areas of Tu'narath, these dragon-riding githyanki are experts at rooting out targets. The mental bond a dragon rider has with its red dragon mount allows it to sense danger to itself or its mount, allowing it to spur the dragon into action accordingly. Most Tu'narathi dragon riders forge pacts with the dragons they ride; these pacts are made deep in the carved-out caves that serve as the dragons' lairs, and many a potential dragon rider has failed to return from an excursion to secure such a pact.

Tu'narathi Dragon Rider Tactics

When mounted on a dragon, a Tu'narathi dragon rider uses silver longsword as a minor action, allowing the dragon to move and then make its more powerful bite or double claw attacks. A Tu'narathi dragon rider tries to use the marking ability of dragon rider's challenge to split the damage taken evenly between its dragon and itself whenever possible.

Osyrimon

Osyrimon, one of the lich-queen's most devoted subordinates, is the captain-general of the githyanki forces at Tu'narath and is in charge of the defense of the city. A veteran of many battles with the mind flayers, Osyrimon was once a member of the gul'othran. Following a number of successful incursions and victories in battles against aberrations on the Astral Sea, Vlaakith recalled Osyrimon to Tu'narath to help secure the city against insurgent githyanki. More at home commanding military forces in the field than rooting out rebellious members of his own race, Osyrimon has accepted the honor bestowed upon him and vowed to rid Tu'narath of any githyanki unwilling to accept the natural order of Vlaakith's leadership. However, years spent fighting rebels have brought him in contact with many who have attempted to persuade Osyrimon to switch sides, including the leader of a rebellious faction calling themselves the Sha'sal Khou (see "Tu'narath, City of Death" in Dragon #377). Though his loyalty remains steadfast, it might be only a matter of time before even Osyrimon begins to question the lich-queen's madness.

Osyrimon's Tactics

Osyrimon is a warrior who knows only life on the battlefield, and he is not suited to the intrigue and subterfuge found throughout Tu'narath. In combat, Osyrimon fights with single-minded conviction, using double attack while pursuing a wounded foe across the battlefield. If he finds himself surrounded, Osyrimon uses sling foe to hurl an enemy away, then moves into a position to continue attacking that same enemy, now without as many of its allies around.

Vlaakith

Vlaakith CLVII, the leader of the githyanki, is far more than the simple occupant of the githyanki throne. Long ago, Vlaakith performed a ritual to transform herself into a lich, giving her an extended life span and making her the longest-reigning Vlaakith in the githyanki's history. The lich-queen of the githyanki is a being of supreme power, who has secured her throne not only through undeath, but also by eliminating any rivals before they get too powerful.

More ominous than her immense power as a lich and a ruling tyrant is the fact that Vlaakith is in pursuit of divine apotheosis. Vlaakith hopes to channel the energy of the dead god upon which Tu'narath is built in order to become a god herself. In recent years, she has taken steps to transition the githyanki into a society that will accept her as their deity; she has already put a priest caste in place (the ghustil), and she has her loyal duthka'gith servants spreading throughout Tu'narath and the Astral Sea in preparation for the quelling of any rebellion that might spring up. Because of the madness that she has fallen into after centuries of undeath, Vlaakith believes that, through her own willpower and the strength of new githyanki castes she has created, the githyanki will come to worship her as other races do their own gods.

Unfortunately for her, Vlaakith has underestimated both the resourcefulness and the conviction of her enemies. Already, many rebellious githyanki have made attempts to bring down the lich-queen, though so far all have been unsuccessful. To prevent such dissent from spreading, Vlaakith created a caste of loyal inquisitors who call themselves the Ch'r'ai, and has ordered them to seek out and destroy any that would oppose her. Vlaakith has become even more of a tyrant as her apotheosis approaches, and many githyanki fear that she will destroy or enslave their race before her plan runs its course.

Vlaakith's Tactics

Vlaakith is a dangerous lich who likes to attack her enemies head-on. She uses banish to dismiss any dangerous enemies that can limit her actions (such as defenders). She then either uses crippling ray to reduce the defenses of her enemies, or, if her enemies are all close to her, she unleashes grasp of the lich-queen to turn one of her enemies into a weapon. Each round, she uses dancing silver greatsword to attack an enemy and, when bloodied, spends a second minor action on necrotic waves.

Battlesworn Ogre Mauler Tactics

A battlesworn ogre mauler begins combat by charging a foe to attack with its maul and then uses brutal hammer. Thereafter, it makes maul attacks against its nearest foe, using brutal hammer whenever it can, often to stun a foe before charging another.

Battlesworn Orc Bloodsage

A few orcs learn to destroy with magic instead of the axe. A small number of them join Gruumsh as exalted, who has uses for lightning-spewing magicians.

Battlesworn Orc Bloodsage Level 26 Minion Artillery
Medium immortal humanoid XP 2,250

Initiative +21 Senses Perception +22
HP 1; a missed attack never damages a minion.
AC 38; Fortitude 37, Reflex 38, Will 39
Speed 6 (8 while charging)

⊕ Longspear (standard; at-will) ✦ Weapon
Reach 2; +33 vs. AC; 14 damage.

↛ Blood Bolt (standard; at-will) ✦ Lightning, Necrotic
Ranged 20; +31 vs. Reflex; 14 lightning damage, and any enemy adjacent to the target takes 7 necrotic damage, or 14 necrotic damage if the target is bloodied.

↭ Blood Energy Burst (when the battlesworn orc bloodsage drops to 0 hit points) ✦ Lightning, Necrotic
Close burst 3; targets enemies; +29 vs. Reflex; 14 lightning and necrotic damage. Effect: Each ally within the burst can make a melee basic attack as a free action.

Equipment hide armor, longspear

Battlesworn war troll defender Battlesworn orc bloodsage

Battlesworn Orc Bloodsage Tactics

A battlesworn orc bloodsage avoids melee and attempts to stand away from other minions to avoid area attacks. Knowing that its death can turn the tide of a battle, a bloodsage will try to stay within 3 squares of its allies and at least one enemy, however, so it can use blood energy burst.

Battlesworn War Troll Defender

Many war trolls pay homage to Gruumsh. Just one of these cunning and indefatigable fighters can form a bulwark on the battlefield for the rest of the army to gather around.

Battlesworn War Troll Defender Tactics

A battlesworn war troll defender moves to include as many foes as possible in its reach and then uses its flail attack. It then takes advantage of anyone marking it by dealing extra damage with vicious tactics. The first foe that tries to shift while within its reach becomes the target of not so fast.

Battlesworn of Gruumsh Lore

Religion DC 16: The battlesworn of Gruumsh are immortal warriors plucked from the Shadowfell to serve Gruumsh in the afterlife as they did when they were mortals. Their lust for violence is constantly rewarded with endless bloodshed.

ZOLTAN BOROS & GABOR SZIKSZAI

Religion DC 24: The battlesworn of Gruumsh constantly engage in an everlasting war with the followers of Bane in the astral realm of Chernoggar. If they die in battle there, they are revived to fight again on the following dawn.

Religion DC 29: The battlesworn of Gruumsh come in an endless variety due to the varied souls conscripted for battle in Chernoggar. Even so, some patterns emerge because of the kinds of souls Gruumsh favors. Most are, like Gruumsh, concerned simply with destruction, not with complex strategies or long-term planning.

Encounter Groups

Gruumsh's battlesworn gather in small squads and huge hordes throughout Chernoggar and the Shrapnels—the shards of land trailing the dominion, dating back to the time when Gruumsh crashed his home into Bane's abode. There they can be found in the company of angels of Gruumsh and powerful mortals who serve Gruumsh's ends. Gruumsh even allows some to break the boundaries of the planes to bring ruin elsewhere in the cosmos.

Level 24 Encounter (XP 32,400)
- 1 fomorian painbringer (level 19 elite controller, MM 110)
- 1 fomorian blinder (level 20 elite artillery, Monster Manual 2 114)
- 1 fomorian butcher (level 22 elite brute, Monster Manual 2 115)
- 6 battlesworn orc brawlers (level 23 minion soldier)
- 1 battlesworn ogre mauler (level 24 brute)

Level 25 Encounter (XP 40,550)
- 1 battlesworn ogre mauler (level 24 brute)
- 6 battlesworn orc bloodsages (level 26 minion artillery)
- 1 deva fallen star (level 26 artillery, Monster Manual 2 114)

Exarchs of Gruumsh

Gruumsh demands little of his exarchs; his only tenets are to bring destruction, slaughter the weak, kill the opposition, and tear down what others build. The devastation needs no purpose, but it pleases Gruumsh to hear severed limbs flop to the ground, and few things are as amusing to him as the lamentations of other gods' followers cut short by sliced necks. Gruumsh's exarchs thus focus on bringing low the followers of other gods and those who worship none.

A powerful priest of Gruumsh might call up an exarch of Gruumsh by performing an act of great destruction, gaining an ally to wreak still more ruin upon the world, but Gruumsh's exarchs typically engage in their own devastating pursuits. When not leading a horde into the endless battle on Chernoggar, an exarch of Gruumsh might be breaking bodies in the Elemental Chaos, crashing across the Astral Sea to assault another domain, or intimidating mortals in the world or on another plane into taking destructive action.

Gruumsh's exarchs never sit back. They are active exarchs, hurling themselves into danger without hesitation. Success in such frenetic attacks is never guaranteed, so Gruumsh often elevates new exarchs to replace the fallen.

Bahgtru, Fist of Gruumsh

Bahgtru's size and strength are legendary, but so too is his stupidity. Brute force brought him to prominence in his mortal life as an orc, when he pulped the smarter brains of many foes beneath his fists. Gruumsh saw Bahgtru as the natural champion of unreasoning destruction and made him an exarch, a move that even the dim-witted Bahgtru anticipated after he removed the previous exarch's head from his neck.

Bahgtru's Tactics

At the start of combat, Bahgtru moves toward the nearest foe and uses hammer fist. In the following round, Bahgtru knocks the target back into other enemies with backfist bowl away. He then moves in among the dazed foes and spends his action point to use double attack on a dazed target or two. Bahgtru keeps as many dazed targets within his reach as possible, particularly those who would use ranged attacks, so that they end up provoking opportunity attacks from him one way or another. Bahgtru then alternates between hammer fist or backfist bowl away and double attack, dazing and pummeling enemies with his bare hands.

Bahgtru makes two punch attacks against dazed or stunned targets.

⸸ Hammer Fist (standard; at-will)
Reach 2; +26 vs. AC; 2d10 + 11 damage, and the target is dazed until the end of Bahgtru's next turn.

⸸ Backfist Bowl Away (standard; recharge ⚄ ⚅)
Reach 2; +26 vs. AC; 2d8 + 11 damage, and the target is pushed 10 squares, knocked prone, and dazed until the end of Bahgtru's next turn. If the target ends this movement adjacent to any of Bahgtru's enemies, Bahgtru makes a secondary attack. Secondary Attack: Targets enemies adjacent to the target; +24 vs. Reflex; 2d8 + 11 damage, and the secondary target is dazed until the end of Bahgtru's next turn.

Threatening Reach
Bahgtru can make opportunity attacks against all enemies within his reach (2 squares).

Warrior's Surge (standard, usable only while bloodied; encounter) ✦ Healing
Bahgtru makes a melee basic attack. On a hit, he regains 132 hit points.

Bahgtru Lore

Religion DC 16: Bahgtru is an enormous orc who serves Gruumsh as an exarch. Ogres and other brutes pay homage to his raw power.

Religion DC 24: Dubbed the "Fist of Gruumsh" for his bare-knuckle battle style, Bahgtru is renowned for his strength and stupidity. Those who act in his name hope to draw upon his power to break through clever tricks and staunch defenses by using brute force.

Religion DC 29: Left to his own devices, Bahgtru rages across Chernoggar or whatever location he is in. Followers collect in his wake like scavengers behind a shark, seeking to take advantage of the ruin he wreaks. Bahgtru pays little heed to planning or even goals, so some seek to manipulate his simple-mindedness to their ends. Most do so at their peril, but Bahgtru obeys Gruumsh without question and often takes orders from other exarchs or Gruumsh's angels.

Luthic, the Blood Moon Witch

Greatly feared even among Gruumsh's other followers, Luthic is a female orc exarch of the god of destruction. She is known for her cunning and pure viciousness.

Luthic Level 27 Elite Controller (Leader)
Medium immortal humanoid, orc XP 22,000

Initiative +20 Senses Perception +28
Blood Call aura 2; each bloodied enemy gains vulnerable 10 to all damage while within the aura.
HP 502; Bloodied 251
AC 41; Fortitude 39, Reflex 38, Will 41
Saving Throws +2
Speed 6, fly 6 (hover)
Action Points 1

⊕ Claw (standard; at-will)
+32 vs. AC; 3d8 + 3 damage

⸸ Stretching Claws (standard; at-will)
Reach 3; targets one, two, or three creatures: +30 vs. AC; 3d8 + 3 damage.

✧ Blood Storm (standard; encounter) ✦ Necrotic, Zone
Close blast 5; +29 vs. Fortitude; 2d10 + 6 necrotic damage. Effect: The blast creates a zone of raining blood that lasts until the end of Luthic's next turn. The zone is difficult terrain and blocks line of sight for enemies. Sustain Minor: The zone persists.

Bloodied Frenzy (free, when first bloodied; encounter)
Blood moon frenzy recharges, and Luthic uses it.

Blood Moon Frenzy (standard; recharge ⁞⁞) ✦ Charm
Luthic and each bloodied ally within 6 squares of her make basic attacks as free actions and gain a +2 bonus to the attack roll. When one of these attacks hits a bloodied enemy, the target is dominated by Luthic until the end of her next turn.

Alignment Chaotic evil Languages Abyssal, Common, Giant, Supernal
Skills Arcana +23, Insight +28, Intimidate +24, Stealth +25
Str 17 (+16) Dex 24 (+20) Wis 31 (+23)
Con 27 (+21) Int 20 (+18) Cha 22 (+19)

Luthic's Tactics

Luthic tries to remain behind a screen of allies, lashing out with stretching claws. When her allies become bloodied, she uses blood storm and moves into the zone, and then uses her action point to inflict blood moon frenzy upon her foes. She then sustains blood storm, striking from it with stretching claws to gain combat advantage and using blood moon frenzy again when she can.

Luthic Lore

Religion DC 17: Few pray to Luthic directly, but many are inspired by her in dreams. If Gruumsh's followers engage in a strategy more complex than direct confrontation, it's likely that Luthic is behind it and they dreamed of a red moon, awakening with the taste of blood in their mouths.

Religion DC 26: Savage priests of Gruumsh creep out beneath the blood moon to commit atrocities in Luthic's name, but during the rest of the year, speaking of her is taboo. It is thought that speaking Luthic's name might draw her attention, which always brings disaster if she is not called upon in the appropriate way.

Religion DC 31: Worshipers of Gruumsh believe Luthic to be his exarch because she embodies Gruumsh's desire for havoc and confusion. Although destruction remains Gruumsh's ultimate aim, her divisive ploys and the antagonism she foments cause cracks in ordered creation that lead to ruin.

Vaprak the Rapacious

Vaprak loves the taste of gore spiced by fear. He is far more cunning than he appears, being more than a simpleminded predator as some of Gruumsh's other exarchs are. Vaprak often makes forays into the world at the behest of Gruumsh's most powerful worshipers or for his own enjoyment. While there, he targets those most responsible for maintaining order, and wherever he goes, he leaves a trail of blood and panic.

Vaprak Level 25 Elite Skirmisher
Huge immortal humanoid, troll XP 14,000

Initiative +22 Senses Perception +24
HP 466; Bloodied 233
Regeneration 20
AC 39; Fortitude 41, Reflex 38, Will 36
Vulnerable acid or fire (if Vaprak takes acid or fire damage, his regeneration doesn't function until the end of his next turn)
Saving Throws +2
Speed 12
Action Points 1

⊕ Claw (standard; at-will)
Reach 3; +30 vs. AC; 3d8 + 9 damage; see also blood bite.

⸸ Blood Bite (minor, when Vaprak hits a bloodied enemy with a claw attack; at-will)
Targets a bloodied enemy hit with a claw attack; 2d8 + 9 damage, and Vaprak shifts 3 squares.

Intimidating Move (move; recharge ⁘ ⁞⁞) ✦ Fear
Vaprak moves his speed and can enter enemies' spaces, both without provoking opportunity attacks. If Vaprak passes through an enemy's space, Vaprak makes an attack against that enemy: +28 vs. Will; the target is weakened until the end of Vaprak's next turn.

Threatening Reach
Vaprak can make opportunity attacks against all enemies within his reach (3 squares).

Troll Healing ✦ Healing
If Vaprak is reduced to 0 hit points by an attack that doesn't deal acid or fire damage, he falls prone and remains at 0 hit points until the start of his next turn, when he regains 100 hit points. If an attack deals acid or fire damage to Vaprak while he's at 0 hit points, he is destroyed. See also Vaprak's vengeance.

Vaprak's Vengeance
If Vaprak is destroyed, his remains continue to strike at creatures. Until the end of the encounter, Vaprak makes a claw attack against any creature that enters Vaprak's space or starts its turn there.

Alignment Chaotic evil Languages Common, Giant
Skills Athletics +27, Endurance + 24, Intimidate +22
Str 30 (+22) Dex 26 (+20) Wis 24 (+19)
Con 25 (+19) Int 17 (+15) Cha 21 (+17)

Vaprak

WAYNE ENGLAND

Vaprak's Tactics

Vaprak closes with foes and then moves through and among them using intimidating move, flashing a fearsome grin as he slides right past the waiting blades of foes. He then makes claw attacks against weakened foes, relying on his threatening reach to make opportunity attacks. Vaprak uses his reach and his movement to stay out of range of melee foes and continues to use intimidating move when he can. When a foe is bloodied, he focuses intimidating move and claw attacks on that target to more frequently gain the benefit of blood bite.

Vaprak Lore

Religion DC 17: Vaprak is a fell troll exarch of Gruumsh. Trolls that worship Gruumsh consider Vaprak their patron and often build bloody shrines in his name.

Religion DC 26: Gruumsh's worshipers typically consider Vaprak the most accessible of his exarchs because he is less unreasonable or malicious than the others. They see Vaprak as having a malign cunning that can be used to one's advantage so long as the exarch is pleased by offerings of gory destruction and terror inspired in others.

Vaprak is called the Rapacious because of his hunger for gore, but he is also known as the King Eater. When he appears in the world or on one of its echo planes, he often seeks out the rulers most responsible for sustaining the light amid the darkness of the world, devouring them in a display of destruction that sows terror among their followers.

Religion DC 31: Vaprak's severed claw is rumored to be a powerful artifact, but as a troll he has regenerated his missing hand. Many have claimed to own the claw, but the powers ascribed to the item change with the possessor. In truth, many such artifacts have existed, either as gifts of Vaprak's favor or as trophies claimed by foes. Each claw functions for a while, but eventually withers away, often when it is needed most.

Encounter Groups

Gruumsh's exarchs typically travel in the company of other beings of great destruction. Battlesworn are never far from them in Chernoggar, and mortal adherents often follow in their wake. On rare occasions, the exarchs even engage in battle jointly, and Gruumsh's eye follows such combats closely.

Note that the encounters below are at the high end of difficulty for their level. This is so that they present a challenge worthy of an exarch's inclusion.

Level 23 Encounter (XP 30,000)
- 1 angel of retrieval (level 22 artillery, Monster Manual 2 8)
- 5 angel of valor legionnaires (level 21 minion, MM 16)
- Bahgtru (level 23 elite brute)
- 1 battlesworn ogre mauler (level 24 brute)
- 1 fell troll (level 20 elite brute, MM 255)

Level 25 Encounter (XP 43,800)
- 2 battlesworn war troll defenders (level 26 soldier)
- 6 battlesworn orc legionnaires (level 23 minion soldier)
- 1 oni thunderer (level 22 skirmisher, Monster Manual 2 171)
- Vaprak (level 25 elite skirmisher)

Level 26 Encounter (XP 52,800)
- 1 battlesworn ogre mauler (level 24 brute)
- 3 battlesworn orc bloodsages (level 26 minion artillery)
- 2 battlesworn war troll defenders (level 26 soldier)
- Luthic (level 27 elite controller)

Level 27 Encounter (XP 62,850)
- Bahgtru (level 23 elite brute)
- 4 battlesworn orc bloodsages (level 26 minion artillery)
- 6 battlesworn orc legionnaires (level 23 minion soldier)
- Luthic (level 27 elite controller)
- Vaprak (level 25 elite skirmisher)

QUOM

Dispossessed by the destruction of their astral realm during the Dawn War, the quom fanatically hunt down Lakal's infinitesimal remaining fragments. Some of these might appear inside magic items or even within the bodies of living beings. The quom cut down without qualm or hesitation those who stand in the way of their quest for these motes.

Quom are humanoids that have green, blue, or violet skin. Their great heroes, called durud, grow second faces on the backs of their skulls and are greatly revered by the quom and feared by their enemies.

Quom Fanatic

These dedicated soldiers fight to the death to retrieve pieces of their dead god.

Quom Fanatic Level 15 Soldier
Medium immortal humanoid XP 1,200

Initiative +16 Senses Perception +12
HP 145; Bloodied 72
AC 31; Fortitude 27, Reflex 29, Will 27
Speed 6, fly 3 (while within the Astral Sea)

Broadsword (standard; at-will) ✦ Weapon
+22 vs. AC; 2d10 + 4 damage.

Crossbow (standard; at-will) ✦ Weapon
Ranged 15/30; +20 vs. AC; 2d8 + 4 damage.

Mystic Mark (minor; recharge ⚅) ✦ Weapon
Close burst 3; targets enemies; the target is marked (save ends). In addition, the quom fanatic gains a +2 bonus to attack rolls against creatures it has marked until the end of its next turn.

Implacable Determination (free, when an enemy within 5 squares of the quom fanatic scores a critical hit; encounter)
The quom fanatic can make a basic attack, shift 1 square, or move its speed.

Alignment Unaligned Languages Supernal
Skills Bluff +15, Insight +17
Str 20 (+12) Dex 24 (+14) Wis 21 (+12)
Con 17 (+10) Int 17 (+10) Cha 16 (+10)
Equipment scale armor, broadsword

Quom Fanatic Tactics

Eager to prove its skill, and to one day become a durud, a quom fanatic thrusts itself into the fray, uses mystic mark on its enemies, and wreaks havoc. Quom fanatics typically work in pairs or trios, moving forward as a group 6 squares apart and carving a path of carnage through large groups of enemies.

Quom Enforcer

Almost every quom ship has a few quom enforcers to deal with "troublemakers" who won't give up shards of Lakal, one way or another.

Quom Enforcer Level 17 Brute
Medium immortal humanoid XP 1,600

Initiative +12 Senses Perception +13
HP 198; Bloodied 99
AC 29 (31 with mystic fury); Fortitude 31, Reflex 28, Will 29 (31 with mystic fury)
Speed 6, fly 3 (while within the Astral Sea)

Maul (standard; at-will) ✦ Weapon
+20 vs. AC; 4d6 + 6 damage.

Enforcer's Smash (standard; recharges when first bloodied) ✦ Weapon
+20 vs. AC; 4d6 + 6 damage, and the target is knocked prone and dazed (save ends).

Mystic Fury (standard; requires maul; recharge ⚄ ⚅) ✦ Weapon
The quom enforcer makes three maul attacks, each against a different target. If at least one of these attacks hits, the quom enforcer gains a +2 bonus to AC and Will until the end of its next turn.

Implacable Determination (free, when an enemy within 5 squares of the quom enforcer scores a critical hit; encounter)
The quom enforcer can make a basic attack, shift 1 square, or move its speed.

Alignment Unaligned Languages Supernal
Skills Bluff +17, Intimidate +17
Str 24 (+15) Dex 18 (+12) Wis 21 (+13)
Con 18 (+12) Int 18 (+12) Cha 18 (+12)
Equipment scale armor, maul

Quom Enforcer Tactics

As a large and powerful warrior, a quom enforcer is a dealer of death and pain. It uses enforcer's smash to knock enemies down and rattle them, followed by mystic fury on its next turn.

Quom Harpoonist

Quom harpoonists are experts at using their deadly weapons to retrieve those who flee from them.

Quom Harpoonist Level 19 Artillery
Medium immortal humanoid XP 2,400

Initiative +16 Senses Perception +20
HP 142; Bloodied 71
AC 31; Fortitude 31, Reflex 32, Will 31
Speed 6, fly 3 (while within the Astral Sea)

Cutlass (standard; at-will) ✦ Weapon
+26 vs. AC; 2d6 + 7 damage.

Javelin (standard; at-will) ✦ Weapon
Ranged 10/20; +26 vs. AC; 3d6 + 7 damage.

Harpooning Javelin (standard; requires javelin; recharge ⚄ ⚅) ✦ Weapon
Ranged 10/20; +26 vs. AC; 4d6 + 8 damage, and the target is pulled 3 squares and immobilized (save ends). Each Failed Saving Throw: The quom harpoonist pulls the target 3 squares.

Harpoonist's Determination (free, when an enemy within 5 squares of the quom harpoonist, or one that is immobilized by harpooning javelin, scores a critical hit; encounter)
The quom harpoonist makes a basic attack, shifts 1 square, pulls a creature immobilized by harpooning javelin 3 squares, or moves its speed.

Alignment Unaligned Languages Supernal
Skills Bluff +18, Insight +20
Str 19 (+13) Dex 25 (+16) Wis 22 (+15)
Con 22 (+15) Int 19 (+13) Cha 19 (+13)
Equipment scale armor, cutlass (short sword), 5 javelins

Quom Harpoonist Tactics

Standing behind a line of enforcers and fanatics, a quom harpoonist uses harpooning javelin as often as it can to immobilize enemies and pull them closer. Then it lets its allies do the rest.

Quom Desperate

When a quom's youth has passed and it knows its chance to be marked as a durud has faded, it bands with others of the same kind into a small, elite group who call themselves desperates.

Quom Desperate Level 21 Minion Skirmisher (Leader)
Medium immortal humanoid XP 800

Initiative +18 Senses Perception +15
HP 1; a missed attack never damages a minion.
AC 35; Fortitude 31, Reflex 31, Will 33
Speed 6, fly 3 (while within the Astral Sea)

⨺ Inspiring Cut (standard; requires broadsword; at-will) ✦ Weapon
+26 vs. AC; 11 damage, and one ally within 5 squares of the quom desperate rolls to recharge one of its powers.

✧ Cosmic Vengeance (when the quom desperate drops to 0 hit points)
Close burst 3; any enemy in the burst grants combat advantage until the end of its next turn.

Alignment Unaligned Languages Supernal
Str 23 (+16) Dex 23 (+16) Wis 20 (+15)
Con 20 (+15) Int 20 (+15) Cha 26 (+18)
Equipment scale armor, broadsword

Quom Desperate Tactics

A quom desperate fearlessly throws itself at its enemies for the advancement of the quom cause, using cosmic vengeance to this end as its dying action.

Durud Fragment Mage

Durud fragment mages draw their power through their link to the race's comet-ships, which are a part of Lakal.

Durud Fragment Mage Level 20 Elite Controller
Medium immortal humanoid, quom XP 5,600

Initiative +15 Senses Perception +19; all-around vision
HP 376; Bloodied 188
AC 33; Fortitude 30, Reflex 32, Will 31
Saving Throws +2
Speed 8, fly 6, teleport 3
Action Points 1

⨺ Dagger (standard; at-will) ✦ Weapon
+25 vs. AC; 2d4 + 8 damage.

⨷ Fragment Spike (standard; at-will) ✦ Force, Implement
Ranged 20; targets one or two creatures; +25 vs. Will; 3d8 + 8 force damage, and the target is knocked prone.

✲ Vortex of Lakal (standard; recharge ⚄ ⚅) ✦ Force, Implement, Radiant, Zone
Area burst 3 within 20; + 24 vs. Fortitude; 2d10 + 7 radiant damage, and the target is pulled 2 squares toward the origin square of the burst and slowed (save ends). The burst creates a zone that lasts until the end of the durud fragment mage's next turn. Any creature that ends its turn within the zone takes 20 force damage.

Implacable Determination (free, when an enemy within 5 squares of the durud fragment mage scores a critical hit; encounter)
The durud fragment mage can make a basic attack, shift 1 square, or move its speed.

Alignment Unaligned Languages Supernal
Str 23 (+16) Dex 20 (+15) Wis 19 (+14)
Con 20 (+15) Int 26 (+18) Cha 24 (+17)
Equipment: robe, dagger, orb

Durud Fragment Mage Tactics

Early in a battle, a durud fragment mage tries to target at least two enemies with vortex of Lakal, particularly if those foes are in difficult terrain or in other circumstances that will make it difficult to leave the zone while they are slowed. The mage's ranged and area attacks are so much better than its melee attack that it is usually willing to suffer one attack of opportunity if that is the only way to use its better attacks. The fragment mage then uses fragment spike until its vortex of Lakal recharges.

Durud Healer

A durud healer heals its allies by inflicting pain upon its enemies or stealing their vitality.

Durud Healer Level 21 Controller (Leader)
Medium immortal humanoid, quom XP 3,200

Initiative +16 Senses Perception +20; all-around vision
Lakal's Veil (Healing) aura 5; when an enemy within the aura gains temporary hit points, each of the durud healer's allies within the aura regains 10 hit points.
HP 196; Bloodied 98
AC 35; Fortitude 33, Reflex 33, Will 35
Speed 6, fly 3 (while within the Astral Sea)

⊕ Staff (standard; at-will) ✦ Weapon
+26 vs. AC; 3d6 + 8 damage.

Lakal's Wrath (standard; recharge ⚄ ⁞⁞) ✦ Healing, Radiant
Ranged 10; +25 vs. Fortitude; 3d6 + 7 radiant damage, and the target grants combat advantage until the end of the durud healer's next turn. The first ally of the durud healer to hit the target while it is granting combat advantage in this way regains 20 hit points.

Binding Burst (standard; at-will) ✦ Radiant
Area burst 1 within 10; targets enemies; 2d10 + 8 radiant damage, and the target is immobilized until the end of the durud healer's next turn.

Implacable Determination (free, when an enemy within 5 squares of the durud healer scores a critical hit; encounter)
The durud healer can make a basic attack, shift 1 square, or move its speed.

Surge Siphon (immediate interrupt; when an enemy within 3 squares of the durud healer uses or is the target of a healing power; at-will) ✦ Healing
The durud healer shifts 3 squares. If it ends this movement adjacent to the triggering enemy, the healing power grants only half its normal hit points, and each of the durud healer's allies within 5 squares of it regains 10 hit points.

Alignment Unaligned Languages Supernal
Skills Heal +20, Insight +20
Str 23 (+16) Dex 23 (+16) Wis 20 (+15)
Con 20 (+15) Int 20 (+15) Cha 26 (+18)
Equipment chainmail, staff

Durud Healer Tactics

A durud healer begins a battle by supporting its allies from a distance with binding burst and Lakal's wrath. It watches the battlefield carefully for the use of healing powers, using surge siphon to move up and redirect healing to its allies at every opportunity.

Durud fragment mage

Durud Slayer

As their name implies, durud slayers are expert killers, using their garrotes to deadly effect.

Durud Slayer Level 23 Lurker
Medium immortal humanoid, quom XP 5,100

Initiative +23 Senses Perception +22; all-around vision
HP 165; Bloodied 82
AC 37; Fortitude 35, Reflex 36, Will 34
Speed 8, fly 3 (while within the Astral Sea)

⊕ Dagger (standard; at-will) ✦ Weapon
+28 vs. AC; 4d4 + 10 damage.

Radiant Garrote (standard; at-will) ✦ Radiant
+26 vs. Reflex; 3d6 + 8 radiant damage, and the target is grabbed. The durud slayer can have only one target grabbed at a time. Sustain Minor: The grabbed target takes 4d4 + 10 damage.

Implacable Determination (free, when an enemy within 5 squares of the durud slayer scores a critical hit; encounter)
The durud slayer can make a basic attack, shift 1 square, or move its speed.

Retreating Step (immediate reaction, when an enemy grabbed by the durud slayer succeeds on its escape check) ✦ Teleportation
The durud slayer teleports 8 squares.

Slayer's Step (move; recharge ⁞⁞) ✦ Teleportation
The durud slayer and any creature it has grabbed teleport 8 squares. If the durud slayer has a creature grabbed, that creature must end its teleport adjacent to the slayer.

Alignment Unaligned Languages Supernal
Str 24 (+18) Dex 27 (+19) Wis 23 (+17)
Con 21 (+16) Int 21 (+16) Cha 22 (+17)
Equipment scale armor, dagger

ZOLTAN BOROS & GABOR SZIKSZAI

Durud Slayer Tactics

A vicious exactor of its dead god's wrath, a durud slayer uses radiant garrote to grab a victim before moving away with slayer's step to isolate its foe from any allies. At that point, the durud slayer viciously stabs its victim with dagger attacks while maintaining the grab. If the enemy escapes, it uses retreating step to ready itself for a new victim.

Quom Lore

Religion DC 13: The quom are a race of mortal humanoids that sail the Astral Sea in their great cometlike ships. Unlike other creatures of the astral, they are not immortal.

Religion DC 20: Once a race of peacemakers and healers, the quom abandoned their old morality when their realm was destroyed. Now they care only for their quest to reassemble the pieces of Lakal and to restore their god to her former glory. If they sense a piece of Lakal within a creature, no matter how tiny, they will slice that creature to ribbons to obtain the fragment.

Religion DC 25: The quom realm of Lakal was not just a homeland; she was also their deity. She died during the Dawn War when the final confrontation between Bahamut and a now-defunct primordial brought them crashing through Lakal's veil. For this reason, the quom attitude toward worshipers of living gods ranges from embittered to contemptuous. When negotiating with quom, it's best to avoid appeals to faith.

Encounter Groups

The quom can be found throughout the Astral Sea. They have been trained from a young age to work together in combat, each lending his or her particular skill to ensure success in battle.

Level 17 Encounter (XP 8,000)
- 2 quom fanatics (level 15 soldier)
- 2 quom enforcers (level 17 brute)
- 1 quom harpoonist (level 19 artillery)

Level 19 Encounter (XP 13,600)
- 1 durud healer (level 21 controller)
- 1 quom enforcer (level 17 brute)
- 2 quom harpoonists (level 19 artillery)
- 5 quom desperates (level 21 minion skirmisher)

Level 21 Encounter (XP 17,100)
- 1 durud healer (level 21 controller)
- 1 durud fragment mage (level 20 elite controller)
- 1 durud slayer (level 23 lurker)
- 4 quom desperates (level 21 minion skirmisher)

Stay Organized

This Dungeons & Dragons™ accessory presents official character record sheets for the D&D® Roleplaying Game. These sheets are designed for optimal playability and support characters of all classes from 1st to 30th level.

This accessory also includes 64 color-coded cards on which players can record their attack powers, utility powers, and magic item powers to speed play and reduce page-flipping during the game.

BONUS! This package also includes widescreen-style versions of the official character record sheet. These sheets reorganize the information presented on the standard sheet into a horizontal format that doesn't crowd the middle of the table—that precious territory the DM keeps telling you to clear off so he can lay out the next room in the dungeon.

These pages and cards are contained in an attractive, illustrated folder for storing your character sheet and all the campaign notes you gather while adventuring.

For use with these 4th Edition Dungeons & Dragons® core products:

Player's Handbook® Dungeon Master's Guide®

Monster Manual® D&D® Miniatures

Introduction

Lightning and thunder, illusions and implements, songs and summonings, curses and chaos—all of these are the tools of arcane characters. They have mastered the art of manipulating reality through the use of supernatural forces to wreak havoc on their enemies or help their friends win the day. The most accomplished of arcane characters can produce awesome results on the battlefield without ever needing to pick up a weapon.

Arcane Power™ is a manual of fantastic effects and mysterious abilities. In its pages are new ways to build an arcane character, along with new options to fill out your role as a bard, a sorcerer, a swordmage, a warlock, or a wizard. Members of nonarcane classes might find an appropriate multiclass feat or some useful rituals in these pages, but everything else is for arcane characters.

Using This Book

As you can see by the table of contents, Arcane Power is organized by class. Whether you have a character of a particular class or you want to make a character of that class, all you have to do is consult the proper chapter for new class features, builds, powers, and paragon paths. The final chapter of the book contains more than one hundred new feats; new rules for familiars; nine new epic destinies for arcane characters; a selection of magic tomes; several new rituals; and a brief discussion of arcane backgrounds.

Use the Arcane Power supplement to start playing a new character with a new build, to pick powers that better define your existing character, or to evolve your character with specific feats. The paragon paths introduced here might allow you to fully express the style you always intended your character to have.

Reimagining Your Character

It happens. You've played your arcane character a while, and suddenly Arcane Power shows up, offering many new possibilities—options you might have picked if you had known about them earlier.

Don't despair; you have a few choices. Retraining rules (see page 28 of the Player's Handbook®) make tapping into Arcane Power easy. If retraining won't do the trick quickly enough, talk to your DM and your fellow players about reworking your character along the lines Arcane Power provides. Chances are you can overhaul your PC to match your desires without doing any harm to the campaign. Your DM might even have a way to make the change a part of the story. If doing that ultimately proves too difficult, a dramatic exit for the older character could make way for a new one.

CHAPTER 1

Bard

"Melodies haunt me: songs of joy and sorrow, victory and defeat. They surface from the past, and echo faintly from futures yet to be."

As a bard, you are an arcane marvel capable of calling magic from art itself. You are viscerally moved by the poetry, songs, and narratives of ancient days and are inspired to reproduce the wonders they relate, or to create new legends of your own.

You are a consummate performer, and your magic is just one aspect of a grand display. A master of charm and illusion, you can spin a story so captivating or a musical recital so engrossing that hours might pass while the listener stands transfixed. In combat, you put these same skills to use, but instead of delighting an audience, you perform to destroy a foe. You revel in drama and creativity even in the midst of a vicious fight.

You are nothing if not versatile, capable of fighting with both sword or bow and spell. Few enemies fully appreciate your effectiveness—until it is too late. Your broad range of talent encompasses artistic ability, arcane lore, and knowledge of things long past—with glimpses of what is to come. You'll find support for all your abilities in this chapter. It includes the following material.

- New Class Feature: The Virtue of Prescience grants the wisdom of forethought to your bardic powers.
- New Build: Manipulate fortune and peer into the future as a prescient bard.
- New Bard Powers: New powers supplement the bard builds described in the Player's Handbook® 2 core rulebook, as well as the new prescient bard. Bards who favor the bow over the blade will also find plenty of opportunities here.
- New Paragon Paths: Use your talents to follow one of six new paths. Strike from afar with a combination of archery and music, bring death to evildoers with whispered verses of doom, or call forth the song of life itself.

STEVE ELLIS

NEW CLASS FEATURE

The new Virtue of Prescience option for the Bardic Virtue class feature is available to any bard. You can choose this option instead of Virtue of Cunning or Virtue of Valor.

Virtue of Prescience: Once per encounter as an immediate interrupt, when an enemy hits one ally within 5 squares of you, you grant that ally a power bonus equal to your Wisdom modifier to the defense targeted by the triggering enemy until the end of that enemy's turn.

NEW BUILD

Rhythm moderates the flow of your swordplay and the tenor of your spells. For you, all the world's a stage. The Player's Handbook 2 core rulebook described the cunning bard and the valorous bard. This chapter presents a third build, the prescient bard.

Prescient Bard

You have the foresight to navigate the twisting roads of luck and fate, emulating those heroes who were able to sense the truths beyond mere reality. By manipulating luck and glimpsing the future, you help your allies exploit every advantage, attacking your enemies' weakest defenses and avoiding mishaps in combat. You wield a ranged weapon, with which you can cast spells at enemies from a distance while inspiring allies. As with other bards, you use Charisma for your attack powers, so it should be your highest ability score. Choose Wisdom as your second-highest score, since it enhances the effects of powers that use the Virtue of Prescience. A decent Intelligence score is useful for improving your Armor Class and Reflex defense, as well as boosting the knowledge skills that you often use.

Suggested Class Feature: Virtue of Prescience
Suggested Feat: Extended Prescience*
Suggested Skills: Arcana, Diplomacy, History, Insight, Perception
Suggested At-Will Powers: guiding strike†, *jinx shot
Suggested Encounter Power: *prophesied strike
Suggested Daily Power: *arrow of warning
*New option presented in this book
†Presented in Player's Handbook 2

DRAGONBORN BARDS

With their naturally high Charisma scores, dragonborn make admirable bards. Proud and honorable, many choose the Virtue of Valor in order to emulate the battle exploits of racial warrior-heroes. Dragonborn bards keep alive the sagas of ancient Arkhosia.

WARREN MAHY

NEW BARD POWERS

Bards lead by emulating great heroes of legend, swaying the battle with exhortations to glory. The prescient bard leads from the rear, literally calling the shots. This section expands the abilities of all bards, with some powers focused on the prescient bard build and other, general spells suited to the repertoire of any bard.

Level 1 At-Will Spells

Jinx Shot — Bard Attack 1

Your expert shot renders your foe unaccountably clumsy.

At-Will ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Charisma modifier damage. The first time the target misses with an attack before the end of your next turn, it falls prone.
Level 21: 2[W] + Charisma modifier damage.

Level 1 Encounter Spells

Firemetal Shot — Bard Attack 1

You bury a bolt deep in your opponent's flesh. The bolt begins to glow red-hot.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Fire, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Charisma modifier damage. Until the end of your next turn, whenever an ally hits the target, the target takes extra fire damage equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Prophesied Strike — Bard Attack 1

You cast your mind's eye forward a split second, predicting the best moment for a telling blow.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Charisma modifier damage. The next time you or an ally attacks the target before the end of your next turn, the attacker rolls a d20 twice and uses either result.

Focused Sound — Bard Attack 1

With a resounding shout, you rattle your enemy and expose a vulnerable spot in its defenses.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d10 + Charisma modifier thunder damage. Until the end of your next turn, any attack against the target can score a critical hit on a roll of 18-20.

Prophetic Action — Bard Attack 1

You study your enemy and deduce its next move, letting an ally dodge its attack.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier psychic damage. Until the end of your next turn, the first time the target misses you or an ally with an attack, one target (your choice) of that attack can shift a number of squares equal to your Wisdom modifier (minimum 1) as an immediate reaction.

Thunder's Calling — Bard Attack 1

You chant a verse of storm and thunder, sending your foe tumbling and leaving it open for a deadly shot.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Ranged 5
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 1d8 + Charisma modifier thunder damage, and you slide the target a number of squares equal to your Constitution modifier. If no creatures are adjacent to the target at the end of this movement, choose an ally within 10 squares of you to make a ranged basic attack against the target as a free action.

Level 1 Daily Spells

Arrow of Warning — Bard Attack 1

Your shot hinders an enemy and gives its would-be target the perfect opportunity.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Immediate Interrupt Ranged weapon
Trigger: An enemy within range makes an attack roll against an ally
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 3[W] + Charisma modifier damage. The ally who was attacked by the triggering enemy can make an at-will attack against that enemy as a free action. The ally gains a bonus to this attack roll equal to your Wisdom modifier (minimum 1).
Miss: Half damage.

Echoing Roar — Bard Attack 1

Your resounding song hammers your foe, dogging its steps and making escape impossible.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d6 + Charisma modifier thunder damage.
Effect: The target is affected by an echoing roar (save ends). While affected by the echoing roar, the target takes ongoing 5 thunder damage and cannot become hidden or benefit from concealment or cover (except for total concealment or superior cover).

Malevolent Mischief — Bard Attack 1

You plague your foe with a spell of ill luck, causing knots to unravel and straps to part so that it stumbles like an oaf.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d8 + Charisma modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: The target is affected by ill luck (save ends). While affected by ill luck, the target is slowed until the end of its next turn whenever you or an ally hits it with an attack.

Saga of Rivalry — Bard Attack 1

As you launch an arrow, you recite a tale of hatred and challenge, inciting one of your allies to fight that foe to the end.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Charisma modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Choose an ally within 10 squares of you. The target takes 5 damage at the end of its turn if it is not adjacent to that ally (save ends). The ally gains a +2 power bonus to attack rolls against the target until the end of the encounter.

Satire of Fortune — Bard Attack 1

You mock your foe's luck, using your verse to make your insults come painfully true.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier psychic damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: The next time an ally misses the target with an attack during this encounter, you roll a d20 and replace the ally's attack roll with yours.

Level 2 Utility Spells

Canon of Avoidance — Bard Utility 2

Your song of protection trips from ally to ally, cloaking each one in a magical shield.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One ally
Effect: The target gains a +2 power bonus to all defenses until the end of your next turn.
Sustain Minor: The effect persists. When you sustain the effect, you can transfer it to another ally within 10 squares of you.

Clockwork Precision — Bard Utility 2

You hum a simple tune of unity, allowing you and your allies to better work together.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Standard Action Close burst 10
Target: You and each ally in burst
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, each target gains a +2 bonus to skill checks and to attack rolls made to aid another. When a target successfully aids another, he or she grants a +3 bonus instead of a +2 bonus.

Concerted Effort — Bard Utility 2

Your magic hums around your allies, growing in power as they redouble their efforts toward the task at hand.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Standard Action Close burst 10
Target: You and each ally in burst
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, each target gains a +1 power bonus to attack rolls. Whenever a target hits with at least one attack during his or her turn, the bonus increases by 1 for each target whose turn has not yet started.

Half-Elf Bards

With their innately superior Constitution and Charisma scores, half-elves make excellent bards. Such characters gravitate to diplomatic roles, including the half-elf emissary paragon path (page 21). Though half-elves can readily exploit the Virtue of Cunning and the Virtue of Prescience, most are drawn to the Virtue of Valor so that they can inspire allies to greatness.

Moment of Escape — Bard Utility 2

You distract your enemies with a quick refrain, giving your embattled ally a chance to get away.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Move Action Ranged 10
Target: One ally
Effect: You slide the target 4 squares.

Words of Protective Fate — Bard Utility 2

Your voice shields your allies against misfortune, turning otherwise deadly blows into less damaging strikes.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Standard Action Close burst 10
Target: You and each ally in burst
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, whenever a critical hit is scored on the target, you roll a d20. If you roll a 10 or higher, the attack hits but is not a critical hit.

Level 3 Encounter Spells

Cruel Fate — Bard Attack 3

Fate has nothing kind in store for your enemies.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Charisma modifier damage. The next time the target is hit by an attack before the end of your next turn, the attacker rerolls the attack's damage and uses the higher result.

Entangling Opening — Bard Attack 3

A well-placed shot creates an opening for a follow-up attack that knocks your foe prone.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Psychic, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 2[W] + Charisma modifier psychic damage. The next time the target is hit by an attack before the end of your next turn, it is knocked prone.

Recitation of Foreknowledge — Bard Attack 3

You recount the tale of a great trickster-warrior, whose uncanny awareness flusters opponents and inspires allies.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 1d6 + Charisma modifier psychic damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target grants combat advantage to one ally within 10 squares of you.
Effect: One ally within 10 squares of you gains a +4 bonus to AC against opportunity attacks until the end of your next turn.
Virtue of Prescience: The ally's bonus to AC against opportunity attacks equals 3 + your Wisdom modifier.

Rhyme of the Blood-Seeking Blade — Bard Attack 3

You swiftly loose a shot while chanting of sundered metal, and your foe's armor no longer withstands your friend's strike.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Immediate Interrupt Ranged weapon
Trigger: An ally misses with a melee attack
Target: The target of the triggering ally's attack
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 1[W] + Charisma modifier damage. The target takes a -4 penalty to all defenses against the triggering ally's attack.
Virtue of Prescience: The target's penalty to all defenses equals 3 + your Wisdom modifier.

Song of the New Dawn — Bard Attack 3

You call upon the sun's light to sear your foe and shine hope on your allies.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier radiant damage. Each ally adjacent to the target makes a saving throw, rolling twice and using the higher result.

Level 5 Daily Spells

Arrow of Ill Omen — Bard Attack 5

The arrow you fire is a harbinger of your foe's doom. Where it strikes, death follows.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Charisma modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Choose an ally within 10 squares of you. Until the end of the encounter, when that ally hits the target but does not score a critical hit, you roll a d20. If you roll a 15 or higher, that attack becomes a critical hit, and this effect ends.

Compulsion — Bard Attack 5

You croon a beguiling melody, inducing your foe to wander wherever you direct it.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Charm, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier psychic damage, and you slide the target 5 squares either at the start of its turn or at the end of its turn (save ends). Until it saves, the target cannot take move actions on its turn.
Miss: Half damage. You slide the target 5 squares either at the start of its turn or at the end of its next turn, and it cannot take move actions on its next turn.

Rhyme of Fire — Bard Attack 5

You whisper of the unquenchable fire that burns at the heart of the world, causing flames to erupt deep within your enemy.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fire, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d6 + Charisma modifier fire damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, whenever an ally hits the target, the target takes fire damage equal to your Charisma modifier.

Strictures of Fortune — Bard Attack 5

Your song of fortune assists your allies and impedes your enemies.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 3d8 + Charisma modifier psychic damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: The next time the target would recharge a power before the end of the encounter, the power instead does not recharge, and you or an ally within 10 squares of you regains the use of an encounter power.

Vigorous Cadence — Bard Attack 5

Your chant inspires health and valor. With each of your enemy's attacks, an ally's wounds are mended.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Healing, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d6 + Charisma modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, whenever the target makes an attack roll, your ally nearest to it regains hit points equal to your Charisma modifier.

Level 6 Utility Spells

Chord of Resilience — Bard Utility 6

With notes of steel and stone, you preserve your ally from harm.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Immediate Interrupt Ranged 10
Trigger: An attack hits an ally
Target: The ally who was hit
Effect: The damage the target takes is reduced by an amount equal to 5 + your Charisma modifier.

Dramatic Shift — Bard Utility 6

You recite your allies' glorious tale, helping to set them in position for triumph.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Close burst 5
Target: You and each ally in burst
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, each target can shift as a minor action.

Glimpse the Future — Bard Utility 6

Just as you uphold the examples of the past, so too do you draw on the future to inspire your companions.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Roll a d20 three times and keep the highest roll. Once before the end of the encounter, you can use this roll to replace a d20 roll of an ally within 10 squares of you.

Song of Speed — Bard Utility 6

With a rousing refrain, you imbue an ally or yourself with superior speed and agility.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Ranged 10
Target: You or an ally
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, the target gains a +4 power bonus to speed and can shift 1 extra square whenever he or she shifts.

Synchronicity — Bard Utility 6

A single chord is all it takes to spur your allies forward.

Daily ✦ Arcane
No Action Close burst 10
Target: You and each ally in burst
Trigger: You roll initiative
Effect: Each target gains a +5 bonus to initiative during this encounter.

Level 7 Encounter Spells

Chillsong Stroke — Bard Attack 7

Your rhythm of winter draws vigor from your foe and infuses it into your ally, who leaps forward.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Cold, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Charisma modifier cold damage, and the target is slowed until the end of your next turn. An ally within 3 squares of you can shift 4 squares as a free action.

Insightful Shot — Bard Attack 7

As your arrow streaks forth, it guides the way to your foe's most vulnerable spot.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 2[W] + Charisma modifier damage. All the target's defenses are equal to its lowest defense until the next time it is hit by an attack.
Virtue of Prescience: The next attack that hits the target gains a bonus to the damage roll equal to your Wisdom modifier.

Rewrite the Future — Bard Attack 7

With a wave of the hand, this shot's arcane energy can change an enemy's future.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Charisma modifier damage, and you roll a d20. Until the end of your next turn, you can replace an ally's attack roll against the target with your d20 roll or replace the target's attack roll with your d20 roll as a free action.

Song of Duplicitous Allure — Bard Attack 7

The soft tones of your voice draw your foe closer.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Charm, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier psychic damage, and you pull the target 2 squares. Until the end of your next turn, each time the target is hit by a ranged attack, you pull it 1 square.

Theft of Life — Bard Attack 7

As you shout a word of power, health and vitality drain from your foe and refresh a nearby ally.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Healing, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier damage.
Effect: An ally adjacent to the target can spend a healing surge and also gains temporary hit points equal to your Intelligence modifier.

You punctuate a tale of bloody vengeance with your shot, each word inspiring your allies.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Healing, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Charisma modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, whenever an ally hits the target with an attack, that ally can choose to roll a saving throw or to regain hit points equal to your Charisma modifier.

Symphony of Misfortune — Bard Attack 9

You unleash a song of missed chances, lost hope, and tragic accidents, bringing bad luck to your enemies.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic, Zone
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 1d10 + Charisma modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: The burst creates a zone of misfortune that lasts until the end of your next turn. Choose one of the following misfortune effects; until the end of your next turn, each enemy that starts its turn within the zone is subject to that effect.
✦ The enemy is slowed.
✦ The enemy takes psychic damage equal to your Charisma modifier.
✦ The enemy grants combat advantage to your allies.
Sustain Minor: The zone persists. You can choose a new misfortune effect for the zone when you sustain this power.

Wail of Anguish — Bard Attack 9

A threnody of loss and sorrow saps your foes' ability to escape harm.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you can make the following attack.
Opportunity Action Close burst 3
Trigger: An enemy starts its turn within 3 squares of you
Target: The triggering enemy in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 1d10 + Charisma modifier damage, and the target cannot shift until the end of your next turn.
Sustain Minor: The effect persists.

Level 10 Utility Spells

Break Enchantment — Bard Utility 10

Your arcane poem frees your allies' minds.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement
Minor Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each ally in burst
Effect: The target rolls a saving throw. If the saving throw is against a charm, a fear, or an illusion effect, the target gains a bonus to the saving throw equal to your Charisma modifier.

Chant of Accuracy — Bard Utility 10

You recite the legend of the arrow that found the single gap in a foe's armor, inspiring your companions to strike true.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Close burst 10
Target: You and each ally in burst
Effect: Each target gains a +2 power bonus to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

Idyll of Calm — Bard Utility 10

You hum a soft song that cools your allies' tempers and helps them focus.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Zone
Minor Action Close burst 5
Effect: The burst creates a zone of calm that lasts until the end of the encounter. When you move, the zone moves with you, remaining centered on you. Each ally within the zone gains a +2 power bonus to Will, and any penalty to attack rolls that such an ally takes is lessened by 2.

Illuminating Stars — Bard Utility 10

You invoke the light of the full moon and the guiding star of the north, revealing hidden foes to your allies.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you and any allies within 5 squares of you gain a +5 power bonus to Insight checks and Perception checks.

Mantle of Unity — Bard Utility 10

A swelling chorus of confidence enfolds your allies, so that the strengths of each mask another's weakness.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Close burst 5
Target: You and each ally in burst
Effect: Determine the highest AC, Fortitude, Reflex, and Will among all the targets. Until the end of your next turn, use these values for the corresponding defenses of all the targets.

Savior's Song — Bard Utility 10

You inspire determination and focus in your allies with hopeful verses of battles won despite daunting odds.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, each ally who ends his or her turn within 5 squares of you can reroll one saving throw that he or she fails during that turn.

Level 13 Encounter Spells

Couplet of Deceptive Weakness — Bard Attack 13

You draw on a legendary stratagem, feigning vulnerability to lure your foe into a trap.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Immediate Reaction Melee weapon
Trigger: An enemy moves into a square adjacent to you
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Charisma modifier damage, and an ally within 5 squares of you can shift 5 squares as a free action. That ally must end this movement adjacent to the target and then can make a melee basic attack against the target as a free action.

Enduring Struggle — Bard Attack 13

You shout a verse of triumph as you fire, urging your allies to fight to the end.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Healing, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Charisma modifier damage, and each ally within 3 squares of the target regains hit points equal to your Charisma modifier.

Insult of Passivity — Bard Attack 13

Under a barrage of jeers, your foe is rendered hesitant and fearful.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Fear, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier psychic damage, and the target is dazed until the end of the encounter or until it is hit or missed by an attack.

Sharp Retort — Bard Attack 13

Your quick rejoinder speaks of enduring pain and misfortune, hindering your enemy's attempt to throw off a harmful effect.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Immediate Interrupt Ranged 10
Trigger: An enemy rolls a saving throw
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier psychic damage, and the target takes a -2 penalty to the saving throw.
Virtue of Prescience: The target's penalty to the saving throw equals 1 + your Wisdom modifier.

Slippery Feet — Bard Attack 13

You recite an ode to the winter wind, coating your foe's steps in ice.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Cold, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier cold damage, and the target is slowed until the end of your next turn. Whenever the target is hit by an attack while it is slowed by this power, you slide the target 1 square.

Level 15 Daily Spells

Fated Vulnerability — Bard Attack 15

Your foe cannot escape the terrible doom you dictate for it.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 2[W] + Charisma modifier damage. Choose acid, cold, fire, force, lightning, or thunder. The target grants combat advantage and gains vulnerable 10 to attacks that have the chosen keyword (save ends both).
Miss: Half damage. Choose acid, cold, fire, force, lightning, or thunder. Until the end of your next turn, the target grants combat advantage and gains vulnerable 10 to attacks that have the chosen keyword.

Hole in the Mind — Bard Attack 15

Your maddening chant sears your enemy's thoughts, blinding it to your ally's threat.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 3d8 + Charisma modifier psychic damage, and one ally within 10 squares of you becomes invisible to the target (save ends).
Miss: Half damage. One ally within 10 squares of you becomes invisible to the target until the end of your next turn.

Iceshard Shot — Bard Attack 15

You chant a verse of the northern ice as you draw your bow, and hoarfrost glitters on the arrowhead as it leaps to its target.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Cold, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Charisma modifier cold damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: The target takes ongoing 10 cold damage (save ends). If you or an ally hits the target with an attack, it automatically fails its next saving throw against this effect.

Satire of Evasion — Bard Attack 15

Your piercing wit mocks your enemy's defensive maneuvers and renders it more easily hit.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 2d6 + Charisma modifier damage, and the target is affected by your satire of evasion (save ends). While the target is affected by the satire, whenever an ally misses it with an attack, you can roll a d20 and replace the ally's die roll with yours.
Miss: Half damage. Until the end of your next turn, whenever an ally misses the target with an attack, you can roll a d20 and replace the ally's die roll with yours.

Wall of Sound — Bard Attack 15

A shimmering, pounding wall of thunder rumbles into existence.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Conjuration, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Area wall 6 within 10 squares
Effect: You conjure a wall of contiguous squares filled with deafening thunder that lasts until the end of your next turn. The wall can be up to 4 squares high. A creature that starts its turn adjacent to the wall takes 1d6 + your Charisma modifier thunder damage. If a creature moves into the wall's space or starts its turn there, the creature takes 1d10 + your Charisma modifier thunder damage, and it is deafened until the end of the encounter. Each enemy that is hit by an attack while it is adjacent to the wall or in the wall's space is dazed until the end of its next turn. Entering a square occupied by the wall costs 1 extra square of movement.
Sustain Minor: The wall persists.

Wracking Radiance — Bard Attack 15

A burst of light damages your foe and wracks it with anguish. As your enemy's suffering continues, bursts of light heal your nearby allies.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Healing, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier radiant damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: The target takes ongoing 5 radiant damage (save ends). Whenever the target fails a saving throw against this effect, each ally within 5 squares of the target regains 5 hit points.
Aftereffect: Each ally within 5 squares of the target regains 5 hit points and also gains a +2 power bonus to AC until the end of the target's next turn.

Level 16 Utility Spells

Allied Rhythm — Bard Utility 16

The greatest heroes always had a little help from their friends.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Ranged 10
Target: You or an ally
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, the target gains a power bonus to each of his or her attack rolls equal to the number of allies adjacent to the target of each of those attacks.

Chorus of Vitality — Bard Utility 16

With a soaring oration to victory and perseverance, you lift your allies' spirits and dispel the pain of their wounds.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Healing
Minor Action Close burst 5
Target: You and each ally in burst
Effect: Each target can spend a healing surge. Also, each target can shift 2 squares as a free action.

Haste — Bard Utility 16

You briefly gesture, and your companion suddenly acts in a blur of motion.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Ranged 10
Target: You or an ally
Effect: The target gains and immediately uses a standard action.

Heroic Interjection — Bard Utility 16

As your enemy presses the attack, you call upon the innate heroism of your companions to respond in kind.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Immediate Reaction Ranged 10
Trigger: An enemy within 10 squares of you spends an action point
Target: You or an ally
Effect: The target gains an action point that he or she must spend before the end of the encounter. In addition, the target can spend 2 action points during this encounter instead of 1.

Level 17 Encounter Spells

Balance of Fortune — Bard Attack 17

You disrupt fortune's weave, shifting it to give your allies a little more luck at the expense of one of your foes.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 2[W] + Charisma modifier damage. Until the end of your next turn, whenever the target makes an attack roll, you roll a d4 and subtract your roll from the target's attack roll. Until the end of your next turn, whenever an ally makes an attack roll against the target, you roll a d4 and add your roll to your ally's attack roll.
Virtue of Prescience: You roll a d6 instead of a d4 when modifying attack rolls.

Inescapable Fate — Bard Attack 17

Like a well-rehearsed troupe, your allies circle around your foe as you strike.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Charisma modifier damage. Until the end of your next turn, when the target is hit by an attack, the attacker rerolls the attack's damage roll and uses the higher result.

Resounding War Cry — Bard Attack 17

Your war cry echoes among your foes, knocking them off balance and leaving them open to your allies' attacks.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d6 + Charisma modifier thunder damage. If an ally hits the target with an attack before the end of your next turn, the target is dazed until the end of your next turn.

Strings of Fate — Bard Attack 17

As you make an appeal to the fates of battle, your arrows streak toward your enemies, bypassing their armor to bind their doom.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One, two, or three creatures
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 1[W] + Charisma modifier damage. Until the end of your next turn, attacks against the target's AC instead target its Reflex.

Turning the Tide — Bard Attack 17

You call upon the legends of great heroes' perseverance to inspire your allies in their hour of need.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Healing, Implement
Standard Action Close blast 3
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier damage. Until the end of your next turn, each ally who hits the target can spend a healing surge. An ally can spend only one healing surge in this way.

Level 19 Daily Spells

Corralling Song — Bard Attack 19

Beguiling words entice your foes to cluster together, exposing them to devastating area attacks.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 10 squares
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 2d6 + Charisma modifier psychic damage. If the target is not adjacent to an enemy, you can slide the target 3 squares to a space that must be adjacent to an enemy.
Miss: Half damage. If the target is not adjacent to an enemy, you can slide it 1 square to a space that must be adjacent to an enemy.
Effect: Each target that is adjacent to an enemy after this attack is resolved takes 10 psychic damage at the end of its turn if it is not adjacent to an enemy at that time (save ends).

Linked Fortunes — Bard Attack 19

Your magic grants your friends superior luck, but the wheel of fate gives luck to your enemies in equal measure.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Charisma modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: The target is affected by linked fortunes (save ends). While it is affected by linked fortunes, as an immediate interrupt, when the target is missed by an ally's attack, you can roll a d20 and replace the ally's attack roll with yours. Whenever you do so, the target can roll a d20 once during its next turn and replace its attack roll with that roll.

Mocking Epigram — Bard Attack 19

Your vicious lampoon enrages your foe, causing it to swing blindly and harm its allies.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Charm, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 3d8 + Charisma modifier damage, and the target is affected by your mocking epigram (save ends). While affected by the mocking epigram, the target is weakened, and whenever it hits an ally with an attack, that attack also hits one enemy of your choice within range of that attack, including the target itself. The target cannot hit a given enemy more than once with a single attack.
Miss: Half damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target is weakened, and whenever it hits an ally with an attack, that attack also hits one enemy of your choice within range of that attack, including the target itself. The target cannot hit a given enemy more than once with a single attack.

Saga of the Harrying Foe — Bard Attack 19

You declaim a tale of glorious single combat, compelling your enemy to seek out and do battle with your ally.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Psychic, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 2[W] + Charisma modifier damage, and you slide the target 5 squares to a space that must be adjacent to an ally. That ally gains a +2 power bonus to attack rolls against the target until the end of the encounter. In addition, the target takes 10 psychic damage at the end of its turn if it is not adjacent to that ally (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and you slide the target 5 squares to a space that must be adjacent to an ally. That ally gains a +1 power bonus to attack rolls against the target until the end of the encounter. In addition, the target takes 5 psychic damage at the end of its turn if it is not adjacent to that ally (save ends).

Spring to Action — Bard Attack 19

Intoning a melody of the planes, you thin the boundaries between realities so that your allies travel far in one step.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Teleportation, Zone
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 20 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 4d6 + Charisma modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: The burst creates a zone of warped space that lasts until the end of your next turn. While the zone persists, you and any allies within 20 squares of you can use a move action to teleport to an unoccupied space within the zone.
Sustain Minor: The zone persists.

Level 22 Utility Spells

Assured Recovery — Bard Utility 22

You give an ally a second chance to shake off an affliction.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Immediate Interrupt Ranged 10
Trigger: An ally fails a saving throw
Target: The triggering ally
Effect: The target rerolls the saving throw with a bonus equal to your Charisma modifier.

Note of Aggression — Bard Utility 22

A shouted verse of battle rage spurs an unexpected attack.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Close burst 10
Target: You or one ally in burst
Effect: The target can charge or make a melee basic attack as a free action.

Climactic Chord — Bard Utility 22

You call on the fighting spirit of your allies, compelling them to strike as one.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Close burst 10
Target: Each ally in burst
Effect: Each target can make a basic attack or use an at-will attack power as a free action, with a power bonus to the attack roll and the damage roll equal to your Charisma modifier.

Ode to the Daring — Bard Utility 22

Your song of praise inspires your allies to cast aside their injuries and pains and fight on.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Healing
Minor Action Close burst 10
Target: You and each ally in burst
Effect: Each target regains hit points as if he or she had spent a healing surge. Add 1d10 + your Charisma modifier to the hit points regained by each target. Each target can also roll a saving throw.

Bardic Virtues

The virtues that bards espouse—cunning, valor, prescience, and others—are more than just themes running through the tales of the ancient heroes. As a bard, you weave these virtues into your magic. Just as the words of your songs and tales inspire your allies to emulate the heroes of the past, your spells imbue your allies with the essence of the virtues, magically enhancing their capabilities. Your magic can make your allies more cunning, more brave, more prescient—in short, more like the great heroes they are destined to become.

Level 23 Encounter Spells

Chant of Bad Fortune — Bard Attack 23

Your song unravels the skein of fate, dooming your foes.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Close burst 5
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 3d6 + Charisma modifier psychic damage, and the target takes a -5 penalty to saving throws until the end of your next turn.
Effect: Each ally in the burst can roll a saving throw.

Mind Game — Bard Attack 23

You utter a string of distracting and disparaging remarks, turning your enemy's attention toward you rather than toward your ally.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Charm, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier psychic damage. Until the end of your next turn, each ally who makes an attack roll against the target can choose to target its Will instead of the defense normally targeted by the ally's attack.

Reverberating Shot — Bard Attack 23

Your bow shot echoes with the power of legendary heroes, assailing your foe and fortifying your allies.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Thunder, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 3[W] + Charisma modifier thunder damage. Each ally within 5 squares of the target chooses to gain a +2 power bonus either to AC or to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.
Virtue of Prescience: The power bonus equals 1 + your Wisdom modifier.

Sound Strike — Bard Attack 23

You loose a shot as you inveigh against your foe, confounding its defenses so that an ally's strike is sure to score a deadly wound.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Thunder, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Charisma modifier thunder damage. The next attack roll made against the target before the end of your next turn targets all of its defenses. For each defense the attack hits beyond the first, the attack deals 1d10 extra damage.

Level 25 Daily Spells

Intimidating Visage — Bard Attack 25

In your enemies' eyes, you and your allies become awe-inspiring figures. Your foes are so impressed by you that they choose to remain next to you.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fear, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Close burst 10
Target: Each enemy in burst that is adjacent to you or an ally
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 1d10 + Charisma modifier psychic damage. The target takes 10 psychic damage at the end of its turn if it is not adjacent to you or an ally within 10 squares of you.
Miss: Half damage, and you slide the target 1 square.

Leave It Dead — Bard Attack 25

With a single shot of your weapon, you intensify your allies' attack against your adversary.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3[W] + Charisma modifier damage. Until the end of the encounter, whenever you or an ally rolls the maximum result on any damage die against the target, reroll the die and add that result as extra damage to the total damage dealt.
Miss: Half damage. Until the end of your next turn, whenever you or an ally rolls the maximum result on any damage die against the target, reroll the die and add that result as extra damage to the total damage dealt.

Sculpt Fate — Bard Attack 25

Your song no longer describes your enemy's fate—it creates it.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 20 squares
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 4d10 + Charisma modifier psychic damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Roll a number of d20s equal to the number of targets you hit with this attack. Until the end of the encounter, as a free action you can force an enemy within 20 squares of you to replace an attack roll or a saving throw with one of your rolls. You can use each roll only once.

Virtuoso of Misfortune — Bard Attack 25

You manipulate luck like a master musician, turning good fortune to bad and victory to doom.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 20 squares
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 3d6 + Charisma modifier damage, and the target takes a -5 penalty to saving throws (save ends). Until the end of the encounter, whenever the target fails a saving throw, an ally within 5 squares of the target can roll a saving throw.
Miss: Half damage, and the target takes a -5 penalty to saving throws until the end of your next turn.

Level 27 Encounter Spells

Binding Rhyme — Bard Attack 27

You loose an arrow and chant a verse of imprisonment, binding your enemies with arcane strands.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Force, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 2[W] + Charisma modifier force damage, and you slide the target 5 squares to a space that must be adjacent to one of its allies. Until the end of its next turn, the target is immobilized, and each enemy that starts its turn adjacent to the target takes 20 force damage at the end of its turn if that enemy is not adjacent to the target at that time.

Crescendo of Victory — Bard Attack 27

Your attack is the beginning of your foe's destruction.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Charisma modifier damage. Until the end of your next turn, you and your allies gain a +2 power bonus to attack rolls against the target.

Pounding Rhythm — Bard Attack 27

Your allies' attacks fall like drumbeats, pummeling your foes.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Close blast 3
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier thunder damage. If an ally hits the target before the end of your next turn, the target is stunned until the end of its next turn.

Second Chances — Bard Attack 27

It's good to have second chances when your life is on the line.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier psychic damage. Each ally within 3 squares of the target can reroll one attack roll before the start of your next turn.

Strike from Legend — Bard Attack 27

You embody a hero of old, smiting your foe with savage fury and filling your allies with renewed hope.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Healing, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Charisma modifier damage. If the target is reduced to 0 hit points or fewer by this attack, each ally within 5 squares of the target gains a +2 power bonus to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

If the target is not reduced to 0 hit points or fewer by this attack, each ally within 5 squares of the target can spend a healing surge; add your Constitution modifier to the hit points regained by each ally.

Level 29 Daily Spells

Arrow of Destiny — Bard Attack 29

What this arrow pierces soon falls.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Charisma modifier damage, and the target is affected by your arrow of destiny (save ends). While the target is affected by the arrow of destiny, whenever the target is hit by an attack from an ally, you can use an immediate interrupt to make the attack a critical hit.
Miss: Half damage. If the target is hit by an attack from an ally before the end of your next turn, you can use an immediate interrupt to make the attack a critical hit.

Horrifying Truth — Bard Attack 29

Your cruel pronouncement becomes truer with every strike.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Effect: The target is dazed (save ends).
Hit: 4d8 + Charisma modifier damage. If the target is hit by an attack while it is dazed by this power, it becomes stunned instead (save ends).
Miss: Half damage.

Saga of Foretold Doom — Bard Attack 29

An ancient cycle's prophesied victory resembles this one more and more.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 5[W] + Charisma modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: If the target is hit by an attack from an ally, it is weakened until the end of the target's next turn (save ends).

Shockwave Strike — Bard Attack 29

Rolling bursts of thunder smash your opponents and continue to echo among them.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Close burst 5
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 4d8 + Charisma modifier thunder damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: The target takes a -2 penalty to AC until the end of your next turn.
Sustain Minor: Each enemy within 5 squares of you takes thunder damage equal to your Constitution modifier and takes a -2 penalty to AC until the end of your next turn.

WAYNE ENGLAND

Cunning Prevaricator

"There is a saying among the fey creatures who trip between worlds: Only through dishonesty is honor earned."

Prerequisite: Bard

Fey tricksters, gnomes, and storytellers of every race know many legends unfamiliar to other creatures—tales from secluded forests, burrows deep underground, the lairs of powerful beasts, and the locked vaults of powerful monarchs. And what they don't know, they make up.

As a cunning prevaricator, you traffic in the honored (at least among some) traditions of exaggeration, misdirection, and out-and-out lying. You study and follow the teachings of great fabulists of the past—all of them fictional, almost certainly—and apply that knowledge to your bardic skills. You transfer your natural talent for illusion and deception to your friends, granting them some small measure of glory—or so you try to convince them.

Cunning Prevaricator Path Features

Virtue of Deceit (11th level): When you use your Bardic Virtue class feature, one ally you choose within 5 squares of you gains combat advantage against the target of his or her next attack.

Shrouding Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you and one ally you choose within 5 squares of you become invisible until the end of your next turn.

Trickster's Mercy (16th level): When you use majestic word to heal a bloodied ally, that ally becomes invisible until the start of his or her next turn.

Cunning Prevaricator Spells

Lying Lights — Cunning Prevaricator Attack 11

As your allies strike the chosen foe, they vanish in clouds of glittering light.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d8 + Charisma modifier radiant damage. Each ally who hits the target before the end of your next turn becomes invisible until the end of his or her next turn. This invisibility ends if the ally makes an attack roll.

Trickery's Reward — Cunning Prevaricator Utility 12

With words of cunning wisdom, you guide your ally's defenses, foiling your enemies' attack one way or another.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Healing
Immediate Interrupt Close burst 10
Trigger: An attack misses an ally within 10 squares of you
Target: The ally that was missed by the triggering attack
Effect: The target gains a bonus to all defenses that the triggering attack targets equal to your Intelligence modifier. If the triggering attack misses, the target gains the bonus to those defenses until the end of your next turn. If the triggering attack hits, the target regains hit points as if he or she had spent a healing surge.

Nimbus of Falsehood — Cunning Prevaricator Attack 20

You cast magical dust into your enemy's face, blurring its vision and confounding its actions.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 4d8 + Charisma modifier psychic damage, and the target is affected by your nimbus of falsehood (save ends). While affected by the nimbus of falsehood, if the target misses with a melee attack, you can use an immediate interrupt to have the attack hit a different creature, including the target, within the attack's range.
Miss: Half damage. If the target misses with a melee attack before the end of your next turn, you can use an immediate interrupt to have the attack hit a different creature, including the target, within the attack's range.

WAYNE REYNOLDS

Euphonic Bow

"Each arrow's release plucks the string of my lethal instrument. My bow sings a dirge for your passing."

Prerequisite: Bard

You intertwine music, archery, and magic into a single glorious craft that is as artistic as it is martial. Your foes waver between fear and admiration even as you draw a bead on them. Every shot from your bowstring resonates with a melodious tone, and the percussion of your arrows finding their marks drives the battle forward like a drumbeat. Even your foes' cries of pain blend with the clash of weapons against shields and armor. Your arcane might weaves it all into a fantastic symphony of battle.

Creating this wondrous performance depends partially on your ability to see an instant into the future. Timing is everything.

Euphonic Bow Path Features

Bow Implement (11th level): You can use a bow as an implement for your bard attack powers. Add the bow's enhancement bonus to attack rolls and damage rolls, as well as to any extra damage granted by a property (if applicable) when using the bow as an implement. You do not add your weapon proficiency bonus to the attack roll when you use your bow as an implement.

JASON ENGLE

When you use a bow as an implement for a ranged bard attack power, the power's range is increased to the bow's normal range (if the power's range is shorter). You can also use the power at the bow's long range, with the normal –2 penalty to the attack roll.

Harmonic Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, one ally you choose within 10 squares of you can make a basic attack as a free action.

Volley Fire (16th level): If you score a critical hit with a ranged bard attack power, you can make a ranged basic attack against the target as a free action.

Euphonic Bow Spells

Arrow of Cacophony Euphonic Bow Attack 11

Your shot releases a blast of sound that overwhelms your foe.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Thunder, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Charisma modifier thunder damage, and the target is deafened and dazed until the end of your next turn.

Song of Sonic Striking Euphonic Bow Utility 12

You hum a low tone that reverberates in the air, warping the flight of your arrows so that they speed true to their marks.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, your attacks with a bow ignore cover and concealment, including superior cover but not total concealment.

Anthem of Antagonism Euphonic Bow Attack 20

Your foe's offenses return to it as a wailing storm that engulfs its allies while your bow shots repay its evil deeds in full.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Thunder, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Charisma modifier thunder damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: The target is affected by your anthem of antagonism (save ends). While it is affected by the anthem, at the start of each of your turns, the target is the center of a burst 5 explosion of clashing noise. Each enemy in the burst takes thunder damage equal to your Wisdom modifier. You gain a power bonus to the attack roll of your next ranged weapon attack on that turn equal to the number of enemies that take damage in this way.

Grave Caller

"Some deserve nothing but death, and those most deserving are marked by their crimes. Like a requiem's crescendo, I pursue the marked ever more closely to give them their due."

Prerequisite: Bard

Rumors of an ancient organization of assassin-bards sometimes surface in taverns. Such tales are quickly quelled as foolish romance, of course. If the existence of the secret group to which you belong became common knowledge, your work would be that much harder to accomplish.

Your shadowy organization, known as the Grave Callers, has tasked its members to seek out and slay those who prey on the innocent. Its leaders identify those individuals to you through clever courier drops or magical sendings, marking them indelibly as your targets. You are making the world a better place with each undesirable element that you remove, and that knowledge drives you to continue your work. Through your ancient and deadly song, you improve the chances of all other creatures, one death at a time.

Grave Caller Path Features

Dirge of Inescapable Doom (11th level): Once per encounter as a minor action, you can place a deathmark on a single enemy within 10 squares of you. The deathmark lasts until the end of the encounter. If you miss with an encounter attack power against a creature that has your deathmark, the attack still deals 1d6 + your Charisma modifier damage.

Gravecall Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you gain a +4 bonus to damage rolls until the end of your next turn.

Path to the Grave (16th level): Whenever you make an attack roll with an encounter or a daily attack power against a creature that has your deathmark, roll a d20 twice and use either result.

Grave Caller Spells

Visions of Doom — Grave Caller Attack 11

You sing a secret note that seeks out your chosen enemy, wracking it with painful images of its coming demise.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature that has your deathmark
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 2d10 + Charisma modifier psychic damage. Until the end of your next turn, one ally within 10 squares of you gains a +2 power bonus to attack rolls against the target.

Cloak of Sound — Grave Caller Utility 12

You shroud your form in dark whispers, hindering your quarry's ability to see you.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Illusion
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you are invisible to a creature that has your deathmark.

Inevitability of the Grave — Grave Caller Attack 20

You call out a series of deadly notes, each one bringing your foe closer to its ordained demise.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature that has your deathmark
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3d10 + Charisma modifier damage, and ongoing 10 damage (save ends). The target takes a -2 penalty to its saving throws against the ongoing damage.
Aftereffect: Ongoing 5 damage (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and ongoing 5 damage (save ends).

WILLIAM O'CONNOR

Half-Elf Emissary

"There is strength in numbers, and I have many friends who trust me and are willing to fight for me."

Prerequisite: Half-elf, bard

You hate to be tied to any one location for too long; you'd rather be on the road, meeting new creatures and seeing new lands and nations. As a result, you feel at home nearly anywhere. This same ability also puts you in the good graces of people you meet along the way.

Your inborn empathy and acquired diplomatic skill allow you to fit into nearly any society—if not as someone who has always lived there, then at least as a trusted friend. By understanding many kinds of people and creatures, you learn how to protect them—or fight them, if need be.

When things turn rough, you can use your knowledge of other creatures to your advantage in a fight. The more foes that try to stop you, the better you can tangle their swords and spells, confounding their attempts to hurt you.

Half-Elf Emissary Path Features

Skilled Speech (11th level): Your bonus to Diplomacy checks from your Group Diplomacy racial trait equals your Charisma modifier. In addition, allies within 10 squares of you apply this bonus to all checks with Charisma-based skills in which you are trained.

Valorous Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, allies you can see gain a +2 power bonus to all defenses until the end of your next turn. In addition, you regain the use of the encounter power you gained from your Dilettante racial feature if you have used it during this encounter.

Heal the Besieged (16th level): Whenever you use a bard healing power on an ally, increase the number of hit points regained by 1d6 for each enemy that is adjacent to that ally.

JASON ENGLE

Half-Elf Emissary Spells

Emissary's Onslaught Half-Elf Emissary Attack 11

As your weapon clashes against your foe, a thunderclap resounds and empowers all your nearby allies.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Thunder, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Charisma modifier thunder damage. Each ally within 2 squares of the target gains a bonus to his or her next attack roll against that target equal to your Constitution modifier.
Special: If there are more enemies than allies within 10 squares of you, the bonus to attack rolls increases by 2. Count only active enemies and allies, not unconscious, dead, or dying creatures.

Emissary's Gambit Half-Elf Emissary Utility 12

You hearten your ally to turn the odds in the fight to your advantage.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Effect: Choose one of the following benefits.
✦ The target gains a bonus to its next attack roll equal to the number of enemies and allies you can see (maximum 10).
✦ The target rolls a saving throw with a bonus equal to the number of enemies and allies you can see (maximum 10).
Count only active enemies and allies, not unconscious, dead, or dying creatures.

Army of the Emissary Half-Elf Emissary Attack 20

With a thrilling battle cry, you exploit your allies' numbers to defeat your foes swiftly.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Charisma modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, each ally who starts his or her turn within 5 squares of you gains a bonus to attack rolls and to all defenses equal to the number of your allies within 5 squares of you.

Karmic Shaper

"Reality can be manipulated. Good works weave shining marks into it, while evils done stain its threads. Both propagate forward and backward in time, and their consequences will find you late or soon."

Prerequisites: Bard, Virtue of Prescience class feature

Moral consequence is something all creatures face, whether they recognize its existence or not. The effects of each creature's deeds influence the past, present, and future. You do not hold this view as a philosophical belief: It is demonstrably true.

Each action a being takes is like planting a seed. Depending on the deed's nature, harvesting its fruits might bring joy or pain. You seek to increase your own measure of joy in the world, while ensuring that your foes reap equivalent pain for their past misdeeds.

You are an interpreter of karma. With your prescient sight, you can collect your foes' karmic debt in a timely, sometimes dramatic fashion. On the other hand, your own actions touch only lightly on the karmic surface of cause and consequence. You shape the fates of others without unduly affecting your own final destiny.

CHRIS SEAMAN

Karmic Shaper Path Features

Fated Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you can reroll any single d20 roll you make this turn.

Karmic Virtue (11th level): If you use Virtue of Prescience to increase an ally's defense and the enemy's attack still hits, the ally targeted by the triggering enemy's attack can spend a healing surge as a free action.

Karmic Strike (16th level): When you use Virtue of Prescience, one ally within 10 squares of you can make a ranged or melee basic attack as a free action against the triggering enemy.

Karmic Shaper Spells

Karmic Wound — Karmic Shaper Attack 11

Your foe will pay for the injury it causes another.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Charisma modifier damage. If the target hits with an attack before the end of your next turn, it takes 1[W] + your Wisdom modifier damage.

Warp Karma — Karmic Shaper Utility 12

You twist the paths of fate, reversing your ally's misfortune.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Immediate Interrupt Close burst 10
Trigger: An ally in burst misses with an attack
Target: The triggering ally and one enemy in burst
Effect: Roll a d20 twice. The ally can replace his or her attack roll with one of your rolls, and you can force the enemy to replace its next attack roll with your other roll.

End of Luck — Karmic Shaper Attack 20

All the good fortune your foe has enjoyed up to now is balanced by a tide of ill favor.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 4d8 + Charisma modifier psychic damage, and each of the target's attack rolls is treated as a natural 1 (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and the target's next attack roll is treated as a natural 1.

Life Singer

"When the scourge wind blows coldest from the heights, I will be ready. My voice will be added to the melody that will preserve the eladrin from an ancient foe."

Prerequisite: Bard

Far to the north in the Feywild echo of the world, a freezing wind howls out of the Scourge Mountains every twenty years. Colloquially called the scourge wind, this is no common gale; it is the manifestation of an ancient curse, created when an infant eladrin princess of elder blood was slain in her crib. That evil deed resonates yet, despite efforts by later sovereigns to make amends, building year after year until a sentient, malevolent storm is born. Infused with rage for innocence lost, the lethal blast is bent on freezing to death as many creatures as possible before it blows itself out.

In answer to this recurring threat, the eladrin of the foothills found a way to keep the scourge wind at bay—a song of life that diminishes the hatred and fury of the storm and ameliorates its lethal cold. As a life singer, you have studied this song and honed your voice to pacify the scourge wind. Your sacred quest is to travel the worlds, promoting peace and protecting life, so that you can infuse your song with the experience you gain. When the scourge wind next blows, you and the chorus of other life singers will be ready to lift your voices in the great song of life.

Life Singer Path Features

Find Another Way (11th level): Allies within 5 squares of you gain a +2 bonus to skill checks and ability checks.

Peaceful Action (11th level): Whenever an ally within 5 squares of you spends an action point to take an extra action that is not an attack, that ally gains 1d8 + your Charisma modifier temporary hit points.

Serene Will (16th level): If you miss with an attack roll for an attack that targets Will, you can reroll the attack roll. If this attack does not deal damage, you gain a +2 power bonus to the reroll.

Life Singer Spells

Pacifying Voice — Life Singer Attack 11

You croon in quiet tones that calm the rage in your enemy's heart.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: Until the end of your next turn, the target is dazed and weakened and takes a penalty to attack rolls equal to your Intelligence modifier.

ED COX

Inspired Solutions — Life Singer Utility 12

Your calm leadership inspires your allies to find creative, nonviolent solutions to a challenge.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Standard Action Close burst 5
Target: You and each ally in burst
Effect: Each target can take an extra standard action as part of his or her next turn. The target cannot spend this extra action to make an attack that deals damage.

Soothing Song — Life Singer Attack 20

You sing a gentle lullaby that causes your foes to sink into a deep sleep and gives your allies a chance to catch their breath.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Healing, Implement
Standard Action Close burst 3
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: The target falls unconscious (save ends). Each ally in the burst can spend a healing surge.

If an ally attacks an affected target, the target immediately awakens. The ally does not have combat advantage against the target for that attack and cannot make a coup de grace attack against it.

CHAPTER 2

Sorcerer

"Colors collide and explode before my eyes. Energy seethes in the Chaos, in the hearts of dragons, behind the dependable cycle of the seasons, and amid the unbridled fury of the storm's heart. This energy imprints my very blood!"

Because sorcerers call up spells whose source is chaos in some form, such characters have a reputation for being slightly crazed. Though some of them might in truth be a bit "off," or even demented, the naïve do sorcerers as a group a great disservice by mistaking their exuberance for lunacy.

Sorcerers are arcane power users, and they call upon the same general class of spell that wizards and warlocks use. But where wizards learn their spells from tomes and warlocks are given them by a patron entity, sorcerers find the power to incant their spells in their own blood. Whether a particular sorcerer's blood was imprinted during his or her own lifetime, or a sorcerer's entire bloodline is so touched and thus is prone to producing sorcery, a sorcerer who takes up the craft seeks always to master the magic born inside, hoping one day to match, spell for spell, the greatest arcanists of the age.

This chapter includes the following material.

- New Class Features: Storm Magic and Cosmic Magic expand the possibilities for characters who want to plumb the depths of the sorcerous arts.
- New Builds: This chapter introduces the storm sorcerer and the cosmic sorcerer, which embody the storm's fury and nature's imperturbable cycles, respectively.
- New Sorcerer Powers: Dozens of new powers are described in this chapter, including powers that supplement Dragon Magic and Wild Magic, as well as powers that support Storm Magic and Cosmic Magic.
- New Paragon Paths: The new choices here include general sorcerer paragon paths, as well as paths suited to a specific sorcerer's Spell Source.

ZOLTAN BOROS & GABOR SZIKSZAI

NEW CLASS FEATURES

As a sorcerer, you gain power through an instinctive or inborn connection to an ancient arcane source. Instead of the Spell Source options of Dragon Magic and Wild Magic (described in Player's Handbook 2), you can select either Storm Magic or Cosmic Magic. The choice you make grants you specific features and also provides bonuses to certain sorcerer powers, as detailed in those powers.

Storm Magic

The raw and unbridled fury of storm powers your spells. While others might flee a storm, you embrace its power, internalize the force, and then unleash it. The impetuous, unpredictable power resident in the storm is your greatest ally. Like a tempest, you never give up and never give in until you are completely spent.

Storm Power: You gain a bonus to the damage rolls of arcane powers equal to your Dexterity modifier. The bonus equals your Dexterity modifier + 2 at 11th level and your Dexterity modifier + 4 at 21st level.

Storm Soul: You gain resist 5 thunder and resist 5 lightning. This resistance increases to 10 at 11th level and 15 at 21st level.

While this resistance is active, your arcane powers ignore all targets' resistance to that damage type up to the value of your resistance.

If you are hit by an attack, you can end this resistance as an immediate interrupt to gain a +4 power bonus to all defenses until the end of your next turn. If you do so, the resistance returns after you take a short rest or an extended rest.

Storm's Embrace: When you roll a natural 20 on an attack roll for an arcane power, wind surges around you and your enemy. You can push the target 1 square and then fly a number of squares equal to 1 + your Dexterity modifier after applying the attack's other effects.

SORCERERS IN THE WORLD

The singed and scarred youth holding forth on chaotic structures in the tavern, the robed dragonborn ascetic chanting a low song of blood and wings, the halfling whose hair bristles with static charge while standing on the hilltop as the storm blows in, the tiefling astronomer who reveres the sky and seasons—all of these individuals might well be sorcerers. A sorcerer is a character whose essentially enthusiastic grasp on her powers is certain to be noticed in small towns and teeming metropolises alike.

MIKE NASH

Cosmic Magic

The sun, the moon, and the stars speak to you in the voiceless language of cycles. The natural flow of the seasons tugs at your blood as the tide acts upon the oceans, pushing and pulling with gentle insistence regardless of the storm's fury, the dragon's flight, or the antics of otherworldly primordials. Just as the constellations move around the sky in a steady, imperturbable cadence, your spells are strong and unshakable, and tied to energies that can outlast all others.

Cosmic Persistence: While you are not wearing heavy armor, you can use your Strength modifier in place of your Dexterity or Intelligence modifier to determine your AC.

Cosmic Power: You gain a bonus to the damage rolls of arcane powers equal to your Strength modifier. The bonus equals your Strength modifier + 2 at 11th level and your Strength modifier + 4 at 21st level.

Soul of the Cosmic Cycle: At the end of a short rest or an extended rest, you choose a cosmic phase from those described below and gain its benefits.

The first time you become bloodied during an encounter, your phase immediately changes to the next higher-numbered phase (or back to the phase of the sun if you are in the phase of the stars). For example, if you begin an encounter in the phase of the moon, after becoming bloodied you would be in the phase of the stars.

In addition, each time you use a daily arcane attack power, you can choose to change your phase to the next higher-numbered phase immediately after resolving the effects of the power.

1. Phase of the Sun: At the start of your turn, each enemy adjacent to you takes fire and radiant damage equal to your Strength modifier.

You also gain resist 5 cold.

2. Phase of the Moon: You gain a bonus to AC equal to the number of conscious enemies adjacent to you.

You also gain resist 5 psychic.

3. Phase of the Stars: Whenever an enemy's attack misses you, you can teleport a number of squares equal to your Strength modifier as a free action.

You also gain resist 5 radiant.

The resistance granted by this class feature increases to 10 at 11th level and to 15 at 21st level. While you have resistance from this class feature, your arcane powers ignore all targets' resistance to that damage type up to the value of your resistance.

NEW BUILDS

This book introduces two sorcerer builds: the storm sorcerer and the cosmic sorcerer.

Storm Sorcerer

You embody the fury and power of a thunderstorm. Charisma is your primary ability score, since you use it to attack and deal damage. Dexterity is your second-highest score, contributing to your AC and Reflex and adding special effects to your attacks. Strength is your tertiary ability score.

Suggested Class Feature: Storm Magic
Suggested Feat: Tempest Magic*
Suggested Skills: Arcana, Bluff, Intimidate, Nature
Suggested At-Will Powers: *lightning strike, storm walk†
Suggested Encounter Power: *whirlwind
Suggested Daily Power: *howling tempest
*New option presented in this book
†Presented in Player's Handbook 2

Cosmic Sorcerer

Your blood moves in tune with the phases of the moon, the passing seasons, and the circling stars above. Charisma is your primary ability score, since you use it to attack and deal damage. Strength is your second-highest score, giving you better damage and adding special effects to your attacks. Dexterity is your tertiary stat choice.

Suggested Class Feature: Cosmic Magic
Suggested Feat: Student of the Cosmos*
Suggested Skills: Arcana, Endurance, Insight, Nature
Suggested At-Will Powers: *blazing starfall, burning spray†
Suggested Encounter Power: *ray of the moon
Suggested Daily Power: *cosmos call
*New option presented in this book
†Presented in Player's Handbook 2

GENASI SORCERERS

Genasi are usually described as energy embodied, chaos and order united—as a race of inherent flexibility, passion, and diversity. Such a description seems an ideal fit for sorcery, especially for the branches of storm magic and wild magic. Indeed, many genasi answer the call of sorcery that lives in their blood. Because genasi originally hailed from the Elemental Chaos, they are elemental creatures in some ways. In fact, each genasi's elemental manifestation (earthsoul, firesoul, stormsoul, watersoul, or windsoul) seems a perfect complement to nearly any style of sorcerer. Each elemental manifestation offers particular benefits and provides an associated encounter power. Indeed, a stormsoul genasi is already thematically a storm sorcerer: A genasi can promise the storm by invoking lightning living within, which calls out to its companion, the thunder. Sparks dance across the genasi's skin, and the air around her darkens and rumbles.

NEW SORCERER POWERS

The powers presented here expand the choices for sorcerers of all kinds.

Level 1 At-Will Spells

Blazing Starfall — Sorcerer Attack 1

A shower of radiance falls upon your enemies and then bursts out, creating a cage of burning embers that are painful to pass through.

At-Will ✦ Arcane, Fire, Implement, Radiant, Zone
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d4 + Charisma modifier radiant damage.
Level 21: 2d4 + Charisma modifier radiant damage.
Cosmic Magic: The burst creates a zone bounded by burning ground that lasts until the end of your next turn. Whenever an enemy within the zone leaves it, that enemy takes fire damage equal to your Strength modifier.

Lightning Strike — Sorcerer Attack 1

Lightning strikes your foe and then ricochets to another enemy.

At-Will ✦ Arcane, Implement, Lightning
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d8 + Charisma modifier lightning damage. A creature of your choice other than the target and within 10 squares of the target takes lightning damage equal to your Dexterity modifier.
Level 21: 2d8 + Charisma modifier lightning damage.
Storm Magic: You can apply your Storm Power bonus either to the damage roll against the target or to the damage taken by the enemy within 10 squares of the target.

Level 1 Encounter Spells

Mists of Disarray — Sorcerer Attack 1

Violet mist bursts out from a spot on the battlefield. As your foes breathe in the fumes, they begin to reel in confusion.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 1d8 + Charisma modifier psychic damage, and you push the target 1 square.
Wild Magic: If you rolled an even number on the attack roll, you slide the target a number of squares equal to your Dexterity modifier instead of pushing it.

Pinning Bolt — Sorcerer Attack 1

You launch tendrils of blue, crackling energy that knock your enemy to the ground and inhibit its movement.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Lightning
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d6 + Charisma modifier lightning damage, you knock the target prone, and the target is slowed until the end of your next turn.

Ray of the Moon — Sorcerer Attack 1

A ray of cold moonlight shines down from above, momentarily disorienting your opponent.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Cold, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 2d6 + Charisma modifier cold damage, and the target cannot shift until the end of its next turn.
Cosmic Magic: The target takes a -1 penalty on attack rolls until the end of its next turn.

Tearing Claws — Sorcerer Attack 1

Spectral claws strike out from your body, slashing at your foes and shoving them backward.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Close burst 1
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d10 + Charisma modifier damage, and you push the target 1 square.
Dragon Magic: If the target is bloodied, you push it 3 squares instead of 1.

Thundering Roar — Sorcerer Attack 1

You emit the thundering roar of a hunting lion, deafening creatures near you.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Fear, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Close blast 3
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d6 + Charisma modifier thunder damage, and the target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

Whirlwind — Sorcerer Attack 1

You create a small whirlwind that buffets creatures and knocks them off their feet.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Storm Magic: You can choose not to target a creature in the origin square of the burst.
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 1d10 + Charisma modifier damage, and you knock the target prone.

Level 1 Daily Spells

Blinding Bolt — Sorcerer Attack 1

You shoot a ray of white light at your foe. The beam sears flesh and eyes, and it takes time for your enemy's vision to fully return.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier radiant damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target is blinded. When the blinded condition ends, the target then treats each creature more than 5 squares away from it as having concealment (save ends).
Miss: Half damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target treats each creature more than 5 squares away from it as having concealment.

Cosmos Call — Sorcerer Attack 1

You access the variety of cycles within the cosmos, randomly pulling out a fundamental force to blast your enemy's mind.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier psychic damage. Roll a d6 to determine the attack's addtional benefit.
1-2: The target takes ongoing 5 radiant damage (save ends), and the power gains the radiant keyword.
3-4: The target is slowed (save ends).
5-6: The target is dazed (save ends).
Cosmic Magic: You choose the attack's additional benefit instead of rolling.
Miss: Half damage.

Howling Tempest — Sorcerer Attack 1

You summon a howling storm on the battlefield. The tempest's thunder deafens your foes, and its winds scatter them.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Thunder, Zone
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Storm Magic: You can choose not to target a creature in the origin square of the burst.
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d6 + Charisma modifier thunder damage, and the target is deafened (save ends). You slide the target a number of squares equal to your Dexterity modifier.
Effect: The burst creates a zone of deafening wind that lasts until the end of your next turn. Each creature that starts its turn within the zone takes thunder damage equal to your Charisma modifier. As a move action, you can move the zone 3 squares.
Sustain Minor: The zone persists.

Ice Javelins — Sorcerer Attack 1

A trio of icy javelins forms around you. One at a time, you send each spear shooting toward a different enemy.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Cold, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One, two, or three creatures
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d10 + Charisma modifier cold damage, and ongoing 5 cold damage (save ends).
Miss: Half damage.

Shocking Magnetism — Sorcerer Attack 1

You become a conduit for lightning. The pulsing energy accumulates within your body, enabling you to shock those who come near.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Lightning
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One or two creatures
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d6 + Charisma modifier lightning damage, and you pull the target a number of squares equal to your Dexterity modifier.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, each creature that starts its turn adjacent to you takes lightning damage equal to your Dexterity modifier. You can dismiss the effect as a free action.

Level 2 Utility Spells

Absorb Storm — Sorcerer Utility 2

You channel the power of the storm to bolster yourself against an attack and divert the power to your next assault.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Immediate Interrupt Personal
Trigger: You take cold, lightning, or thunder damage
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you gain resistance to the triggering damage type equal to your Charisma modifier. Your next attack before the end of the encounter that deals the triggering damage type gains a +2 bonus to the attack roll.

Deep Shroud — Sorcerer Utility 2

You raise and then lower your hands, creating an obscuring shadow that cloaks you and the area around you.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: You create a shroud of supernatural shadow around you. Until the end of your next turn, the space you occupy and each square adjacent to you are heavily obscured.
Sustain Minor: The effect persists.

Focused Chaos — Sorcerer Utility 2

To make chaos work for you, you must exercise a bit of control, but not too much. On your next spell, you manage to achieve the outcome you desire.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
No Action Personal
Trigger: You use a sorcerer power that works differently depending on whether the attack roll is odd or even
Effect: You choose to treat that power's attack roll as either odd or even, regardless of your actual roll.

Spatial Trip — Sorcerer Utility 2

You spin around, releasing a blaze of golden energy. As you finish your revolution, you disappear and reappear a short distance away.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Teleportation
Move Action Personal
Effect: You teleport a number of squares equal to half your speed.

Sorcerous Sirocco — Sorcerer Utility 2

You exhale a magic-enhanced breath that briefly sends you and an ally flying through the air.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Standard Action Close burst 10
Target: You and one ally in burst
Effect: Each target moves a number of squares equal to his or her speed + 2. Each target can fly during this movement but falls if he or she does not land by the end of the movement.

Level 3 Encounter Spells

Acid Claw — Sorcerer Attack 3

You contort your hand as if mimicking a monstrous claw. A black talon of acid then bursts from thin air and swipes at your foe.

Encounter ✦ Acid, Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d10 + Charisma modifier acid damage, and the target takes acid damage equal to your Strength modifier at the start of its next turn.
Dragon Magic: Each creature adjacent to the target takes acid damage equal to your Strength modifier.

A cyclonic cloud of starry motes descends on the battlefield, following your gesticulations to land in your enemies' midst.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Cold, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Cosmic Magic: You can choose not to target a creature in the origin square of the burst.
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier cold and thunder damage.

Thundering Gust — Sorcerer Attack 3

You call forth the force of the raging storm and shrieking gales. Wind howls about your foes, buffeting them and sliding them.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Close blast 3
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 1d10 + Charisma modifier thunder damage, and you slide the target a number of squares equal to your Dexterity modifier.
Storm Magic: If you choose not to slide any targets, until the end of your next turn, you gain a fly speed equal to 1 + your Dexterity modifier, and you can hover.

Level 5 Daily Spells

Corruption Orb — Sorcerer Attack 5

You fling a disgusting orb of green and ocher slime that drenches your enemy with a debilitating, acidic poison.

Daily ✦ Acid, Arcane, Implement, Poison
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Effect: The target takes ongoing 5 acid damage (save ends).
Hit: 2d10 + Charisma modifier poison damage.

Dragonborn Sorcerers

Many dragonborn thrill to a sorcerer's power, not least because the class's primary ability, Charisma, is one that dragonborn are naturally endowed with. Similarly, many dragonborn are drawn to the dragon magic form of sorcery. The innate high Strength of dragonborn is also useful for those who ignite the arcane dragon magic resident in their blood, or those who choose cosmic magic.

Glacial Armor — Sorcerer Attack 5

The air around you turns deathly cold, and frost coalesces on your body, creating a protective shell of ice.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Cold, Implement
Standard Action Close burst 1
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier cold damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you gain a +2 power bonus to AC and Fortitude, and each creature that hits you with a melee attack takes cold damage equal to your Charisma modifier.

Moon and Stars — Sorcerer Attack 5

A chill winter moon appears overhead, and around it swims a myriad of radiant stars. You can unleash the power of either on a foe.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement; Varies
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One or two creatures
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d6 + Charisma modifier cold or radiant damage. The damage type you choose determines the attack's additional benefit.
Cold: The target is slowed and cannot shift (save ends both).
Radiant: You can spend one healing surge (even if you hit two targets).
Miss: Half damage (your choice of cold or radiant).

Slaad's Gambit — Sorcerer Attack 5

You tap into chaos just as a foe is about to hit you. A greenish hue flickers across your skin as you teleport away, then make your own attack.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic, Teleportation
Immediate Interrupt Ranged 5
Trigger: An enemy within 5 squares of you hits you
Target: The triggering enemy
Effect: Before the attack, you teleport your speed.
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 2d10 + Charisma modifier psychic damage.
Miss: Half damage.

Sun's Illumination — Sorcerer Attack 5

Radiance pours down on an area, burning creatures within the light and revealing them to you in both body and mind.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Radiant, Zone
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d6 + Charisma modifier radiant damage
Effect: The burst creates a zone of piercing light that lasts until the end of your next turn. You gain a +2 power bonus to Insight and Perception checks against each creature within the zone. Each enemy within the zone grants combat advantage. As a move action, you can move the zone 3 squares.
Sustain Minor: The zone persists.

Level 6 Utility Spells

Chaotic Defense — Sorcerer Utility 6

You create a din of chaotic sounds, from a wolf's forlorn howl to a dead sailor's dirge. In the cacophony, you find temporary aid.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Roll a d4 to determine the power's effect.
1: You gain temporary hit points equal to 2d6 + your Charisma modifier.
2: You gain a +2 power bonus to all defenses until the end of the encounter.
3: Until the end of the encounter, each creature that attacks you takes 2d6 damage.
4: You gain all three of the benefits described above.

Extinguishing Rain — Sorcerer Utility 6

Clouds emerge from your body, saturating the air. Fires no longer threaten you, and nearby flames are dampened.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Close burst 10
Target: You and each ally in burst
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, each target gains resistance to fire equal to your Charisma modifier. Make an attack.
Target: One conjuration or zone that has the fire keyword
Attack: Charisma + 2 vs. the Will of the target's creator
Hit: The target is destroyed. All its effects end, including those that a save can end.

Fate's Chaos — Sorcerer Utility 6

You tweak the course of fate, turning ill luck into good fortune.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Free Action Personal
Trigger: You spend an action point to make an attack and miss
Effect: Reroll the triggering attack roll with a bonus equal to your Strength modifier.

Lightning Shift — Sorcerer Utility 6

With a flourish of snapping sparks, your single step speeds you, lightning-quick, across the battlefield.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Move Action Personal
Effect: You shift your speed. You ignore difficult terrain during the shift.

Subtlety of the Green Wyrm — Sorcerer Utility 6

You listen for the faint whisper of your own blood. In its flow, you find ancient wisdom and unrivaled charm.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: You gain a +5 power bonus to Diplomacy checks, Insight checks, and Intimidate checks until the end of the encounter.

Level 7 Encounter Spells

Blazing Bolts — Sorcerer Attack 7

Two bolts of violet lightning erupt from your hands, causing a shower of white-hot, flaming sparks where they hit.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Fire, Implement, Lightning
Standard Action Ranged 20
Target: Two creatures
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d8 + Charisma modifier lightning damage, and the target and each creature adjacent to it take fire damage equal to your Strength modifier.

Each ice stalagmite has AC 5, Reflex 5, Fortitude 21, resist cold 10, and 40 hit points. Each creature that starts its turn adjacent to an ice stalagmite takes cold damage equal to your Charisma modifier.

Gods and Sorcerers

Melora, Corellon, and Ioun are popular deities among sorcerers because of their influence over matters of chaotic wilderness, arcane magic, and knowledge, respectively. Melora and Sehanine are also favorites of cosmic sorcerers because of their ties to the natural cycles of the world or its seasons. Avandra is popular, as she is with all classes, because of her association with adventure. Asmodeus's association with power has tempted a few sorcerers into his sway, even if they're not actually evil. All the other deities in the pantheon have a few sorcerer adherents. Even Kord has his followers among sorcerers, especially dragon sorcerers and wild sorcerers, because they revere his power over thunder and his prowess in combat.

Season's Malaise — Sorcerer Attack 9

Dark clouds appear over your foes, and you assault their minds with a psychic attack that causes depression and lethargy.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares

Hit: 3d8 + Charisma modifier damage, and you push the target 3 squares.
Miss: Half damage, and you push the target 1 square.
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you gain a fly speed equal to your speed, and you can hover.

Level 10 Utility Spells

Dragon's Resolve — Sorcerer Utility 10

Your blood boils with the wrath of a dragon, giving you greater fury and power when the situation seems most dire.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, while you are bloodied, you gain a +1 power bonus to attack rolls and a power bonus to saving throws equal to your Charisma modifier.

Fog Form — Sorcerer Utility 10

In an instant, your body melts into a cloud of fog.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Immediate Interrupt Personal
Trigger: You are hit by an attack
Effect: You become insubstantial until the end of your next turn.

Half-Elf Sorcerers

Half elves enjoy naturally high Charisma scores that well suit them for the sorcerer class. Despite that fact, few half-elves take up the mantle of the wild spellcaster, possibly because a half-elf's naturally diplomatic nature finds itself at odds with the tempestuous nature that many sorcerers exhibit. However, a few half-elves glory in the riotous presence that most sorcerers seem to cultivate. With a half-elf's ability to learn any attack power from a class other than his or her own, half-elves who choose the sorcerer class might take an at-will power from the paladin, the warlock, or some other class whose powers primarily draw upon Charisma in order to broaden their abilities.

Sorcerous Pulse — Sorcerer Utility 10

You drown out the clash of combat and focus on one type of energy, which you channel into your spells for extra power.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Choose acid, cold, fire, force, lightning, necrotic, poison, psychic, radiant, or thunder. Until the end of the encounter, whenever you use an arcane power that has the chosen keyword, you can roll the damage twice and use the higher result.

Spirit's Eclipse — Sorcerer Utility 10

A mental bulwark helps to protect you against your foe's attack and renders the creature incapable of seeing you for a time.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Immediate Interrupt Personal
Trigger: An enemy hits you with an attack that targets Will
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you gain a +5 bonus to Will and are invisible to the triggering enemy.

Storm of Energy — Sorcerer Utility 10

With a wave of your hand, you increase the vigor of whatever effects ail your foes.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Close burst 5
Target: Each enemy in burst that is taking ongoing damage
Effect: Each instance of ongoing damage that each target is taking increases by 10.

Level 13 Encounter Spells

Cyclone Pull — Sorcerer Attack 13

From the ground rises a cyclone that consumes your foes in violence, battering them and pulling them toward its center.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Area burst 3 within 10 squares
Target: One, two, or three creatures in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 1d6 + Charisma modifier damage, and you slide the target 2 squares closer to the origin square of the burst.

Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you can repeat the attack as a free action once per round during your turn.

Prismatic Lightning — Sorcerer Attack 15

Your words summon a storm of multicolored bolts. Some sear, others burn, and a few strike your foes blind.

Daily ✦ Acid, Arcane, Cold, Implement, Lightning, Psychic
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude, Reflex, or Will (choose one defense for each target)
Hit (Fortitude): 3d6 + Charisma modifier lightning damage, and ongoing 10 acid damage (save ends).
Hit (Reflex): 3d6 + Charisma modifier cold and lightning damage, and the target is immobilized (save ends).
Hit (Will): 3d6 + Charisma modifier lightning and psychic damage, and the target is blinded until the end of your next turn.
Miss (Fortitude, Reflex, or Will): Half damage.

Human Sorcerers

As with half-elves, some humans are capable of absorbing new customs and new modes of thinking with ease. Sorcery, with its wild and blood-linked powers, is an arcane skill that humans seem particularly adept at learning. Indeed, for many, picking up sorcery doesn't require formal instruction, but instead merely listening to urges encoded in their blood (for those lucky enough to have the potential for sorcery). Whereas human wizards, swordmages, and even warlocks are proud of their particular learning, human sorcerers feel a special pride of their own that their magic comes naturally. Some take this feeling further and are conceited about their inborn talent.

Avatars of Chaos — Sorcerer Utility 16

You briefly embody four principles of chaos, dividing yourself into a quartet of poles, each of which is charged with a potent threat.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Conjuration, Fire, Force, Lightning, Psychic
Minor Action Personal

Effect: You conjure images of yourself in 4 unoccupied, nonadjacent squares within 10 squares of you, and then you disappear from the world. Each round at the start of your turn, choose one of the four images. Your essence occupies that image, allowing you to act normally (including moving and making attacks).

When you conjure each image, choose a keyword for it from among fire, force, lightning, and psychic. You can't choose the same keyword twice. While you occupy an image, you gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls when you use a power that has a keyword that matches that image.

Each image lasts until the end of the encounter, until it is destroyed, or until you dismiss it. Each image occupies 1 square, and creatures cannot move through an image's space. An image can be targeted by attacks and uses your defenses. Each image (including the one you occupy) has 1 hit point, and a missed attack never damages an image. An image is destroyed if it is reduced to 0 hit points or fewer. If you occupy an image when it is destroyed, you can immediately move to any other image still present. If you occupy the last remaining image when it is destroyed, you reappear in that square.

As a minor action, you can dismiss all remaining images and reappear in any square that was occupied by an image when you took this action.

Breath of Potency — Sorcerer Utility 16

You call upon your draconic lineage to bolster you against harm.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Standard Action Personal

Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you gain a +1 power bonus to all defenses. Whenever you use an arcane close attack, this bonus is equal to your Strength modifier until the end of your next turn.

Dominant Winds — Sorcerer Utility 16

Silver winds curl out of nowhere and lift you or an ally briefly into the air.

At-Will ✦ Arcane
Move Action Close burst 5
Target: You or one ally in burst

Effect: The target can fly a number of squares equal to your Dexterity modifier as a free action.

Thunder Buffer — Sorcerer Utility 16

Distant thunder grumbles around you, and you can unleash it against an attacker to knock the creature backward.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal

Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you gain a +2 power bonus to AC, and as an immediate reaction you can push each enemy that hits you with a melee attack a number of squares equal to your Charisma modifier.

DUEL ARCANE

The Duel Arcane was the event in the city. Held every three years, it afforded the city a wonderful influx of business as sorcerers, wizards, and not a few charlatans descended on the city. Inns were full, and business in the bazaar was brisk. Outfitters of all types expected booming sales. The city welcomed the arcanists with open arms (especially famous and rich arcanists). Shops and merchants scrambled to expand their inventory of magical implements, components, reagents, and other needful things while the Duel ran. Inflated prices for rare components was a possibility every attending mage expected.

For the young human sorcerer named Hennet, it was almost too much. But he had paid his entry fee. He had traveled to the city. Now all that remained was the Duel.

Hennet's first competitor was a salt-bearded fellow called Harper. Harper stood in the circle across from him, darting glances to and fro. Sweat beaded the man's brow, and he rubbed his hands incessantly. Hennet's own nervousness faded somewhat at seeing his competitor so shaken. He restrained himself from offering the man encouragement. This was a competition, after all.

"... BEGIN!" bawled the judge. A puff of sulfurous smoke from a magical duel being conducted in an adjacent sandpit washed across Harper, who actually mewled in terror.

What's up with this guy? wondered the sorcerer. Perhaps Harper was newer to the craft even than Hennet. He shrugged, and whispered elements of a song that always rang in his blood. Infused by magic from his waving fingertips, the sound was transformed. A low growl, as of a lion catching scent of its prey, issued from his open mouth.

Hennet moved his hands even farther apart. As he did so, the growl's volume increased, becoming the ear-shattering roar of a great cat screaming in triumph.

The judge stepped back, nearby competitors stumbled in the midst of their spells, and Harper was pushed out of the dueling circle.

The round was Hennet's. Even better, he had used the first spell that he had ever mastered, one that had stolen into his mind on the eve of his thirteenth birthday. He had used it often since then. But, he had to admit, never before with such perfection.

It was going to be a good day.

Level 17 Encounter Spells

Acid Shackles — Sorcerer Attack 17

Caustic words crackle from your mouth, taking physical form around your foes as bands of acid that further punish those who move.

Encounter ✦ Acid, Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d8 + Charisma modifier acid damage. If the target moves before the end of its next turn, it takes 10 acid damage.

Wild Magic: If you hit and you rolled an even number on the attack roll, add your Dexterity modifier to the acid damage dealt if the target moves before the end of its next turn. If you hit and you rolled an odd number on the attack roll, one enemy within 2 squares of the target takes acid damage equal to your Dexterity modifier.

Azure Talons — Sorcerer Attack 17

Blue claws of lightning materialize around you and slash at foes that remain too close.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Lightning
Standard Action Close burst 2
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d8 + Charisma modifier lightning damage. If the target ends its next turn within 2 squares of you, it takes 5 lightning damage.

Dragon Magic: If the target ends its next turn within 2 squares of you, it takes lightning damage equal to 5 + your Dexterity modifier.

Searing Radiance — Sorcerer Attack 17

You borrow a bit of the sun's radiance and hurl it at your foe.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Healing, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 4d8 + Charisma modifier radiant damage.

Cosmic Magic: If you use this power while you are in the phase of the sun, you can spend a healing surge.

Stalking Frost — Sorcerer Attack 17

A wave of utter cold sweeps outward, seeping into the bones of your foes. If your enemies don't move, the cold grows more deadly.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Cold, Implement
Standard Action Close burst 3
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier cold damage. If the target does not end its next turn at least 4 squares away from where it started its turn, it takes 10 cold damage.

Thunderstroke — Sorcerer Attack 17

A stroke of lightning strikes your foe from overhead, followed by a concussive boom.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Lightning, Thunder
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 20 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier thunder damage. A target in the origin square of the burst also takes 3d8 lightning damage.

Storm Magic: A target hit by this power is also knocked prone.

Level 19 Daily Spells

Aspect of the Dragon — Sorcerer Attack 19

Your form wavers and is replaced by a dragon that releases a scouring blast of fire. Depending on the course of the battle, it might make another appearance.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fire, Implement
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d8 + Charisma modifier fire damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: The first time you become bloodied during the encounter, repeat the attack as a free action.

Dragon Magic: You gain a +2 bonus to attack rolls with this repeated attack.

Crashing Winds — Sorcerer Attack 19

Everything standing near you is battered and knocked away, and the winds continue to swirl in your vicinity.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Close blast 3
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 5d8 + Charisma modifier thunder damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: You push the target a number of squares equal to your Dexterity modifier.

Storm Magic: Until the end of the encounter, at the start of your turn, you push each enemy adjacent to you a number of squares equal to your Dexterity modifier.

Dwarf Sorcerers

Not many dwarves are drawn to the arcane wildness that seems to be part and parcel of most kinds of sorcerers. On the other hand, dwarves are known as a steady, enduring people, and many dwarves are attracted to sorcery's cosmic magic, with its reliance on cycles, seasons, and steady revolutions. The fraction of dwarves who learn sorcery but who take up wild magic, storm magic, or dragon magic are considered to be quite odd by other dwarves who come across them. Which is rather the whole point, most likely.

Primordial Slime — Sorcerer Attack 19

With a flick of your wrist, you shoot an ooze at your foe. When the ooze strikes, the creature begins to take on a gelatinous consistency.

Daily ✦ Acid, Arcane, Implement, Polymorph
Standard Action Ranged 5
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: The target is slowed, cannot take standard actions, and takes half damage from melee and ranged attacks (save ends all).
Aftereffect: The target is slowed and takes ongoing 10 acid damage (save ends both).
Wild Magic: If you rolled an even number on the attack roll, the target takes a -2 penalty to all defenses until the aftereffect ends. If you rolled an odd number on the attack roll, the target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls until the aftereffect ends.
Miss: The target is slowed and takes ongoing 10 acid damage (save ends both).

Radiant Wings — Sorcerer Attack 19

You rise into the air, borne aloft by rays of golden sunlight that simultaneously blast your foe.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fire, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Ranged 5
Target: One creature
Effect: Before the attack, you can fly a number of squares equal to your Strength modifier.
Cosmic Magic: At the end of this movement, each creature adjacent to you takes fire and radiant damage equal to your Strength modifier.
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d8 + Charisma modifier fire and radiant damage.
Sustain Minor: When you sustain this power, repeat the effect.

Level 22 Utility Spells

Crown of Flames — Sorcerer Utility 22

You adorn yourself with a halo of fire that flickers and dances. Whenever your lesser spells fail, the flames lick your foes.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fire
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, whenever you miss with a sorcerer at-will or encounter attack power, the target takes fire damage equal to your Charisma modifier.

Halfling Sorcerers

Despite what some might think, halflings are drawn to the sorcerer class for several reasons. First, all sorcerers benefit from naturally high Charisma scores, which halflings possess in spades. Second, the volatile nature that might sour other races on the class only serves to draw some halflings to the class all the more fiercely. Furthermore, a halfling's Small size is no detriment to taking up sorcery because two-handed weapons are not associated with the class. And, as with anything, a little luck never hurts. Halflings who become sorcerers are most likely to favor wild magic or storm magic.

Flight of Dragons — Sorcerer Utility 22

A flight of phantom dragons swoops down and gathers up you and your allies, bearing all of you aloft.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Standard Action Close burst 2
Target: You and each ally in burst
Effect: Each target gains a fly speed equal to his or her speed until the end of your next turn.
Sustain Minor: The effect persists. When you fail to sustain this power, each target floats to the ground without taking falling damage.
Dragon Magic: Each target gains resist 10 to your choice of acid, cold, fire, poison, lightning, or thunder while you sustain the effect.

Storm Body — Sorcerer Utility 22

The spirit of the storm engulfs you, and you become as the wind and lightning, heedless of the earth and dangerous to the touch.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Lightning
Move Action Personal
Effect: You become insubstantial until the start of your next turn and can fly 10 squares with this move action. Each creature that makes a melee attack against you during this move takes lightning damage equal to your Charisma modifier.

Ultimate Resistance — Sorcerer Utility 22

You become sheathed in scales of black, white, blue, or some other hue, and you gain mighty resistance.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you gain resist 30 against a damage type of your choice: acid, cold, fire, force, lightning, necrotic, poison, psychic, radiant, or thunder. Once per round as a minor action, you can change the resistance to another of these types.

Level 23 Encounter Spells

Rumbling Storm Bolt — Sorcerer Attack 23

You strike a foe with lightning, sending it staggering. Then a thunder wave rolls in, smashing into a nearby creature.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Lightning, Thunder
Standard Action Ranged 20
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier lightning damage, and you slide the target a number of squares equal to your Dexterity modifier. Make a secondary attack.
Secondary Target: One creature within 10 squares of the primary target and in the primary target's line of sight
Secondary Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier thunder damage, and you knock the target prone.

Storm Arc — Sorcerer Attack 23

A flare of sparks shoots out from your hand and hits the ground in your enemies' midst, exploding with a roar.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Lightning
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 20 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d6 + Charisma modifier lightning damage.
Storm Magic: Until the end of your next turn, you gain a fly speed equal to your speed, and you can hover.

Sun and Stars — Sorcerer Attack 23

With the force of the solar tide, you blast your foe with a gout of energy that requires both endurance and quickness to withstand.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic, Radiant
Standard Action Ranged 20
Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d6 + Charisma modifier psychic damage, and the target is slowed until the end of your next turn.
Effect: Make a secondary attack against the target.
Secondary Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d6 + Charisma modifier radiant damage.
Cosmic Magic: If you hit with both attacks, you can change your phase in the cosmic cycle to the phase of the sun or the phase of the stars.

Wildrift Burst — Sorcerer Attack 23

You scream an arcane word that resonates in your foes' minds. The world around you then fractures, causing space to distort.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic, Teleportation
Standard Action Close burst 3
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 3d8 + Charisma modifier psychic damage, and you teleport the target a number of squares equal to your Dexterity modifier.
Wild Magic: If you rolled an even number on the attack roll, the target is dazed until the end of your next turn. If you rolled an odd number on the attack roll, you can teleport the target an additional 1d4 squares.

Wyrmblight — Sorcerer Attack 23

With a draconic roar, you loose a blast of fire laced with black venom.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Fire, Implement, Poison
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 4d6 + Charisma modifier fire and poison damage.

ELF AND ELADRIN SORCERERS

Few elves or eladrin choose the path of the sorcerer. However, the high Dexterity of both races provides an edge to elf or eladrin sorcerers who choose wild magic or storm magic. Since sorcerers are limited to wearing cloth armor, Dexterity is also quite useful for defensive purposes. An elf's wild step racial trait and an eladrin's fey step racial trait are both good for getting away from an enemy's melee attack in order to cast a spell.

Level 25 Daily Spells

Acid Typhoon — Sorcerer Attack 25

A curling wave of acid rolls into the world from the Elemental Chaos, dissolving the flesh of creatures that stand in your way.

Daily ✦ Acid, Arcane, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 20 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Storm Magic: You can choose not to target a creature in the origin square of the burst.
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 4d8 + Charisma modifier acid and thunder damage, and ongoing 10 acid damage (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and ongoing 5 acid damage (save ends).

Cloak of Winter Storm — Sorcerer Attack 25

Cold explodes around you, and the air coalesces into whirling shards of ice.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Cold, Implement, Zone
Standard Action Close burst 3
Effect: The burst creates a zone of floating ice shards that lasts until the end of the encounter. Each enemy that enters the zone or starts its turn there takes 2d6 + your Charisma modifier cold damage and is slowed until the end of its turn.

Fury of Dragotha — Sorcerer Attack 25

A vision of Dragotha, an undead dragon, fills your sight. You borrow a fragment of its breath weapon to unleash a rotting blast.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Necrotic
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 5d8 + Charisma modifier necrotic damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Dragon Magic: Until the end of the encounter, each creature that starts its turn adjacent to you takes necrotic damage equal to your Strength modifier.

Leaping Lightning — Sorcerer Attack 25

Storm bolts leap toward your enemy. A foe too close to your first victim suffers a discharging lightning blast for its trouble.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Lightning
Standard Action Ranged 20
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d6 + Charisma modifier lightning damage, and ongoing 10 lightning damage (save ends). Whenever the target takes the ongoing lightning damage, make a secondary attack as a free action.
Secondary Target: One creature within 10 squares of the primary target and in the primary target's line of sight
Secondary Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex.
Hit: 3d6 + Charisma modifier lightning damage.
Miss: Half damage.

Wrathful Vapors — Sorcerer Attack 25

Vapors shoot forth from your outstretched arms, freezing or scorching each enemy they hit.

Daily ✦ Acid, Arcane, Cold, Implement, Lightning, Thunder
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 20 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude or Reflex (choose one defense for each target)
Hit (Fortitude): 3d6 + Charisma modifier cold and thunder damage, and you slide the target a number of squares equal to your Dexterity modifier.
Hit (Reflex): 3d6 + Charisma modifier lightning damage. Each creature adjacent to the target takes 2d6 + your Dexterity modifier acid damage.
Miss (Fortitude or Reflex): Half damage.

Level 27 Encounter Spells

Chaos Infusion — Sorcerer Attack 27

You puncture the walls between the Elemental Chaos and your own plane, unleashing an elemental force that overwhelms foes.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Fire, Force, Implement, Lightning, Psychic
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 20 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 4d6 + Charisma modifier fire, force, lightning, and psychic damage.
Wild Magic: Until the end of your next turn, when you use a power that grants an additional benefit on an odd or an even die roll, gain the benefit of both the even and the odd die results. If you can't gain both benefits, choose one.

Moonstruck — Sorcerer Attack 27

Your foes are captivated by a vision of the moon, cold and enduring. The image strikes their hearts, leaving them paralyzed.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Cold, Implement
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 20 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 4d6 + Charisma modifier cold damage, and the target is immobilized until the end of your next turn.
Cosmic Magic: If you use this power while you are in the phase of the moon, the target is restrained instead of immobilized.

Mother Claw — Sorcerer Attack 27

A talon of force slashes at a foe that threatens you, then pushes you back to safety like a dragon matriarch protecting its young.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Force, Implement
Immediate Reaction Melee 1
Trigger: An enemy hits or misses you with a melee attack
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 4d8 + Charisma modifier force damage, and you can shift a number of squares equal to your Charisma modifier.
Dragon Magic: You ignore difficult terrain when you shift with this power.

Overpowering Lightning — Sorcerer Attack 27

A blast of lightning overwhelms your foe, sizzling across its flesh and rending its senses bereft of function.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Lightning
Standard Action Ranged 20
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier lightning damage, and the target is stunned until the end of your next turn.

JASON ENGLE

Thunderous Might — Sorcerer Attack 27

A forceful thundercloud smashes into your foes, bruising their flesh and sending them sliding.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 20 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 4d8 + Charisma modifier thunder damage, and you slide the target a number of squares equal to your Dexterity modifier.
Storm Magic: The target grants combat advantage to the next ally of yours who attacks it before the end of your next turn.

Level 29 Daily Spells

Cosmic Vengeance — Sorcerer Attack 29

Your foes become locked to the cycle of the sun, the moon, and the stars. This connection makes them suffer for attacking you.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement; Varies
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, an enemy within 5 squares of you that hits you with an attack takes cold, psychic, or radiant damage (your choice with each hit) equal to your Charisma modifier. If that hit was also a critical hit, the enemy also takes ongoing 5 damage of the corresponding type (save ends).
Cosmic Magic: Add your Strength modifier to the damage dealt to an enemy that hits you.

Doom of Chaos — Sorcerer Attack 29

You yell a word of ancient origin. Upon hearing it, your foe succumbs to the primeval energy of chaos.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 20
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier psychic damage, and ongoing 5 psychic damage (save ends).
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, at the start of each of the target's turns but before it takes any ongoing damage, choose acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder. The target gains vulnerable 10 to that damage type until the start of its next turn. If the target is still taking ongoing psychic damage from this power, it gains vulnerable 15 psychic instead.
Wild Magic: If you rolled an even number on the attack roll, you can apply the effect to a creature within 10 squares of the target instead of to the target. If you rolled an odd number on the attack roll, you can apply the effect to each creature adjacent to the target instead of to the target.

Tiefling Sorcerers

Tieflings have high Charisma, which is the primary score for sorcerers. Like halflings, some tieflings are especially drawn to the tempestuous nature of sorcery and the image some sorcerers cultivate as carefree yet resonating with barely contained power.

Hellish Firestorm — Sorcerer Attack 29

You call up the heart of a firestorm from the Elemental Chaos and drop the devastating phenomenon upon your foes.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fire, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Area burst 2 with 20 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Storm Magic: You can choose not to target a creature in the origin square of the burst.
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3d10 + Charisma modifier thunder damage, and ongoing 10 fire damage (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and ongoing 5 fire damage (save ends).

Mind Tide — Sorcerer Attack 29

Your foe's mind is like the ocean, able to be influenced by cosmic forces. By wielding those forces, you can seize control of it.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Charm, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 20
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 4d8 + Charisma modifier psychic damage, and the target is dominated (save ends).
Aftereffect: The target is dazed (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and the target is dazed until the end of your next turn.

Wyrm Form — Sorcerer Attack 29

Your heart is that of an ancient dragon, and now your body is as well.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Polymorph; Varies
Minor Action Personal
Requirement: You must not be bloodied.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter or until you are bloodied, you take the form of a huge black, blue, green, red, or white dragon (your choice when you use this power). You retain your statistics, hit points, and defenses, but you have a speed of 8, fly 10 (hover). You can use your arcane powers while in this form, and you gain the following melee basic bite attack, breath weapon attack, and reactive attack.
Melee Basic Bite Attack: Standard action; reach 2; your level + 7 vs. AC; 3d10 + Charisma modifier damage. This is not an implement attack.
Breath Weapon Attack: Standard action; close blast 5 once per encounter; Charisma vs. Fortitude; 5d8 + Charisma modifier acid, lightning, poison, fire, or cold damage (based on the form you choose).
Reactive Attack: Immediate reaction, when an enemy flanks you; make a melee basic bite attack. On a hit, you also slide the target a number of squares equal to your Charisma modifier.
Dragon Magic: You gain a +2 bonus to attack rolls on the attacks granted by this power.

Blizzard Mage

"Winter freezes flesh and scours the earth with icy winds that shriek through hedgerows and mountain passes alike. I can't think of anything more poetic."

Prerequisite: Sorcerer

In the frozen wastes, and in the frost-blasted fields of winter, you feel at home. You find the cold, harsh conditions hospitable, even comforting. You can pull winter storms from across the world, or even from the Elemental Chaos, and use them to ruin your enemies. When you attack, your body is covered with ice crystals, and your skin pales. Your spells fill the air around you with blowing snow or hail, and powerful winds whip up.

The blizzard is your best friend and your most ferocious servitor. With its aid, you move creatures about inside killing blasts and knock them down with freezing vortexes of driving snow and ice.

Is it any wonder that your heart has grown cold, too? It is up to you whether your nature grows more and more aloof like the bleak season you embody, or whether your heart yet shelters a warm hearth for those you name friend.

WILLIAM O'CONNOR

Blizzard Mage Path Features

Icy Action (11th level): Whenever you spend an action point to make an attack, each creature you hit or miss with the attack is slowed (save ends).

Walk through Winter (11th level): While you are immobilized, you can shift 1 square. While you are slowed, your speed is 3 instead of 2.

Chill Winds (16th level): Whenever you score a critical hit, you can slide any single creature within 10 squares of you 1 square.

Blizzard Mage Spells

Winter's Clutch — Blizzard Mage Attack 11

Your hand is coated in frost as you sweep it in front of you, encasing nearby creatures in chilling wind and sheets of ice.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Cold, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 20
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d8 + Charisma modifier cold damage. You slide the target 1 square, and the target is immobilized until the end of your next turn. Also, you slide each ally within 20 squares of you 2 squares.

Cloak of Freezing Wind — Blizzard Mage Utility 12

The icy chill of winter surrounds you as cold, whipping wind protects you from attacks.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Cold
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, each creature that hits you with a melee attack takes 1d8 + your Charisma modifier cold damage, and you push that creature 1d4 + 2 squares.

Blizzard — Blizzard Mage Attack 20

A chaotic swirl bursts out from you, buffeting everyone nearby with wind and ice.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Cold, Implement
Standard Action Close burst 10
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 4d10 + Charisma modifier cold damage, and you knock the target prone.
Effect: Each ally in the burst gains resist 10 cold until the end of the encounter.

Until the end of the encounter, you are surrounded by freezing wind and snow. At the start of each of your turns, each enemy within 10 squares of you takes 2d6 cold damage, and you slide it 2 squares.

Celestial Scholar

"In the sun's golden hall, I blaze with light. In the moon's shadowed chambers, I beguile the mind. In the firmament, I am the brightest star."

Prerequisite: Sorcerer, Cosmic Magic class feature

The tradition of the celestial scholar is more academic than the paths of other cosmic sorcerers, and definitely more cerebral than the paths of other types of sorcerers. You plot the courses of the stars and other celestial bodies, and through this knowledge you gain access to a well of power as vast as the night sky.

Celestial Scholar Path Features

Celestial Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you gain a +2 bonus to attack rolls and damage rolls with cold, psychic, and radiant powers until the end of your next turn.

Cosmic Concordance (11th level): When you use a daily arcane attack power and choose to change your Soul of the Cosmic Cycle phase, you can change to either of the two other phases.

Phase Focus (11th level): One of your Soul of the Cosmic Cycle phases becomes more powerful. Choose one of the following benefits.

Blazing Sun: At the start of your turn while you are in the phase of the sun, each enemy within 2 squares of you takes fire and radiant damage equal to your Strength modifier.

Watching Moon: While you are in the phase of the moon, each enemy adjacent to you that fails a saving throw takes radiant damage equal to your Strength modifier.

Distant Stars: Whenever you are in the phase of the stars and an enemy's attack misses you, you can teleport a number of squares equal to your Strength modifier as a free action. You can also teleport as an immediate reaction after an attack hits you.

Celestial Defense (16th level): When you are in the phase corresponding to your Phase Focus, you gain a +2 bonus to all defenses.

The Three Phases

Each celestial scholar focuses on one of the three cosmic phases.

Blazing Sun: Followers of the phase of the sun wear white and gold robes with ostentatious jewelry. Socially, they favor blunt tactics (such as using Intimidate), and they can be incendiary and obstinate. However, some are capable of surprising warmth.

Watching Moon: Masters of subtlety, followers of the phase of the moon wear black and silver, preferring flowing, high-collared robes. They are socially adept (favoring Bluff and Diplomacy).

Distant Stars: Aloof and detached, these followers of the phase of the stars prefer ancient lore over social skills. They wear dark, conservative clothing with little adornment.

Celestial Scholar Spells

Celestial Sigil — Celestial Scholar Attack 11

An arcane pattern appears briefly on your arms as you snatch power from the cosmos and hurl it toward a foe.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement; Varies
Standard Action Ranged 20
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 3d8 + Charisma modifier damage
Effect: If you hit with this power, you gain an effect based on your current Soul of the Cosmic Cycle phase.
Phase of the Sun: Enemies within 2 squares of you take fire and radiant damage equal to your Strength modifier.
Phase of the Moon: Adjacent enemies take radiant damage equal to your Strength modifier and take a -2 penalty to saving throws until the end of your next turn.
Phase of the Stars: You teleport a number of squares equal to your Strength modifier as a free action.

Celestial Resistance — Celestial Scholar Utility 12

You transform your resistance to ward against a different kind of threat.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Free Action Personal
Effect: You can change the resistance granted by your current Soul of the Cosmic Cycle phase to the type of a different phase (cold, psychic, or radiant), or you can increase your resistance against the current type by 5. This benefit lasts until you change your phase.

Celestial Seal — Celestial Scholar Attack 20

Your foe is surrounded by celestial lights and held in place by cosmic bindings.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement; Varies
Standard Action Ranged 20
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 4d8 + Charisma modifier damage. For this attack's damage, choose two damage types from among cold, psychic, and radiant.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: The target is immobilized (save ends). This effect has an additional benefit based on your current Soul of the Cosmic Cycle phase.
Blazing Sun: The target takes fire and radiant damage equal to your Strength modifier.
Watching Moon: The target takes a -2 penalty to all defenses until the end of its next turn.
Distant Stars: You teleport the target 3 squares.

Dragon Guardian

"The dragon's traits are mine—its breath, its strength, and its ability to withstand harm. With such weapons, who can hope to withstand me?"

Prerequisite: Sorcerer, Dragon Magic class feature

Dragons are your legacy. You embody one of the manifestations of draconic might. The sheer physical power of dragons inspires you. Your foes glimpse these truths when you demonstrate your powers.

You have studied the movements and strategies of dragons as they fight, both when you heard or read about dragons in epic stories and on a few occasions when you were menaced by one. You are drawn to dragons' lairs or other places where dragons congregate, eager to learn more about the mighty beasts that are your personal idols.

Dragon Guardian Path Features

Dragon Breath Action (11th level): Whenever you spend an action point to make a close blast attack, the attack can score a critical hit on a roll of 16-20.

Guardian's Resistance (11th level): Choose acid, cold, fire, lightning, poison, or thunder. Add that damage type to the resistance granted by your Dragon Soul. You can't choose a damage type that your Dragon Soul already grants you resistance to.

Indomitable Breath (16th level): When you make an attack roll with a close blast power, you ignore any resistance and immunity that creatures have to the attack.

Dragon Guardian Spells

Guardian's Breath Dragon Guardian Attack 11

You harm your foes by breathing on them, forcing them to succumb to your power.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Close blast 3
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d10 + Charisma modifier damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target is marked and has vulnerable 5 to your attacks. Until the mark ends, if the target makes an attack that does not include you as a target, it takes damage equal to 2d6 + your bonus from Draconic Power after the attack is resolved.

Shield of Dragon Might Dragon Guardian Utility 12

You breathe out a shield of energy in response to an attack, and it continues to protect you.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Immediate Interrupt Personal
Trigger: You are hit by an attack
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you gain a +2 power bonus to all defenses, and the resistance granted by your Dragon Soul also applies to another damage type of your choice (acid, cold, fire, lightning, poison, or thunder).

Lasting Breath Dragon Guardian Attack 20

You exhale a blast of powerful dragonfire that scours your foes and draws their attention to you.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement; Variable
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d10 + Charisma modifier damage, and ongoing damage equal to 10 + your Strength modifier, and the target is marked (save ends both). The damage and the ongoing damage are of the type associated with your Dragon Soul resistance.

Until the mark ends, if the target makes an attack that does not include you as a target, it takes damage equal to 5d6 + your bonus from Draconic Power after the attack is resolved.
Miss: Half damage.

MATIAS TAPIA

Essence Mage

"I am arcana incarnate, and I know magic's true form."

Prerequisite: Sorcerer

Your arcane power is innate. An essential part of your being is bound to the magic you use. You are capable of transforming yourself into spell energy and warping your body into versatile forms. By learning to see inside yourself and reshape your very soul, you transcend the limits of mortality.

Essence Mage Path Features

Essential Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you gain a +4 bonus to attack rolls with arcane powers until the start of your next turn.

Energy Essence (11th level): If you hit with an arcane attack power that deals more than one type of damage, you deal 1d6 extra damage.

Essential Resistance (16th level): Whenever you gain resistance, increase that resistance by 3 (or by 4 at 21st level and higher).

Essence Mage Spells

Essence of Arcane Blood Essence Mage Attack 11

The magic infused in your being bursts from your body, rending your foe with chaotic destruction.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement; Varies
Standard Action Ranged 20
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d8 + Charisma modifier damage. Choose two damage types from among acid, cold, fire, force, lightning, necrotic, poison, psychic, radiant, and thunder. The attack deals damage of these two types. Until the end of your next turn, you gain combat advantage against all targets of your arcane attacks.

Essence Form

As an essence mage, you might choose to manifest a specific appearance when you use your essence form power. You can base it on a specific damage type you use often, turning your body into a flickering green fire, a dark cloud that constantly roars with thunder, or a mass of connected planes of force. Other trappings of arcane magic can make for an interesting appearance. You could become a swirl of runes from many different scripts, an aurora of multicolored light, or a watery shape that shimmers with images of hundreds of spellcasters both alive and dead.

Essence Form Essence Mage Utility 12

Your body vanishes, leaving behind a miasma of rippling, sparking arcane energy.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: You become insubstantial until the end of your next turn. If you hit with an arcane power while you are insubstantial, you gain temporary hit points equal to one-half your level + your Charisma modifier.

Protective Essence Essence Mage Attack 20

As you strike out with an explosion of magical force, your body is veiled in swirls of kaleidoscopic color that protect you from attacks.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Force, Implement
Standard Action Close burst 2
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 4d6 + Charisma modifier force damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you gain resist 5 to all damage. Until the end of the encounter, each time you use an arcane power, each enemy adjacent to you takes damage equal to your Charisma modifier.

HOWARD LYON

Lightning Fury

"In my chest beats the storm's heart, which churns with godlike power."

Prerequisite: Sorcerer, Storm Magic class feature

Your greatest joy is the fulfillment you attain through your stormy outbursts. Laughter rumbles from your mouth like thunder when you tear into foes with blinding bolts that scar the air and scorch the earth. Your form is cloaked in a shimmering haze of electric sparks and bolts that flash out to strike enemies that threaten you.

When you defeat your foes, the fury in your blood subsides into quiescence, but it never moves too far beneath the surface. Even in your dreams as you rest, you can sense the thunderheads inside you roiling as they wait for the next storm to brew.

Lightning Fury Path Features

Electric Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you deal lightning damage equal to your Dexterity modifier to one, two, or three creatures of your choice within 5 squares of you.

Unstoppable Lightning (11th level): Your lightning attacks treat each creature that has resistance to lightning as not having that resistance. In addition, your lightning attacks treat each creature that is immune to lightning as instead having resistance to lightning equal to one-half its level.

Lightning Field (16th level): After you hit with a lightning power, until the end of your next turn, each enemy that moves into a square adjacent to you or makes a melee attack against you takes 2d6 + your Dexterity modifier lightning damage.

JASON ENGLE

Lightning Fury Spells

Furious Bolts — Lightning Fury Attack 11

Jagged streaks of lightning fly from your hands and flash between several foes.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Lightning
Standard Action Ranged 20
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier lightning damage. Make a secondary attack.
Secondary Target: One creature within 10 squares of the primary target
Secondary Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d4 + Charisma modifier lightning damage. Repeat the secondary attack against any single creature you have not yet hit with this attack. (You can continue attacking as long as you keep hitting and still have targets you haven't attacked yet.)
Effect: On your next turn, you gain a bonus to your first attack roll equal to the number of creatures you hit with furious bolts.

Lightning in the Blood — Lightning Fury Utility 12

You feel energized as lightning arcs through your veins and flashes in your eyes.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Lightning
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, your lightning attacks deal an additional die of damage. (The die is the same size the attack already deals.)

Bolt of Power — Lightning Fury Attack 20

You call down a tremendous lightning bolt that crashes into a large group of foes and lays waste to them.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Lightning
Standard Action Ranged 20
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 4d10 + Charisma modifier lightning damage, and ongoing 10 lightning damage (save ends). You can choose to become dazed until the end of your next turn. If you do so, each creature adjacent to the target takes ongoing 10 lightning damage (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and ongoing 5 lightning damage (save ends).

Primordial Channeler

"Earth, wind, and water churn inside me, yearning to be free."

Prerequisite: Sorcerer, Wild Magic class feature

Waves of cold, fire, lightning, and thunder surge within you like a roiling elemental, contained in shroud of skin. You dream of being swept away in a conflagration whose size will grow without bound and one day break through planar walls themselves.

You've heard of the ancient ones, the primordials who forged the world in an elemental explosion. You feel a kinship to those entities, and as you gain more and more power, you begin to suspect you are actually related to them. If your suspicion is more than just conjecture, what does that bode for your future?

Primordial Channeler Path Features

Primordial Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, each enemy within 3 squares of you takes damage equal to your Dexterity modifier. The damage type matches the type of resistance currently provided by your Wild Soul.

Primordial Manifestation (11th level): If the type of resistance currently provided by your Wild Soul is cold, fire, lightning, or thunder, you also gain the benefit described below.

MIKE NASH

Cold: Creatures hit by your attacks are slowed until the end of your next turn.

Fire: Creatures hit by your attacks take ongoing fire damage equal to your Dexterity modifier (save ends).

Lightning: Creatures hit by your attacks take a –2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

Thunder: Creatures hit by your attacks are deafened (save ends).

Overwhelming Elements (16th level): Whenever you hit a creature with an attack, that creature's resistances are reduced by 10 (minimum 0) until the end of your next turn.

Primordial Channeler Spells

Primordial Rage Primordial Channeler Attack 11

You let loose a bolt of pure primordial chaos, and it feeds off the effects of your wild magic.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement; Varies
Standard Action Ranged 20
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d10 + Charisma modifier damage. You gain an additional benefit based on the resistance currently provided by your Wild Soul.
Cold: The target is immobilized until the end of your next turn.
Fire: You push the target 1 square and knock it prone.
Lightning: The target is dazed until the end of your next turn.
Thunder: Each creature adjacent to the target takes thunder damage equal to your Dexterity modifier.
Other: The target takes a –2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

Primordial Boon Primordial Channeler Utility 12

You exude a shield of energy that protects you from attacks.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: You gain resist 15 cold, resist 15 fire, resist 15 lightning, and resist 15 thunder until the end of the encounter.

Primordial Rift Primordial Channeler Attack 20

A spout of matter from the Elemental Chaos emerges in front of you, blasting forth uncontrolled energy.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Cold, Fire, Implement, Lightning, Thunder
Standard Action Close blast 2d6
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier cold, fire, lightning, and thunder damage, and the target is stunned until the end of your next turn.
Miss: Half damage, and the target is dazed until the end of your next turn.
Effect: Roll on the Wild Soul table. Until the end of the encounter, you gain the Wild Soul benefits of both your current Wild Soul damage type and the new type. (If you get the same result a second time, roll again.) If a later effect changes the damage type of your Wild Soul, you can choose to change either one.

CHAPTER 3

Swordmage

"My arcane powers are ancient, passed down through the centuries so that when I am called to duty, my warding holds fast."

Swordmages are warriors who wield ancient magic to supplement their martial skills. A swordmage channels magic through his or her sword, enhancing attacks, bolstering defenses, and aiding allies. Each time a swordmage presses the attack, a foe must contend not only with the bite of steel, but also with arcs of searing fire, dazzling discharges of lightning, and cold as chilling as any blizzard.

As a swordmage, you share a bond with your sword. When you and your sword are separated, you can call the weapon to hand with a mere thought. Developing this powerful relationship with your blade is the first step to becoming a swordmage, and calling the weapon is the first lesson you mastered.

Swordmages are consummate tacticians, and they recognize the value of teamwork. As a result, you focus your arcane talents on preserving allies against foes' attacks. You have learned to create an arcane link between yourself and your enemy. This ancient magic is the swordmage's aegis, and it allows you to punish a foe that dares to attack your allies.

This chapter includes the following material.

- New Class Feature: Using aegis of ensnarement, you can compel a foe to move to you just when the creature thinks itself safe.
- New Build: Foil your foes with cunning footwork, entangling spells, and dazzling swordplay as an ensnaring swordmage.
- New Swordmage Powers: Capture your enemies with entrapping powers, glide effortlessly across the battlefield, or unleash bursts of elemental magic. Customize your arcane arsenal for control or damage.
- New Paragon Paths: This chapter introduces six new swordmage paragon paths. Inscribe sigils in the air that punish your foes, or capitalize on an enemy's greatest weaknesses. Stalk the ether between planes, or bend your Swordmage Warding into a powerful weapon.

WAYNE ENGLAND

NEW CLASS FEATURE

Instead of selecting the aegis of shielding or the aegis of assault as your Swordmage Aegis, you can select the aegis of ensnarement power.

Aegis of Ensnarement Swordmage Feature

You create an arcane link between yourself and a foe, allowing you to ensnare that creature.

At-Will ✦ Arcane, Teleportation
Minor Action Close burst 2
Target: One creature in burst
Effect: You mark the target. The target remains marked until you use this power against another target. If you mark another creature using other powers, the target is still marked.

Until the mark ends, if the target makes any attack that does not include you as a target, it takes a –2 penalty to the attack roll.

If a target marked by this power is within 10 squares of you when it hits with an attack that does not include you as a target, you can use an immediate reaction after the target's entire attack is resolved to teleport the target to any space adjacent to you. In addition, the target grants combat advantage to all creatures until the end of your next turn. If no unoccupied space exists adjacent to you, you can't use this immediate reaction, and the target doesn't grant combat advantage as a result of this effect.

NEW BUILD

The swordmage class is featured in the Forgotten Realms® Player's Guide. This chapter presents an additional swordmage build, the ensnaring swordmage. The ensnaring swordmage focuses on battlefield control and on immobilizing, slowing, and knocking prone enemies. The build is also associated with a new aegis, the aegis of ensnarement, which allows you to teleport a marked enemy to you.

Ensnaring Swordmage

You are a sly hunter who closes in on your prey, punishing an enemy for any missteps, and hounding it until it is vanquished. As an ensnaring swordmage, you are a clever defender who gains the tactically advantageous ground in a fight. You circle opponents and entrap them with careful swordplay, entangling spells, and cunning feints. You might also charge a foe to try to gain the advantage or to keep the creature from your allies.

Your use of spells to ensnare opponents requires physical and mental endurance. Intelligence should be your primary ability score, because it determines the accuracy and potency of your spells. You should also have a high Constitution score to strengthen your ensnaring spells.

LUCIO PARRILLO

Suggested Class Feature: aegis of ensnarement
Suggested Feat: Grasping Ensnarement*
Suggested Skills: Arcana, Athletics, Endurance, Insight
Suggested At-Will Powers: *foesnare†, stalker's strike
Suggested Encounter Power: *fox's feint
Suggested Daily Power: *dragon's teeth
*New option presented in this book
†Presented in the Forgotten Realms® Player's Guide

THE MARKED CONDITION

When you mark a creature, you force it to engage you or suffer the consequences. While that creature is marked by you, it takes a –2 penalty to attack rolls for any attack that doesn't include you as a target. In addition, powers, class features, magic item properties, and feats might have effects that trigger when the creature takes certain actions.

A creature can be subject to only one mark at a time, and a new mark supersedes a mark that was already in place. The effect you use to mark a creature determines how long the creature remains marked by you. Regardless of the mark's duration, it ends if someone else marks that creature, unless an effect says otherwise.

NEW SWORDMAGE POWERS

A swordmage must use a variety of spells to assault enemies and protect allies. The swordmage relies on aegis of shielding, aegis of assault, or aegis of ensnarement as the core of his or her defense. Many powers become more potent depending on a swordmage's aegis. An ensnaring swordmage relies on the aegis of ensnarement to bring an enemy close, but he or she also uses powers that immobilize, slow, or otherwise inhibit the movement of a foe. The powers in this chapter give the swordmage a more wide-ranging suite of options, allowing him or her to focus on specific damage types or attack ranges.

Level 1 At-Will Spells

Luring Strike Swordmage Attack 1

You step behind your foe, strike quickly, and then dart away, drawing the creature after you.

At-Will ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] damage. You shift 1 square and slide the target 1 square into the space you occupied.
Level 21: 2[W] damage.
Effect: Before or after the attack, you can shift 1 square.

Level 1 Encounter Spells

Blazing Pursuit Swordmage Attack 1

You envelop your blade in fire and then strike. The flames create a lingering path that you can travel along to catch your escaping foe.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Fire, Teleportation, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Intelligence modifier fire damage. If the target is within 5 squares of you at the end of its next turn, as a free action you can teleport to a space that must be adjacent to the target.
Aegis of Assault: You can teleport to a space adjacent to the target even if you do not have line of sight to that space.

Crackling Burst Swordmage Attack 1

Your weapon sends out sprawling arcs of lightning that hit nearby creatures, making movement agonizing for them.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Lightning
Standard Action Close burst 1
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d8 lightning damage. If the target moves during its next turn, it takes lightning damage equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Falcon's Mark Swordmage Attack 1

You send your weapon flying to seek out an enemy beyond your normal reach. Your magic then marks that creature as your foe.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Force, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged 5
Requirement: You must throw your melee weapon at the target.
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 1[W] + Intelligence modifier force damage, and the target is marked until the end of your next turn.
Aegis of Ensnarement: You can instead mark the target with your aegis of ensnarement power. Marking the target does not remove the mark on another target affected by your aegis of ensnarement. The mark lasts until the end of your next turn.
Effect: Your weapon returns to your hand.

Fox's Feint Swordmage Attack 1

Your blade dances faster than the eye can follow, guiding your foe's movement as you attack.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Teleportation, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Intelligence modifier damage, and you can swap positions with the target.
Aegis of Ensnarement: Until the end of your next turn, when the target grants combat advantage to an attacker, that attacker gains a +4 bonus to the attack roll instead of a +2 bonus.

Sword of Sigils Swordmage Attack 1

As you sweep your blade in a wide arc, it glows red and leaves arcane runes burning in the air above your foes.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Force, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 1
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Intelligence modifier damage, and the target is marked until the end of your next turn. Until the mark ends, if the target makes an attack that does not include you as a target, it takes force damage equal to your Intelligence modifier after the attack is resolved.
Aegis of Shielding: If a target marked by this power hits a creature within 10 squares of you with an attack that does not include you as a target, you can use an immediate interrupt to reduce the damage dealt by that attack to any single creature by an amount equal to your Constitution modifier.

HALF-ELF SWORDMAGES

Half-elves are accomplished diplomats. They naturally learn a gamut of skills, and so half-elves viscerally appreciate the fusion of magic and swordplay that swordmages employ. They have the physical resilience to make capable ensnaring swordmages or shielding swordmages. Many half-elves take up blade and magic to defend themselves when traveling through hostile lands.

Level 1 Daily Spells

Dance of the Sword Swordmage Attack 1

Your dazzling display of swordplay and magic captivates your foes and causes them to neglect combat tactics and opportunities.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Charm, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Close burst 2
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: 1d8 + Intelligence modifier psychic damage, and the target cannot make opportunity attacks or shift (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and until the end of your next turn, the target cannot make opportunity attacks or shift.

Dragon's Teeth Swordmage Attack 1

When you strike, darts of force explode from your weapon. The shards dig into your foes' flesh, goading them to move in your direction.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Force, Implement
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d8 + Intelligence modifier force damage. The target takes damage equal to your Strength modifier if it does not end its turn adjacent to you (save ends).
Miss: Half damage.

Lashing Asp Swordmage Attack 1

A spectral asp winds itself around your sword. With each successful strike you make, the asp lunges to attack nearby foes.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Poison, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, whenever you hit an enemy with a melee attack, each enemy adjacent to the target of that attack takes poison damage equal to your Constitution modifier. Also, whenever you hit an enemy marked by your Swordmage Aegis power with a melee attack, it takes poison damage equal to your Constitution modifier.

Sweeping Frostblade Swordmage Attack 1

You swing your blade in a wide circle, unleashing a freezing wave that numbs nearby foes.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Cold, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 1
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Intelligence modifier cold damage, and the target is immobilized (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and the target is immobilized until the end of your next turn.

Level 2 Utility Spells

Arcane Transport Swordmage Utility 2

You extend your magic to include a nearby friend as you step through an unseen, arcane corridor.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Teleportation
Free Action Close burst 2
Trigger: You teleport using a swordmage power
Target: One ally in burst
Effect: The target teleports to a space adjacent to the space you teleport to.

Field of Stone

Dhal stopped. The trail ahead twisted into a field of weathered boulders. The great pale stones lay scattered around a fey crossing, a place where the world is warped by the proximity of the Feywild.

The location was a nightly destination for Dhal. Here, his instructor tutored him in the ways of blade and spell. Why the eladrin had selected Dhal as her sole student, he had never learned. The question seemed irrelevant now. She was a swordmage, and she said she was passing her craft to him. That was enough for Dhal.

In the span of a year, he had learned secrets that would have turned his parents' hair white, had they still been alive to care. He had developed his swordbond, mastered the ancient mysteries of the aegis, and discovered the power of combining sword and sorcery.

This night, something seemed different about the boulder field. A low wind breathed through the stones, whispering warnings. The shadows played against the moonlight, casting bleary silhouettes of things that weren't there.

"Teacher?" Dhal called.

A chill gust was his only answer.

Dhal pulled his sword from its sheath and advanced. He conjured his arcane warding with his free hand, erecting the invisible magical field as a guard against some unseen menace.

He came close to the base of the mound that marked the fey crossing. The eladrin swordmage stood on its top, outlined by the full moon.

"Dhal," she said in a solemn voice, "are you ready for your final test?"

He swallowed nervously, but raised his sword in salute. "Yes, Teacher."

"Then prepare yourself."

The wind turned colder yet. For a moment, all was silent. Then the boulders around the mound began to tremble. All at once, they leapt together like joints on a closing fist. Dhal cried out in surprise, but his voice was blanketed by the thunder of grinding stone.

A troll of animate rock emerged from the collision of boulders and, without a moment's hesitation, charged Dhal.

Dhal responded instinctively to the attack. Arcane power swirled around his blade and outward toward the charging troll, engulfing it in an inferno.

The test had begun.

Channeling Shield — Swordmage Utility 2

You throw up a temporary shield to absorb some of the power of a foe's attack.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Immediate Interrupt Close burst 10
Trigger: An attack hits you or an ally within 10 squares of you
Target: The creature hit by the triggering attack
Effect: You reduce the damage the target takes from the triggering attack by 5 + your Constitution modifier.
Aegis of Shielding: The next successful attack you make before the end of your next turn deals extra damage equal to your Constitution modifier.

Ghost Step — Swordmage Utility 2

Like a ghost, you glide unharmed through the battlefield.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, whenever you shift, you can shift 1 additional square.

Host of Shields — Swordmage Utility 2

Your weapon produces a few small, glowing shields that orbit your body and ward off blows.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, you gain a +2 power bonus to AC and Reflex.

Ward of Brilliance — Swordmage Utility 2

A brilliant flash of light shields you and blinds your foe.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Immediate Interrupt Personal
Trigger: An enemy marked by you hits you with a melee attack
Effect: You gain a +4 power bonus to AC and Reflex until the end of your next turn. If the triggering enemy's attack hits you despite the bonus, the triggering enemy is blinded until the end of your next turn.

Level 3 Encounter Spells

Blazing Lunge — Swordmage Attack 3

You lunge toward your enemy, your blade ablaze with arcane flame.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Fire, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier fire damage.
Aegis of Assault: When making an opportunity attack, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Dimensional Vortex — Swordmage Attack 3

Lashing out with your sword, you warp space, causing your foe to appear a short distance away and unleash its attack elsewhere.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Teleportation
Immediate Interrupt Ranged 10
Trigger: An enemy hits an ally with a melee attack
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: You teleport the target 5 squares. The target then makes its melee attack against a creature you choose. If no creatures are within range of the target, the attack is expended.
Aegis of Shielding: If the target is marked by your aegis of shielding power, the target's melee attack deals extra damage equal to your Constitution modifier.

Dual Lightning Strike — Swordmage Attack 3

Like a forked bolt of lightning, you seem to strike two creatures at once.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Lightning, Teleportation, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Intelligence modifier lightning damage, and the target is marked until the end of your next turn.
Effect: You teleport 5 squares and make a secondary attack.
Aegis of Assault: The number of squares you teleport equals 4 + your Strength modifier.
Secondary Target: One creature other than the primary target
Secondary Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Intelligence modifier lightning damage, and the target is marked until the end of your next turn.

Shadow Snake Lunge — Swordmage Attack 3

Like the shadow snake, your strike bites with deadly venom. With each movement, your foe suffers from the poison you inflict.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Poison, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier damage. Until the end of your next turn, when the target uses a move action, it takes poison damage equal to your Constitution modifier.

Gods and Swordmages

Kord, Corellon, and Ioun are popular deities among swordmages because of these gods' influence over war, magic, and knowledge, respectively. Avandra is favored by some swordmages who travel the world. Vecna seduces a few swordmages because of his influence over magic and secrets. Those swordmages see worshiping Vecna as a gateway to power.

The Raven Queen counts a handful of swordmages among her followers, for some view her control over destiny as a path to glory and legend. A few swordmages prefer to pursue their own fortunes, favoring Sehanine's doctrine of personal destiny.

Unseen Gauntlet Swordmage Attack 3

Your words of magic create a gauntleted hand that wraps around your foe, crushing its windpipe and leaving it gasping for breath.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Force, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 5
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: 1d10 + Intelligence modifier force damage, and the target is immobilized until the end of your next turn.
Aegis of Ensnarement: The attack deals extra damage equal to your Constitution modifier.

Genasi Swordmages

Their combination of mental and physical prowess makes genasi perfectly suited to become swordmages. Genasi are also ideal swordmages from an aesthetic standpoint. Swordmages can deal a variety of types of damage, and a genasi's ability to manifest elements means that both body and blade can crackle with lightning or burn with fire.

Genasi have a long tradition of becoming swordmages. Many genasi repudiate the claim that eladrin invented the swordmage style. Genasi allege that their earliest ancestors were responsible for the combination of magic and blade, though no evidence exists to confirm either race's assertion.

Level 5 Daily Spells

Dimensional Bond Swordmage Attack 5

Your sword thrust connects you with your foe and creates a dimensional bond that allows you to teleport to its location.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Teleportation, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you can teleport 10 squares as a move action. You must end this movement adjacent to the target.

Energy Theft Swordmage Attack 5

You draw on your enemy's natural resilience to protect your allies from harm.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Intelligence modifier damage.
Effect: Choose acid, cold, fire, force, lightning, necrotic, poison, psychic, radiant, or thunder. The target gains vulnerable 5 to that damage type (save ends). Each ally within 5 squares of you gains resist 5 to that damage type until the end of the encounter.

CHRIS SEAMAN

Enervating Slash — Swordmage Attack 5

Your weapon turns pitch black as you strike. The wound it leaves behind drains your enemy of strength when it attacks your allies.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier damage.
Effect: The target's attacks deal half damage to your allies (save ends).

Mark of the Hound — Swordmage Attack 5

With a wicked flourish, you carve your mark into the flesh of your foe, enabling you to find the creature wherever it goes.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you can automatically pinpoint the location of the target while it is within 20 squares of you, even if line of sight or line of effect would normally be blocked. You still take any penalties for any concealment or cover that the creature has against you. Also, until the end of the encounter, you gain the benefit of flanking against the target while you and at least one ally are adjacent to the target.

Purifying Wound — Swordmage Attack 5

Your attack inflicts a grievous wound and unleashes a gout of flame that consumes your enemy.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fire, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier damage, and ongoing 5 fire damage (save ends). When the target takes the ongoing fire damage, each enemy adjacent to the target takes 5 fire damage.
Miss: Half damage.

Level 6 Utility Spells

Quickling Stride — Swordmage Utility 6

You move through the battlefield in a blur.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Move Action Personal
Effect: You move 12 squares.

Swordmage's Decree — Swordmage Utility 6

Speaking ancient words of aegis binding, you lower a mantle of magic over your enemies that marks them as your foes.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Close blast 3
Target: Each enemy in blast
Effect: The target is marked by your Swordmage Aegis power. Marking the target does not remove the mark on another target already affected by your Swordmage Aegis. If you mark only one target with this power, you do not expend the power but cannot use it again during this encounter.

Unicorn's Touch — Swordmage Utility 6

Your blade briefly adopts the appearance of a unicorn horn, sending out a focused pulse of curative energy.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Healing
Minor Action Close burst 1
Target: You or one ally in burst
Effect: The target either rolls a saving throw or regains hit points equal to 5 + your Constitution modifier.

Zephyr of the Barren Sands — Swordmage Utility 6

You channel the power of the desert winds to briefly lift you into the air.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Move Action Personal
Effect: You fly a number of squares equal to your speed.

Level 7 Encounter Spells

Dazing Rebuke — Swordmage Attack 7

Your sword swing unleashes a barrage of nettling darts of force that punish a foe for attacking one of your allies.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Force, Implement
Immediate Reaction Ranged 5
Trigger: An enemy within 5 squares of you hits or misses an ally
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: 1d8 + Intelligence modifier force damage, and the target is dazed until the end of your next turn.
Aegis of Shielding: The target also takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

Rejuvenating Strike — Swordmage Attack 7

Your attack draws life from your foe's injury and instills you with renewed energy.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Healing, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier damage. You can spend a healing surge.
Aegis of Ensnarement: If you spend a healing surge, you regain additional hit points equal to your Constitution modifier.

Halfling Swordmages

Nimble and quick, halflings rely on agility instead of size. Although the art of the swordmage is favored chiefly by eladrin and genasi, the knowledge has percolated through the world, and even a few halflings have picked it up. A halfling who takes up blade and magic uses size and luck to great advantage when defending. Rarely a battle goes by in which a halfling swordmage does not find use for his or her second chance racial trait. A halfling who becomes a swordmage is likely to be a shielding swordmage. Upon reaching the paragon tier, a halfling swordmage might choose the ghost blade paragon path (page 65) because of its increased mobility and evasiveness.

Shatterblade — Swordmage Attack 7

In the blink of an eye, your weapon shatters into thousands of pieces that cut your foe. The weapon then reforms in your hand.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Intelligence modifier damage. Each creature other than you that is adjacent to the target takes damage equal to your Intelligence modifier + your Strength modifier.

Thunderclap Strike — Swordmage Attack 7

Raising your blade, you send out a clap of thunder that sends your foes sprawling as noise cascades over them.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Close burst 1
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d6 + Intelligence modifier thunder damage, and you knock the target prone.

Watchful Strike — Swordmage Attack 7

As you strike your foe, you place another foe under your aegis.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier damage. One enemy within 5 squares of you other than the target is marked until the end of your next turn.
Aegis of Assault: The enemy you mark is marked by your aegis of assault and takes damage equal to your Strength modifier.

Level 9 Daily Spells

Arcane Deflection — Swordmage Attack 9

Your blade weaves in a pattern that deflects attacks directed at your nearby allies.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Stance, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier damage.
Effect: Until the stance ends, you can make the following weapon attack.
Immediate Interrupt Personal
Trigger: An enemy hits an ally who is adjacent to you
Special: Make an Intelligence attack vs. the triggering enemy's attack roll
Hit: The triggering enemy's attack misses the ally.

Blade Bolt — Swordmage Attack 9

Throwing your sword, you transform the weapon into a bolt of lightning that cripples your foe.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Lightning, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged 5
Requirement: You must throw your melee weapon at the target.
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier lightning damage, and the target is slowed (save ends). Also, the target is marked by your Swordmage Aegis power. Marking the target does not remove the mark on another target already affected by your Swordmage Aegis.
Miss: Half damage, and the target is slowed until the end of your next turn.
Effect: Your weapon returns to your hand.

Forceful Dismissal — Swordmage Attack 9

Bored with your foes, you give them a dismissive wave with your sword that sends them tumbling to the ground.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Force, Implement
Standard Action Close blast 3
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d8 + Intelligence modifier force damage, and you push the target a number of squares equal to your Strength modifier and knock it prone.
Miss: Half damage, and you push the target 1 square.

Hellspike Assault — Swordmage Attack 9

Your blade bursts into flame as you stab a foe. You and the foe are then whisked away to another enemy.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fire, Teleportation, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 1[W] + Intelligence modifier fire damage.
Effect: Make a secondary attack.
Secondary Target: One creature within 5 squares of you other than the primary target
Effect: You teleport to a space that must be adjacent to the secondary target. If you hit the primary target, you can also teleport the primary target to a space adjacent to you.
Secondary Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier fire damage.

Human Swordmages

Like half-elves, humans are able learners and capable of taking quickly to the skills of the swordmage. Among the many humans inhabiting the world, a few learn this ancient practice. Often, human swordmages are foundlings who were raised by eladrin or genasi and taught the ancient art. These swordmages are proud of their heritage, and they can become as accomplished as any eladrin swordmage. Humans do not favor a particular style of swordmage fighting, instead leaning toward whatever technique their attributes fit.

Troll Rampage — Swordmage Attack 9

You charge your foe, swinging your weapon savagely. As arcane energy fuels your charge, a few of your minor wounds heal.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Healing, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier damage. Until the end of the encounter, you gain regeneration equal to 2 + your Constitution modifier while you are bloodied.
Miss: Half damage. You regain hit points equal to 2 + your Constitution modifier.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.
Aegis of Ensnarement: If you charge, you gain a +2 bonus to the attack roll instead of the normal +1 for charging.

Level 10 Utility Spells

Like a Feather — Swordmage Utility 10

You fear no height, for your magic gives grace to any landing.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Free Action Personal
Trigger: You are knocked prone or fall
Effect: You take no falling damage, and you are not knocked prone.

Feywild Grace — Swordmage Utility 10

You move with otherworldly grace through even the most difficult environments.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, you gain a +2 power bonus to speed and a +2 power bonus to Athletics checks, Acrobatics checks, and Stealth checks, and you ignore difficult terrain.

Spider's Leap — Swordmage Utility 10

Like the deathjump spider, you can pounce upon your prey with frightening speed.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Move Action Personal
Effect: You make an Athletics check to jump with a +10 power bonus. You are considered to have a running start and can move as far as the check allows.
Aegis of Ensnarement: When you charge, you can use this power as a free action.

Swordmages in the World

The lone traveler walking along a distant, borderland road; a hero described in epic poems by bards; an eladrin with wild hair and glyphs for tattoos; a human youth trained in the Feywild with a skill that few understand—any of these individuals might be a swordmage. Swordmages are more unusual than your average warrior. The combination of mental and physical skills makes a swordmage a rare find. In the tavern, a swordmage tends to draw curious glances at the least; more often, a swordmage is regarded with fear or respect.

Unerring Vision — Swordmage Utility 10

Your eyes glow silver, piercing the veils that separate you and your opponent.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you are automatically aware of each creature within 5 squares of you, including those that are hidden or invisible. You know the squares that any of those creatures occupy, but this knowledge does not negate the effects of cover, superior cover, concealment, or total concealment.

Level 13 Encounter Spells

Binding Light — Swordmage Attack 13

As your sword connects with your foe, a burst of arcane light roots nearby enemies to the ground.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Radiant, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier radiant damage. Each enemy adjacent to you other than the target is immobilized until the end of your next turn.
Aegis of Assault: When you use your aegis of assault to teleport and make an attack, you can use this power in place of the melee basic attack.

Ensnaring Bolts — Swordmage Attack 13

Bolts of purple lightning jet from your blade and rip at your foes, pulling them toward you.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Lightning
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d10 + Intelligence modifier lightning damage, and you pull the target a number of squares equal to your Constitution modifier.
Aegis of Ensnarement: The target is also slowed until the end of your next turn.

Fist of Force — Swordmage Attack 13

Your foe might be expecting a strike of the sword, but instead it gets a force-empowered fist in the face.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Force, Implement
Standard Action Melee 1
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d10 + Intelligence modifier force damage.
Aegis of Assault: The attack deals extra damage equal to your Strength modifier.
Effect: You push the target a number of squares equal to your Strength modifier and knock it prone.

Hypnotic Swordplay — Swordmage Attack 13

With a mesmerizing twirl of your weapon, you make your opponent's mind reel and rob the creature of its ability to react.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Melee 1
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: Intelligence modifier psychic damage, and the target is stunned until the end of your next turn.
Aegis of Ensnarement: If the target is marked by your aegis of ensnarement, the psychic damage equals your Intelligence modifier + your Constitution modifier.

Silverlight Strike — Swordmage Attack 13

Your strike causes silver light to flare around your foe, obscuring its ability to perceive anyone but you.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Radiant, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Intelligence modifier radiant damage. Until the end of your next turn, all your allies are invisible to the target.
Aegis of Shielding: The attack deals extra damage equal to your Constitution modifier.

Level 15 Daily Spells

Assault of Fiery Cuts — Swordmage Attack 15

Your blade moves in a blur as you assail your foe with cuts. Then, from those cuts, you summon flames to engulf your foe.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fire, Implement, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier damage.
Effect: Make a secondary attack that is an area burst 3 implement attack centered on the primary target. The secondary attack does not provoke opportunity attacks.
Secondary Target: Each enemy in burst
Secondary Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d6 + Intelligence modifier fire damage.

Dragonborn Swordmages

Although a dragonborn's high Strength seems ideal as a foundation for swordmage training, dragonborn rarely take up the cerebral art of combining sword and sorcery. However, a few dragonborn do rise to the intellectual challenge. The heritage of dragonborn promotes a strong bond with one's weapon, which encourages a few dragonborn warriors to pursue this vocation. Natural strength and dedicated study of the arcane arts can make a dragonborn suited to be an assault swordmage (described in the Forgotten Realms Player's Guide). A dragonborn who perseveres and continues his or her studies might then follow the sword of assault paragon path (page 68). By taking this path, a dragonborn swordmage can enhance his or her aegis of assault and use his or her Strength to add extra potency to already devastating magical attacks.

Burning Mantle — Swordmage Attack 15

As your sword connects with your foe's flesh, your body ignites into an aspect of fiery doom.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fire, Reliable, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier damage. Until the end of the encounter, each creature that starts its turn adjacent to you takes 5 fire damage.
Aegis of Assault: When you use your aegis of assault to teleport and make an attack, you can use this power in place of the melee basic attack.

Death's Blade — Swordmage Attack 15

Your blade pulses with necrotic energy. Your strike creates a wound that festers, causing your foe mind-numbing anguish.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Necrotic, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier necrotic damage. The target takes ongoing 5 necrotic damage, cannot regain hit points, cannot recharge powers, and cannot spend action points (save ends all).
Miss: Half damage, and ongoing 5 necrotic damage (save ends).

Eldritch Chains — Swordmage Attack 15

Spectral chains lash outward from your weapon, striking at your enemies before binding them in place.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Force, Implement
Standard Action Close blast 3
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d6 + Intelligence modifier force damage. Until the end of the encounter, whenever you end your turn adjacent to the target, the target is immobilized until the end of your next turn.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: The target is slowed until the end of your next turn.

Hunter's Pursuit — Swordmage Attack 15

You gauge your opponent's moves, attacking where the creature is weakest and cutting off its ability to escape.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 3[W] + Intelligence modifier damage, and the target is immobilized until the end of your next turn.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, whenever you hit the target with a melee attack, it is immobilized until the end of your next turn.
Aegis of Ensnarement: Until the end of the encounter, whenever you hit the target with a melee attack, you can knock it prone instead of immobilizing it.

Level 16 Utility Spells

Aegis of Lost Souls — Swordmage Utility 16

As one of your foes falls, you send out a pulse of magic that incites other enemies to attack you.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Free Action Area burst 2 centered on the triggering enemy
Trigger: An enemy within 10 squares of you drops to 0 hit points
Target: Each enemy in burst
Effect: The target is marked by your Swordmage Aegis power. Marking the target does not remove the mark on another target already affected by your Swordmage Aegis. Using this power does not provoke opportunity attacks.

Borrowed Confidence — Swordmage Utility 16

For a brief moment, your doubts and fears are assuaged by an overwhelming sense of confidence that drives you to succeed.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the start of your next turn, when you make an attack roll or a saving throw, you roll twice and use either result.

Shared Fortune — Swordmage Utility 16

With a few whispered words of magic, you gain the power to share in an ally's good fortunes.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Choose an ally within 3 squares of you. Until the end of the encounter or until you drop to 0 hit points or fewer, whenever that ally succeeds on a saving throw while you are within his or her line of sight, you can end one effect on you that a save can end.

Shield of the Besieged Tower — Swordmage Utility 16

The more foes stand arrayed against you, the stronger your defensive magic is.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the stance ends, you gain a +1 power bonus to AC. If at least two enemies are within 3 squares of you, this bonus increases to +3.

Unerring Parry — Swordmage Utility 16

With a quick flick of the wrist and a spell on the lips, you can guard yourself against the worst attacks.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Immediate Interrupt Personal
Trigger: A melee attack damages you
Effect: The triggering attack deals half damage to you.

Level 17 Encounter Spells

Dazzling Display — Swordmage Attack 17

With dizzying speed, you slash and slice your foes. Your swordplay leaves your foes off balance and unable to discern your location.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 1
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 1[W] + Intelligence modifier damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target grants combat advantage to you and your allies.
Effect: Until the end of your next turn or until you move, you have concealment.

Firelasher's Lunge — Swordmage Attack 17

Flame licks your blade, then explodes in a fiery blast when you strike your foe.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Fire, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier fire damage. Each enemy adjacent to the target takes fire damage equal to your Strength modifier.
Aegis of Assault: When you use your aegis of assault to teleport and make an attack, you can use this power in place of the melee basic attack.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.

Snake Strike — Swordmage Attack 17

Your sword extends into the form of a shadowy asp and bites an enemy. If that foe dares to leave your side, poison assails it a second time.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Poison
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d8 + Intelligence modifier poison damage. If the target ends its next turn in a space that is not adjacent to you, it takes 1d8 + your Constitution modifier poison damage.

Surprising Transposition — Swordmage Attack 17

You sever the fabric of reality, transporting an ally to safety while redirecting an enemy's attack.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Teleportation
Immediate Interrupt Ranged 10
Trigger: An enemy within 10 squares of you hits an ally with a melee attack
Target: One creature other than the triggering enemy or the ally who was hit
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude. If the target is an ally, you do not make an attack roll.
Hit: The target swaps positions with the ally, and the target is subject to the triggering enemy's attack.

Thundering Vortex — Swordmage Attack 17

A whirlwind of arcane energy lashes out to draw your foes closer to your blade.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Close burst 3
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d8 + Intelligence modifier thunder damage, and you pull the target 2 squares. The target is marked until the end of your next turn.
Aegis of Shielding: The target is marked by your aegis of shielding. Marking the target does not remove the mark on another target already affected by your aegis of shielding.

Level 19 Daily Spells

Forceful Rebuke — Swordmage Attack 19

Just as your foes close in on you, your sword strikes send out blasts of force that repel the enemies and send them staggering.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Force, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 1
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier force damage, and you push the target a number of squares equal to your Constitution modifier.
Miss: Half damage, and you push the target 1 square.

Marksman's Vision — Swordmage Attack 19

With one swipe, you mark your opponent with a burning, magic sigil that distracts your foe and ensures that the creature can't hide.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you can see the target of this power even if it is invisible or hidden. You take no penalty to attack rolls against the target for any concealment, total concealment, cover, or superior cover it has, but you cannot see through walls or any other solid barriers. In addition, you gain the benefit of flanking against the target as long as you and at least one ally are adjacent to it.
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Intelligence modifier damage.

Planar Shock — Swordmage Attack 19

Your weapon sends an enemy flying through otherworldly space. When the foe returns, it is reeling from the experience.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Teleportation, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier damage. You teleport the target 10 squares, and the target is stunned (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and you teleport the target 5 squares.

Ward of Scales — Swordmage Attack 19

You form a protective barrier of scintillating, silver dragon scales that strikes an enemy while providing shelter for an ally.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Lightning, Implement
Immediate Interrupt Close burst 5
Trigger: An enemy hits an ally within 5 squares of you
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 4d8 + Intelligence modifier lightning damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: The ally who was hit gains resistance to all damage equal to your Constitution modifier until the end of your next turn.
Sustain Minor: The effect persists.

Whirling Threat — Swordmage Attack 19

Appearing in a flash of light in the midst of your foes, you are a terror of flashing steel, threatening all adjacent enemies.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Stance, Teleportation, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 1
Effect: Before the attack, you teleport 10 squares.
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Intelligence modifier damage, and the target is marked until the end of your next turn.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the stance ends, once during each of your turns as a free action, you can mark one enemy that is adjacent to you. The mark lasts until the end of your next turn.

Level 22 Utility Spells

Borrowed Ascension — Swordmage Utility 22

You sprout a pair of translucent magic wings that take you aloft to do battle from the skies.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you gain a speed of fly 8 (hover). When the effect ends, you float to the ground and do not take falling damage.
Sustain Minor: The effect persists.

Boundless — Swordmage Utility 22

You wreath yourself in magic and unleash a burst of energy that lets you overcome even the most paralyzing afflictions.

Daily ✦ Arcane
No Action Personal
Effect: End any effects on you that impose the following conditions: grabbed, immobilized, restrained, slowed, and petrified. Until the end of the encounter, you gain a +5 power bonus to saving throws against any effects that include those conditions.

Ghost Walk — Swordmage Utility 22

Your form becomes immaterial like a ghost, and you gain the power to pass through walls.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: You become insubstantial and gain phasing until the end of your next turn.

Oni's Gift — Swordmage Utility 22

Like the oni of children's fairy tales, you can disappear from view until you are ready to strike.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Illusion
Minor Action Personal
Effect: You are invisible until the start of your next turn or until you attack.
Sustain Minor: You stay invisible or, if you are no longer invisible because you attacked, you become invisible again.

Level 23 Encounter Spells

Aegis Bolt — Swordmage Attack 23

You send a missile of force flying toward a distant foe, marking it for your wrath.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Force, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 4d8 + Intelligence modifier force damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target is marked by your Swordmage Aegis power. Marking the target does not remove the mark on another target already affected by your Swordmage Aegis.

Blink Assault — Swordmage Attack 23

In the blink of an eye, you and an ally appear next to a foe and unleash a deadly assault.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Teleportation, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Effect: Before the attack, you and an ally who is adjacent to you teleport 5 squares to spaces that must be adjacent to the target.
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Intelligence modifier damage.

Bravado Strike — Swordmage Attack 23

Your successful attack lends you the strength and the inspiration to keep on fighting.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Healing, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Intelligence modifier damage. You can spend a healing surge and regain additional hit points equal to your Constitution modifier. You can also roll a saving throw.

Eladrin Swordmages

For eladrin, swordplay is a skill as valued as the arcane arts. In fact, many believe that eladrin were the first to combine blade and magic. As a race that promotes study and mental achievement, eladrin are perfectly suited to be any type of swordmage. Their cunning in battle helps them evade physical blows while wearing the light armor typical of a swordmage. Eladrin swordmages often learn wizard powers that allow them to better control the battlefield, favoring such spells as ray of frost.

Freezing Swordburst — Swordmage Attack 23

Ice creeps over your weapon, and when you strike, it explodes in a cloud of frost that anchors nearby foes in eldritch ice.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Cold, Implement, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier cold damage, and the target is immobilized until the end of your next turn. Make a secondary attack that is an area burst 1 implement attack centered on the primary target. The secondary attack does not provoke opportunity attacks.
Secondary Target: Each creature in burst except you
Secondary Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: 1d8 + Intelligence modifier cold damage, and the target is slowed until the end of your next turn.
Aegis of Assault: When you use your aegis of assault to teleport and make an attack, you can use this power in place of the melee basic attack.

Lightning Bolt Charge — Swordmage Attack 23

You slash your foe and transform into lightning, racing across the battlefield to reappear and strike anew.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Lightning, Teleportation, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier lightning damage, and you teleport 10 squares.
Miss: You teleport 5 squares.
Effect: Make a secondary attack.
Secondary Target: One creature
Secondary Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Intelligence modifier lightning damage.

Radiant Shield — Swordmage Attack 23

Arcane radiance bursts around your foes, searing them while transforming your allies into insubstantial creatures of light.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 10 squares
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: 3d8 + Intelligence modifier radiant damage, and the target is marked until the end of your next turn.
Aegis of Shielding: The target is instead marked by your aegis of shielding until the end of your next turn. Marking the target does not remove the mark on another target already affected by your aegis of shielding.
Effect: Each ally in the burst becomes insubstantial until the end of your next turn.

Tiefling Swordmages

Although tieflings are not as disposed to becoming swordmages as eladrin or genasi are, their high Intelligence scores make them skilled swordmages when they do pursue the art. A tiefling's bloodhunt racial trait means that most tieflings favor the assault swordmage style (described in the Forgotten Realms Player's Guide). Similarly, the tiefling's infernal wrath power makes a tiefling swordmage tend to be more offense-oriented.

Level 25 Daily Spells

Darksword Bolt — Swordmage Attack 25

With a deft toss, you turn your sword into a streak of black lightning. It slams into your foe and causes the creature's flesh to rot away.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Lightning, Necrotic, Weapon
Standard Action Ranged 10
Requirement: You must throw your melee weapon at the target.
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3[W] + Intelligence modifier lightning and necrotic damage, and ongoing 10 necrotic damage (save ends).
Aftereffect: The target takes ongoing 5 necrotic damage (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and ongoing 5 necrotic damage (save ends).
Effect: Your weapon returns to your hand.

Invincible Rampage — Swordmage Attack 25

Magic washes over you, steeling your body against pain as you rain violence upon your foe.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Healing, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Intelligence modifier damage. Until the end of the encounter, you gain regeneration 10 while you are bloodied.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: You can spend a healing surge.
Special: When charging, you can use this power in place of a melee basic attack.
Aegis of Ensnarement: If you charge, you gain a +2 bonus to the attack roll instead of the normal +1 for charging.

Mindsap Maneuver — Swordmage Attack 25

Your arcane swordplay daunts your foe and leaves it scrambling to use even its simplest attacks.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Charm, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Intelligence modifier damage. The target can use only basic attacks to attack (save ends).
Miss: Half damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target can use only basic attacks to attack.

Sword Duel — Swordmage Attack 25

An arcane bond connects you to your foe. If the enemy does not face you in battle, your magical power will erode its life.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Intelligence modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, if the target does not attack you during its turn, it takes 10 damage at the end of its turn.

Waves of Languor — Swordmage Attack 25

With a sweep of your sword, you unleash a flood of energy that pacifies your foes, making them weak and sleepy.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic, Sleep
Standard Action Close burst 2
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: 2d8 + Intelligence modifier psychic damage, and the target is slowed and weakened (save ends both).
First Failed Saving Throw: The target becomes unconscious (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and the target is slowed and weakened until the end of your next turn.

Level 27 Encounter Spells

Slash and Burn — Swordmage Attack 27

Brandishing your sword in one hand, you slash at your enemy while striking it with a flaming fist that leaves it reeling.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Fire, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier damage. Make the following attack against the same target.
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: Intelligence modifier fire damage, and you push the target a number of squares equal to your Constitution modifier. Also, the target is dazed until the end of your next turn.

Steel Tempest — Swordmage Attack 27

The air erupts with blades around your foe, cutting any enemy that tries to move through them.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Weapon, Zone
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Intelligence modifier damage. The attack creates a zone of whirling blades in a burst 3 centered on the target. The zone lasts until the end of your next turn or until you dismiss it as a minor action. Each enemy that enters the zone or starts its turn there takes 10 damage.

Sword Chaser Assault — Swordmage Attack 27

You throw your weapon at an enemy that threatens an ally. Then, in the blink of an eye, you appear beside the foe and seize your sword.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Teleportation, Weapon
Immediate Interrupt Ranged 5
Trigger: An enemy within 5 squares of you hits an ally with a melee attack
Requirement: You must throw your melee weapon at the target.
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Intelligence modifier damage, and you teleport to a space that must be adjacent to the target.
Effect: Your weapon returns to your hand.

Thundering Burst — Swordmage Attack 27

You slam your sword into the ground and send a sonorous boom outward.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Thunder, Weapon
Standard Action Close burst 1
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier thunder damage. If the target moves before the end of your next turn, it takes 2d8 + your Constitution modifier thunder damage.
Aegis of Ensnarement: The target is also slowed until the end of your next turn.

Wrath of the Arctic Wind — Swordmage Attack 27

Your blade unleashes a freezing gale that numbs your foe and sends it tumbling.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Cold, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier cold damage, and the target is immobilized until the end of your next turn. In addition, you either slide the target 3 squares or knock it prone.
Aegis of Assault: When you use your aegis of assault to teleport and make an attack, you can use this power in place of the melee basic attack.

Level 29 Daily Spells

Constrictor's Strike — Swordmage Attack 29

You exhibit your mastery of the battlefield as you harry your foe and control its movements, making it unable to escape your blade.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 4[W] + Intelligence modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: The target is immobilized (save ends). Until the end of the encounter, whenever you hit the target with a melee attack, it is immobilized until the end of your next turn.
Aegis of Ensnarement: The target is restrained instead of immobilized.

Mirrorblade Army — Swordmage Attack 29

From your image reflected in your blade, you conjure an army of duplicates to help assault your foes anywhere on the battlefield.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Conjuration
Standard Action Ranged 10
Effect: You conjure a number of mirror images of yourself equal to your Constitution modifier (minimum 1) within range. Each mirror image occupies 1 square. Enemies cannot move through an image's space, but allies can.

You can make attacks, including opportunity attacks, as though you occupied the same space as a mirror image. A mirror image still provokes opportunity attacks as normal for using a ranged or an area attack.

A mirror image can be targeted by attacks. It has the same defenses, resistances, and immunities as you. A mirror image has 1 hit point, and a missed attack never damages it. A mirror image reduced to 0 hit points is destroyed.

Sustain Minor: The effect persists.

Silver Lightning Assault — Swordmage Attack 29

Your body streaks like silver lightning to a foe, even one you can't see. Reappearing, your lightning-charged weapon sears your foe.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Lightning, Teleportation, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Effect: Before the attack, you can teleport 20 squares to a space that must be adjacent to the target. You do not need line of sight to your destination.
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 6[W] + Intelligence modifier lightning damage, and you can then teleport back to your original position.
Miss: Half damage.

Sword of Soul Rot — Swordmage Attack 29

The strike of your blade injures and debilitates your enemy, leaving it unable to heal or replenish itself.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Necrotic, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: 4[W] + Intelligence modifier necrotic damage. The target takes ongoing 10 necrotic damage, cannot regain hit points, cannot recharge powers, and cannot spend action points (save ends all).
Miss: Half damage, and ongoing 10 necrotic damage (save ends).

Dwarf Swordmages

Few dwarves choose to take up the arcane sword and learn the secret spells of the aegis. Many dwarves don't have the patience for the blade, instead favoring hammers and axes in combat. Others simply disdain spellcasting, preferring to rely on martial exploits and divine prayers. Dwarves are not entirely unreceptive to the art, though, for their physical endurance makes them able defenders. In addition, the resilience required to channel magic through one's body and into the blade makes dwarves capable swordmages when they focus on shielding allies or ensnaring foes. Unlike assault swordmages (described in the Forgotten Realms Player's Guide), dwarf swordmages focus on control and defense. Dwarves who excel as swordmages might consider the ward guardian paragon path (page 69), which further extends a swordmage's ability to defend allies.

Arcane Hunter

"Every creature is vulnerable to my blade, for any resistance can be overcome."

Prerequisite: Swordmage, aegis of ensnarement class feature

You are adroit at spotting chinks in your enemies' defenses and taking advantage of those weaknesses to inflict debilitating blows. Your arcane senses give you the upper hand when you face creatures that rely on natural resistances.

As an arcane hunter, you might have been trained at an early age to visually recognize the physical weaknesses of creatures. Since then, your magical education has further refined those skills, allowing you to extend tendrils of unseen energy to feel out a foe's flaws.

In your studies and adventures, you have learned that adaptability is one of the best qualities when facing a variety of foes. Instead of specializing in one damage type or one type of attack, you prefer to have options.

Arcane Hunter Path Features

Knowing Strike (11th level): When you spend an action point to make an attack, that attack ignores all resistances and the insubstantial quality.

Perfect Strike (11th level): Whenever you score a critical hit, your attack deals extra damage equal to the target's highest vulnerability.

Exploitive Eye (16th level): Whenever you attack a creature that has one or more resistances, you treat those resistances as 10 lower than they are (minimum 0).

Arcane Hunter Spells

Exploit Weakness Arcane Hunter Attack 11

Your arcane insight guides you to an enemy's weakness, letting you exploit that vulnerability.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Intelligence modifier damage. This attack deals extra damage equal to the target's highest vulnerability.

Elemental Stance Arcane Hunter Utility 12

You speak a few words of an ancient spell, instilling your attacks with the power to bestow vulnerability on a foe.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Stance
Minor Action Personal
Effect: When you use this power, choose acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder. Until the stance ends, whenever you hit an enemy, that creature gains vulnerable 5 to the chosen damage type until the end of your next turn.

Flaw Seeking Strike Arcane Hunter Attack 20

You recognize a flaw in a creature's defenses, and you focus your attacks on that weakness.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Weapon; Varies
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Intelligence modifier damage, and ongoing 5 damage of a type of your choice to which the target is vulnerable (save ends). If the target has no vulnerabilities, it takes ongoing 10 damage of a type of your choice from among acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and ongoing 5 damage of a type of your choice (save ends).

WARREN MAHY

Ghost Blade

"From the space between worlds I come, my killing blow as soft as a whisper."

Prerequisite: Swordmage

Like many swordmages, you can effortlessly travel the roads behind the world. Those arcane pathways offer you more than they do your fellows, though, for you have actually learned to slip through the space between planes.

Your travels through the weave of reality have transformed your knowledge and skills. As you bend space with cunning strokes of your sword, you can be in two places at once, splitting your physical body between the dimensions. You might briefly take on the seeming of a ghostly spirit, but this appearance is only a temporary transformation. Even when you step between worlds, your blade doesn't fade—remaining a very real threat to your enemies.

Your eerie form has gained you the moniker of "ghost" in some circles. You smile to hear such nicknames, although they are untrue, because you know that fear is a valuable weapon.

FRANZ VOHWINKEL

Ghost Blade Path Features

Slip the Weave (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you become insubstantial until the end of your next turn.

Here nor There (11th level): Whenever you use a teleportation power, you gain combat advantage against one target of the next weapon attack you make before the end of your next turn.

Stalker of the In-between (16th level): While you are insubstantial or have phasing, each creature marked by you grants combat advantage to you, and you add 2 squares to the distance your teleportation powers allow you to teleport.

Ghost Blade Spells

Ghost Sword — Ghost Blade Attack 11

Your attack cuts through all planes of existence, ensuring that even ghostly forms suffer your wrath.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier damage. This damage ignores the insubstantial quality.
Aegis of Assault: When you use your aegis of assault to teleport and make an attack, you can use this power in place of the melee basic attack.

Phase Evasion — Ghost Blade Utility 12

Your foe might have thought to get the better of you, but before its attack, you wink out and attempt to dodge the assault.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Immediate Interrupt Personal
Trigger: A melee attack hits you
Effect: You gain a +2 power bonus to AC and Reflex against the triggering attack, and until the end of your next turn, you become insubstantial and gain phasing.

Omnipresent Assault — Ghost Blade Attack 20

You step across dimensional boundaries, seeming to be everywhere on the battlefield at once, unleashing an attack against each foe.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Teleportation, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Requirement: You must be phasing or insubstantial.
Target: Each enemy you can see when you first use the power
Effect: Before each attack, you teleport to a space that must be adjacent to the target.
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Intelligence modifier damage.
Effect: Until you have attacked each eligible target once, you can teleport adjacent to a different target and repeat the attack against the new target. You then teleport back to your starting position.

Sage of Fate's Bonds

"Every combat creates bonds between attacker and defender, bonds between allies. I see these bonds."

Prerequisite: Swordmage, aegis of ensnarement class feature

You can see the invisible bonds that connect creatures to the things around them. Your ability to recognize where these bonds are strongest and weakest gives you the power to strengthen or sever a bond when necessary. Your unique sight lets you see the paths that lie behind the world, and thus by cutting a creature's bond to the world, you can send a foe or an ally hurtling along a hidden path.

You are a master of gaining tactically advantageous positions in combat. You look for a central position on the battlefield from which you can utilize all your powers and abilities to send creatures careening through extradimensional space. You are concerned with terrains and obstacles only insofar as you can use them to your advantage.

Using your aegis of ensnarement, you thwart your foes' movements and leave them reeling. You can unleash a vicious jolt of magical feedback that shocks your foes. As a sage of fate's bonds, you want powers that allow you to mark as many foes as possible with your aegis of ensnarement, thereby giving you control of the battlefield and the power to dole out numerous jolts of lightning.

Sage of Fate's Bonds Path Features

Bond of Transport (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you can teleport one creature that is adjacent to you 5 squares, or you can teleport one creature that is marked by your aegis of ensnarement 5 squares.

Bond of Fury (11th level): When a creature marked by your aegis of ensnarement hits with an attack that does not include you as a target, you can deal 2d8 + your Intelligence modifier lightning damage to the creature as an immediate reaction.

At 21st level, this damage increases to 3d8 + your Intelligence modifier.

Bond of Escape (16th level): When a creature marked by your aegis of ensnarement hits an ally with an attack that does not include you as a target, you can teleport the ally 5 squares as an immediate reaction.

Sage of Fate's Bonds Spells

Foe Binder Sage of Fate's Bonds Attack 11

You slash at two nearby foes, and your attacks bind them to you.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: Two creatures
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier damage, and the target is marked by your aegis of ensnarement. Marking the target does not remove the mark on another target already affected by your aegis of ensnarement.

Protective Bond Sage of Fate's Bonds Utility 12

You raise a magical ward over one of your allies, allowing you to summon that individual to your side and offer protection.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Teleportation
Minor Action Close burst 10
Target: One ally in burst
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, whenever the target is hit by an attack, as an immediate interrupt you can teleport the target 5 squares to a space that must be adjacent to you.

Deadly Ensnarement Sage of Fate's Bonds Attack 20

An enemy might have thought to ignore you, but when you show up behind it and unleash a deadly attack, you teach it otherwise.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Teleportation, Weapon
Immediate Reaction Melee weapon
Trigger: An enemy marked by you and within 10 squares of you hits or misses an ally
Target: The triggering enemy
Effect: You teleport the target to a space that must be adjacent to you. The target grants combat advantage to you until the end of your next turn.
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 5[W] + Intelligence modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.

WOODROW J. HINTON III

Sigil Carver

"By carving sigils of strength and power into the air, I support my allies and foretell the doom of my foes."

Prerequisite: Swordmage, aegis of shielding class feature

Bereg-arnadh is the ancient eladrin art of drawing calligraphy with a blade. Bodyguards of the legendary eladrin queen Suiradrun were the first to use bereg-arnadh, and the practice has since become more widespread. Practitioners of this arcane tradition inscribe magical, glowing characters of Rellanic script into the air with their blades. These hovering runes are charged with arcane power from the calligrapher. The sigils hover for a short time, emitting a lambent radiance that evokes protection for allies or enmity toward foes.

Your mastery of the flying sword makes you an ideal practitioner of bereg-arnadh. Whether you studied texts to learn the art yourself, or you earned the right to study under a master of bereg-arnadh, you have gained the ability to wield the arcane art on the battlefield. On the tip of your blade, you sculpt runes, the mere sight of which strikes fear into your adversaries.

Sigil Carver Path Features

Energizing Sigil (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, one ally within 5 squares of you can roll a saving throw against each effect on him or her that a save can end.

Bolstering Sigil (11th level): Any allies adjacent to you gain a +2 power bonus to all defenses.

Punishing Sigil (16th level): Whenever an enemy marked by you within 5 squares of you hits an ally who is adjacent to you, you can make a melee basic attack against that enemy as an opportunity action. You can make the attack even if the creature is beyond your normal reach.

Sigil Carver Spells

Aegis Sigil — Sigil Carver Attack 11

You etch the air with sigils of power. The runes linger for a moment and then burn into a struck foe.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 3[W] + Intelligence modifier damage.
Effect: Until the end of the target's next turn, it is marked by your aegis of shielding. Marking the target does not remove the mark on another target already affected by your aegis of shielding.

Sigil of Safety — Sigil Carver Utility 12

Just as your ally is about to suffer a blow, you carve a few quick runes in the air and transport the ally out of harm's way.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Teleportation
Immediate Interrupt Close burst 5
Trigger: An attack hits an ally within 5 squares of you
Target: The ally who was hit
Effect: You teleport the target to a space within 5 squares of you. The target gains a +4 bonus to all defenses against the triggering attack.

Sigil of Enmity — Sigil Carver Attack 20

Your rune-enhanced weapon strike marks a foe as the nemesis of you and your allies, making attacks against it more potent.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, when any of your allies hits the target with a melee attack during his or her turn, the attack deals 2d6 extra damage.

CHRIS SEAMAN

Sword of Assault

"The best defense is beating your foe into submission."

Prerequisite: Swordmage, aegis of assault class feature

Although arcane finesse and delicate sword work are fine for others, you believe that better ways exist to subdue your enemies. You wonder why you should use subtlety when you can more quickly defeat your foe with a powerful sword strike combined with a blast of arcane energy.

As a sword of assault, you are interested in fusing magic with blade to create the most powerful attack you can. You have little tolerance for rigorous arcane training, preferring to use magic in a blast of raw elemental energy instead of a carefully crafted spell.

Similarly, you never saw the point of the refined swordplay of your counterparts, instead favoring strength over finesse. You believe that displaying your skill through elaborate parries and flourishes is an expression of a swordmaster's ego, rather than of skill. In your mind, such displays only slow battle. On the other hand, you make sure that all of your movements and arcane utterances contribute to the most devastating attack you can possibly deliver with a single swing of your blade.

MATIAS TAPIA

Sword of Assault Path Features

Assaulting Charge (11th level): When you spend an action point to charge, you can use a melee at-will attack power or a melee encounter attack power in place of the charge's melee basic attack.

Battlemage Readiness (11th level): When you use your aegis of assault to teleport and make an attack, you can use a swordmage melee at-will attack power in place of the melee basic attack.

Double Spell Assault (16th level): Whenever you roll initiative, choose one of your at-will attack powers. Once before the end of the encounter, you can use that power as a minor action after hitting with a melee attack.

Sword of Assault Spells

Spell Strike — Sword of Assault Attack 11

Your magic infuses a normal weapon attack with arcane power that might scorch, freeze, rot, poison, shock, or blast your foe.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Weapon; Varies
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 1[W] + Intelligence modifier plus 2d6 + Strength modifier acid, cold, fire, lightning, necrotic, poison, radiant, or thunder damage.

Aegis Reserve — Sword of Assault Utility 12

In the heat of battle, sometimes one aegis is not enough. Luckily, you know a spell that allows you to bestow another.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Close burst 5
Target: One creature in burst
Effect: The target is marked by your aegis of assault. Marking the creature does not remove the mark on another target already affected by your aegis of assault.

Fire and Thunder — Sword of Assault Attack 20

Your weapon thrums with fire and thunder, which explode across your foe and leave the creature aflame and senseless.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fire, Thunder, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 5[W] + Intelligence modifier fire and thunder damage, and the target takes ongoing 5 fire damage and is deafened (save ends both).
Miss: Half damage.

Ward Guardian

"My warding protects me, but it is more than just a shield. By my will and magic, it can become a deadly force, or a sheltering fortification."

Prerequisite: Swordmage

In your earliest arcane training, you learned to sheathe yourself in a layer of magical protection. This protection is your Swordmage Warding, and it represents an extension of your arcane mastery. Unlike other swordmages, though, you have taken this talent to the next level.

You have long studied the secrets of the Swordmage Warding, and you have learned that the magical field is more flexible than most swordmages assume it to be. You have discovered that you can shape and sculpt your warding. Through careful study, you have learned to transform the warding into a protective barrier for your allies and into a dangerous weapon to distract or strike foes.

Ward Guardian Path Features

Guardian's Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to make an attack, any allies you can see gain the benefit of your Swordmage Warding until the end of your next turn.

Spellshield (11th level): When you become bloodied, choose a defense other than AC. Until you are no longer bloodied, your Swordmage Warding grants a bonus to the chosen defense as well as to AC.

Reactive Spellshield (16th level): Any allies within 5 squares of you gain the benefit of your Swordmage Warding against opportunity attacks.

Ward Guardian Spells

Ward Force Assault — Ward Guardian Attack 11

You swing at your foe and craft your warding into a blunt force that flattens your enemy when you hit.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Force, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 2[W] + Intelligence modifier damage. In addition, either you deal extra force damage equal to your bonus from Swordmage Warding + your Constitution modifier, or you knock the target prone.

Sheltering Ward — Ward Guardian Utility 12

With intense concentration and magical power, you expand your warding to include those around you.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Standard Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, any allies adjacent to you gain the benefit of your Swordmage Warding.
Sustain Minor: The effect persists.

Unseen Entanglement — Ward Guardian Attack 20

As you swing, you shape the protective power of your warding into an entangling thread that thwarts your foe's defenses.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Weapon
Standard Action Melee weapon
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. AC
Hit: 5[W] + Intelligence modifier + Constitution modifier damage. In addition, the target takes a -3 penalty to any defense to which your Swordmage Warding is currently granting a bonus (save ends).
Miss: Half damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target takes a -1 penalty to any defense to which your Swordmage Warding is currently granting a bonus.

CHAPTER 4

Warlock

"By the Chains of Levistus, the Thousand Eyes of Gibbeth, and the pacts sworn in Bael Turath, I curse thee to the blackest pits of Hell!"

Warlocks call upon powerful, ancient magic. They commune with primeval entities, treat with devilish or fey visitors in the darkest hours, and spend hours studying the night sky while mouthing the names of constellations and stars. A warlock's pact might favor a particular style of curse or hex, but that fact doesn't pigeonhole a warlock into a specific goal or ambition. Even if your warlock chooses the infernal pact, he can remain a tome-toting scholar captivated by ominous lore. If your warlock chooses the star pact, she need not give herself over to entities of the Far Realm; instead, she might search for elusive truths.

Warlocks are purveyors of secrets that others wish to be ignorant of. Those secrets are the keys that unlock the power of hexes, curses, and eldritch incantations. From one point of view, warlocks have taken a shortcut to power. Instead of undertaking careful study and practice, a warlock swears a pact to an entity that provides power in return for fealty. A few warlocks are consumed by their oaths, becoming the worst kind of spellcaster—one who uses magic to tyrannize the weak without remorse. Those warlocks who can withstand the dominating personalities of their pact holders have the potential to become powerful forces in the world and across the planes.

This chapter supports the warlock builds presented in the Player's Handbook. It contains the following material.

- New Eldritch Pact: The vestige pact allows a warlock to call on a diverse assortment of entities for new powers.
- New Warlock Powers: This section supplements the star, fey, infernal, and dark pacts, in addition to providing powers for the vestige pact.
- New Paragon Paths: This section provides general paragon paths that any warlock can take and presents paths for specific Eldritch Pacts.

ANNE STOKES

NEW ELDRITCH PACT

Your warlock has forged a pact with mysterious entities that grant you spells, curses, and other abilities. The pact you choose determines your at-will powers, your pact boon, and additional benefits to certain warlock powers. A power's description details the effect a particular Eldritch Pact class feature has on it.

The Player's Handbook describes the fey pact, the infernal pact, and the star pact. The Forgotten Realms Player's Guide describes the dark pact. Arcane Power introduces the vestige pact, which draws upon mislaid spheres of power, forgotten eldritch influences, and allegiances that most believe have been concluded or discontinued.

Vestige Pact

You have forged relationships with vestiges—the remnants of powerful forces and entities that once exercised great authority or demonstrated awful capabilities. These remnants are diverse in their backgrounds and motives. As a vestige pact warlock, you can choose from between two or more vestige pacts to fuel your arcane power.

Eyes of the Vestige: You know the eyes of the vestige spell. You gain an additional effect, referred to as an eyes of the vestige augment, associated with your active vestige (see below) when you make a successful attack with this power.

Pact Boon: You have a pact boon associated with your active vestige.

When an enemy under your Warlock's Curse drops to 0 hit points or fewer, you gain the benefit of your active vestige's pact boon.

Using Vestiges

You always have one active vestige. As a beginning character, you have access to the two primary vestiges: King Elidyr and Zutwa. You select one of these as your active vestige after a short rest or an extended rest.

Changing Your Vestige: You can gain temporary access to other vestiges by using certain daily attack powers. (For ease of identification, all these powers have names that begin with "Vestige.") When you use a power that gives you access to a daily power vestige, you can choose for that vestige to immediately become your active vestige. If you do so, it remains your active vestige until you gain access to a different vestige by using another daily attack power or until the end of the encounter. If you don't immediately choose to change to that daily power vestige, your access to that vestige is lost until the next time you use that power.

After a short rest or an extended rest, you again select one of the two primary vestiges to be your active vestige. That vestige remains active until you change to a daily power vestige or until you take another short rest or extended rest.

In addition, certain benefits (such as the Vestige Adept feat; see page 130) allow you to change your vestige at a different time or under different circumstances.

FRANZ VOHWINKEL

Build and Attitude

How does your warlock character's build affect his or her personality? Although a warlock need not have a personality associated with his or her pact, it is easy to imagine an infernal pact warlock as cunning and mischievous, and a star pact warlock as absentminded. A fey pact warlock might be more caring, ensuring the preservation of animals and plants, while a dark pact warlock might see creatures of the surface as impediments to his or her goals. A vestige pact warlock tends to be bookish and scholarly, more akin to a wizard.

Vestige Pact Boons

The pact boons associated with the primary vestiges are given below. Other pact boons are described in the daily attack powers that give you access to new vestiges.

King Elidyr Pact Boon: One ally adjacent to you gains a +2 bonus to all defenses until the end of your next turn.

Zutwa Pact Boon: The bonus to attack rolls from your Prime Shot increases to +3 until the end of your next turn.

Example

You're a vestige pact warlock who likes the vestige of King Elidyr, so after an extended rest, you choose that to be your active vestige.

During your first encounter of the day, when you use the eyes of the vestige power, you gain the eyes of the vestige augment associated with King Elidyr. If you curse a creature and that enemy then drops to 0 hit points or fewer, your King Elidyr pact boon triggers.

Later in the same encounter, you decide to use the vestige of Mount Vaelis daily attack power. That power gives you access to a new vestige, Mount Vaelis, and you choose to make the change. When you adopt this new active vestige, your pact boon and your eyes of the vestige augment both change to the benefits that Mount Vaelis provides. You no longer gain the benefits of the vestige of King Elidyr. The only time you can change your active vestige back to King Elidyr (or to Zutwa, the other primary vestige) is after a short rest or an extended rest.

If you use another daily power in the same encounter that gives you access to a new vestige, you can choose for that daily power vestige to replace Mount Vaelis as your active vestige.

King Elidyr and Zutwa

Your first two vestiges are King Elidyr and Zutwa. They give out their power freely and recklessly.

King Elidyr: A hundred years ago, Elidyr, the last king of Nerath, warred against gnoll invaders who marched beneath the banner of the Ruler of Ruin. The gnoll uprising was finally quelled, but at the cost of the lives of King Elidyr, his heirs, and most of his trusted barons, dukes, and champions. King Elidyr's vestige is rueful over its failure, and it willingly gives its strength to any who call upon it.

Zutwa: An ancient being of manifest life force, Zutwa was a towering figure as large as a mountain, composed of bark, boughs, grass, leaves, and petals. Its limpid eyes of liquid green could spawn life in barren soil or dead tissue, or deprive earth and flesh of vitality. Zutwa gave up its existence to defeat a primordial of manifest dissolution. Even as a vestige, Zutwa's energy seems inexhaustible to those who make a pact with it.

New Warlock Powers

These new warlock powers flesh out the vestige pact and provide additional options for other warlocks.

Spells of the vestige pact use your Constitution score, because managing numerous and diverse vestiges takes a physical toll. The ancient powers of the vestige pact hunger to consume a warlock's body and use it for their own purposes, and a warlock must resist these forces if he or she is to survive.

Level 1 At-Will Spells

Eyes of the Vestige — Warlock Attack 1

Your enemy's eyes glow with an eldritch light as your vestige takes hold and scours that foe's mind while you curse another nearby foe.

At-Will ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic; Varies
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Will
Hit: 1d6 + Constitution modifier psychic damage. Choose the target or a creature within 3 squares of the target and within the target's line of sight. You place your Warlock's Curse on that creature; if the creature is already cursed by you, you can deal your Warlock's Curse extra damage to that creature instead of to the target.
Level 21: 2d6 + Constitution modifier psychic damage.
Augment (King Elidyr): One ally who hits the target before the end of your next turn can roll a saving throw.
Augment (Zutwa): You gain your Prime Shot bonus against the target until the end of your next turn.
Augment (other vestige): See the "Eyes of the Vestige Augment" entry for the daily power that grants access to the vestige.

Level 1 Encounter Spells

Arms of Hadar — Warlock Attack 1

You call upon Hadar, the Ebon Hunger. Black tendrils erupt from your body and batter nearby creatures, pushing them from you.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Close burst 2
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Constitution vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d8 + Constitution modifier damage, and you push the target 2 squares.
Star Pact: You push the target a number of squares equal to 1 + your Intelligence modifier.

Tiefling Warlocks

The tiefling is the prototypical warlock. The race's innately high Charisma and Intelligence tend to make tieflings favor the class. Many tieflings swear pacts to vestiges, Far Realm creatures, and ancient, fey entities, perhaps out of a desire to break the mold of their predecessors in Bael Turath, who often adopted the infernal pact.

Chains of Levistus — Warlock Attack 1

Spectral chains of ice leap from your hands and lash around your enemy. They pulse with cold each time your enemy moves.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Cold, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d6 + Constitution modifier cold damage. If the target moves before the end of your next turn, it takes 2d6 extra cold damage.
Infernal Pact: If the target moves before the end of your next turn, you also gain a +2 power bonus to your next attack roll against the target before the end of your next turn.

Clarion Call — Warlock Attack 1

You invoke Yuri the Hunter, and the sound of his bellowing horn blasts your enemies into submission while inspiring you.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Close blast 3
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Constitution vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3d4 + Constitution modifier thunder damage, and the target is deafened until the end of your next turn.
Vestige Pact: You gain 3 temporary hit points for each target you hit. Temporary hit points gained in this way are cumulative.

Darkworm Feast — Warlock Attack 1

You speak a single, forbidden word, summoning shadowy worms that burrow into your enemy's body.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Necrotic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 2d6 + Charisma modifier necrotic damage, and the target is slowed until the end of your next turn.
Dark Pact: The target takes extra necrotic damage equal to your Intelligence modifier at the start of its next turn.

Life Bind — Warlock Attack 1

You call upon arcane power to wither your foe's flesh and cut its connection to life.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Necrotic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Constitution modifier necrotic damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target cannot regain hit points, cannot gain temporary hit points, and takes a -2 penalty to saving throws.
Vestige Pact: The attack deals extra necrotic damage equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Sprite War Call — Warlock Attack 1

An army of sprites flickers into existence, loosing a barrage of miniature arrows that stings your enemy and induces lethargy in it.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 5
Fey Pact: The power's range is 10 squares.
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d8 + Charisma modifier damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target is slowed and grants combat advantage to you.

Level 1 Daily Spells

Decree of Khirad — Warlock Attack 1

A pale blue flame appears above your brow as you utter a condemnation that makes foes mistake allies for enemies.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Charm, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Close blast 3
Target: Each enemy in blast
Effect: Before the attack, you slide the target 2 squares.
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: The target makes a melee basic attack as a free action against a creature of your choice. If the target misses with the attack, it takes 1d6 + your Charisma modifier psychic damage.
Miss: 1d6 + Charisma modifier psychic damage.

Fortune's Reversal — Warlock Attack 1

With a single word of power, you reverse a creature's luck, turning fortune and happiness into misfortune and sorrow.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Immediate Reaction Ranged 10
Trigger: An enemy within 10 squares of you scores a critical hit or saves
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 1d8 + Charisma modifier psychic damage. The target takes a -2 penalty to saving throws and ongoing 5 psychic damage (save ends both). The target cannot save against this power until it takes the ongoing psychic damage at least once.
Dark Pact: The target takes a -3 penalty to saving throws instead of -2.
Fey Pact: The target also takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls while affected by the ongoing psychic damage.
Miss: The target takes ongoing 5 psychic damage (save ends). The target cannot save against this power until it takes the ongoing psychic damage at least once.

Pact Initiate

Adrin is an elf rogue from the Witchwood, a cheerful and gregarious citizen of a small, close-knit community of elves and eladrin. Although he thrives on the company of other people, he also enjoys wandering through the forest—at least, he used to. That changed when he encountered a presence, a fey being of enormous power, ancient wisdom, and primal hunger. The being scared him senseless, but left Adrin with arcane power he didn't possess before (reflected in the Pact Initiate feat, with the fey pact). Adrin is terrified of what the fey being is going to ask in exchange for the power it gave him, and his sleep is tormented by nightmares about this encounter. After that experience, Adrin left the Witchwood for the nearby town of Brindol, and if he never enters the forest again, he will be content.

Tyranny of Flame — Warlock Attack 1

Burned by the fires of the Nine Hells, your enemy grovels, begging for mercy.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fire, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Will
Effect: You knock the target prone.
Hit: 3d6 + Constitution modifier fire damage, and the target can't stand up from prone (save ends).
Infernal Pact: The target also takes a -2 penalty to saving throws against this power.
Miss: Half damage.

Vestige of Khaeleth — Warlock Attack 1

Khaeleth was a divine entity that gave of himself until only a shred remained. Invoking him, you perform a similar act on behalf of an ally.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d8 + Constitution modifier damage. You gain a bonus to the damage roll equal to your Intelligence modifier for each ally adjacent to you.
Miss: Half damage.
Vestige Pact: You gain access to the vestige of Khaeleth.
Khaeleth Pact Boon: An ally within 5 squares of you gains temporary hit points equal to your Intelligence modifier.
Eyes of the Vestige Augment: The first time your eyes of the vestige target deals damage to an ally before the end of your next turn, you can reduce that damage by any amount and take damage equal to the amount of the reduction. The damage has no type.

Vestige of Mount Vaelis — Warlock Attack 1

You tell of the victory of the primordials against the divine army at Mount Vaelis, conjuring the thunderous echoes of their success.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Constitution modifier thunder damage, and the target cannot walk or run (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and the target cannot walk or run until the end of your next turn.
Vestige Pact: You gain access to the vestige of Mount Vaelis.
Mount Vaelis Pact Boon: One creature cursed by you and within 5 squares of you gains vulnerable 5 thunder until the end of your next turn.
Eyes of the Vestige Augment: Your eyes of the vestige attack deals 1d6 extra thunder damage.

Level 2 Utility Spells

Caiphon's Leap — Warlock Utility 2

You call upon Caiphon the Dream Whisperer, and with his aid, you move out of harm's way.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Teleportation
Immediate Reaction Personal
Trigger: An enemy cursed by you hits you with a melee attack
Effect: You reduce the damage you take by your Charisma modifier. You then teleport 2 squares.

Devil's Trade — Warlock Utility 2

You call on infernal powers to trade a sliver of your soul for temporary relief.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: You gain vulnerable 5 to all damage until the end of your next turn, and you automatically succeed on one saving throw you make at the end of this turn.

Eyes of the Spider Queen — Warlock Utility 2

A cluster of dull black eyes appears on your forehead, giving you enhanced sight in darkness and the power to see the unseen.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you gain darkvision and can see invisible objects and creatures that are adjacent to you.

Fey Bargain — Warlock Utility 2

You gain good luck now in exchange for bad luck later.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: You gain a +2 bonus to your next attack roll, but automatically fail your next saving throw before the end of the encounter.

Level 3 Encounter Spells

Cloud of Flies — Warlock Attack 3

You breathe out a cloud of acidic black flies that streak across the battlefield, swarming your foe and attempting to enter its body.

Encounter ✦ Acid, Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d6 + Constitution modifier acid damage, and the target grants combat advantage until the end of your next turn.
Infernal Pact or Vestige Pact: On a miss, the target grants combat advantage to you until the end of your next turn.

Shadow Walk

Your passage through the world leaves its mark. As you walk, arcane energy burns and congeals around you. Depending on your pact and your idea of your character, you might imagine the effect of your Shadow Walk class feature as fey energy sparkling around you and hiding you from clear view, the utter blackness of the Underdark clinging to you, or sulfurous smoke straight from the Nine Hells billowing around you. It's up to you to decide whether your warlock is constantly surrounded by this concealing cloud—even while you're walking down a city street doing your shopping—or if it's only active while you're in combat. If it's always active, it's a good idea to remind your DM of it once in a while, so the NPCs you meet respond appropriately.

Delban's Deadly Attention — Warlock Attack 3

A bolt of frigid starlight shines down and bathes your foe, causing the creature to suffer a spasm of agony just as it attacks you.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Necrotic
Immediate Interrupt Close burst 4
Trigger: An enemy in burst hits you with a melee attack
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 1d8 + Charisma modifier necrotic damage. The target chooses either to deal half damage to you with its melee attack or to take 1d8 extra necrotic damage.
Star Pact: The attack deals 1d8 + your Intelligence modifier extra necrotic damage.

Fortune Binding — Warlock Attack 3

You create ethereal black ropes that bind you to your enemy. As the ropes twist, your luck improves and your enemy's falters.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Psychic, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d8 + Constitution modifier psychic damage. You end one effect on you that a save can end, and the target gains that effect until the end of your next turn.
Vestige Pact: The attack deals extra damage equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Pipes of Winter — Warlock Attack 3

With a gesture, a set of glacial pipes appears at your lips. Blowing on it, you produce a horrid keening that chills your foes to the bone.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Cold, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 5
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d6 + Charisma modifier cold damage, and the target is immobilized until the end of your next turn.
Fey Pact: Each enemy adjacent to the target is slowed until the end of your next turn.

Shared Agony — Warlock Attack 3

Sometimes pain is the price of victory. To wrack your opponent's mind, you might have to give up a fragment of your own sanity.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 2d12 + Charisma modifier psychic damage.
Miss: You can take 10 psychic damage to reroll the attack roll.
Dark Pact: If you reroll the attack roll and hit, reduce the psychic damage you take by your Intelligence modifier.

DRAGONBORN WARLOCKS

Dragonborn have naturally high Charisma, which makes them excellent warlocks. Dragonborn warlocks put their natural force of will to good use with star pact or fey pact powers. Despite their natural ability, dragonborn warlocks are unusual. Thus, a dragonborn warlock tends to stand out more than a dragonborn fighter or a tiefling warlock might.

Vestiges' Calamity — Warlock Attack 3

With a single word, you submerge your enemy in a deluge of chaotic energy.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Cold, Fire, Implement, Lightning, Thunder
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Constitution modifier damage. If the target is cursed by you, it takes extra cold, fire, lightning, and thunder damage equal to your Intelligence modifier.
Vestige Pact: If the target is cursed by you, the attack also deals the extra damage to each creature adjacent to the target.

Level 5 Daily Spells

Crackling Fire — Warlock Attack 5

An eldritch storm of fire and lightning erupts from you to scour your foes, leaving them vulnerable to future attacks.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fire, Implement, Lightning
Standard Action Close blast 3
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier fire and lightning damage, and the target gains vulnerable 5 fire and vulnerable 5 lightning (save ends both).
Miss: Half damage.

Lure of Gibbeth — Warlock Attack 5

A fleeting thought of Gibbeth the Endless, an unknowable entity slain at the birth of the world but poised to return at the world's ending, seizes your enemy's mind and draws your foe toward you like a moth to flame.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Charm, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 2d10 + Charisma modifier psychic damage, and you pull the target 4 squares.
Miss: Half damage, and you pull the target 2 squares.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you can pull the target 2 squares as a minor action once during your turn.

Tyrannical Threat — Warlock Attack 5

You speak, and each syllable is a deadly insinuation; each utterance a dangerous threat; each sentence, a dire curse.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fear, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Close burst 3
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Constitution vs. Will
Hit: 1d10 + Constitution modifier psychic damage, and you place your Warlock's Curse on the target.
Miss: Half damage.
Infernal Pact: You place your Warlock's Curse on the target.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, whenever a creature cursed by you attacks you, it takes psychic damage equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Venomous Webs — Warlock Attack 5

Sticky webs slick with acid burn your foe, poisoning its flesh with each step it takes.

Daily ✦ Acid, Arcane, Implement, Poison
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3d6 + Charisma modifier acid damage, and the target grants combat advantage to you and your allies (save ends).
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: If the target willingly moves before the end of its next turn, it takes ongoing poison damage equal to your Intelligence modifier (save ends).

Vestige of Ugar — Warlock Attack 5

Upon his demise, Ugar the Unforgiving dissolved into sand and became a harsh desert. Your words of power bring forth the searing flame of that land to burn your foes.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fire, Implement, Zone
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Constitution vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d10 + Constitution modifier fire damage.
Effect: The burst creates a zone of burning light that lasts until the end of the encounter. Each creature that enters the zone or starts its turn there takes 1d10 fire damage. Creatures cannot benefit from concealment while within the zone.
Vestige Pact: You gain access to the vestige of Ugar the Unforgiving.
Ugar Pact Boon: You can move the zone 3 squares as a free action.
Eyes of the Vestige Augment: Your eyes of the vestige attack deals fire damage instead of psychic damage. The target loses concealment and cannot regain it until the end of your next turn.

Vestige of Xandor — Warlock Attack 5

To know the borders of sanity, one has to cross them. With the aid of Xandor the Mad, you push your foe across that threshold.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Will
Hit: 2d6 + Constitution modifier psychic damage, and the target is influenced by the vestige of Xandor (save ends). While it is influenced, at the start of each of its turns, it must choose either to be dazed until the start of its next turn or to take psychic damage equal to twice your Constitution modifier.
Miss: 2d6 + Constitution modifier psychic damage, and the target is dazed until the end of your next turn.
Vestige Pact: You gain access to the vestige of Xandor the Mad.
Xandor Pact Boon: You can roll a saving throw. If you have no effect on you that a save can end, you instead gain temporary hit points equal to your Constitution modifier.
Eyes of the Vestige Augment: Your eyes of the vestige attack deals 1d8 extra psychic damage.

Level 6 Utility Spells

Life Siphon — Warlock Utility 6

It's not pretty, it's not kind, but sometimes you need to draw power from an ally's pain.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Healing
Immediate Reaction Personal
Trigger: An ally within 10 squares of you takes damage
Effect: You gain a +2 power bonus to one attack roll before the end of your next turn.
Dark Pact: You regain hit points equal to your Charisma modifier.
Infernal Pact: You gain temporary hit points equal to twice your Constitution modifier.

Mercurial Form — Warlock Utility 6

Your form flows and shimmers, allowing you to slip through cracks, escape an enemy's claws, and evade even the most persistent hunter.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Polymorph
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you cannot be marked, you are considered Tiny for the purpose of squeezing, and you can automatically succeed at escaping from a grab as a free action.

Racing Fire of Ulban — Warlock Utility 6

You move with the swiftness of Ulban, whose burning glory sometimes flashes across the sky in a fiery streak of blue and white.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Move Action Personal
Effect: You move twice your speed.

Pacts and Powers

The warlock spells in the Player's Handbook all identify the pact they're associated with, but the spells in this book don't include that information. After looking at the Player's Handbook, many players felt constrained to choose the powers associated with their pact, which is far too limiting. If you're a fey pact warlock, you don't have to choose only fey pact powers—any warlock spell that uses Charisma (including dark pact powers and some star pact powers) is a fine choice for you. If you want to, you can tweak the descriptions, flavor, or even the names of your powers to reflect your pact or the particular patron you choose.

Some powers in this book give particular effects based on your choice of pact, and even offer different effects for different pacts. For example, the fortune's reversal spell (page 74) has a baseline effect, a slightly different effect if you have the dark pact, and a still different effect if you have the fey pact. Furthermore, certain items and feats have benefits that apply when you use a warlock power of a particular pact. Such powers can be identified either by the pact name appearing in parentheses in the title line of the power, or by the pact's name appearing as a subhead in the power entry.

Spider Queen's Caress — Warlock Utility 6

You whisper to those who dwell in the darkness of your undying love and loyalty, and in return you gain the gift of stealth.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you gain a +2 power bonus to saving throws and Stealth checks.
Dark Pact: Your Shadow Walk grants concealment to you after you move 2 squares instead of 3.

Level 7 Encounter Spells

Acrid Decay — Warlock Attack 7

You extend your hand, and two sickly green bolts spiral out from your fingers, burning and devouring your enemy.

Encounter ✦ Acid, Arcane, Implement, Necrotic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One or two creatures
Attack: Constitution vs. Fortitude
Hit: 1d12 + Constitution modifier acid and necrotic damage.
Vestige Pact: The target also takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of its next turn.

All the Sand, All the Stars — Warlock Attack 7

You make your foe see all the grains of sand in the desert and all the stars in the heavens, and it reels in shock, unable to grasp infinity.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Charm, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Close blast 3
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 2d6 + Charisma modifier psychic damage, and the target is dazed until the end of your next turn.
Star Pact: The attack deals extra psychic damage equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Hero's Arrow — Warlock Attack 7

You conjure a magic arrow and send it speeding toward an enemy. A hero's arrow that hits its mark both hurts a foe and aids an ally.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Healing, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Constitution modifier damage. One ally adjacent to the target regains hit points equal to your Intelligence modifier.
Vestige Pact: Each ally adjacent to the target regains hit points equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Mordant Rains of Dis — Warlock Attack 7

You open a portal to Dis above your foe's head, releasing a caustic rain upon your enemy.

Encounter ✦ Acid, Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d6 + Constitution modifier acid damage, and the target is blinded until the end of your next turn.
Infernal Pact: Each enemy adjacent to the target takes acid damage equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Nypacian Serpents — Warlock Attack 7

You create semblances of the serpents of the Nypacian Outlands to attack an enemy.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Poison
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier damage. The first time the target takes damage before the end of your next turn, it takes extra poison damage equal to your Intelligence modifier.
Fey Pact: The poison damage equals twice your Intelligence modifier.

Pacts and Ability Scores

You can take one of two basic approaches to your ability scores as a warlock. First, you can put your highest score in either Charisma or Constitution, choose only powers that use that ability for attack rolls and damage rolls, and put your next highest score in Intelligence in order to get the best possible boost from powers that have secondary effects based on your Intelligence. This is the approach suggested in the Player's Handbook. The advantage to this approach is that you get the most bang for your Intelligence buck, but if you select attack powers that don't use the ability you chose, those will be clearly inferior to your other attack powers. Effectively, you're limited to half of the available powers—the ones that use whichever ability you choose as your highest score.

The second approach is to keep both your Charisma and your Constitution high, making Intelligence your third-highest score (and probably a distant third). If you go this route, you can choose any warlock power and know that your attack rolls and damage rolls will be more or less equal, so you have the maximum flexibility in your power selection. On the downside, you won't get as much benefit from powers that have effects related to Intelligence.

Which approach is best for you is really up to you to decide. It's worth spending some time when you create your warlock character to think about the powers you're going to want as you progress through your career, so you can weigh the importance of Intelligence to your character and make the right choices for your ability scores.

Shadow Strangler — Warlock Attack 7

A wraithlike creature appears behind your enemy and attempts to strangle it. With each of your foe's attacks, the specter's grip tightens.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier damage, and the target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.
Dark Pact: Until the end of your next turn, whenever the target makes an attack roll, it takes damage equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Level 9 Daily Spells

Feast of Souls — Warlock Attack 9

Souls trapped in the Nine Hells are hungry for life. Opening a temporary rift, you give them a taste of your foes' vitality.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Cold, Implement, Psychic, Zone
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Constitution vs. Will
Hit: 1d8 + Constitution modifier psychic damage, and the target is dazed (save ends).
Effect: The burst creates a zone of hungry spirits that lasts until the end of your next turn. The zone is difficult terrain. Each creature that enters the zone or starts its turn there takes 1d8 + your Constitution modifier cold damage. As a move action, you can move the zone 2 squares.
Sustain Minor: The zone persists.

Horrifying Hatching — Warlock Attack 9

Spider eggs hatch inside your enemy's flesh, unleashing a deadly poison and causing the creature to thrash in panic.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Poison
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 1d8 + Charisma modifier damage.
Effect: The target takes ongoing 10 poison damage (save ends). Whenever the target takes this ongoing damage, you can slide the target 1 square.
Dark Pact: As a minor action, you can end the ongoing poison damage to deal 2d10 + your Intelligence modifier poison damage to the target.
Fey Pact: As a minor action, you can end the ongoing poison damage to slide the target 3 squares.

Eladrin Warlocks

Eladrin prefer to pursue careers as wizards rather than warlocks. However, eladrin who do swear pacts to otherworldly entities discover that their education and hardened minds make them ideal students of esoteric knowledge. Their background in ancient history, fey entities, and distant stars gives them the know-how to safely form pacts. Eladrin favor the fey pact because of their fey origin and because the Misty Step pact boon enhances their ability to teleport.

Storm Countess's Kiss — Warlock Attack 9

You sarcastically blow a kiss at your enemy, creating a swirling gale that lifts your foe off the ground and then tosses it aside.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Cold, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: Charisma modifier cold damage, and the target is held restrained 10 feet (w2 squares) off the ground (save ends).
Fey Pact: The target is held restrained off the ground a number of feet equal to 10 + five times your Intelligence modifier.
Aftereffect: The target falls, and you slide it 2 squares.
Miss: You push the target 2 squares, and you knock it prone.

Vestige of Ilmeth — Warlock Attack 9

The primordial Ilmeth felt sorrow for the lives he claimed in the Dawn War, and the war-frenzied titans under his command destroyed him for his weakness. You channel the sorrow of the slain primordial to wound your enemy with regret.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic, Teleportation
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d10 + Constitution modifier psychic damage. Until the end of the encounter, whenever the target makes an attack roll against you, it takes psychic damage equal to your Intelligence modifier.
Miss: Half damage.
Vestige Pact: You gain access to the vestige of Ilmeth.
Ilmeth Pact Boon: You and an ally within 5 squares of you can swap positions as a free action.
Eyes of the Vestige Augment: Your eyes of the vestige target also takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

Vestige of Shax — Warlock Attack 9

Shax the Devastator is a dead primordial of the sea. With a wave of your hand, you summon a fragment of his power.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Close blast 3
Target: Each creature in blast
Effect: You knock the target prone.
Attack: Constitution vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d10 + Constitution modifier damage, and you push the target a number of squares equal to your Intelligence modifier.
Miss: Half damage.
Vestige Pact: You gain access to the vestige of Shax the Devastator.
Shax Pact Boon: You can end one dazed, stunned, immobilized, or restrained condition on you or on an ally within 5 squares of you.
Eyes of the Vestige Augment: You push your eyes of the vestige target a number of squares equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Level 10 Utility Spells

Bond of Brotherhood — Warlock Utility 10

An ancient enclave of eladrin shared in each other's triumphs and pain; you borrow their magic to benefit from your ally's healing.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Healing
Immediate Reaction Personal
Trigger: An ally within 10 squares of you spends a healing surge
Effect: You regain hit points equal to the amount the triggering ally regains.

Curse of Nessus — Warlock Utility 10

You transform your bad luck into your enemy's misfortune.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Free Action Ranged 10
Trigger: You miss an enemy with an attack
Target: The enemy you missed
Effect: The target takes a -5 penalty to saving throws until the end of your next turn.

Destiny Inversion — Warlock Utility 10

You untangle the threads of fate, rearranging them to suit your whims.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Immediate Interrupt Personal
Trigger: An attack hits you
Effect: You take no damage from the triggering attack. Instead, you take ongoing damage equal to half the triggering attack's damage (save ends). The ongoing damage has the same damage type as the triggering attack.

Transcendent Dance — Warlock Utility 10

For a moment, your mind and body are in harmony, and you achieve the pinnacle of grace and speed.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you gain a bonus to speed and saving throws equal to your Dexterity modifier (minimum 1).

Level 13 Encounter Spells

Dark Reach of Xevut — Warlock Attack 13

You call on Xevut, He Who Hungers, and send a dark maelstrom at one enemy, which transfers that creature's affliction to a nearby foe.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Immediate Reaction Ranged 10
Trigger: An enemy within 10 squares of you saves against an effect
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier psychic damage. One enemy within 3 squares of the target gains the effect that the target saved against.
Star Pact: Until the end of your next turn, you gain a bonus to saving throws equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Killing Flames — Warlock Attack 13

You use an enemy's recent injury to fuel infernal flames and sear the foe.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Fire, Implement
Immediate Reaction Ranged 10
Trigger: An enemy within 10 squares of you becomes bloodied
Target: The triggering enemy
Attack: Constitution vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3d8 + Constitution modifier fire damage.
Infernal Pact: The damage ignores resistance to fire.

Korred's Tune — Warlock Attack 13

The songs of the korred inspire a dance that can destroy one's mind if ignored.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Charm, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 3d6 + Charisma modifier damage. If the target does not move at least 3 squares during its next turn, it takes 1d6 psychic damage.
Fey Pact: If the target does not move at least 6 squares during its next turn, it takes 1d6 psychic damage.

WARLOCK'S CURSE

What happens to your enemies when you lay your curse upon them? Unless you have a magic item that imposes additional effects, the effects in the game are very straightforward: The target takes more damage from your attacks. But what's happening from the perspective of your character—and the monster you target with your curse?

Fundamentally, you're creating a bond between you and the target—that's part of the reason your curse works only on the nearest target you can see. Perhaps you simply create a conduit between yourself and the target that makes the power you wield flow more easily to the target, so you can imbue your spells with a little extra strength as they course along that conduit to your foe. Or you might briefly mention the target's name to whatever entity gives you your power, focusing that being's alien attention on your foe so your spells carry more power.

When you put your curse on a creature, the target knows it. The creature might experience it as a chill down the spine, a prickle at the back of its neck, a nauseated feeling in its stomach, or an unpleasant sense of dread. It might have a brief flash of vision revealing the source of your power, terrible and awesome in its mind. Many creatures respond to that feeling with fear, and many others react with aggression directed at the source of the curse—you. It's never a bad idea to have a defender in place between you and the target of your curse.

Skirmisher's Volley — Warlock Attack 13

You fire arcane bolts at your enemies before moving away.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One, two, or three creatures
Attack: Constitution vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d8 + Constitution modifier damage.
Effect: After the attack is resolved, you shift 1 square.
Vestige Pact: You shift a number of squares equal to 1 + the number of targets you hit with the attack.

Wraith's Shadow — Warlock Attack 13

The shadows congeal and smother your foe in a sickly mass of debilitating darkness.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Necrotic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier necrotic damage, and the target is weakened until the end of your next turn.
Dark Pact: You can choose to deal no damage with this attack and instead make the target immobilized and weakened until the end of your next turn.

Level 15 Daily Spells

Caution of Dispater — Warlock Attack 15

Dispater remains in control of his part of Hell through cunning and by beating rivals into submission. You borrow a page from his book.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Charm, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Will
Hit: 3d8 + Constitution modifier psychic damage.
Effect: The target takes 1d8 + your Constitution modifier psychic damage at the start of each of its turns until the target is attacked or until it starts its turn without line of sight to you.
Infernal Pact: The power's effect does not end when you attack the target.

Dark Rain of Mutuz-Vot — Warlock Attack 15

You bring forth storm clouds that exude droplets of liquid darkness, just like the rains of the massive cavern of Mutuz-Vot in the Underdark.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Necrotic, Zone
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 20 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3d8 + Charisma modifier necrotic damage.
Effect: The burst creates a zone of raining darkness that lasts until the end of your next turn. The zone's area is lightly obscured. Each creature that enters the zone or starts its turn there is blinded (save ends).
Dark Pact: You ignore the zone's effect.
Sustain Minor: The zone persists.

Plague of Frogs — Warlock Attack 15

You summon hundreds of carnivorous frogs that bite and harry creatures around them.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Zone
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 20 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier damage.
Effect: The burst creates a zone of hopping carnivorous frogs that lasts until the end of your next turn. The zone is difficult terrain. Each creature that enters the zone or starts its turn there takes 2d8 + your Charisma modifier damage. As a move action, you can move the zone 3 squares.
Sustain Minor: The zone persists, and you can move it 1 square.

Vestige of Leraje — Warlock Attack 15

Leraje gave up the lush woods to prove her mastery of the bow, and was cast away for it. You borrow her skill, but not her pride.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Poison
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d10 + Constitution modifier damage.
Effect: The target takes ongoing 5 poison damage (save ends).
Vestige Pact: You gain access to the vestige of Leraje.
Leraje Pact Boon: Living plants temporarily grow around you. Until the end of your next turn, you have cover against attackers that are not adjacent to you.
Eyes of the Vestige Augment: Your eyes of the vestige target is also immobilized until the end of your next turn.

Vestige of Solis — Warlock Attack 15

A falling star soars downward, burning bright as it strikes your foe in a deafening explosion.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fire, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Ranged 10
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Constitution vs. Reflex
Effect: 2d8 + Constitution modifier fire damage.
Hit: The target takes ongoing 10 thunder damage (save ends). Make a secondary attack that is an area burst 1 centered on the primary target.
Secondary Target: Each creature in burst
Secondary Attack: Constitution vs. Fortitude
Hit: The secondary target is dazed and deafened (save ends both).
Vestige Pact: You gain access to the vestige of Solis.
Solis Pact Boon: Each enemy within 3 squares of you is deafened and grants combat advantage until the end of your next turn.
Eyes of the Vestige Augment: If your eyes of the vestige target makes an attack roll against any of your allies before the end of the target's next turn, the target takes fire and thunder damage equal to your Constitution modifier.

Halfling Warlocks

Quick-witted halflings are drawn to becoming warlocks. Their high Charisma enables halflings to excel with their curses and spells, and their small size and innately superior Dexterity are effective complements to the paradigm that deceptive warlocks embody.

Level 16 Utility Spells

Amaan's Continuance — Warlock Utility 16

Invoking the remnant of a dead god, you borrow its lingering power to act when you would normally lie on the ground, bleeding.

Daily ✦ Arcane
No Action Personal
Trigger: An attack reduces you to 0 hit points or fewer and doesn't kill you
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you do not become unconscious from having 0 hit points or fewer.

Hero's Defense — Warlock Utility 16

Your hasty spell draws on your greatest strength to cover your weaknesses.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Immediate Interrupt Personal
Trigger: An enemy makes an attack roll against you
Effect: You gain a +4 bonus to your highest defense for this attack only, and the triggering enemy's attack targets that defense. If the attack hits, it deals half damage to you.

Painful Transference — Warlock Utility 16

You transform your debilitation into an ally's pain.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
No Action Personal
Requirement: You must not be dying.
Effect: You end an effect on you that a save can end. Each ally within 5 squares of you takes damage equal to your Charisma modifier. If no ally is within 5 squares of you, you take damage equal to twice your Charisma modifier. This damage cannot be reduced or negated.

Warp Space — Warlock Utility 16

Using incomprehensible logic from beyond the stars, you rearrange the battlefield.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Teleportation
Standard Action Close burst 5
Target: You and two allies in burst
Effect: Each target teleports to a space within the burst.

Level 17 Encounter Spells

Claws of the Magpie — Warlock Attack 17

A flock of spectral black and white birds flies through your enemy, tearing out pieces of the creature's essence and power.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 3d6 + Charisma modifier psychic damage.
Effect: Until the end of the target's next turn, it can use only basic attacks or other at-will powers. Also, the target's auras end and cannot be reactivated until the end of your next turn.
Fey Pact: You gain temporary hit points equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Despair of Zhudun — Warlock Attack 17

You manifest an aspect of the blank face of dead Zhudun, causing your foe to collapse in fear.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Fear, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Will
Hit: 1d8 + Constitution modifier psychic damage, and you knock the target prone. If the target stands up during its next turn, it takes 2d8 psychic damage and grants combat advantage until the end of your next turn.
Star Pact: If the target stands up during its next turn, it also takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

Devouring Death — Warlock Attack 17

A bolt of black vitriol splashes over your foe, leaving it vulnerable to further acid attacks and to your magic of death and decay.

Encounter ✦ Acid, Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier acid damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target gains vulnerable 10 acid and vulnerable 10 necrotic.
Dark Pact: The target loses any resistance to acid or resistance to necrotic until the end of your next turn.

GODS AND WARLOCKS

More than members of other classes, warlocks are known for their impiety. Warlocks channel power from creatures and entities that are often enemies of the gods, and thus warlocks are bound to wonder what the gods can offer that they do not already have. However, in a world where the gods have specific goals and can manifest physically, some warlocks realize that they cannot ignore the pantheon entirely. A few warlocks find that devotion to a particular god can further their own goals as well as those of the deity.

Avandra is a popular deity among warlocks because of her influence over adventure. Warlocks who search for secrets and ancient knowledge, even if they're not evil, might revere Vecna. As the god of knowledge, Ioun has appeal for warlocks who seek to learn more about the enigmatic creatures with which they make pacts. Beyond these three, all the deities in the pantheon count some warlocks among their worshipers. Warlocks who view magical skill as an art form, including many elves and eladrin, worship Corellon. Dwarf warlocks who seek to protect their communities worship Moradin. Pelor is popular among good-aligned warlocks who use their eldritch powers to scour evil, and the Raven Queen is a favored deity among warlocks who seek only to deliver death with their powers.

WAYNE ENGLAND

Life Force Reclaimed Warlock Attack 17

Your bolt of arcane energy draws vitality from your foe.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3d8 + Constitution modifier damage. You gain temporary hit points equal to your healing surge value.
Vestige Pact: The number of temporary hit points you gain equals your healing surge value + twice your Intelligence modifier.

Sea Tyrant's Fury Warlock Attack 17

Arcane waves sweep your foes to the ground as you harness the rage of the ancient Sea Tyrant.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Constitution vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Constitution modifier damage, and you knock the target prone and push it a number of squares equal to your Intelligence modifier.
Vestige Pact: You and any allies within 5 squares of you gain a +2 power bonus to saving throws until the end of your next turn.

WARLOCKS AND LIFE FORCE

Warlocks deal extensively with the life force of all beings—the energy that animates even undead creatures. When you place your Warlock's Curse on a creature, you bind its life force to yours. Your Prime Shot feature (unlike the ranger's similar feature) relies on your ability to manipulate an enemy's life force when no competing sources of life force are nearby. Many of your powers manipulate life force directly (such as life force reclaimed), and the life-stealer paragon path (Player's Handbook, page 141) is the ultimate expression of this tendency in warlock powers. For an infernal pact warlock like the life-stealer, manipulation of enemies' life force is clearly sinister, and it's part of what makes all warlocks frightening to common folk.

How does your warlock view this use and abuse of enemies' life force? Is it a distasteful but necessary part of your magic? Do you derive pleasure or sustenance from it? Is it an almost addictive, dangerous habit you would just as soon break if you could? Or is it a foretaste of the destiny you will someday embrace, when as a terrible demigod of annihilation you will feast on the lives of nations?

Level 19 Daily Spells

Force of Nature — Warlock Attack 19

Your magic creates a primordial force that hurls your foe through the air.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 6d10 + Charisma modifier damage, and you knock the target prone and push it a number of squares equal to your Intelligence modifier.
Miss: Half damage, and you push the target 1 square.

Maelstrom of Despair — Warlock Attack 19

You trap your foe in a crushing vortex of despair, wracking its mind with each passing moment of affliction.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 3d10 + Charisma modifier psychic damage, and ongoing 5 psychic damage (save ends).
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, the target takes psychic damage equal to your Intelligence modifier whenever it rolls a saving throw.
Dark Pact: The psychic damage the target takes whenever it rolls a saving throw equals twice your Intelligence modifier.
Sustain Minor: The effect persists.
Fey Pact: Whenever you sustain the effect, you gain a +2 bonus to saving throws until the end of your next turn.

Vestige of Amaan — Warlock Attack 19

Your magic recalls Kaestelaria's enslavement by the dead god Amaan, imposing similar shackles upon your foe.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3d8 + Constitution modifier damage, and the target is immobilized and gains vulnerable 10 to all damage (save ends both).
Miss: Half damage, and the target is immobilized (save ends).
Vestige Pact: You gain access to the vestige of Amaan.
Amaan Pact Boon: You can push or pull a creature cursed by you and within 10 squares of you a number of squares equal to your Intelligence modifier.
Eyes of the Vestige Augment: You push or pull your eyes of the vestige target a number of squares equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Vestige of the Burned Emperors — Warlock Attack 19

The Burned Emperors ruled a region torn by strife. Once defeated, they became a shadowy entity, which you now call upon.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Teleportation
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d10 + Constitution modifier damage. You gain a bonus to the damage roll equal to your Intelligence modifier for each ally adjacent to the target.
Miss: Half damage.
Vestige Pact: You gain access to the vestige of the Burned Emperors.
Burned Emperors Pact Boon: You can teleport an ally within 5 squares of you 3 squares.
Eyes of the Vestige Augment: Each ally adjacent to your eyes of the vestige target can shift 1 square as a free action.

Void Star — Warlock Attack 19

You summon a fragment of a dark star and hurl it at your foe, causing the creature's flesh to slough away.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Healing, Implement, Necrotic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Reflex
Hit: 4d8 + Constitution modifier necrotic damage. The target takes ongoing 10 necrotic damage, and whenever the target would regain hit points, you regain the hit points instead (save ends both).
Miss: Half damage, and ongoing 5 necrotic damage (save ends).

Level 22 Utility Spells

Ascension of the Elder — Warlock Utility 22

You use a planar pathway known by ancient vestiges to transport yourself to the safety of the sky, where you can remain for a time.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Teleportation
Move Action Personal
Effect: You teleport 100 feet (20 squares) to a space directly above you. Until the end of your next turn, you gain a speed of fly 8.
Sustain Minor: The effect persists. When you fail to sustain the effect, you float to the ground without taking damage.

Half-Elf Warlocks

Some half-elves feel trapped between two worlds they're not truly part of, and they turn to dark pacts to find escape or revenge. Others see their dual heritage as a unique source of power, allowing them to harness fey forces without being bound by those forces. Whatever their situation or outlook, half-elves excel as warlocks, putting their naturally high Charisma and Constitution to work to help them master the spells of any pact with relative ease.

Walk of the Kantakaran — Warlock Utility 22

Your spell of peace borrows a lesson from the vestige of the Kantakaran monks, an order of mystics that espoused neutrality.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you cannot use an attack power or be attacked.

Wakeman's Invocation — Warlock Utility 22

You employ a defensive technique developed by the scholar Strom Wakeman, who learned to use the power of Far Realm creatures without risking one's sanity.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Teleportation
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you gain a +2 power bonus to all defenses against ranged attacks, and whenever an enemy hits you with a melee attack, you can teleport that creature 2 squares as an immediate interrupt.

Wall of Inky Night — Warlock Utility 22

You pull an oily blackness out of the ether to consume your enemies in darkness.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Conjuration
Minor Action Area wall 8 within 10 squares
Effect: You conjure a wall of rippling blackness that lasts until the end of the encounter. The wall is 2 squares high and blocks line of sight. Any creature is blinded while within the wall. As a standard action, you can move the wall 10 squares.

Level 23 Encounter Spells

Arrow of Arcane Light — Warlock Attack 23

Drawing a bow made of radiant energy, you become like one of King Elidyr's elite archers.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Reflex. This attack ignores all cover and concealment, and the attack can score a critical hit on a roll of 19-20.
Hit: 3d10 + Constitution modifier radiant damage.
Vestige Pact: You push the target a number of squares equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Awaken the Dragon — Warlock Attack 23

You rouse the soul of a long-dead dragon, calling down its necrotic breath upon your foes.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Necrotic
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Constitution vs. Will
Hit: 3d8 + Constitution modifier necrotic damage. If the target is cursed by you, it gains vulnerable 5 to all damage until the end of your next turn.
Vestige Pact: You gain temporary hit points equal to 5 + your Intelligence modifier.

Maddening Whispers — Warlock Attack 23

Your foe clasps its hands over its ears, shrieking in panic as it is overcome by terror.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Fear, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 3d6 + Charisma modifier psychic damage, and the target is immobilized and grants combat advantage until the end of its next turn. At the start of the target's next turn, you slide the target 2 squares.
Star Pact: At the start of the target's next turn, you slide the target a number of squares equal to your Charisma modifier.

Swarm of Fangs — Warlock Attack 23

High-pitched, shrieking laughter echoes around your foe as a horde of tiny, needle-toothed, winged fey descends upon it.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 4d6 + Charisma modifier damage, and the target is knocked prone.
Fey Pact: All enemies within 2 squares of the target take 10 + your Intelligence modifier damage.

Level 25 Daily Spells

Infernal Chains — Warlock Attack 25

Flames dance along the red-hot chains that you summon to enwrap your opponent.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fire, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 20
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Reflex
Hit: 4d10 + Constitution modifier fire damage, and the target is grabbed by fiery chains. Until the grab ends, the target takes 5 fire damage at the start of its turn. The target takes a -4 penalty to checks to escape the grab. Until the end of the encounter or until the grab ends, you can make the following attack as a minor action once per round against the same target.
Attack: Constitution vs. Fortitude
Hit: You slide the target 3 squares.
Miss: Half damage, and the target is slowed (save ends).

Deva Warlocks

Most devas prefer the wizard, avenger, invoker, or cleric class. However, after enough reincarnations, some devas are attracted to the idea of pursuing an out-of-the-ordinary career, and so one might take up the warlock class. Although a deva can't consciously recall the details of his or her previous life, a deva warlock often selects a pact connected in some way to previous experiences. Such individuals tend to take the fey pact or the vestige pact. They typically avoid the infernal, star, and dark pacts, believing such oaths to invite corruption and rebirth as a rakshasa.

Instruction in Darkness — Warlock Attack 25

You lower a black veil over your foe and show the creature what darkness truly means.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Necrotic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d10 + Charisma modifier necrotic damage. The primary target is transported to a place of utter darkness (save ends). While there, the primary target doesn't have line of sight or line of effect to anything. When the primary target saves, it reappears in the space it last occupied or in the nearest unoccupied space. When the primary target reappears, make a secondary attack.
No Action Area burst 2 centered on the primary target
Secondary Target: Each enemy in burst
Secondary Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: The secondary target is blinded (save ends).
Miss: The primary target is blinded (save ends).

The Prince's Horde — Warlock Attack 25

Thousands of tiny, insectlike warriors assault and confuse your enemy.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 4d8 + Charisma modifier damage.
Effect: The target is assaulted by a cloud of fairy warriors (save ends). While the target is affected by the cloud, the target treats all creatures as having concealment. At the start of the target's turn, the target and each creature adjacent to the target take 1d10 + your Charisma modifier damage.

Vestige of Land's Soul — Warlock Attack 25

Your call causes the earth to rise up and crush your foe while bestowing life on you.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Healing, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Fortitude
Hit: 5d8 + Constitution modifier damage, and the target is slowed (save ends). While the target is slowed by this power, you gain regeneration 10.
Miss: Half damage.
Vestige Pact: You gain access to the vestige of Land's Soul.
Land's Soul Pact Boon: Each enemy cursed by you and within 5 squares of you takes 5 damage, and you regain 5 hit points for each enemy you damage in this way.
Eyes of the Vestige Augment: Until the end of your next turn, your eyes of the vestige target gains vulnerable 5 + your Intelligence modifier to acid, fire, lightning, or thunder (your choice).

Vestige of the Queen of Namhar — Warlock Attack 25

You call upon the Queen of Namhar, who died of thirst in the Namharid Desert, to send your foe a vivid image of death by thirst.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Will
Hit: 4d10 + Constitution modifier psychic damage, and ongoing 10 psychic damage (save ends).
Aftereffect: The target is weakened (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and ongoing 5 psychic damage (save ends). The target is weakened until the end of your next turn.
Vestige Pact: You gain access to the vestige of the Queen of Namhar.
Queen of Namhar Pact Boon: The nearest creature cursed by you is dazed (save ends).
Eyes of the Vestige Augment: Your eyes of the vestige target is weakened until the end of its next turn.

Level 27 Encounter Spells

Manipulating Thunderbolt — Warlock Attack 27

With a clap of your hands, your enemy is struck by a clawlike thunderbolt, which picks up the creature and flings it aside.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Lightning, Thunder
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d8 + Constitution modifier lightning and thunder damage. You slide the target 1 square, and it is immobilized until the end of its next turn.
Infernal Pact: You slide the target a number of squares equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Shattering of the Sword — Warlock Attack 27

You invoke the shattering of King Elidyr's sword—broken in the last moments of his life—and make your foes feel the king's shock.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d10 + Constitution modifier damage, and the target is stunned until the end of your next turn.
Vestige Pact: The attack deals extra damage equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Dwarf Warlocks

Though not known for their high Charisma, dwarves possess exceptional Constitution scores, which make them ideal warlock candidates. Dwarves often become scourge warlocks, and they favor the infernal pact and the vestige pact, both of which play to their racial strengths. Dwarves have a strong tradition as fighters, yet among dwarf clans, many warlocks proudly pledge their eldritch powers to the defense of the community.

Soul of the Treant — Warlock Attack 27

You awaken the spirit of a long-dead treant, which possesses your enemy's body and makes the creature lash out against its allies.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier psychic damage. Each enemy adjacent to the target takes 1d8 + your Charisma modifier damage. You push each enemy adjacent to the target a number of squares equal to your Intelligence modifier and knock it prone.
Fey Pact: You also knock the target prone.

Zutwa's Incandescence — Warlock Attack 27

You shine with the light of Zutwa's life force, which overwhelms your foes' vision.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Close burst 2
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Constitution vs. Will
Hit: 2d8 + Constitution modifier radiant damage, and the target is blinded until the end of your next turn.
Vestige Pact: The target takes a –2 penalty to saving throws until the end of your next turn.

Level 29 Daily Spells

Arrangement of Disorder — Warlock Attack 29

Like the still point in a storm, you stand at the center of a burst of astral power that tears your enemies through space while arranging your allies to occupy the most advantageous positions.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Teleportation
Standard Action Close burst 5
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 3d8 + Charisma modifier damage, and you teleport the target to another space within the burst.
Effect: You teleport each ally within the burst to another space within the burst.

Eyes of the Victim — Warlock Attack 29

From magic, you craft an ancient contagion to eat away your foes' sight.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Necrotic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d10 + Charisma modifier necrotic damage.
Effect: The target gains blindness contagion (save ends). While a creature is affected by blindness contagion, that creature is blinded, and each enemy that starts its turn adjacent to that creature gains blindness contagion (save ends).

Elf Warlocks

Like eladrin, elves are not known for making eldritch pacts. Elves who become warlocks usually take the fey pact to connect with their fey origin. Elf warlocks often pick up some martial powers to supplement their arcane abilities, relying on attacks that utilize Dexterity.

Forbiddance of the Ninth — Warlock Attack 29

A wall of black flame rises from the floor at your behest. It protects you while unleashing gouts of fire on foes.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Conjuration, Implement, Fire
Standard Action Area wall 3 within 1 square
Effect: You conjure a wall of flame that is up to 3 squares high and lasts until the end of the encounter. The wall blocks line of sight.
Entering a wall square costs 3 extra squares of movement. Each creature that starts its turn within the wall's space takes 2d10 + your Constitution modifier fire damage, and any creature other than you that starts its turn adjacent to the wall takes 1d10 + your Constitution modifier fire damage.
As a move action, you can move the wall to a space adjacent to you. Once per round, you can make the following attack, which must include at least 2 wall squares in the blast.
Minor Action Close blast 3
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Constitution vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d10 + Constitution modifier fire damage.

Vestige of the Master of the Hidden Flame — Warlock Attack 29

You call on the vestige of the spellcaster called the Master of the Hidden Flame. Through him, you burn foes by force of will.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fire, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Fortitude
Hit: 5d10 + Constitution modifier fire damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Vestige Pact: You gain access to the vestige of the Master of the Hidden Flame.
Master of the Hidden Flame Pact Boon: Each enemy cursed by you and within 5 squares of you takes ongoing 5 fire damage (save ends).
Eyes of the Vestige Augment: Your eyes of the vestige target takes ongoing 5 fire damage (save ends).

Vestige of Zuriel — Warlock Attack 29

As you attack, you scream a war cry to Zuriel, a forgotten deity dedicated to wars of justice.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Fortitude
Hit: 5d10 + Constitution modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Vestige Pact: You gain access to the vestige of Zuriel.
Zuriel Pact Boon: You gain a bonus to your next damage roll before the end of your next turn equal to your Intelligence modifier.
Eyes of the Vestige Augment: You knock your eyes of the vestige target prone, and the attack deals extra damage equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Dark Reckoner

"There is an old drow saying: 'Vengeance is sweeter when exacted in darkness.' "

Prerequisite: Warlock, dark pact

You deter creatures with physical and psychological threats when they intend to harm you, your allies, or other things important to you. You believe that threats mean nothing, though, if you are not willing to deliver on them. When intimidation fails, you visit vengeance swiftly and fully upon the offending party.

In your mind, vengeance is a virtue. As a warlock of the dark pact, you viscerally understand the concept of vengeance. Many of the entities with which you make pacts are consumed by revenge. In the Underdark, slights and rivalries fester and give birth to bouts of ruthless skulduggery and sinister schemes.

As a dark reckoner, you have internalized your baleful emotions and feelings of injustice. From dark alleyways and unlighted tunnels, you draw inspiration and purpose. You understand that vengeance is a potent source of power.

TOMAS GIORELLO

Dark Reckoner Path Features

Shadow Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you and any allies within 5 squares of you when you spend the action point gain concealment until the start of your next turn.

Shadow and Threat (11th level): When you score a critical hit with an attack that deals necrotic damage, you become invisible until the end of your next turn or until you attack.

Death Curse (16th level): When you apply your Warlock's Curse extra damage, you can choose to apply 1d6 extra necrotic damage.

Dark Reckoner Spells

Deadly Judgment — Dark Reckoner Attack 11

The pain your enemy suffers from your attack is also felt by its allies.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Necrotic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Charisma modifier necrotic damage. Each enemy within 2 squares of the target takes necrotic damage equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Shadow Slip — Dark Reckoner Utility 12

Speaking a sinister word whispered only in the blackest parts of the Underdark, you disappear from the sight of those you have cursed.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you are invisible to each creature cursed by you.

Cursing Vengeance — Dark Reckoner Attack 20

You call up the spirit of a slain drow priest, and her words resound in your foe's ears, condemning the creature to a withering death.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Necrotic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Fortitude
Hit: 4d8 + Charisma modifier necrotic damage. Until the end of the encounter, the first time the target makes an attack roll against you, it takes ongoing 10 necrotic damage (save ends).
Miss: Half damage. Until the end of your next turn, the first time the target makes an attack roll against you, it takes ongoing 5 necrotic damage (save ends).

Entrancing Mystic

"Bend an ear and listen close. You don't want to miss this, do you? That's the way—calm and easy. See how easily you've fallen under my sway?"

Prerequisite: Warlock

You are a figure of rumor and local folklore. You learned your craft from the First Order, ascended quickly to the Second Order, and made your pacts to the invisible magi of the Third Order. In return for your devotion, they have given you the power to beguile and warp minds.

Your ways are mysterious and frightening to other creatures. When you use your spells, and even when you speak, people sit and listen, enraptured by the hypnotic sound of your words and mesmerized by your eyes. Few ever realize what they risk upon meeting your ensnaring gaze or listing to your enthralling voice. Those who do realize your true power consider themselves lucky to have survived the experience.

Entrancing Mystic Path Features

Maddening Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, one creature within 5 squares of you takes ongoing 5 psychic damage (save ends).

Mystic Rapture (11th level): Each enemy that enters a space within 3 squares of you or that starts its turn there takes a –5 penalty to saving throws against charm effects and a –2 penalty to all other saving throws.

Mystery Given Form (16th level): You gain a +1 bonus to the attack roll of each charm power you use. If you use an encounter attack power that has the charm keyword and miss all targets with the attack, you don't expend the use of that power.

Entrancing Mystic Spells

Hekiah's Trance — Entrancing Mystic Attack 11

Your foe becomes lost in your eyes, shuffling in the direction of your gaze.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Charm, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 5
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: 1d8 + Charisma modifier psychic damage, and you slide the target a number of squares equal to your Charisma modifier. The target is slowed until the end of your next turn.

Shroud of Adeptus — Entrancing Mystic Utility 12

Your enemy moves to strike you, but you stare into its eyes and rob the creature of its will.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Charm
Immediate Reaction Ranged 5
Trigger: An enemy within 5 squares of you misses you with an attack
Target: The triggering enemy
Effect: The target is dazed until the end of your next turn.

Ultimatum of the Third Order — Entrancing Mystic Attack 20

You speak in a secret tongue, assaulting the minds of your foes and presenting them with a mental dilemma.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Charm, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Close burst 5
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Charisma vs. Will
Hit: The target chooses either to be stunned until the end of your next turn, or to take ongoing 20 psychic damage (save ends).
Miss: The target chooses either to be dazed until the end of your next turn, or to take ongoing 10 psychic damage (save ends).

MIKE NASH

God Fragment

"When a god dies, it leaves behind power that lingers. I will find a way to access one of these dead gods and tap into its power."

Prerequisite: Warlock, vestige pact

Gods, primordials, and other powerful beings are sometimes preserved in the Astral Sea after their deaths. Drifting through the starry mists like immortal flotsam, they slumber through the millennia, awaiting the divine spark that might reawaken them. As the ages pass, the drifting corpses transform into astral matter.

Your curiosity was kindled when you first heard the term "dead god" while studying vestiges. Something about the concept of dead immortals fascinated you. And why not? When a god dies, where does its power go? You discovered the answer to this question: The power becomes dormant, crystallizing into a solid form within the Astral Sea. There, it drifts across the starry expanse, forgotten but not destroyed.

You study the history of deceased deities, primordials, and other legendary beings. From these accounts, you learn to siphon the beings' lost energy and dormant power. However, you know that real power lies in locating the crystallized essence of one of these dead immortals and awakening its full force.

God Fragment Path Features

Lifegiving Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you regain hit points equal to your level.

Road to Reawakening (11th level): You gain a +3 bonus to death saving throws.

Dormant Power (16th level): When you use a warlock power against a creature and score a critical hit, the attack deals 2d10 extra damage to that creature.

God Fragment Spells

Deific Decay — God Fragment Attack 11

You harness the necrotic power of a dead god's corpse, and you hurl it at an unsuspecting foe.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Necrotic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d12 + Constitution modifier necrotic damage.

LUCIO PARRILLO

Deific Doom — God Fragment Utility 12

You borrow the remnants of power from a dead god, instilling your presence with an overwhelming sense of loss and regret.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Zone
Minor Action Close burst 2
Effect: The burst creates a zone of suffering, loss, and regret that lasts until the end of the encounter. When you move, the zone moves with you, remaining centered on you. Each enemy within the zone takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls and saving throws.

Vestige of Karmath — God Fragment Attack 20

You overwhelm an enemy's mind with a fragment of Karmath the Unmourned God, giving you control over the creature's body.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Charm, Implement, Necrotic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Will
Hit: The target is dominated (save ends).
Aftereffect: The target takes 2d8 + your Constitution modifier necrotic damage.
Miss: The target is dazed (save ends).
Effect: You gain access to the vestige of Karmath the Unmourned God.
Karmath Pact Boon: One creature cursed by you that you can see takes a -2 penalty to all defenses (save ends).
Eyes of the Vestige Augment: Until the end of your next turn, each enemy that starts its turn within 2 squares of your eyes of the vestige target takes 1d6 necrotic damage.

Hellbringer

"I have looked into the fiery heart of the Nine Hells. There, I saw tantalizing power."

Prerequisite: Warlock, infernal pact

Your choice to swear a pact to an infernal entity in exchange for power was not an easy choice, but it was a choice you made with open eyes. You understand the moral dangers implicit in your pact, but you believe that your soul can withstand the physical and mental forces of Hell. Though devils constantly attempt to lure you into their sinister plots, you remain steadfast against their persuasion.

When an opportunity came to claim even more strength from your devilish patrons, you leaped at it. You accepted their empowering flames, wearing your might like a crown. Sometimes your allies worry about the ultimate fate of your soul, but you laugh off their concern. You assure them that you are in no danger, and that they need not pity you. However, you have heard the call of darkness, and sometimes you question what destination awaits you when you die.

MATT CAVOTTA

Hellbringer Path Features

Flames of Empowerment (11th level): When you spend an action point to make a ranged attack, and that attack hits, it deals 2d6 extra fire damage to the attack's target and each enemy that is adjacent to the target.

No Pity, No Mercy (11th level): Whenever you score a critical hit against an enemy, that creature grants combat advantage to you and gains vulnerable 5 fire until the end of your next turn.

Prince of Hell (16th level): Your arcane attack powers ignore resistance to fire.

Hellbringer Spells

Pillar of Power Hellbringer Attack 11

You call up a pillar of fire that rises from the bowels of the Nine Hells and incinerates your foe.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Fire, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Constitution modifier fire damage. Each creature adjacent to the target takes fire damage equal to half the damage dealt.

Gates of Hell Hellbringer Utility 12

You open a gate through Hell to connect points on the battlefield. Your allies can pass through it unharmed, but your foes cannot.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fire
Minor Action Ranged 10
Target: Two unoccupied squares
Effect: You create a dimensional rift between the two target squares that lasts until the end of your next turn. Any creature that enters one of the target squares can move to the other target square as if it were adjacent to that square. A creature cannot pass through the rift if either square is occupied by another creature. Each enemy that moves from one gate square to the other takes 1d10 + your Constitution modifier fire damage.
Sustain Minor: The gates persist.

Unleash the Inferno Hellbringer Attack 20

You call up an earth-shaking column of fire, which burns and knocks down your foes.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fire, Implement
Standard Action Close burst 10
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Constitution vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d10 + Constitution modifier fire damage, and you knock the target prone.
Miss: Half damage.

Hexer

"Art can be created in any medium. Painters draw images on canvas, bards write epic narratives, and musicians compose sweet harmonies. I spit curses of such beauty and potency that all who hear them are stricken."

Prerequisite: Warlock

Any warlock can scream "I curse you!" but in your opinion, such curses are shallow and meaningless. Such a simple, insubstantial curse is a betrayal of the warlock's ability to channel arcane might wrested from primeval entities. A normal curse might be enough to make an enemy quail, but you believe a curse should curdle the blood and elicit wide-eyed, slack-jawed shock.

You have delved deeply into the intricacies of crafting curses. You have discovered that greater effects can be wrung from a well-placed curse than most warlocks realize. When you place a hex, your foes reel from the power of your curse. You have learned to weave your spells with your curses and your curses with your spells. Your body and mind resonate with the damning curses you articulate. When you speak, all who hear your words flinch.

Hexer Path Features

Damning Curse (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, each creature under your Warlock's Curse takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

Greater Hex (11th level): Instead of placing your Warlock's Curse on the nearest enemy to you that you can see, you can place your Warlock's Curse on any single enemy within 5 squares that you can see.

Walking Curse (16th level): Whenever your Warlock's Curse deals damage to a creature, you can slide that creature 1 square.

Hexer Spells

Hexblast — Hexer Attack 11

You scream an eerie curse that harms your enemies' minds more than their ears.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Charisma or Constitution vs. Will
Effect: You can place your Warlock's Curse on the target.
Hit: 1d8 + Charisma or Constitution modifier psychic damage.

Vengeful Hex — Hexer Utility 12

You balefully eye the enemy who shot you. The creature might think itself beyond your reach, but it's wrong.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Immediate Reaction Ranged 10
Trigger: An enemy hits or misses you with a ranged or area attack
Target: The triggering enemy
Effect: You place your Warlock's Curse on the target.

Hex of Abandonment — Hexer Attack 20

Your foe imagines that you and your allies are manifestations of its worst nightmare that have come to torment and murder it.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma or Constitution vs. Will
Hit: 3d10 + Charisma or Constitution modifier psychic damage.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you can place your Warlock's Curse on each enemy that ends its turn adjacent to the target, and that enemy takes 2d6 damage when you curse it.

WARREN MAHY

Master of the Starry Night

"The stars are points of light burning beyond the world. Some believe them to be windows though which inimical creatures study our cosmos. In my view, that's a parochial conception of stars, at best."

Prerequisite: Warlock, star pact

You understand the true nature of stars, and your knowledge surpasses that of nearly all other creatures. You have studied all the standard texts of star pact warlocks. You found the interpretations contained within those tomes to be catastrophic if accepted as fact. Perhaps some stars are windows into the Far Realm, as many star pact warlocks claim. You suspect that many stars hold other secrets, though. Thus, you have forged a new set of beliefs.

With your star charts, astrolabe, and viewing glass, you have determined the luminosity and motion of many stars. You have plumbed their colors, their sizes, and most important, the power they offer to a warlock. You understand the symbiosis of nature and magic that is embodied by the stars, and so you have twisted your pact into something different from those of your counterparts. You no longer fear the depths of the sky, for you are the master of the starry night.

Master of the Starry Night Path Features

Starcrossed Action (11th level): When you spend an action point, one creature cursed by you is dazed until the end of your next turn.

Star-Blessed Wanderer (11th Level): If you use the bonus from your Fate of the Void pact boon on an attack roll and you miss with the attack, you retain the bonus until the end of your next turn.

Fate of the Body (16th level): As a free action during your turn, you can expend your Fate of the Void bonus to gain an equivalent bonus to speed or to one defense until the end of your next turn.

Master of the Starry Night Spells

Stellar Debris — Master of the Starry Night Attack 11

Brilliant stellar debris explodes outward from you, burning your enemies.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Fire, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Constitution vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d8 + Constitution modifier radiant and fire damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target treats all creatures as having concealment.

MATIAS TAPIA

Minor Gift of Foresight — Master of the Starry Night Utility 12

You can see the doom of your enemies, and that foresight lets you benefit from your boon.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Free Action Personal
Effect: You remove any number of Warlock's Curses you have placed on your enemies and gain the benefit of your pact boon as if each of those creatures had been reduced to 0 hit points.

Shooting Star — Master of the Starry Night Attack 20

You release a starlike spear of light that impales your enemy and enables you to further afflict it with every successful attack you make.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Ranged 20
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 4d10 + Charisma modifier radiant damage. Until the end of the encounter, whenever you hit the target, it takes 2d6 extra radiant damage.
Miss: Half damage. Until the end of your next turn, whenever you hit the target, it takes 2d6 extra radiant damage.

Sea Tyrant Oracle

"I have looked upon the glittering sea that reflects past and future. My visions reveal both hope and disaster."

Prerequisite: Warlock, vestige pact

An oracle appeared to you in dream. She strode from a cave mouth, arrayed in the sea-green robes of an ancient prophet, and called herself the scion of the Sea Tyrant. "Behold!" she declared, revealing a vision of a terrible flood in which legions of angels were swept into eternal chaos. After showing you this disaster, the oracle bathed your eyes in water, and your vision was forever changed.

Like the prophets of old, you are capable of gaining horrible insights into the future. In most cases, your predictions extend so far ahead in time that you can do little to affect the course of events. However, you sometimes predict imminent events, and in these cases, you can take steps to avert or fulfill the occurrences you foresaw.

LUCIO PARRILLO

Sea Tyrant Oracle Path Features

Visionary Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to use an at-will or encounter attack power that misses all targets, you gain an extra standard action that you must use before the end of the encounter.

Future Foreseen (11th level): The first time you fail a skill check, an ability check, or a saving throw during an encounter, you can reroll the check or the saving throw. You must use the second result.

Future Evaded (16th level): The first time an enemy cursed by you ends its move adjacent to you during an encounter, you can shift 2 squares as an immediate interrupt.

Sea Tyrant Oracle Spells

Doomsday Portent — Sea Tyrant Oracle Attack 11

You prophesize the demise of your enemy, filling it with horrifying visions of its death.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Fear, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Constitution vs. Will
Hit: The target is dazed and weakened until the end of your next turn.

Prepared by Fate — Sea Tyrant Oracle Utility 12

Using your powers of foresight, you anticipate a conflict and are ready for it.

Daily ✦ Arcane
No Action Personal
Trigger: You roll initiative
Effect: You gain a +20 bonus to the initiative check.

Vestige of the Sea Tyrant — Sea Tyrant Oracle Attack 20

Your magic evokes the wrath of the Sea Tyrant, sweeping your foes away.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Constitution vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3d6 + Constitution modifier damage, and you push the target a number of squares equal to your Constitution modifier and knock it prone.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: You gain access to the vestige of the Sea Tyrant.
Sea Tyrant Pact Boon: You slide one creature cursed by you that you can see a number of squares equal to your Constitution modifier.
Eyes of the Vestige Augment: You also slide your eyes of the vestige target a number of squares equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Storm Scourge

"The world reels from my wrath, for I ride upon storms and carry wind and lightning in my footsteps."

Prerequisite: Warlock, fey pact

In a small tome called Fey Pacts of Ancient Days, you discovered the names of ancient archfey once revered by primitive humans. The tome described Neifion the Lord of Bats, Zebechial the Lord of Lightning, and Morrisa the Lady of Swords.

You were amazed and intrigued. You could feel a power within each name calling out to you. These ancient entities, so long forgotten, offered you strength in exchange for devotion.

You eventually acquiesced, swearing yourself to the fey creature whose ethos you believed most matched your own: the Lord of Lightning. Now, the entity whispers secrets of the storm to you from his floating demesne within the Feywild. You listen carefully to each utterance, every growl of the storm or roar of lightning. Although the Lord of Lightning seems most concerned with unleashing the force of the storm, you have gained much power under his tutelage. It might be only a matter of time before your own spells rival the power of your master.

FRANZ VOHWINKEL

Storm Scourge Path Features

Lightning Quick (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you become lightning quick until the end of your next turn. While you are lightning quick, you can shift 1 square as a free action each time you hit or miss with an attack.

Zebechial's Blessing (11th level): You gain resistance to lightning equal to one-half your level + your Charisma modifier.

Eldritch Storm (11th level): You can choose to have your eldritch blast deal lightning damage.

Servant of the Lord of Lightning (16th level): When you hit a creature with a lightning attack power, each enemy adjacent to the target takes lightning damage equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Storm Scourge Spells

Judgment of the Storm — Storm Scourge Attack 11

You unleash bolts of lightning upon those who offend you, smiting them with your power.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Lightning
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One or two creatures
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d10 + Charisma modifier + Intelligence modifier lightning damage.

Lightning Dance — Storm Scourge Utility 12

Lightning crackles around you, striking any enemy that hits you and allowing you to close with it.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Lightning, Teleportation
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, whenever a melee attack hits you, the attacker takes lightning damage equal to your Intelligence modifier, and you can teleport to any space adjacent to the attacker as an immediate reaction.

Wrath of the Clouds — Storm Scourge Attack 20

Lightning leaps around your enemy, lashing the creature whenever it is distracted by another attack.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Lightning
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Charisma vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d10 + Charisma modifier + Intelligence modifier lightning damage.
Effect: Whenever the target is hit by an attack, the target takes lightning damage equal to your Intelligence modifier (save ends). The target cannot save against this effect until it is hit at least once.

CHAPTER 5

Wizard

"Spells trip from my tongue and sizzle from my fingertips. Few can gainsay me. A lifetime of arcane study is my burden, but also my delight."

The wizard embodies arcane magic to most people, and rightfully so. Of all who deal in the arcane, you truly understand the magical principles that underlie reality. Others might exploit its power, but only imperfectly.

As a painter composes an image on a blank canvas or a sculptor reveals the form imprisoned in dull stone, you manipulate magic to create expressions of power. Your art, although beautiful, is also lethal. You are driven to constantly improve your craft, studying ever more intricate rituals, acquiring newer and more powerful implements, and developing even mightier spells.

Beyond the orbs, rods, staffs, and wands familiar to arcane casters, another implement is the purview of wizards alone. Your tome is a repository of scribbled arcane secrets through which to channel your power.

Whether you prefer to attack your foes directly or work your devious will against them, this chapter contains something for every kind of wizard. In its pages you will find the following material.

- New Implements: Choose a new way to use orbs, or take up a new implement. Use the arcane secrets found in your tome to make the most of your new powers.
- New Builds: Illusionist wizards and summoner wizards focus on specialized magical disciplines.
- New Wizard Powers: Learn new ways to hinder your foes, including illusion and summoning spells, and discover spells that complement your chosen implement.
- New Paragon Paths: Six new paths beckon as your wizard increases in power, focusing on specialized techniques such as invisibility and teleportation, or even exploiting random chance.

NEW IMPLEMENTS

The Player's Handbook describes how wizards can make use of orbs, staffs, and wands to help channel and direct their arcane power. Now wizards can add the tome to their available implements and choose it for their Arcane Implement Mastery class feature.

New Arcane Implement Mastery Options

Wizards can choose a new form of orb mastery or elect to master the tome implement.

New Orb Option

Many wizards use an orb implement to strengthen and extend their spells' duration, but some have perfected its use as a tool of trickery.

You can choose Orb of Deception as a new Arcane Implement Mastery class feature.

Orb of Deception: Once per encounter as a free action, when you miss an enemy with a wizard illusion power, choose another enemy within 3 squares of the missed target. The chosen enemy cannot also be a target of the original attack. Repeat the attack against this new target, with a bonus to the attack roll equal to your Charisma modifier.

You must wield an orb to benefit from this feature. Illusionist wizards select this form of mastery to spread a wider net of deception over foes.

Tome Options

Wizards who choose the tome implement can select from two forms of Arcane Implement Mastery, one useful to summoner wizards and the other of more general benefit.

Tome of Binding: Once per encounter, as a free action, if you use your tome when using an arcane summoning power, all creatures summoned by that power gain a bonus to damage rolls equal to your Constitution modifier.

You must wield a tome to benefit from this feature. Summoner wizards prefer this form of tome mastery because of its obvious benefits to their summoning spells. This form of mastery also provides benefits to certain conjuration powers.

Tome of Readiness: When you select this form of implement mastery, choose a wizard encounter attack power of your level or lower that you don't already know. That power is now stored and available for your use at a later time.

Once per encounter as a free action, you can use the stored power by expending another unused wizard encounter attack power of its level or higher. You must still take the normal action required to use the stored power.

Each time you reach a level that lets you choose an encounter power, you can replace the stored power with a new wizard encounter attack power of your level or lower that you do not already know.

You must wield a tome to benefit from this feature. Wizards of all builds appreciate this form of mastery because of the flexibility it allows them during combat.

New Keyword: Summoning

Powers that have the summoning keyword bring creatures from other planes to serve you in a variety of ways.

SUMMONED CREATURE

A creature you summon uses these rules, unless a power description says otherwise.

- Allied Creature: When you use a summoning power, you create a creature that is an ally to you and your allies. The power determines where the summoned creature appears.
- Your Defenses: The summoned creature's defenses equal yours when you summon it, not including any temporary bonuses or penalties to your statistics.
- Hit Points: The summoned creature's maximum hit points equal your bloodied value. When the summoned creature drops to 0 hit points, it is destroyed, and you lose a healing surge. If you have no healing surges left, you instead take damage equal to half your bloodied value.

SUMMON BLACK DEVOURER

Meriele sighed as the fiery soldiers surrounded the paladin. "Well, Daren," she said, "looks like I'm saving your hide again."

She drew a slow breath and closed her eyes for a moment, fixing the darkness in her mind. The first syllable that issued from her mouth came out as a screeching sound near Daren's position that made the paladin cringe. Meriele extended her wand and flexed the fingers of her other hand into a claw, and her next syllable opened the rift into darkness.

From that point, the creature she was calling aided her in the spell. She summoned, it answered, and it worked its tentacles into the breach to open a clear pathway into the world from whatever space Beyond it normally inhabited.

To Meriele, the seconds stretched as the black devourer wormed its way through the tear in space, unfurled its long tentacles, and took up its position near the fire archons. Then the spell was cast, time resumed its normal pace, and the black devourer began its devastation.

- No Healing Surges: The summoned creature lacks healing surges, but if a power allows it to spend a healing surge, you can spend a healing surge for it. The summoned creature then gains the benefit of the healing surge, instead of your gaining it.
- Speed: The summoning power determines the summoned creature's speed.
- Commanding the Creature: The summoned creature has no actions of its own; you spend actions to command it mentally. You can command the creature only if you have line of effect to it. When you command the creature, the two of you share knowledge but not senses.

  As a minor action, you can command the summoned creature to take one of the following actions, if it is physically capable of taking that action: crawl, escape, fly, open or close a door or a container, pick up or drop an item, run, stand up, shift, squeeze, or walk.

  The summoning power determines any special commands you can give the summoned creature and gives an action type for each command. If a special command is a minor action, you can give that command only once during each of your turns.
- Attacks and Checks: If a summoning power allows the summoned creature to attack, you make an attack through the creature, as specified in the power description. If the summoned creature can make a skill check or an ability check, you make the check. Attacks and checks you make through the creature do not include temporary bonuses or penalties to your statistics.
- Duration: Unless the summoning power states otherwise, the summoned creature lasts until the end of the encounter and then disappears. As a minor action, you can dismiss the summoned creature.

WIZARDS IN THE WORLD

Fighters and wizards are both exceedingly rare in the world, but wizards are perhaps slightly more so. Common soldiers, mercenaries, and bandits aren't fighters, but fighters might emerge from among those sorts of people. It's harder to find examples of people among the mass of common folk who have the potential to rise to the status of a full-fledged wizard. You might once have been a scribe, a scholar of history or arcane lore, a priest of Ioun or some other deity, an herbalist, or an alchemist in your town or village. But the moment you learned your first cantrip, you were set on a path toward a greater destiny. You are far more than a scholar or a sage—you're a hero who wields the power of arcane magic, and that ability forever sets you apart from, and indeed above, the common folk of the world.

WARREN MAHY

NEW BUILDS

This chapter includes two additional wizard builds to supplement those presented in the Player's Handbook: the illusionist wizard and the summoner wizard.

Illusionist Wizard

Your mysterious powers cloud the mind and assault the senses. The imaginary landscapes and phantasmal creatures you create impede, distract, and redirect your foes. Nothing is what it seems when you're in control.

Intelligence should be your highest ability score, since it governs your attack powers. A high Charisma score lets you enhance some illusion effects. Choose powers that have the illusion keyword, and take the Orb of Deception form of Arcane Implement Mastery to get the most out of them.

Suggested Class Feature: Orb of Deception
Suggested Feat: Phantom Echoes*
Suggested Skills: Arcana, Diplomacy, Dungeoneering, Insight
Suggested At-Will Powers: *illusory ambush, *phantom bolt
Suggested Encounter Power: *grasping shadows
Suggested Daily Power: *horrid whispers
*New option presented in this book

Summoner Wizard

Terrifying creatures obey your call, and you order them to aid you and to fight for you. In addition to binding these monsters, you are skilled at conjuring objects made of magical energy to impede or harm your foes. You must use your own actions to control your summoned monsters, so your role in combat is quite different from that of other wizards.

As with other wizards, a high Intelligence score is crucial to attack rolls and damage rolls. Your summoned creatures' hit points depend on your own, and many conjuration spells deal additional damage or have improved effects that depend on Constitution, so make that your second-highest score. Use the Tome of Binding form of Arcane Implement Mastery, since it improves your summoning spells. Select daily powers that have the summoning keyword, and encounter and at-will powers that have the conjuration keyword.

Suggested Class Feature: Tome of Binding
Suggested Feat: Careful Summoner*
Suggested Skills: Arcana, Dungeoneering, Insight, Nature
Suggested At-Will Powers: scorching burst, *storm pillar
Suggested Encounter Power: *astral wasp
Suggested Daily Power: *summon fire warrior
*New option presented in this book

Illusion Magic

Wizards who employ illusion are masters of unreality. Their spells reach into opponents' minds to play havoc with perceptions, imposing visions of danger that are convincing enough to temporarily overwrite reality. Sometimes, even if only briefly, illusions are not entirely in the mind of the beholder. Psychic damage is the forte of illusion magic: Imaginary dangers cause harm by accelerating heart rate, impeding breathing, and sending victims into shock.

Illusion spells might convince a creature that beetles are swarming over its flesh, that a bolt of fire is on an interception course, that it is in the path of stampeding elephants, or that the floor beneath it is giving way. Such lesser effects cause their targets to dive away, fall prone, or otherwise try to evade the seeming threat.

More powerful illusions can override a target's senses. Instead of its true surroundings, a foe might witness cataclysmic visions of ruin, or a harmless vista of inanimate objects. Such extreme deceit is more difficult to pull off, but it renders a foe uniquely vulnerable as it stands by, watching imaginary visions, ignorant of its true doom.

Perception is reality, from the observer's point of view. Thus, illusion magic is ultimately about control. Although illusionist wizards choose such powers almost exclusively, control wizards often learn a few illusion powers as well.

WARREN MAHY

NEW WIZARD POWERS

This section includes plenty of spells for both the illusionist wizard and the summoner wizard, as well as expanded powers suitable for the war wizard and control wizard builds.

Level 1 At-Will Spells

Illusory Ambush Wizard Attack 1

You create an illusion of swirling spectral assailants that swarm over your enemy.

At-Will ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: 1d6 + Intelligence modifier psychic damage, and the target takes a –2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.
Level 21: 2d6 + Intelligence modifier psychic damage.

Phantom Bolt Wizard Attack 1

You wave your hand, and your foe sees a bolt of fire streaking toward it. The enemy dives away from the imagined threat.

At-Will ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: 1d8 + Intelligence modifier psychic damage, and you slide the target 1 square.
Level 21: 2d8 + Intelligence modifier psychic damage.

Storm Pillar Wizard Attack 1

A crackling column of lightning appears amid your enemies, lashing out at any who move near it.

At-Will ✦ Arcane, Conjuration, Implement, Lightning
Standard Action Ranged 10
Effect: You conjure a pillar of crackling energy in an unoccupied square within range. The pillar occupies 1 square and lasts until the end of your next turn. Each enemy that moves into a square adjacent to the pillar takes 1d6 + your Intelligence modifier lightning damage.
Level 21: 2d6 + Intelligence modifier lightning damage.

Level 1 Encounter Spells

Astral Wasp Wizard Attack 1

A crystalline wasp with gossamer wings appears next to your foe and stings it, then buzzes about, waiting for another opening to attack.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Conjuration, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: 1d10 + Intelligence modifier damage.
Effect: You conjure an astral wasp that appears in 1 square within the target's space. It lasts until the end of your next turn.

If the target moves out of the astral wasp's square, it takes damage equal to your Constitution modifier. If the target ends its turn more than 2 squares away from the astral wasp, it takes damage equal to your Constitution modifier.

SUMMONING MAGIC

Wizards who use summoning magic can call a host of monstrosities from other locations or produce lingering effects from magical energy to harry, attack, and block their foes.

A summoner wizard might call forth an arrowhawk, a creature of elemental wind and fury, to slash at enemies throughout a battle. A snarling mastiff leaps to fasten jaws upon a foe, then returns to the wizard's side, ready to attack again upon command. Alternatively, a stolid defender appears at the wizard's side to interpose itself between its master and an enemy's attack.

Despite the name, a summoner wizard doesn't always summon creatures. His or her repertoire includes conjuration spells that manipulate magical energy: a pillar of persistent lightning in the midst of enemies, blasting those that remain too close; a pool of slippery oil bubbling up from the ground around a foe's feet; or a wall of scintillating colors that lashes nearby creatures with a variety of effects.

Summoning vs. Conjuration: Summoning spells are daily powers and produce long-lasting, physical effects in the form of creatures. Some conjuration spells (mostly at-will and encounter powers) create temporary effects that take the form of creatures. Such conjured attackers don't have hit points or act at the wizard's command, but they behave much like creatures and exert control over a specific area.

CHRIS SEAMAN

Empowering Lightning — Wizard Attack 1

Green and yellow lightning twines around your wand, then flashes toward your enemy and explodes in a shower of sparks.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Lightning
Standard Action Ranged 20
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Intelligence modifier lightning damage, and you push the target 1 square.
Wand of Accuracy: The next time you use the Wand of Accuracy class feature before the end of the encounter, you also gain a bonus to that attack's damage roll equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Grasping Shadows — Wizard Attack 1

At your command, shadows reach out, grab hold of your foes, and wreathe the area in darkness.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Implement, Psychic, Zone
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: 2d8 + Intelligence modifier psychic damage, and the target is slowed until the end of your next turn.
Effect: The burst creates a zone of writhing shadows that lasts until the end of your next turn. Each creature that enters the zone takes psychic damage equal to your Intelligence modifier and is slowed until the end of its next turn.

Orbmaster's Incendiary Detonation — Wizard Attack 1

Gouts of flame pulse from your orb and explode amid your enemies, setting the area alight and roasting them as they attempt to escape.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Fire, Force, Implement, Zone
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d6 + Intelligence modifier force damage, and you knock the target prone.
Effect: The burst creates a zone of licking flames that lasts until the end of your next turn. Each enemy that enters the zone or starts its turn there takes 2 fire damage.
Orb of Imposition: You can extend the duration of this effect, even though it is not an at-will power. If you do so, the area expands to burst 3 and doesn't affect you or your allies.

Staffstrike Corrosion — Wizard Attack 1

You tap your staff on the ground, and acid boils up to envelop your target in a caustic haze.

Encounter ✦ Acid, Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d6 + Intelligence modifier acid damage. Until the end of your next turn, creatures more than 5 squares away from the target have concealment against it.
Staff of Defense: The next time you use the Staff of Defense class feature before the end of the encounter, the attacker also takes acid damage equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Level 1 Daily Spells

Grease — Wizard Attack 1

Slippery oil floods the ground under your foes, sending them tumbling to the ground.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Zone
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 10 squares
Effect: The burst creates a zone of slick grease that covers all horizontal surfaces until the end of the encounter. The zone is difficult terrain. You can make the following attack, using a square within the zone as the origin square.
Free Action Close burst 1
Trigger: A creature enters the zone
Target: The triggering creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: You knock the target prone.
Miss: You slide the target 2 squares.

Horrid Whispers — Wizard Attack 1

Your enemies are seemingly beset by dreadful noises. Desperate to find the source, they are oblivious to the true threat posed by you and your allies.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: 1d6 + Intelligence modifier psychic damage, and the target is slowed and takes a –2 penalty to attack rolls (save ends both).
Aftereffect: You knock the target prone.
Miss: The target is slowed and takes a –2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

A Wizard's Spellbook

How did your character acquire his or her spellbook? Did you receive formal instruction at something like a wizard academy, where you were handed a blank spellbook on the first day of school and proceeded to fill it with notes, spells, and rituals over the course of your education? Did you study with a more experienced wizard who gave you a book from her collection as a gift recognizing the completion of your study? Is your spell "book" a loose collection of notes you scrounged together as you figured out the secrets of magic in secret? Or is it a finely bound tome, carefully copied by the hand of a master scribe during the rule of one of the world's ancient empires?

What's in your spellbook aside from your spells and rituals? Does it contain a detailed history of the study of magic, penned by an archwizard of Bael Turath? A treatise on Underdark fungi and their use in arcane rituals? Scattered notes on summoning creatures, with marginal annotations in several different hands (including yours)? Or is it mostly blank pages, reflecting the fledgling state of your knowledge?

Phantom Chasm — Wizard Attack 1

You create the image of a bottomless chasm that opens beneath your foes, convincing them that they are plummeting to their deaths.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 20 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: 2d6 + Intelligence modifier psychic damage, and the target is knocked prone and immobilized until the end of its next turn.
Miss: The target is immobilized until the end of your next turn.

Rolling Thunder — Wizard Attack 1

Elemental thunder creatures tumble through your foes and knock them about.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Conjuration, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Ranged 10
Primary Target: One or two creatures
Primary Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d6 + Intelligence modifier thunder damage, and you slide the primary target 3 squares.
Miss: Half damage, and you slide the primary target 1 square.
Effect: You conjure a thunderball in 1 square within each primary target's space. Each thunderball lasts until the end of your next turn. Each thunderball can make a secondary attack.
Opportunity Action Melee 1
Trigger: A creature moves out of the thunderball's square
Secondary Target: The triggering creature
Secondary Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 5 thunder damage.
Sustain Minor: Each thunderball persists.

Summon Fire Warrior — Wizard Attack 1

A soldier of flame strides through a planar veil. It lifts a shimmering axe above its head as it moves to attack.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fire, Implement, Summoning
Minor Action Ranged 10
Effect: You summon a Medium fire warrior in an unoccupied square within range. The fire warrior has a speed of fly 6 (hover). It has a +2 bonus to AC and a +2 bonus to Fortitude. You can give the fire warrior the following special commands.
✦ Standard Action: Melee 1; targets one creature; Intelligence vs. Reflex; 1d8 + Intelligence modifier fire damage.
✦ Opportunity Attack: Melee 1; targets one creature; Intelligence vs. Reflex; 1d8 + Intelligence modifier fire damage.

Level 2 Utility Spells

Daunting Presence — Wizard Utility 2

Shadows deepen around you, your voice deepens to a rumble, and you appear to grow larger as you confront those foolish enough to dispute your wishes.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Fear
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you gain a +5 power bonus to Intimidate checks, and creatures adjacent to you take a -2 penalty to attack rolls that target you.

Float — Wizard Utility 2

You rise a few inches above the ground and glide over minor hindrances.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: You hover 6 inches above the ground until the end of the encounter or until you fall. You ignore movement penalties and restrictions due to terrain, do not set off pressure-sensitive traps, and cannot be detected with tremorsense. You also gain a bonus to Stealth checks equal to your Wisdom modifier. You can float over only a solid surface or a liquid surface directly beneath you. For example, you cannot use this power to cross a chasm or a pit; if you try to do so, you fall normally.

Guardian Blades — Wizard Utility 2

Three spectral blades appear around you, floating in a ring that wards away your foes.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Force
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of the encounter or until you become unconscious, each enemy adjacent to you that makes an attack roll takes force damage equal to your Intelligence modifier. No enemy can take this damage more than once per turn.

Phantasmal Terrain — Wizard Utility 2

You make already treacherous terrain even more difficult for your enemies to traverse.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Zone
Standard Action Area burst 3 within 10 squares
Effect: The burst creates a zone of illusory obstacles that lasts until the end of the encounter. Difficult terrain within the zone costs 2 extra squares of movement to enter instead of the normal 1 extra square. Additionally, hazards and traps within the zone gain a bonus to attack rolls against your enemies equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Casting a Spell

Using an arcane power—whether it's a wizard spell or a spell belonging to a different arcane class—shouldn't feel the same as using a martial or a divine power. Wizard spells in particular involve the recitation of complex arcane formulas, mystic syllables in no known language that tap into the magical power that flows though the world. You might also perform precise gestures, positioning your implement and your free hand in just the right way to shape and channel the energy you wield.

Your powers require constant study to keep those syllables fresh in your mind and ready for use, so you might spend every short rest or extended rest immersed in reviewing your spellbook, rehearsing the precise formulas in your thoughts. However, resting your mind and body is also essential for proper performance of your spells, so you might insist on taking the first or last watch of the night so you can sleep uninterrupted.

Summon Shadow Serpent — Wizard Utility 2

Shadows flicker at your feet, swirl before you, and coalesce into the form of a black serpent.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Summoning
Minor Action Ranged 10

Effect: You summon a Small shadow serpent in an unoccupied square within range. The shadow serpent has a speed of 6. It has a +5 bonus to Stealth checks and takes no penalty to Stealth checks for moving more than 2 squares. You can give the shadow serpent the following special command.

✦ Minor Action: Until the end of your turn, you can see through the shadow serpent's eyes. You cannot gain line of sight or line of effect for your powers from the serpent's square, but you can make Perception checks from it to spot hidden objects or creatures.

Level 3 Encounter Spells

Chill Claws — Wizard Attack 3

Skeletal hands appear around your targets, ripping into them with icy claws and sapping their will to fight.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Cold, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One or two creatures
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d8 + Intelligence modifier cold damage, and the target takes a -2 penalty to attack rolls until the end of your next turn.

Hypnotic Pattern — Wizard Attack 3

A swirling pattern of colors appears before your foes. Their eyes glaze over as the pattern enthralls them and lures them closer.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Conjuration, Illusion, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Effect: You conjure a swirling pattern of colors and lights in an unoccupied square within range that lasts until the end of your next turn. You can make the following attack, using the pattern's square as the origin square.

Opportunity Action Close burst 3
Trigger: An enemy starts its turn within 3 squares of the pattern
Target: The triggering enemy in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: The target is pulled 3 squares toward the pattern and is slowed until the end of your next turn. It can move into the pattern's square.

Maze of Mirrors — Wizard Attack 3

You envelop your enemies in an illusory labyrinth made of mirrors, which conceals the world around them.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Implement
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: Until the end of your next turn, the target is immobilized and takes a penalty to attack rolls equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Pinioning Vortex — Wizard Attack 3

A miniature tornado roars forth to batter your enemy and lift it into the air.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d6 + Intelligence modifier damage, and you slide the target 10 feet (2 squares) vertically. The target remains aloft until the start of its next turn; while aloft, it is dazed and immobilized, and it grants combat advantage to you and your allies. At the start of its next turn, it lands on its feet in the space it formerly occupied or in the nearest unoccupied space of its choice.

Shock Beetle Swarm — Wizard Attack 3

A sudden mass of insects limned with lightning crawls over your foes. Energy arcs between your enemies as the swarm feasts on their flesh.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Conjuration, Implement, Lightning
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: 1d6 + Intelligence modifier lightning damage, and you conjure a shock beetle in 1 square within the target's space. Each beetle lasts until the end of your next turn. Each enemy that starts its turn in or adjacent to at least 1 square containing a shock beetle takes lightning damage equal to your Constitution modifier.

Level 5 Daily Spells

Acid Mire — Wizard Attack 5

You transform the ground beneath your enemies' feet to hellish slime that eats away at flesh and bone.

Daily ✦ Acid, Arcane, Implement, Zone
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3d6 + Intelligence modifier acid damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: The burst creates a zone of caustic slime that lasts until the end of your next turn. The zone is difficult terrain. Each creature that enters the zone or starts its turn there takes 5 acid damage. Whenever a creature falls prone within the zone, it takes 5 extra acid damage.
Sustain Minor: The zone persists.

Glitterdust — Wizard Attack 5

You call forth a flash of brilliant light that leaves golden dust on all nearby creatures. The dust sparkles with a supernatural luster.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Radiant
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 20 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d10 + Intelligence modifier radiant damage, and the target is blinded until the end of your next turn.
Effect: The target gains no benefit from concealment or invisibility, nor can it become hidden (save ends).

Phantasmal Assailant — Wizard Attack 5

You craft an elaborate image of a deadly assassin whose blade cuts deeply into your foe.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 20
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: 2d10 + Intelligence modifier psychic damage.
Effect: The target takes ongoing 5 psychic damage and grants combat advantage to you and your allies (save ends both).

Summon Abyssal Maw — Wizard Attack 5

The air is filled with the sound of gnashing teeth as a voracious creature of the Elemental Chaos appears and chews into anything it can reach.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Summoning
Minor Action Ranged 10
Effect: You summon a Medium abyssal maw in an unoccupied square within range. The maw has a speed of 6. You can give the maw the following special commands.
✦ Standard Action: Melee 1; targets one creature; Intelligence vs. Reflex; 2d6 + Intelligence modifier damage.
✦ Opportunity Attack: Melee 1; targets one creature; Intelligence vs. Reflex; 1d8 + Intelligence modifier damage. In addition, if an enemy adjacent to the maw makes a melee attack that does not include the maw as a target, the maw can make an opportunity attack against that enemy after the enemy's attack is resolved.

Visions of Avarice — Wizard Attack 5

The illusion of a fabulous treasure appears out of thin air. Your enemies throw aside caution to seize it.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Implement, Zone
Standard Action Area 1 square within 10 squares
Effect: The power's area becomes a zone of illusory treasure that lasts until the end of your next turn. Once per turn, you can make the following attack, using the zone as the origin square.
Minor Action Close burst 5
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: The zone pulls the target 3 squares. A target that ends this movement within the zone or adjacent to the zone is immobilized (save ends).
Sustain Minor: The zone persists. When you sustain the power, you can repeat the attack as a minor action.

Level 6 Utility Spells

Emerald Eye — Wizard Utility 6

A mote of green energy appears above you. A glaring, alien eye peers from it, giving you insight into your foe's true nature.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you gain a +5 power bonus to Insight checks against the target and a +2 power bonus to attack rolls against the target's Will.

Fire Shield — Wizard Utility 6

You are swathed in rippling flames that turn away both fire and chill but scorch anyone who strikes you.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fire
Minor Action Personal
Effect: You gain resist 10 cold and resist 10 fire until the end of the encounter. Whenever a creature makes a melee attack roll against you, it takes 2d6 + your Intelligence modifier fire damage. No creature can take this damage more than once per turn.

Spectral Hound — Wizard Utility 6

You call the ghostly image of a powerful mastiff that follows you protectively.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Illusion
Standard Action Ranged 10
Effect: You bring forth the illusion of a spectral hound, which appears in an unoccupied square within range. The hound does not occupy that square but does count as an ally for the purpose of flanking. Additionally, as long as the hound remains within 10 squares of you, you gain a +1 power bonus to all defenses, along with a +5 power bonus to Perception checks, since the spectral hound warns you of approaching danger.
Sustain Minor: The spectral hound persists, and you can move it 5 squares; the hound ignores difficult terrain. The illusion ends at the end of your turn if the hound is out of your line of sight.

Summon Iron Cohort — Wizard Utility 6

A dwarf-sized humanoid creature of earth and iron ore appears near you. When you come under attack, it steps in to absorb the force of the blow.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Summoning
Minor Action Close burst 2
Effect: You summon a Small iron cohort in an unoccupied square within the burst. The iron cohort has a speed of 6 and has a +2 bonus to AC. You can give the iron cohort the following special command.
✦ Immediate Interrupt: When you are targeted by a ranged or melee attack and the iron cohort is adjacent to you, the iron cohort becomes the attack's target instead.

Wizard's Escape — Wizard Utility 6

With a flash, you are gone.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Teleportation
Immediate Interrupt Personal
Trigger: An enemy hits you with a melee attack
Effect: You teleport 5 squares to a space that is not adjacent to an enemy.

Eladrin Wizards

Eladrin value the arcane arts over all others, and an eladrin wizard armed with a wand is a deadly adversary. Their innately high Intelligence allows eladrin wizards to easily target foes with their spells and to deal impressive damage. High Dexterity leads them naturally to choose the wand of accuracy form of implement mastery, which further enhances their ability to hit even the most elusive enemies.

Level 7 Encounter Spells

Enemies Abound — Wizard Attack 7

You weave a veil of illusion over the eyes of your enemies, causing them to view their own allies as threats.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 20 squares
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: 2d8 + Intelligence modifier psychic damage. Until the end of your next turn, you and your allies treat the target as an ally of yours for the purpose of flanking.

Concussive Echo — Wizard Attack 7

A focused blast of thunder slams into your foe, and the energy of the blast is stored in your enemy's body. When it next attacks, that energy is released in a concussive burst.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Charm, Implement, Thunder
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: 2d6 + Intelligence modifier thunder damage. The first time the target makes an attack roll before the end of your next turn, it deals 5 thunder damage to itself and to each enemy within 3 squares of it.

Tomebound Ooze — Wizard Attack 7

Your foe is engulfed by an acidic, jellylike mass that continues to eat at it when that foe tries to attack.

Encounter ✦ Acid, Arcane, Conjuration, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Effect: You conjure an ooze that fills the target's space. It lasts until the end of your next turn. If the target moves, the ooze moves with it while it remains within range.
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 4d8 + Intelligence modifier acid damage. Until the end of your next turn, whenever the target makes an attack roll, it takes acid damage equal to your Constitution modifier.
Tome of Binding: When the target first makes an attack roll before the end of your next turn, the ooze explodes. The explosion deals acid damage equal to your Constitution modifier to all enemies within 2 squares of the target, and the effect ends.

Twist of Space — Wizard Attack 7

You bend and fold the fabric of space, scattering your enemies across the battlefield.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Teleportation
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: 1d6 + Intelligence modifier damage, and the target is teleported 3 squares and slowed until the end of your next turn.

Worms of Minauros — Wizard Attack 7

You drop a mass of writhing maggots onto your enemy. The horrors feast on its flesh, dissolving it with acidic drool.

Encounter ✦ Acid, Arcane, Conjuration, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Effect: You conjure a mass of worms in 1 square within the target's space. They last until the end of your next turn.
Hit: 2d8 + Intelligence modifier acid damage. If the target ends its turn within 2 squares of the worms, it takes 10 acid damage.

Level 9 Daily Spells

Face of Death — Wizard Attack 9

You create a vision of the reaper of souls before your foes' eyes, and they freeze in terror of their impending death.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fear, Illusion, Implement
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: The target is immobilized (save ends).
First Failed Saving Throw: The target is helpless (save ends).
Aftereffect: The target is slowed (save ends).
Miss: The target is immobilized (save ends).
Aftereffect: The target is slowed (save ends).

Mordenkainen's Guardian Hound — Wizard Attack 9

The ghostly form of a snarling wolfhound appears before you and leaps into the fray.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Conjuration, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Effect: You conjure a Medium guardian hound that occupies 1 square within range, and the hound makes the following melee attack. Once per round as a minor action, you can have the hound repeat its attack. As a minor action, you can move the hound 6 squares. The hound lasts until the end of the encounter or until you dismiss it with a free action.
Target: One creature adjacent to the hound
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d4 + Intelligence modifier damage. The target takes a -2 penalty to its next attack roll that targets you.

Elf Wizards

Unlike their eladrin cousins, many elves disdain the arcane arts, favoring instead the martial path or the primal powers of the wild lands. Those who do choose the arcanist's robes over archer's garb are equally adept as control wizards or war wizards. Many elves choose the staff of defense form of implement mastery because of its flexibility as well as increased protection. Others opt for the wand of accuracy to take advantage of their high Dexterity.

Summon Arrowhawk — Wizard Attack 9

With a mighty shriek, a four-winged creature of the Elemental Chaos appears above your foes and swoops in to attack.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Summoning
Minor Action Ranged 10
Effect: You summon a Medium arrowhawk in an unoccupied square within range. The arrowhawk has a speed of fly 8 (hover). It has a +2 bonus to AC and a +2 bonus to Reflex. You can give the arrowhawk the following special commands.

✦ Standard Action: Shift 3 squares and attack; melee 1; targets one creature; Intelligence vs. Reflex; 1d10 + Intelligence modifier damage, and the target is marked by the arrowhawk until the end of your next turn.

✦ Opportunity Attack: Melee 1; targets one creature; Intelligence vs. Reflex; 1d10 + Intelligence modifier damage, and the target is marked by the arrowhawk until the end of your next turn.

Taunting Phantoms — Wizard Attack 9

Your foes are beset by tormenting images that dart among them, daring them to attack and driving them to lash out with reckless abandon.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Implement
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: The target makes a melee basic attack roll against a creature of your choice, including itself.
Effect: The target takes 5 damage each time it misses with a melee attack (save ends).

Visions of Ruin — Wizard Attack 9

Your foes scream in terror as a great cataclysm seems to destroy the world around them. Only the small area they occupy is safe from the horrid destruction they witness.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fear, Illusion, Implement, Psychic, Zone
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Effect: The burst creates a zone of illusory safety. A target that is forced to leave the zone takes 2d8 + Intelligence modifier psychic damage, and this effect ends for it. The zone lasts until no creature is subject to this effect.
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: The target is affected by visions of ruin (save ends). While affected by visions of ruin, it cannot voluntarily leave the zone, and it does not have line of sight to targets outside the zone.
Miss: Until the end of your next turn, the target cannot voluntarily leave the zone, and it does not have line of sight to targets outside the zone.
Special: A creature whose space is partly within the zone can move only into squares within the zone.

Level 10 Utility Spells

Illusory Wall — Wizard Utility 10

A seemingly solid wall materializes before your foes, dividing the battlefield with your convincing illusion.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Illusion
Standard Action Area wall 8 within 20 squares
Effect: You create the illusion of a contiguous wall of solid material (stone or metal, for example). The wall can be up to 4 squares high. The wall blocks line of sight for all enemies (but not your allies). Whenever an enemy moves adjacent to the wall, you can make an Intelligence vs. Will attack against that enemy. If the attack hits, the enemy cannot move through the wall on its current turn, but it can try again on later turns. If the attack misses, the wall no longer blocks line of sight or movement for that creature.
Sustain Minor: The wall persists.

Mass Resistance — Wizard Utility 10

You wrap arcane strands about yourself and all your allies, insulating all against a particular type of damage.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Close burst 10
Target: You and each ally in burst
Effect: Choose acid, cold, fire, force, lightning, necrotic, poison, psychic, radiant, or thunder. Until the end of the encounter, each target gains resistance to that damage type equal to one-half your level + your Intelligence modifier.

Summon Hammerfist Crusher — Wizard Utility 10

A hulking creature of rock appears before you. It strikes too slowly to possibly hit a living creature, but its mighty fists turn walls and doors into rubble.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Summoning
Minor Action Ranged 10
Effect: You summon a Medium hammerfist crusher in an unoccupied square within range. The hammerfist crusher has a speed of 3. It has a +2 bonus to AC and a +2 bonus to Fortitude. You can give the crusher the following special command.

✦ Standard Action: Melee 1; targets one object; Intelligence vs. Reflex; 5d6 + Intelligence modifier damage.

True Seeing — Wizard Utility 10

Your eyes glow with arcane light, letting nothing escape your sight.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you gain darkvision, and you can see invisible creatures and objects wthin 10 squares of you that are within your line of sight. You also gain a +5 power bonus to Insight checks and Perception checks.

Level 13 Encounter Spells

Earth Brute — Wizard Attack 13

The ground creaks and moans, and a creature of rock and earth emerges to smash your foes.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Conjuration, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d8 + Intelligence modifier damage, and you slide the target 3 squares. You conjure a Medium earth brute in a square adjacent to the target after this movement. The earth brute occupies 1 square and lasts until the end of your next turn.

Whenever a creature starts its turn in or enters a square adjacent to the earth brute, that creature takes 5 damage, and the earth brute pushes it 1 square.

Entangling Force — Wizard Attack 13

A burst of force erupts around your enemies, knocking them off balance and impeding their movement.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Force, Implement
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d6 + Intelligence modifier force damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target is slowed and can't teleport, and it provokes opportunity attacks when it shifts.

Wand of Accuracy: On a miss, you deal force damage to the target equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Illusory Assailant — Wizard Attack 13

You produce a lifelike illusion of a warrior that attacks your enemies and aids your allies.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Effect: You bring forth a Medium illusory warrior in an unoccupied square within range, and the warrior makes the following melee attack. Enemies cannot enter the illusory warrior's space, but allies can, and the illusory warrior is considered an ally for the purpose of flanking. The illusory warrior lasts until the end of your next turn,
Target: One creature adjacent to the warrior
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 4d8 + Intelligence modifier damage.

Mirror Sphere — Wizard Attack 13

Illusory barriers surround your foe, causing it phantom pain when it attacks you and your allies.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: 1d10 + Intelligence modifier psychic damage. If the target makes an attack roll before the end of its next turn, it takes damage and is subject to all other effects of that attack as if it had hit itself. Any resistances and immunities of the target do not affect the damage it deals to itself in this way. It still attacks the original target normally.

Orbmaster's Umbral Assault — Wizard Attack 13

A shroud of roiling shadows coalesces around your orb. Your enemies see a globe of utter blackness flare out to engulf them.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Implement, Necrotic, Zone
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 20 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: 1d6 + Intelligence modifier necrotic damage.
Effect: The burst creates a zone of illusory darkness that lasts until the end of your next turn. All creatures are blinded while they are within the zone.

Orb of Imposition: You can extend the duration of this effect, even though it is not an at-will power. If you do so, the zone expands to a burst 3 and doesn't affect you or your allies.

Level 15 Daily Spells

Ball Lightning — Wizard Attack 15

A coruscating globe of lightning flashes forth and flies about, lashing out with tendrils of electricity.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Conjuration, Implement, Lightning
Standard Action Ranged 10
Effect: You conjure a Medium ball of lightning that occupies 1 square within range, and the ball makes the following attack, which is a close burst 1. Each creature that starts its turn adjacent to the ball is slowed until the end of your next turn. Once per round, as a minor action, you can have the ball repeat its attack. As a move action, you can move the ball up to 10 squares. It can fly and hover. The ball lasts until the end of the encounter or until you dismiss it with a free action.
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d6 + Intelligence modifier lightning damage.

Evard's Dreadful Mist — Wizard Attack 15

You call forth a thick, ominous fog. As it descends upon your foes, sounds of gnashing fangs and snapping claws echo from it. Something lurks within. Something horrible.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fear, Implement, Psychic, Zone
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 20 squares
Primary Target: Each creature in burst
Primary Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: The primary target is immobilized (save ends).
Miss: The primary target is slowed (save ends).
Effect: The burst creates a zone of thick fog that blocks line of sight until the end of your next turn. You can make a secondary attack, using a square within the zone as the origin square.
Opportunity Action Close burst 1
Trigger: An enemy enters the zone or starts its turn there
Secondary Target: The triggering enemy in burst
Secondary Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d10 + Intelligence modifier psychic damage.
Sustain Minor: The zone persists.

Stonewrack — Wizard Attack 15

You clench your fists as you call on the earth to obey you. The ground buckles amid your foes, creating a mass of jagged rocks.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Zone
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 20 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 5d6 + Intelligence modifier damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: The burst creates a zone of jagged stone that lasts until the end of your next turn. Each creature that moves into the zone or within it without shifting or crawling takes 2d6 damage and is knocked prone.
Sustain Minor: The zone persists.

Summon Chainbearer — Wizard Attack 15

A blast of wind rushes over the battlefield as a dozen gleaming chains soar from your outstretched hand and wrap themselves into a humanoid form that lashes your enemies.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Summoning
Minor Action Ranged 20
Effect: You summon a Large creature made of chains in an unoccupied 2-square-by-2-square space within range. The chainbearer has reach 2 and a speed of 6. It has a +4 bonus to AC and a +4 bonus to Fortitude. You can give the chainbearer the following special commands.
✦ Standard Action: Melee 2; targets one creature; Intelligence vs. Fortitude; 1d10 + Intelligence modifier damage, and you slide the target 2 squares.
✦ Opportunity Attack: Melee 2; targets one creature; Intelligence vs. Fortitude; 1d10 + Intelligence modifier damage, and you slide the target 2 squares. The chainbearer has threatening reach, allowing it to make opportunity attacks against targets within its reach of 2 squares.

Vertigo — Wizard Attack 15

Your enemies stagger and flail their arms as the world seems to spin furiously around them.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Implement
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: The target is affected by vertigo (save ends). While affected by vertigo, the target can't stand up from prone, and if it moves, the target must move at least 4 squares or it falls prone at the end of its movement.
Aftereffect: The target is affected by a lesser form of vertigo (save ends). While affected, the target can't stand up from prone, and if it moves, the target must move at least 2 squares or it falls prone at the end of its movement.
Miss: Until the end of your next turn, the target can't stand up from prone, and if it moves, the target must move at least 2 squares or it falls prone at the end of its movement.
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, the target provokes opportunity attacks when it shifts.

Level 16 Utility Spells

Clever Escape — Wizard Utility 16

As your foes close in for the kill, you buy time for escape with a cunningly crafted duplicate of yourself.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Teleportation
Minor Action Personal
Effect: You become invisible and teleport 6 squares. You leave behind an illusory image of yourself in the space you occupied. The illusion stands in place, takes no actions, and uses your defenses if it is attacked. It lasts until the end of the encounter or until it is touched or hit by an attack. Your invisibility lasts until the end of your next turn or until you make an attack roll.
A creature can recognize the illusion by making a successful Insight check (DC 15 + one-half your level + your Intelligence modifier).

Phantom Mask — Wizard Utility 16

With a gesture, you enable you and your allies to take on a nearly impenetrable disguise.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Illusion
Minor Action Close burst 10
Target: You and each ally in burst
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, each target assumes the appearance of a humanoid creature of your size, even the appearance of a specific individual you have seen. You can choose a different disguise for each target. A creature can perceive a target's true form by succeeding on an Insight check (DC 20 + one-half your level + your Intelligence modifier).
As a standard action, you can modify this illusion to cause any of the targets to assume the appearance of a different humanoid creature.

Phase Shift — Wizard Utility 16

You whisper an arcane phrase and transform your body into a mere phantom.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Polymorph
Minor Action Personal
Effect: You become insubstantial and gain phasing until the end of your next turn.

Spectral Vision — Wizard Utility 16

Your surroundings shimmer and change. What was once a squalid cave is now an opulent throne room.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Illusion
Minor Action Close burst 5
Effect: Until the end of the encounter, you mask the terrain around you, changing the appearance of all unattended objects and terrain features. The objects are still visible, but you disguise their true nature, making them look, smell, sound, and sometimes even feel like something else. For example, you could make a pool of lava look like a plush carpet, or make a pile of coins look and feel like mud. If an object is removed from the area, this effect ends for that object.
A creature can see through your deception by succeeding on an Insight check (DC 20 + one-half your level + your Intelligence modifier). A creature automatically sees through the illusion if it takes damage from a disguised object or disguised terrain (such as walking on an illusory carpet that is actually lava).

Summon Diamond Falcon — Wizard Utility 16

A great bird of prey with gleaming white feathers appears from a planar portal and whisks you or an ally to safety.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Summoning
Minor Action Ranged 5

Effect: You summon a Medium diamond falcon in an unoccupied square within range. The falcon has a speed of fly 8 (hover). It has a +2 bonus to AC and a +2 bonus to Reflex. You can give the diamond falcon the following special command.

✦ Move Action: The diamond falcon can carry you or one Medium or smaller ally that is adjacent to it when the falcon begins its move. The carried creature moves with the falcon and occupies its space; if the falcon provokes opportunity attacks, the attacker can target either the falcon or the carried creature. At the end of the falcon's move, the carried creature can either remain in the falcon's space (continuing to be carried) or land in a square adjacent to the falcon. A carried creature grants combat advantage and takes a -5 penalty to attack rolls.

Level 17 Encounter Spells

Dancing Bolts — Wizard Attack 17

Snapping blue arcs of lightning erupt from the ground, leaping from one foe to another.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Lightning
Standard Action Ranged 20
Primary Target: One creature
Primary Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d6 + Intelligence modifier lightning damage, and you slide the target 1 square. If, after this movement, the target is within 2 squares of an enemy that has not yet been attacked by this use of this power, make the following secondary attack against that enemy, using the primary target as the origin square of the burst.

Free Action Area burst 2
Secondary Target: One enemy in burst
Secondary Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d6 + Intelligence modifier lightning damage, and you slide the target 1 square. If, after this movement, the target is within 2 squares of an enemy that has not yet been attacked by this use of this power, make the following tertiary attack against that enemy, using the secondary target as the origin square of the burst.

Free Action Area burst 2
Tertiary Target: One enemy in burst
Tertiary Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d6 + Intelligence modifier lightning damage, and you slide the target 1 square.

Furnace of Sand — Wizard Attack 17

You create a powerful storm of desert winds and red-hot sand.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Fire, Implement, Zone
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 20 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 2d6 + Intelligence modifier fire damage.
Effect: The burst creates a zone of red-hot swirling sand that lasts until the end of your next turn. All creatures are blinded while they are within the zone, and the area is lightly obscured. Each creature that enters the zone takes 1d10 + your Intelligence modifier fire damage.

Gripping Chains — Wizard Attack 17

You speak a ringing word of doleful power, enmeshing your foes in spectral bonds.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Force, Implement
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 20 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d6 + Intelligence modifier force damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target is slowed, and it provokes opportunity attacks when it shifts.

Phantasmal Horror — Wizard Attack 17

Your enemy is assailed by an imaginary monster ripped from its nightmares, frightening it into a catatonic state.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Fear, Illusion, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: The target is stunned until the end of your next turn. While the target is stunned by this power, you gain a bonus to damage rolls against it equal to your Charisma modifier.

Shard of the Endless Avalanche — Wizard Attack 17

You conjure a massive boulder from the Elemental Chaos that smashes through your enemies' ranks, then shatters and dissipates.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Conjuration, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 20
Effect: You conjure a Medium boulder that appears in 1 square within range, and you move it 5 squares. At the end of this movement, the boulder disappears. While it moves, you can make the following attack.

Free Action Melee 1
Trigger: The boulder enters a creature's space
Target: The creature whose space was entered
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d10 + Intelligence modifier damage, and you slide the target 2 squares.
Special: The boulder can attack any single creature only once, even if it enters that creature's space multiple times.

Level 19 Daily Spells

Evard's Ebon Bindings — Wizard Attack 19

With incantations of imprisonment, you trap your foe in writhing black runes that seem almost alive, forcing it to obey your command.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Charm, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: The target is immobilized (save ends).
First Failed Saving Throw: The target is stunned (save ends).
Second Failed Saving Throw: The target is dominated (save ends).
Aftereffect: 2d6 + Intelligence modifier psychic damage, and the target is immobilized and dazed until the end of your next turn.
Miss: 2d6 + Intelligence modifier psychic damage, and the target is immobilized until the end of your next turn.

Oppressive Force — Wizard Attack 19

A massive barrage of arcane energy slams your foe to the ground and grinds it into the dirt.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Force, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 20
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d10 + Intelligence modifier force damage, and the target is knocked prone and affected by oppressive force (save ends). While affected by oppressive force, the target takes ongoing 10 force damage and can't stand up from prone.
Miss: Half damage, and the target is knocked prone and affected by oppressive force (save ends). While affected by oppressive force, the target takes ongoing 5 force damage and can't stand up from prone.

Plague of Illusions — Wizard Attack 19

You invade your enemy's mind to produce a bewildering array of illusions: nightmares sprung to life, gaping rifts in the ground, and hissing, encircling snakes.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 20
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: The target cannot use attack powers (save ends).
First Failed Saving Throw: The target is blinded (save ends).
Second Failed Saving Throw: The target is immobilized (save ends).
Miss: The target is blinded (save ends).
First Failed Saving Throw: The target is immobilized (save ends).

Summon Black Devourer — Wizard Attack 19

Your fingers claw open an inky portal and draw forth a terror of solid darkness: a razor-toothed maw surrounded by dozens of whipping tentacles.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Summoning
Minor Action Ranged 20
Effect: You summon a Large black devourer in an unoccupied 2-square-by-2-square space within range. The black devourer has reach 2 and a speed of 5. It has a +4 bonus to AC and a +4 bonus to Will. You can give the black devourer the following special commands.
✦ Standard Action: Melee 2; targets one creature; Intelligence vs. Reflex; 2d4 + Intelligence modifier damage, and the target is grabbed. The devourer gains a +4 bonus to attack rolls and damage rolls against a target it is already grabbing.
✦ Opportunity Attack: Melee 1; targets one creature; Intelligence vs. Reflex; 1d8 + Intelligence modifier damage, and the target is knocked prone.

Level 22 Utility Spells

Globe of Invulnerability — Wizard Utility 22

A transparent bubble of force appears around you, preventing anything from getting in or out.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Conjuration, Force
Minor Action Personal
Effect: You create a globe of force around you that lasts until the end of your next turn. Whenever you move (including teleportation), the globe moves with you. You cannot gain line of effect to any target other than yourself, and no creature or effect can gain line of effect to you. The globe doesn't block line of sight. It blocks objects and creatures attempting to pass through it.
The globe, although impenetrable, is not impervious to damage. Attacks against the globe automatically hit, and it has 100 hit points.
Sustain Standard: The globe persists.

Mordenkainen's Lucubration — Wizard Utility 22

Your mastery of the arcane arts allows you to push your mind far beyond its limits, tapping into reserves of magic that allow your spells to endure.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of the encounter or until you become unconscious, your arcane powers that can be sustained instead last until the end of the encounter.

Phantom Legion — Wizard Utility 22

A dozen illusory forms appear around you, creating a sprawling scene to deceive your enemies.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Illusion
Minor Action Ranged 30
Effect: You create up to twelve Medium illusory creatures or objects, each of which appears in an unoccupied square within range. Each can make sounds and gestures but cannot voluntarily leave its space, and each of its defenses is 10. An illusory creature or object lasts until the end of the encounter, or until an attack hits it or a creature touches it.
As a move action, you can cause as many of the illusory creatures or objects as you wish to move up to 6 squares each. Each acts as an independent entity, saying whatever you wish and reacting as you choose to other creatures. However, you must have line of effect to an illusory creature or object to control it in this way. If you do not have line of effect, it does not move or respond.

Dwarf Wizards

Dwarves' generally high Wisdom means that those of this race who choose the wizard's path favor control and the orb of imposition form of implement mastery. A dwarf wizard's orb is often a polished piece of mineral mined from his or her mountainous home. Because dwarves value clan ties and ancestry, those who have wizards among their forebears are more likely to take up wizardry themselves.

Wall of Force — Wizard Utility 22

A transparent barrier of force springs up where you command.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Conjuration, Force
Standard Action Area wall 12 within 20 squares

Effect: You conjure a solid, transparent wall of contiguous squares filled with magical force that lasts until the end of the encounter. The wall can be up to 6 squares high. The wall blocks line of effect and movement. No creature can enter a square containing the wall, and phasing creatures can't move through it.

Attacks against the wall automatically hit. The wall has 200 hit points, and attacking any square deals damage to the entire wall. If it is reduced to 0 hit points, the wall shatters, dealing 3d10 force damage to each creature adjacent to it.

Level 23 Encounter Spells

Astral Claw — Wizard Attack 23

For a moment, the borders between the worlds blur. The massive claw of an enormous beast reaches through the planes to crush your foe and hurl it to the ground.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Conjuration, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 20
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3d10 + Intelligence modifier damage, and you slide the target 5 squares and knock it prone.
Effect: You conjure an astral claw in 1 square of the target's space after this attack is resolved. The claw lasts until the end of your next turn. If the target stands up while the astral claw is in its space, the target takes damage equal to your Constitution modifier.

Deceptive Shadows — Wizard Attack 23

Darkness swirls around your foes, distracting them and cloaking you and your allies from view.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Implement
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 20 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: 3d6 + Intelligence modifier damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target can gain line of sight only to the creature nearest to it (ally or enemy). If multiple creatures are equally near to the target, it can see all of them.

Freezing Bolts — Wizard Attack 23

A thin layer of ice coats your wand, unleashing frigid waves as unstoppable as winter itself.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Cold, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 20
Target: One, two, or three creatures
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d6 + Intelligence modifier cold damage, and the target is immobilized until the end of your next turn.
Wand of Accuracy: Reroll any missed attack with this power.

Orbmaster's Insuperable Lethargy — Wizard Attack 23

A blood-red sphere of arcane power emanates from your orb to surround your foes, sinking into them and sapping their energy.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 20 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d6 + Intelligence modifier damage, and the target is either weakened or immobilized (your choice) until the end of your next turn.
Orb of Imposition: You can extend the duration of this power, even though it is not an at-will power. If you do so, each target is both weakened and immobilized until the end of your next turn.

Staffstrike Shock — Wizard Attack 23

You grip your staff as you shout a mystic phrase. The staff transforms into a crackling bolt of lightning that hurls you away from an attack.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Lightning
Standard Action Ranged 20
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: 3d10 + Intelligence modifier lightning damage.
Staff of Defense: The next time you use the Staff of Defense class feature before the end of the encounter, the enemy whose attack you interrupted also takes 10 lightning damage, and you teleport 5 squares as a free action.

Wizard Versatility

Three factors combine to make the wizard one of the most versatile classes in the game: spellbooks, cantrips, and rituals. Unlike members of other classes, a wizard can keep a selection of daily attack powers and utility powers in a spellbook, allowing him or her to choose the right spell for the job—given some knowledge of what dangers lie ahead on a given day. (Divination rituals are a good way to get some of that knowledge!) Cantrips are minor spell effects, but incredibly flexible. Look for ways to use ghost sound, mage hand, or prestidigitation in skill challenges, roleplaying interactions, and even combat encounters to accomplish unexpected things. Finally, rituals—which any class can use, but wizards have superior access to—provide a never-ending supply of interesting, unique effects. Some wizards find that they rely on the same one or two rituals in a variety of situations, while others employ lots of different rituals and might never use the same one twice.

Level 25 Daily Spells

Bubbling Acid — Wizard Attack 25

You toss a green globe toward your enemies. It explodes, showering them with acid and creating a boiling pool of caustic stuff that moves at your command.

Daily ✦ Acid, Arcane, Implement, Zone
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 20 squares
Primary Target: Each creature in burst
Primary Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 6d6 + Intelligence modifier acid damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: The burst creates a zone of bubbling acid that lasts until the end of the encounter. Each creature that enters the zone or starts its turn there takes 10 acid damage. As a move action, you can move the zone up to 5 squares.

You can make a secondary attack, using a square within the zone as the origin square.

Opportunity Action Close burst 1
Trigger: A creature enters the zone or starts its turn there
Secondary Target: The triggering creature in burst
Secondary Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: The secondary target is blinded until the end of its current turn.

Cinder Storm — Wizard Attack 25

A spinning cloud of flaming ash surrounds your enemies, burning them and blinding their allies.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fire, Implement, Zone
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 20 squares
Primary Target: Each creature in burst
Primary Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 5d6 + Intelligence modifier fire damage, and ongoing 10 fire damage (save ends).
Miss: Half damage, and ongoing 5 fire damage (save ends).
Effect: The burst creates a zone of flaming ash that lasts until the end of your next turn. You can make a secondary attack, using a square within the zone as the origin square.

Opportunity Action Close burst 5
Trigger: A creature fails its saving throw against this power's ongoing damage
Secondary Target: The triggering creature in burst
Secondary Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 1d8 + Intelligence modifier fire damage, and the secondary target is blinded until the end of its next turn.

Dragonborn Wizards

With a culture that focuses on glory in battle, dragonborn do not normally turn to wizardry. Those who do take up a wizard's implement are particularly driven to learn their esoteric craft, often sacrificing personal commitments or an easy route to success in the process. Many dragonborn wizards are surpriringly adept at illusion magic.

Orbmaster's Prismatic Sphere — Wizard Attack 25

Your orb swirls with a rainbow of colors that flash out and cloak your foes in a scintillating globe.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Fire, Implement, Poison
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 20 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude, Reflex, Will
Hit (Fortitude): 3d6 + Intelligence modifier poison damage, and ongoing 10 poison damage (save ends).
Hit (Reflex): 3d6 + Intelligence modifier fire damage, and ongoing 10 fire damage (save ends).
Hit (Will): The target is dazed (save ends).
Special: You make one attack roll per target and compare that result against all three defenses. A target might be subject to any, all, or none of the consequences of a hit depending on how many of its defenses were hit. The target must roll a saving throw against each condition or instance of ongoing damage separately.
Orb of Imposition: If you impose a penalty to saving throws against this power, the penalty applies to all targets instead of just one.

Phantom Reality — Wizard Attack 25

You create an intricate illusion in your enemy's mind, convincing it that friends are foes and leading it wherever you desire.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 20
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: The target is affected by phantom reality (save ends). While it is affected by phantom reality, whenever the target makes a melee or ranged attack roll, you can change the target of that attack. If it makes an area attack, you choose the attack's origin square if applicable. The target cannot attack itself in this way. Also, whenever the target moves, you can slide it 4 squares after it completes its movement.
Miss: Until the end of your next turn , whenever the target makes a melee or ranged attack roll, you can change the target of that attack. If it makes an area attack, you choose the attack's origin square if applicable. The target cannot attack itself in this way.

Great Wizards of History

Some of the greatest wizards of the past have left their mark on the study of magic in the form of spells and rituals that bear their names: Bigby (of the many hand spells), Mordenkainen, Otiluke, and Evard all have spells in the Player's Handbook and in this book that are named after them. Tenser, Leomund, and Drawmij survive in ritual names. These names have been part of the Dungeons & Dragons® game since its earliest days—largely because they were player character wizards in some of the first D&D® campaigns.

If your wizard has a bit of an egomaniacal bent (and many wizards do), you might consider appending your own name to some or all of your spells. That change might be nothing more than a reflection of your own inflated sense of self-importance, but perhaps you have researched a variation that makes Kathra's acid mire notably different from the run-of-the-mill acid mire spell described in this book.

Summon Abyssal Horde — Wizard Attack 25

Three horrid creatures, little more than living toothy mouths, appear around your foes to devour them.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Summoning
Minor Action Ranged 20
Effect: You summon up to three Medium abyssal maws, each appearing in an unoccupied square within range. Each maw has a speed of 6. You can give the maws the following special commands.
✦ Standard Action: Melee 1; targets one creature; Intelligence vs. Reflex; 2d6 + Intelligence modifier damage.
✦ Opportunity Attack: Melee 1; targets one creature; Intelligence vs. Reflex; 1d6 + Intelligence modifier damage. In addition, if an enemy adjacent to the maw makes a melee attack that does not include the maw as a target, the maw makes an opportunity attack against that enemy after the enemy's attack is resolved.
Special: Whenever you use a standard action or a minor action to issue a command, all the summoned maws take that action. Only one maw within range of a target can make an opportunity attack against that target. You do not lose a healing surge until all the maws summoned by this power are reduced to 0 hit points or fewer.

Level 27 Encounter Spells

Lost in the Mists — Wizard Attack 27

You create a phantom world around your enemy and mimic reality so closely that you manipulate the foe as if it were a puppet.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Charm, Illusion, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 20
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: The target is dominated until the end of your next turn. While dominated, it gains a bonus to its attack rolls and damage rolls equal to your Charisma modifier.

Sequestering Force — Wizard Attack 27

Your spell rips apart the planar boundaries, battering your enemies and trapping them in a fold of buckled space.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Force, Implement
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 20 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: 4d6 + Intelligence modifier force damage. Until the end of your next turn, the burst becomes an area of twisted space. A creature hit by this attack cannot leave the area by any means, including forced movement and teleportation.

Soul Fire — Wizard Attack 27

You crook your hand in a mystical gesture, and your foes shriek in agony as their souls are consumed by hidden flame.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Fire, Implement, Necrotic
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 20 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: 3d8 + Intelligence modifier fire and necrotic damage, and the target is weakened until the end of your next turn.

Steal Time — Wizard Attack 27

You divert the river of time, stealing a moment from your enemy for your own use.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 20
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: The target is stunned until the end of your next turn. You gain an extra standard action, which you must use before the target recovers frm this stunned condition.

Tomebound Bloodbeast — Wizard Attack 27

From your tome springs a writhing, formless creature covered with long spikes that drinks your foes' blood and transfers their vigor to you.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Conjuration, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: 4d8 + Intelligence modifier damage.
Effect: You conjure a tomebound bloodbeast that occupies 1 square in range. It lasts until the end of your next turn.

Whenever a creature adjacent to the bloodbeast moves, that creature takes damage equal to your Constitution modifier, and you gain the same number of temporary hit points. These temporary hit points stack with each other and with temporary hit points from other sources.

Tome of Binding: If you increase the damage dealt by this power to a creature that moves, all allies within 5 squares of the bloodbeast also gain the temporary hit points.

Level 29 Daily Spells

Miasma of Enfeeblement — Wizard Attack 29

Black dust whirls up around your foes, sapping their strength and clouding their vision.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Necrotic, Zone
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 20 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: 5d6 + Intelligence modifier necrotic damage, and the target is weakened (save ends).
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: The burst creates a zone of clinging black dust that blocks line of sight for all creatures damaged by this power until the end of your next turn.
Sustain Minor: The zone persists.

Tieflings Wizards

Tieflings who have a talent for the arcane often yield to the example of their ancestors and choose to be warlocks. However, they make fine wizards, too; their superior Intelligence makes them the equal of eladrin mages (although most eladrin are unwilling to admit this truth). Tieflings are generally more likely to become war wizards than to concern themselves with the subtleties of illusion or control. Many of those who do take up illusion magic (and the orb of deception form of implement mastery) are formidable masters of their craft.

Prismatic Wall — Wizard Attack 29

You draw your hands apart to form a mystic rainbow, which grows into a wall of shimmering colors.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Conjuration, Fire, Implement, Poison
Standard Action Area wall 10 within 10 squares
Effect: You conjure a wall of contiguous squares filled with many-colored light that lasts until the end of your next turn. The wall can be up to 5 squares high. Entering a square occupied by the wall costs 1 extra square of movement. The wall blocks line of sight.

You can make the following attack, using a square within the zone as the origin square.

Opportunity Action Close burst 1
Trigger: A creature starts its turn inside the wall or adjacent to the wall or moves through it
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude, Reflex, Will
Target: The triggering creature in burst
Hit (Fortitude): 3d4 + Intelligence modifier poison damage, and you teleport the target 5 squares.
Hit (Reflex): 2d6 + Intelligence modifier fire damage, and ongoing 10 fire damage (save ends).
Hit (Will): The target is dazed (save ends).
Sustain Minor: The wall persists.
Special: You make one attack roll per target and compare that result against all three defenses. A target might be subject to any, all, or none of the effects depending on how many of its defenses were hit. The target must roll a saving throw against each condition or instance of ongoing damage separately.

Summon Living Mountain — Wizard Attack 29

You part the planar walls to call a sentient mass of living rock from the Elemental Chaos. It emerges to crush your foes beneath its granite feet.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Summoning
Minor Action Ranged 20
Effect: You summon a Huge living mountain in a 3-square-by-3-square unoccupied space within range. The living mountain has a speed of 3. It has a +4 bonus to AC and a +4 bonus to Fortitude. You can give the living mountain the following special commands.

✦ Standard Action: Melee 3; targets one creature; Intelligence vs. Fortitude; 2d8 + Intelligence modifier damage, and the target is knocked prone.
✦ Standard Action: Close burst 5; targets enemies only; Intelligence vs. Fortitude; 1d10 + Intelligence modifier damage, and the target is knocked prone.
✦ Opportunity Attack: Melee 1; targets one creature; Intelligence vs. Fortitude; 2d8 + Intelligence modifier damage.

Visions of Wrath — Wizard Attack 29

With blood-curdling cries, your enemies fall upon each other.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Implement
Standard Action Area burst 2 within 20 squares
Target: Each enemy in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: The target is dominated (save ends). If you do not compel the target to make any attack rolls during its turn, it automatically saves to end this condition at the end of that turn. If you compel the target to make any attack rolls but it does not hit any creatures, it automatically fails saving throws against this condition until the start of its next turn.
Miss: The target is stunned until the end of your next turn.

Arcane Wayfarer

"Distance is an illusion, a construction of the mind shackled to the physical world."

Prerequisite: Wizard

Time and space are barriers to most creatures. Only gods, primordials, and legendary beings can break down those barriers. And—perhaps—people like you.

You have already learned several powers that allow you to instantaneously travel between two nearby points. But now, as an arcane wayfarer, you see more clearly into the mechanism behind teleportation. As your knowledge grows, you teleport as naturally and easily as you walk, moving from spot to spot by flexing your mind instead of your muscles. You don't restrict this knowledge to yourself; you also enjoy targeting others with spatial effects, sending friends to safety and transporting foes into dangerous locations.

Although time yet remains beyond your grasp, you know that space is not insurmountable, as most believe it to be. Indeed, sometimes the shortest distance between two locations is not a straight line.

Arcane Wayfarer Path Features

Blink Strike (11th level): Whenever you score a critical hit with a wizard attack power, you can also teleport the target 4 squares.

Wayfarer's Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you can also teleport 4 squares as a free action.

Wayfarer's Step (16th level): You gain teleport 2 as an additional movement mode.

Arcane Wayfarer Spells

Hammerfall Step Arcane Wayfarer Attack 11

You transport both enemies and allies. Your allies experience a pleasant trip to safety; your enemies end up in jeopardy.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement, Teleportation
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each enemy in blast
Attack: Intelligence vs. Fortitude
Hit: 2d6 + Intelligence modifier damage, and you teleport the target 3 squares.
Effect: You teleport each ally in the blast 3 squares.

WAYNE REYNOLDS

Wayfarer's Evasion Arcane Wayfarer Utility 12

As your foe's weapon falls upon you, you suddenly whisk away.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Teleportation
Immediate Interrupt Personal
Trigger: You are hit or missed by an attack
Effect: You teleport 10 squares.

Terrifying Journey Arcane Wayfarer Attack 20

You send your enemies . . . elsewhere. Somewhere terrible.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Teleportation
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 20 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: 3d6 + Intelligence modifier damage, and the target is teleported to an interplanar space (save ends). While in the interplanar space, the target cannot take actions and cannot be targeted. On a save, it returns to the space it was last in. If that space is occupied, the target returns to the nearest unoccupied space of its choice.
Miss: Half damage, and the creature is dazed (save ends).

Bonded Summoner

"To me, my servants! You shall share in my strength and in my victory."

Prerequisite: Wizard

You are fascinated by the magic of summoning and conjuration. The power of the planes draws you almost as strongly as your own arcane strength pulls the creatures you call to your side. You form a stronger link than others with the creatures you summon, granting you increased control over them. This closer communication even allows you to manipulate the boundaries between planes. You are a beneficent master, though, and you imbue your summoned servants with greater vitality—in exchange for even more dedicated service.

JAMES ZHANG

Bonded Summoner Path Features

Summoner's Slip (11th level): Whenever you use an arcane power that has the conjuration or summoning keyword, you can teleport 2 squares as a free action after using the power.

Summoner's Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, as a free action you can issue one minor action command to each of your summoned creatures.

Summoner's Might (16th level): Creatures you summon gain regeneration 10.

Bonded Summoner Spells

Planar Gateway — Bonded Summoner Attack 11

You create a rift between the planes, drawing raw power through it that tumbles your enemies about like skittles.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Conjuration, Implement
Standard Action Ranged 10

Effect: You conjure a planar gateway that occupies 1 square within range and lasts until the end of your next turn. You can make the following attack, using the gateway's square as the origin square.

Free Action Close burst 1
Trigger: A creature starts its turn in the planar gateway or enters a square adjacent to the planar gateway
Target: The triggering creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Reflex
Hit: 3d6 + Intelligence modifier damage, and you slide the target 3 squares.

Enduring Summons — Bonded Summoner Utility 12

You call on the power of the planes to surge through your summoned creature, ensuring its survival.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Healing
Minor Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature you summoned
Effect: The target regains hit points equal to your healing surge value.

Summon Bonded Protector — Bonded Summoner Attack 20

You call a massive humanoid-shaped statue of metal and stone that pounds your foes and forces them away from you.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Summoning, Teleportation
Minor Action Ranged 20

Effect: You summon a Large bonded protector in an unoccupied 2-square-by-2-square space within range. The bonded protector has reach 2 and a speed of 5. It has a +4 bonus to AC and a +4 bonus to Will. You can give the bonded protector the following special commands.

✦ Standard Action: Close blast 3; targets each creature in blast; Intelligence vs. Reflex; 2d4 + Intelligence modifier damage, and the target is dazed (save ends).
✦ Opportunity Attack: Melee 1; targets one creature; Intelligence vs. Reflex; 2d6 + Intelligence modifier damage, and the target is knocked prone. The bonded protector can make this opportunity attack against a creature that attacks you or that attacks a creature you summoned.
✦ Minor Action: You and the bonded protector swap positions.

Hermetic Saboteur

"Drive them into the alcove. I've arranged a little welcome for them there."

Prerequisite: Wizard

Few things please you more than creating nasty magical surprises for your foes. Although your traps are illusory, they are no less deadly to foes who stumble into them. As well, you love to add your own arcane flourishes to mundane traps, catching enemies off guard when they believed themselves safe. Admittedly, you might take unseemly glee in your phantasmal pyrotechnics. But wreaking havoc is so much fun!

Still, you must not incur your companions' wrath by scattering such deadly tricks too liberally, or putting them where they could be triggered by accident. So you are careful . . . as careful as a saboteur can be.

Hermetic Saboteur Path Features

Attune Target (11th level): Once per encounter, when you use a wizard power that is a blast, a burst, or a wall, you can choose one square within 20 squares of you as that power's origin square instead of its normal origin square.

Saboteur's Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to use an area or close wizard attack power, all targets of that power grant combat advantage to you until the end of your next turn.

Adjust Attunement (16th level): All targets of attack powers affected by your Attune Target path feature grant combat advantage to you until the end of your next turn, regardless of whether those targets were hit or missed by your attacks.

Hermetic Saboteur Spells

Psychic Detonations Hermetic Saboteur Attack 11

You tap on the floor, and three illusory traps are set under the feet of your enemies.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10

Effect: You bring into being three illusory traps in three separate squares that last until the end of your next turn. Each trap can make the following attack the first time it is triggered.

Opportunity Action Close burst 1
Trigger: A creature starts its turn in or moves adjacent to a square containing a trap
Target: The triggering creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: 2d6 + Intelligence modifier psychic damage, and the target is knocked prone.

Special: Triggering this attack is considered triggering a trap for the purpose of your sabotage trap power.

Sabotage Trap Hermetic Saboteur Utility 12

Sometimes the wrong person triggers the trap. Fortunately, you have an answer for that.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Teleportation
Immediate Interrupt Ranged 10
Trigger: A creature triggers a trap within range
Primary Target: The triggering creature
Secondary Target: A different creature within 10 squares of the primary target
Effect: The primary target and secondary targets swap positions, and the secondary target is considered to have triggered the trap. If the secondary target is you or an ally, he or she gains a +4 bonus to all defenses against that trap's attacks until the end of the secondary target's next turn.

Saboteur's Ward Hermetic Saboteur Attack 20

You have a punishing response to those who are foolish enough to attack you.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement, Psychic, Zone
Standard Action Close burst 10

Effect: The burst creates a zone of warding magic that lasts until the end of your next turn. You can make the following attack, using a square within the zone as the origin square.

Opportunity Action Close burst 10
Trigger: A creature in burst makes an attack roll against you
Target: The triggering creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: 2d6 + Intelligence modifier psychic damage.
Effect: The target is dazed (save ends).

Special: Triggering this attack is considered triggering a trap for the purpose of your sabotage trap power.

Sustain Minor: The zone persists. When you move, the zone moves with you, remaining centered on you, unless you used your Attune Target path feature to change the origin square of the burst. In that case, you can move the zone 5 squares as a move action.

WOODROW J. HINTON III

Rimetongue Caller

"It takes a cold heart to wield such power."

Prerequisites: Wizard, Primordial language

Summoned creatures can always be improved upon. Other arcane paths, such as the bonded summoner, deal with infusing magical energy into summoning spells to create a more perfect arcane cohort, but your way seeks the mastery of elemental cold. Using Primordial words of power, you have learned to enhance each summoned servitor with the essence of primordial ice.

This influx of wintery power is not confined to just those creatures you summon; it has also transformed your nature into something more elemental. You have adopted the innate abilities and resistance of primordial cold. Your skin, as well as the outward appearance of your summoned creatures, takes on an ice-blue pallor, and your hair becomes a shock of snow-white strands. Even your arcane flames burn with a rimefire blue color.

Rimetongue Caller Path Features

Winter's Embrace (11th level): You and your summoned creatures gain resist 3 cold; any existing resistance to cold instead increases by 3. This resistance stacks with other resistance to cold granted by powers or effects.

At 21st level, this resistance improves to 5 (or increases by 5).

DAN SCOTT

Blizzard's Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, each enemy adjacent to you takes 5 cold damage and is slowed until the end of your next turn.

At 21st level, the cold damage increases to 10.

Frostbite Summoning (16th level): Creatures you summon gain the frostbite aura, described below.

Frostbite (Cold) aura 1; each creature that ends its turn within the aura takes 10 cold damage.

Rimetongue Caller Spells

Wall of Winter — Rimetongue Caller Attack 11

Issuing words of Primordial from frost-covered lips, you conjure an unstable wall of elemental ice and wind.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Cold, Conjuration, Implement
Standard Action Area wall 5 within 20 squares

Effect: You conjure a wall of contiguous squares filled with frost and raging wind that lasts until the end of your next turn. The wall can be up to 4 squares high.

Each creature that starts its turn adjacent to the wall takes 1d8+ your Intelligence modifier cold damage. If a creature moves into the wall's space or starts its turn there, it takes 2d8 + your Intelligence modifier cold damage, and it is slowed (save ends). Entering a square occupied by the wall costs 1 extra square of movement. The squares occupied by the wall are heavily obscured, and the wall blocks line of sight.

Icy Calling — Rimetongue Caller Utility 12

You infuse your summoning with the essence of an ice mote of the Primordial Chaos.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Cold
Free Action Personal

Effect: The next creature you summon before the end of your turn is immune to cold and deals 1d6 extra cold damage with each attack.

Summon Rimefire Brute — Rimetongue Caller Attack 20

A giant of carved ice and frostfire strides from an elemental gateway, and your enemies tremble with cold and fear.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Cold, Implement, Summoning
Minor Action Ranged 20

Effect: You summon a Large rimefire brute in an unoccupied 2-square-by-2-square space within range. The rimefire brute has reach 2 and a speed of 5. It has a +2 bonus to AC and a +4 bonus to Fortitude. You can give the rimefire brute the following special commands.

✦ Standard Action: Reach 2; targets one creature; Intelligence vs. AC; 2d10 + Intelligence modifier cold damage, and the target is knocked prone.

✦ Standard Action (1/encounter): Close blast 3; targets each creature in blast; Intelligence vs. Fortitude; 2d8 + Intelligence modifier cold damage, and the target is immobilized (save ends).

✦ Opportunity Attack: Intelligence vs. AC; 2d10 + Intelligence modifier cold damage.

Special: The frostbite aura of a rimefire brute you summon has a range of 2 squares instead of 1.

Unseen Mage

"Have you ever met someone who wasn't there?"

Prerequisite: Wizard

To see but go unseen, to affect the world but remain unaffected by it—this ability is at the heart of true magical power. Thus you have devoted yourself to the art of invisibility, rendering your body as transparent as a window without smear or blemish, through which no hint of your presence can be detected. You are an unseen mage; there is no stopping you. Or, more important, seeing you.

Since you can vanish with great alacrity and facility, you must learn to watch your step to avoid being trampled by your own allies. Even walking invisibly in the street requires constant vigilance, lest some carriage or palanquin unknowingly run you down. And with such great power comes the potential for abuse, against which you must be vigilant.

Unseen Mage Path Features

Enhanced Invisibility (11th level): Whenever you use an arcane power that turns you invisible, roll a d20 at the end of the invisibility's duration. On a roll of 10 or higher, you instead remain invisible until the end of your next turn or until you make an attack roll.

Unseen Action (11th level): When you use an action point to take an extra action, you become invisible until the end of your next turn.

Unseen Advantage (16th level): Whenever you use an aracne attack power and hit a target that cannot see you, you deal 1d6 extra damage to the target.

Unseen Mage Spells

Vanishing Act — Unseen Mage Attack 11

You strike, and in the wink of an eye, are gone.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Ranged 10
Target: One creature
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: 3d6 + Intelligence modifier psychic damage.
Effect: You become invisible until the start of your next turn.

Guillaume's Veil — Unseen Mage Utility 12

You make a series of mystical passes, and you and your companions fade from view.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Zone
Minor Action Close burst 2
Target: You and each ally in burst
Effect: The target gains invisibility until the end of your next turn or until he or she hits or misses with an attack. The burst creates a zone of invisibility that lasts until the end of your next turn. Whenever you or an ally ends his or her turn within the zone, that individual becomes invisible until the end of his or her next turn or until he or she hits or misses with an attack.
Sustain Minor: The zone persists. As a move action, you can move the zone 4 squares.

Vanishing Legion — Unseen Mage Attack 20

You sweep your hands and lash your enemies with a devastating attack, then collect its residual energy to cloak your allies.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Illusion, Implement, Psychic
Standard Action Area burst 1 within 10 squares
Target: Each creature in burst
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: 3d10 + Intelligence modifier psychic damage.
Miss: Half damage.
Effect: You and your allies within 10 squares become invisible to the target (save ends).

Guillaume the Unseen

Archmages are rare wonders of the wizardly profession; few mortals have both the drive and the luck to reach the heights of arcane spellcraft. And only one, Guillaume the Unseen, was so fascinated by the concept of invisibility that he retired to his sanctum sanctorum at the end of a long and storied career to focus on that type of magic. The fruit of his study sometimes makes its way into the world in the form of seemingly blank parchments bearing the Guillaume crest. Legends say that those who can reveal the pages' hidden messages can learn great secrets about invisibility.

FRANZ VOHWINKEL

Weaver of Chance

"There is no great design or higher purpose. All is happenstance."

Prerequisite: Wizard

You appreciate the cosmos for what it is: a senseless place where mad gods play, primordials cavort, and wizards can make their mark. You understand that the world and its echo planes are not the result of deliberate design but of uncounted eons of slow iteration.

In a universe where gods control the fate of souls, weave the threads of destiny, and embody overarching principles, few find your philosophy reasonable. Some might even think you mad. But you have no illusions about ultimate meaning or purpose. If anything, your morality is purer: You perform acts of goodness not because you follow a code or seek some greater purpose, but because you choose to do so.

Weaver of Chance Path Features

Channel Entropy (11th level): You can store and channel the entropic flux that surrounds you. This barely controlled chaos is represented by a pool of entropy points. Your pool has 0 entropy points at the end of a short rest or an extended rest. Whenever you roll a natural 20 on any d20 roll, you add 1 entropy point to this pool. Whenever you roll a natural 1 on any d20 roll, you subtract 1 entropy point from the pool (to a minimum of 0).

JASON ENGLE

Once per round, when you roll a d20 and dislike the result, you can spend any number of entropy points from your pool to gain a bonus to that roll of +1 per point spent. If you have spent entropy points since the start of your turn, you cannot spend more until the start of your next turn.

Entropic Action (11th level): When you spend an action point to take an extra action, you can roll a d6. If the roll is an even number, you add that many entropy points to your pool and teleport that many squares. If the roll is an odd number, you subtract that many entropy points from your pool (to a minimum of 0) and teleport an enemy within 5 squares of you that many squares.

Play the Odds (16th level): Once per encounter as a free action, before you make an attack roll using an arcane attack power, you can roll a d6 and add the result to that attack roll. If the attack hits, it deals 2d6 extra damage and you add entropy points to your pool equal to the d6 roll. If it misses, you take 2d6 + your Intelligence modifier damage, and you subtract entropy points from your pool equal to the d6 roll.

Weaver of Chance Spells

Entropic Reshuffling — Weaver of Chance Attack 11

You distort probability with ripples of randomness that flow through your enemies, causing them to behave unpredictably.

Encounter ✦ Arcane, Implement
Standard Action Close blast 5
Target: Each creature in blast
Attack: Intelligence vs. Will
Hit: 3d6 + Intelligence modifier damage. If you rolled an even number on the attack roll, you slide the target 3 squares. If you rolled an odd number on the attack roll, you push the target 3 squares.

Agency of Chance — Weaver of Chance Utility 12

You are shrouded by the essence of chance, which distorts every spell you cast.

Encounter ✦ Arcane
Minor Action Personal
Effect: Until the end of your next turn, you add 1 entropy point to your pool whenever you roll a natural 10 or higher on a d20, and you subtract 1 entropy point from your pool whenever you roll a natural 9 or lower on a d20.

Random Spell — Weaver of Chance Attack 20

You tap into the random forces of the cosmos to make something happen. What that might be, not even you know.

Daily ✦ Arcane, Implement; Varies
Minor Action Personal
Effect: You gain a single use of one of the following wizard powers. Roll a d6 to determine the power from the list below. Alternatively, you can spend 2 entropy points to choose one of the powers on the list. You must use the power before the end of the encounter, or it is lost.

1—Prismatic beams
2—Acid wave
3—Cloudkill
4—Disintegrate
5—Evard's black tentacles
6—Prismatic spray

CHAPTER 6

Arcane Options

In the Dungeons & Dragons game, more options mean more fun. This chapter focuses on expanding the choices that allow you to customize your arcane character. With few exceptions (such as the multiclass feats), the options here are solely for such PCs.

Many characters of an arcane bent are especially fond of collecting rituals, whether in books or on scrolls, to expand their magical repertoire. And like any other character, your arcane character is likely interested in discovering new feats. What arcane character won't at least consider the idea of having a familiar, a magical entity to serve as one's faithful friend? Last but not least, every character who survives long enough might eventually gravitate to a special destiny, perhaps one of epic proportions.

This chapter includes the following material.

- New Feats: A feat improves an ability, power, feature, or trait you already have, and a few provide abilities that are characteristic of other classes.
- Familiars: A familiar is a spirit you have allied with and beome the master of. All familiars possess some amount of arcane knowledge.
- Epic Destinies: An epic destiny isn't merely about acquiring even more power. It is more about defining your place in the universe. This chapter offers several more epic destinies for your arcane character to choose from.
- Tomes: A tome is a thick book packed with arcane knowledge about the casting of spells. Some classes can use tomes as implements.
- Rituals: Complex ceremonies that create magical effects not designed for combat, rituals can be performed by a wide variety of classes. However, the rituals described in this book are best suited to arcane characters. The Player's Handbook covers the basics of ritual casting; the rituals described in this chapter further expand your capabilities.
- Arcane Backgrounds: This section provides several brief character backgrounds you can use or adapt to your own arcane character.

NEW FEATS

Feats offer a remarkable opportunity to customize your character. These feats focus on arcane activity and providing interesting options for arcane characters.

You must meet a feat's prerequisites, if any, to take the feat. If you ever lose a prerequisite for a feat (for example, if you use the retraining system to replace training in a prerequisite skill with training in a different skill), you can't use that feat thereafter. A feat that has a class as a prerequisite is available only to members of that class, including characters who have joined the class through a class-specific multiclass feat.

Familiar Feats

Familiar feats give arcane characters the ability to gain a special type of spirit companion that accompanies them as a friend and cohort. Some of these feats have powers associated with them, which follow the feat description. The complete rules for familiars and the associated feats are found beginning on page 137.

Heroic Tier Feats

Any feat in this section is available to a character of any level who meets the prerequisites. Heroic tier feats and multiclass feats are the only feats you can take if you are 10th level or lower.

Accursed Coordination

Prerequisite: Warlock, Warlock's Curse class feature

Benefit: You can place your Warlock's Curse on a creature that is already affected by another character's Warlock's Curse. In addition, you have combat advantage against any creature affected by more than one Warlock's Curse.

Arcane Fire

Prerequisite: Int 13, any arcane class

Benefit: When you hit a target with an arcane fire power, that target gains vulnerable 5 cold against the first arcane attack power you use against it before the end of your next turn.

Arcane Fury

Prerequisite: Half-orc, any arcane class

Benefit: When you use your furious assault racial power to deal extra damage to the target of an area or close arcane power, you deal the extra damage to all targets you hit with the power, not just one.

Arcane Implement Proficiency

Prerequisite: Any arcane class

Benefit: Choose a kind of implement associated with any arcane class other than your own. You can use that kind of implement with your arcane powers.

If that implement is also a weapon, you do not add the weapon's proficiency bonus to attack rolls made while you wield it as an implement.

Arcane Reserves

Prerequisite: Human, any arcane class

Benefit: If all your arcane encounter attack powers are expended, you gain a +2 bonus to damage rolls with your arcane at-will attack powers until the end of the encounter or until you regain the use of one of your arcane encounter attack powers.

Careful Summoner

Prerequisite: Con 13, wizard

Benefit: Creatures created by your arcane summoning powers gain a +1 bonus to all defenses.

Closing Advantage

Prerequisite: Swordmage

Benefit: When you use a ranged or area swordmage attack power and hit an enemy, you gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls and damage rolls with melee swordmage attack powers until the end of your next turn.

Combat Casting

Prerequisite: Swordmage

Benefit: When you use a melee swordmage attack power and hit an enemy, your ranged and area swordmage attack powers don't provoke opportunity attacks until the end of your next turn.

Combat Virtuoso

Prerequisite: Bard

Benefit: When you use any attack power gained through a multiclass feat, paragon multiclassing, or the half-elf's Dilettante racial feature, you can use Charisma for the power's attack rolls rather than the ability score normally used to make the attack. You still determine damage normally.

Curse of Io's Blood

Prerequisite: Dragonborn, warlock, Warlock's Curse class feature

Benefit: While you are bloodied, you add 1 + your Strength modifier to the damage dealt by your Warlock's Curse.

Cursed Advantage

Prerequisite: Drow, warlock, Warlock's Curse class feature

Benefit: You gain combat advantage against bloodied enemies cursed by you.

Darkfire Implement

Prerequisite: Drow, any arcane class

Benefit: When you hit a target with your darkfire racial power and you are wielding an implement usable by your arcane class, your darkfire also deals damage to that target equal to twice the implement's enhancement bonus.

Destructive Wizardry

Prerequisite: Dex 13, wizard

Benefit: When you use an arcane attack power and hit two or more creatures, you gain a +2 bonus to that power's damage rolls.

This bonus increases to +3 at 11th level and to +4 at 21st level.

Dooming Action

Prerequisite: Warlock, Warlock's Curse class feature

Benefit: When you spend an action point to take an extra action and you have already dealt your Warlock's Curse extra damage during your current turn, you can deal the extra damage a second time during this turn.

Draconic Spellcaster

Prerequisite: Dragonborn, any arcane class

Benefit: You gain a +1 feat bonus to attack rolls when you use an arcane power that deals the same damage type as your breath weapon. The bonus increases to +2 at 15th level and to +3 at 25th level.

Empowering Shadows

Prerequisite: Warlock, Shadow Walk class feature

Benefit: When you have concealment from your Shadow Walk, you gain a +1 bonus to damage rolls.

Dual Implement Spellcaster

Prerequisite: Dex 13, any arcane class

Benefit: When you use an arcane attack power and you are wielding a magic implement in each hand, you can add the off-hand implement's enhancement bonus to damage rolls.

Both of your implements must be usable with this power, and you must be capable of wielding both implements, to gain this benefit.

Eladrin Sword Wizardry

Prerequisite: Dex 13, eladrin, wizard

Benefit: You can wield a longsword as an implement when using wizard powers. Your longsword adds its enhancement bonus to attack rolls and damage rolls and any extra damage granted by a property (if applicable) when used as an implement. You do not gain your weapon proficiency bonus to the attack roll when you use your longsword as an implement.

If you have any feats or class features that apply a benefit when you wield a wand, you can also apply these benefits when you wield a longsword. If such benefits apply to attacks, they apply only when you use the longsword as an implement for a wizard attack power.

Eladrin Swordmage Advance

Prerequisite: Eladrin, swordmage

Benefit: When you use your fey step racial power to teleport to a square adjacent to an enemy, you can make a melee basic attack against that enemy as a free action.

Elemental Blade Attunement

Prerequisite: Genasi, swordmage

Benefit: When you use a swordmage power that has the acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder keyword, you gain a +1 feat bonus to damage rolls.

This bonus increases to +2 at 11th level and to +3 at 21st level.

Elemental Echo

Prerequisite: Genasi, any arcane class

Benefit: When you use the genasi racial power associated with your elemental manifestation, you gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls and a +2 bonus to damage rolls with arcane powers until the end of your next turn. The bonus to damage rolls increases to +4 at 11th level and to +6 at 21st level.

Elemental Empowerment

Prerequisite: Genasi, wizard

Benefit: When you use a wizard power that has the acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder keyword, you add your Strength modifier to damage rolls.

Elven Arcane Precision

Prerequisite: Elf, any arcane class

Benefit: You can use your elven accuracy racial power to reroll the attack rolls of a single arcane attack power against every target you choose.

Enlarge Spell

Prerequisite: Wis 13, wizard

Benefit: Before using an arcane attack power, you can choose to take a -2 penalty to each die of damage rolled with the power to increase the size of its blast or its burst by 1.

You can't use this feat on a power that doesn't roll dice for damage.

HEROIC TIER FEATS

| Any Arcane Class | Prerequisite | Benefit |
|---|---|---|
| Arcane Fire | Int 13, any arcane class | Target hit with fire power gains vulnerability to cold |
| Arcane Fury | Half-orc, any arcane class | Deal extra furious assault damage to multiple targets |

|---|---|---|
| Focusing Spellfury | Sorcerer | +2 to damage after hitting multiple foes with at-will power |
| Rising Spellfury | Sorcerer | +1 to attack after hitting single enemy with at-will power |
| Sorcerous Assassin | Drow, sorcerer | +2 to damage with poison or psychic powers, +1 Stealth |
| Student of the Cosmos | Sorcerer, Cosmic Magic | Gain additional benefit based on your current phase |
| Tempest Magic | Sorcerer, Con 13, Dex 13, Storm Magic | Extra damage with lightning or thunder powers |
| Triggered Chaos | Halfling, sorcerer, Wild Magic | Shift or slide an enemy after using second chance |
| True Dragon's Soul | Dragonborn, sorcerer, Dragon Magic | +1 to defenses after being bloodied, breath weapon ignores resistance |
| Warding Soul | Half-elf, sorcerer, Spell Source | Adjacent allies gain your resistances |

Extended Prescience

Prerequisite: Bard, Virtue of Prescience class feature

Benefit: When you use your Virtue of Prescience to grant a power bonus to an ally's defense, that bonus lasts until the end of the ally's next turn.

Fanged Magic

Prerequisite: Longtooth shifter, any arcane class

Benefit: Each time you hit with a ranged arcane attack power while you are under the effect of your longtooth shifting racial power, one enemy adjacent to the target takes 2 damage. This damage increases to 4 at 11th level and to 6 at 21st level.

| Swordmage Feat | Prerequisite | Benefit |
|---|---|---|
| Closing Advantage | Swordmage | +1 to melee attacks and damage after hitting with a ranged or area power |
| Combat Casting | Swordmage | Ranged and area attacks don't provoke after hitting with a melee power |
| Eladrin Swordmage Advance | Eladrin, swordmage | Make basic attack after fey step |
| Elemental Blade Attunement | Genasi, swordmage | +1 to damage with acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder powers |
| Grasping Ensnarement | Swordmage, aegis of ensnarement | Target of aegis is slowed |

| Empowering Shadows | Warlock, Shadow Walk | +1 to damage when you have concealment |
| Reckless Curse | Human, warlock, Warlock's Curse | +1 to attack against cursed creatures |
| Vengeful Curse | Tiefling, warlock, Warlock's Curse | Curse enemy that hits you as immediate reaction |
| Vestige Adept | Warlock, Vestige Pact | Change your vestige after pact boon is triggered |

| Wizard Feat | Prerequisite | Benefit |
|---|---|---|
| Careful Summoner | Con 13, wizard | Summoned creatures gain +1 to defenses |
| Destructive Wizardry | Dex 13, wizard | +2 to damage if you hit two or more creatures |
| Eladrin Sword Wizardry | Dex 13, eladrin, wizard | Use longsword as implement with wizard powers |
| Elemental Empowerment | Genasi, wizard | Add Strength modifier to damage with keyword powers |
| Enlarge Spell | Wis 13, wizard | -2 to damage to increase size of blast or burst |
| Gnome Phantasmist | Gnome, wizard | +1 to attack and damage with illusion powers |
| Phantom Echoes | Cha 13, wizard | Gain combat advantage against target hit by illusion power |
| Remembered Wizardry | Wis 13, deva, wizard | Add additional daily and utility powers to spellbook |

Feyborn Charm

Prerequisite: Eladrin or gnome, bard

Benefit: When you use an arcane charm power, you gain a +1 feat bonus to attack rolls and damage rolls. The bonus increases to +2 at 15th level and to +3 at 25th level.

You also gain a +1 feat bonus to Bluff checks and Diplomacy checks.

Focusing Spellfury

Prerequisite: Sorcerer

Benefit: When you use a sorcerer at-will attack power and hit two or more enemies, you gain a +2 bonus to damage rolls with ranged and melee attack powers until the end of your next turn.

Friendly Deception

Prerequisite: Bard, words of friendship power

Benefit: When you use words of friendship, you can apply the power bonus to a Bluff check instead of a Diplomacy check.

Gnome Phantasmist

Prerequisite: Gnome, wizard

Benefit: When you use an arcane illusion power, you gain a +1 feat bonus to attack rolls and damage rolls. The bonus increases to +2 at 15th level and to +3 at 25th level.

Grasping Ensnarement

Prerequisite: Swordmage, aegis of ensnarement power

Benefit: When you use aegis of ensnarement to teleport an enemy, that enemy is also slowed until the end of your next turn.

Immortal Warding

Prerequisite: Deva, swordmage, Swordmage Warding class feature

Benefit: Your Swordmage Warding remains active even while you are unconscious.

Add the bonus to AC granted by your Swordmage Warding to the necrotic resistance and radiant resistance granted by your Astral Resistance racial trait.

Improved Swordmage Warding

Prerequisite: Dex 13, swordmage, Swordmage Warding class feature

Benefit: While you are wearing cloth armor, leather armor, or no armor, the bonus to AC from your Swordmage Warding increases by 1.

Infernal Clamor

Prerequisite: Tiefling, bard

Benefit: When you use your infernal wrath racial power, each of your allies who can see you gains a +1 power bonus to his or her next attack roll against the enemy that hit you.

Infuriating Escape

Prerequisite: Halfling, bard

Benefit: When you use your second chance racial power and the enemy's second attack roll misses you, that enemy grants combat advantage to the next one of your allies that attacks it before the end of your next turn.

Magic of the Ages

Prerequisite: Deva, any arcane class

Benefit: When you use your memory of a thousand lifetimes racial power to add to the attack roll of an arcane power, you gain a +1 bonus to the triggering roll.

Magic of the Mists

Prerequisite: Gnome, any arcane class

Benefit: When you use your fade away racial power, making an attack with an arcane power does not end the effect.

Mountain Hammer Spellcasting

Prerequisite: Goliath, any arcane class

Benefit: When you use your stone's endurance racial power, your arcane powers ignore your enemies' resistances until the end of your next turn.

Nimble Spellcaster

Prerequisite: Halfling, Dex 13, any arcane class

Benefit: When you use an area arcane power, you do not provoke opportunity attacks from the creatures you target with that power.

Phantom Echoes

Prerequisite: Cha 13, wizard

Benefit: When you use an arcane illusion power and hit a target, you gain combat advantage against that target until the end of your next turn. If the illusion power has an effect that a save can end, you instead gain combat advantage against the target until it saves against that effect.

Predatory Magic

Prerequisite: Razorclaw shifter, any arcane class

Benefit: When you use a close arcane attack power while you are under the effect of your razorclaw shifting racial power, you can shift 1 square as a free action before or after using the power.

Prescient Fortification

Prerequisite: Bard, Virtue of Prescience class feature

Benefit: When you use your Virtue of Prescience to grant a power bonus to an ally, increase that bonus by 2.

Reckless Curse

Prerequisite: Human, warlock, Warlock's Curse class feature

Benefit: You gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls against creatures affected by your Warlock's Curse, and creatures affected by your Warlock's Curse gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls against you.

Remembered Wizardry

Prerequisite: Wis 13, deva, wizard

Benefit: Choose one wizard daily attack power and one wizard utility power of every level you know. Add these powers to your spellbook.

Each time you gain a new level of wizard daily attack powers or wizard utility powers, you learn one extra power of that level.

This feat doesn't change the number of daily attack powers or utility powers you can prepare each day.

Rising Spellfury

Prerequisite: Sorcerer

Benefit: When you use a sorcerer at-will attack power and hit only one enemy, you gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls with area and close attack powers until the end of your next turn.

Risky Aegis

Prerequisite: Human, swordmage, Swordmage Aegis class feature

Benefit: When you use the immediate action effect of your Swordmage Aegis against a target marked by you, that target gains combat advantage against you until the end of its next turn, and you gain a +2 bonus to attack rolls and damage rolls against that target until the end of your next turn.

Rousing Voice

Prerequisite: Human, bard

Benefit: When an ally within 10 squares of you uses second wind, he or she gains also temporary hit points equal to your Charisma modifier.

Rune-Scribed Soul

Prerequisite: Dwarf, any arcane class

Benefit: When you use your second wind, you gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls and a bonus to damage equal to your Constitution modifier with arcane powers you use before the end of your turn.

Sorcerous Assassin

Prerequisite: Drow, sorcerer

Benefit: When you have combat advantage against a target, you gain a +2 feat bonus to damage rolls against that target when you use sorcerer powers that have the poison or psychic keyword. This bonus increases to +4 at 11th level and to +6 at 21st level.

You also gain a +1 feat bonus to Stealth checks.

Student of the Cosmos

Prerequisite: Sorcerer, Cosmic Magic class feature

Benefit: You gain an additional benefit based on your current phase in the cosmic cycle.

Phase of the Sun: You gain a +2 feat bonus to initiative checks and Heal checks.

Phase of the Moon: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Bluff checks and Stealth checks.

Phase of the Stars: You gain a +2 feat bonus to Insight checks and Perception checks.

Tempest Magic

Prerequisite: Sorcerer, Con 13, Dex 13, Storm Magic class feature

Benefit: When you use an arcane power that has the lightning or thunder keyword, you gain a +1 feat bonus to damage rolls. While you are bloodied, this bonus becomes +2.

At 11th level, this bonus increases to +2 (or +4 when bloodied). At 21st level, it increases to +3 (or +6 when bloodied).

STEVE ELLIS

Triggered Chaos

Prerequisite: Halfling, sorcerer, Wild Magic class feature

Benefit: When you use your second chance racial power, you gain an additional benefit based on the result of the reroll. If the enemy's reroll is an even number, you can slide the enemy 1 square after the attack. If the enemy's reroll is an odd number, you can shift 1 square after the attack.

True Dragon's Soul

Prerequisite: Dragonborn, sorcerer, Dragon Magic class feature

Benefit: The first time you become bloodied during an encounter, you gain a +1 bonus to Fortitude, Reflex, and Will until the end of the encounter.

If your breath weapon deals the same type of damage as the resistance granted by your Dragon Soul, your breath weapon ignores all targets' resistance to that damage type up to the value of your resistance.

Twist the Arcane Fabric

Prerequisite: Eladrin, any arcane class

Benefit: Before you use an area or close arcane power, you can use a free action to expend your fey step racial power to teleport an ally rather than yourself. If you do so, select one ally within the area of effect targeted by the arcane power and teleport that ally 3 squares.

Vengeful Curse

Prerequisite: Tiefling, warlock, Warlock's Curse class feature

Benefit: When an enemy hits you, you can use your Warlock's Curse as an immediate reaction against that enemy, even if it is not the enemy nearest to you.

Vestige Adept

Prerequisite: Warlock, Vestige Pact class feature

Benefit: When your vestige pact boon is triggered, as a free action you can choose to change your active vestige to any other vestige that has been an active vestige for you since your last short rest or extended rest.

Warding Soul

Prerequisite: Half-elf, sorcerer, Spell Source class feature

Benefit: Each ally adjacent to you gains any resistance granted by your Spell Source.

Wrathful Magic

Prerequisite: Tiefling, any arcane class

Benefit: When you miss with an arcane attack power, you can use your infernal wrath racial power as a free action. You gain the benefits of infernal wrath against the target you missed, instead of against an enemy that hit you since your last turn. Treat that target as the enemy that hit you for the purpose of other feats and abilities that modify the effects of infernal wrath.

Paragon Tier Feats

A character must be at least 11th level to select any of the feats in the following section.

Arcane Admixture

Prerequisite: 11th level, any arcane class

Benefit: Choose one arcane power that you know, and choose acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder. The power now deals that damage type in addition to its normal damage type and gains that keyword.

Each time you gain a level, you can choose to reassign either the power to which this feat's effect applies or the additional damage type applied (or both).

Special: You can take this feat more than once. Each time you select this feat, choose a different power. You can't apply this feat to the same power more than once.

Arcane Ritualist

Prerequisite: 11th level, any arcane class

Benefit: Choose a ritual that you know. Change the key skill of that ritual to Arcana and gain a +2 bonus to skill checks made as part of that ritual.

Each time you learn a new ritual, you can change the ritual affected by this feat to the newly learned ritual.

Special: You can select this feat more than once. Each time you select this feat, choose a different ritual.

Cosmic Spellfury

Prerequisite: 11th level, sorcerer, Cosmic Magic class feature

Benefit: Whenever you hit at least one enemy with a sorcerer at-will attack power, you gain a benefit based on your current phase in the cosmic cycle. This benefit applies after the attack is resolved.

Phase of the Sun: You can roll a saving throw.

Phase of the Moon: You gain concealment until the end of your next turn.

Phase of the Stars: You become insubstantial until the end of your next turn or until you are hit by an attack.

Disheartening Presence

Prerequisite: 11th level, bard

Benefit: While you are conscious and not bloodied, bloodied enemies adjacent to you take a -1 penalty to attack rolls.

Ensnaring Flourish

Prerequisite: 11th level, swordmage, aegis of ensnarement power

Benefit: When you use aegis of ensnarement to teleport an enemy, you gain a +5 bonus to damage rolls on melee attacks against that enemy until the end of your next turn.

Greater Aegis of Shielding

Prerequisite: 11th level, swordmage, aegis of shielding power

Benefit: When you use your aegis of shielding to reduce the damage from an enemy's attack, you reduce the damage by an additional 5 points.

Greater Swordmage Warding

Prerequisite: 11th level, Str 13, Con 13, swordmage, Swordmage Warding class feature

Benefit: While your Swordmage Warding is active, you gain a +1 feat bonus to all defenses.

At 21st level, this bonus increases to +2.

Improved Orb of Deception

Prerequisite: 11th level, Cha 15, wizard, Orb of Deception class feature

Benefit: While you wield an orb, any creature you hit with an arcane illusion power grants combat advantage to your next ally who attacks it before the start of your next turn.

Improved Orb of Imposition

Prerequisite: 11th level, Wis 15, wizard, Orb of Imposition class feature

Benefit: Each time a creature you have designated with your Orb of Imposition fails a saving throw against the effect you have specified, it takes damage equal to 5 + your Wisdom modifier.

Improved Staff of Defense

Prerequisite: 11th level, Con 13, Dex 13, wizard, Staff of Defense class feature

Benefit: While you wield a staff, you gain a +1 bonus to Fortitude, Reflex, and Will.

Improved Tome of Binding

Prerequisite: 11th level, Con 15, wizard, Tome of Binding class feature

Benefit: While you wield a tome, creatures created by your arcane summoning powers appear with 10 temporary hit points.

Improved Tome of Readiness

Prerequisite: 11th level, Con 13, Wis 13, wizard, Tome of Readiness class feature

Benefit: After you prepare your daily and utility wizard powers after an extended rest, choose one daily or utility power in your spellbook that you didn't prepare and store this power in your tome.

WOODROW J. HINTON III

PARAGON TIER FEATS

| Any Arcane Class | Prerequisite | Benefit |
|---|---|---|
| Arcane Admixture | Any arcane class | Add additional damage type to one arcane power |
| Arcane Ritualist | Any arcane class | Change the key skill of a ritual to Arcana |

| Bard Feat | Prerequisite | Benefit |
|---|---|---|
| Disheartening Presence | Bard | Adjacent enemies take -1 to attacks |
| Majestic Rescue | Bard, majestic word | Grant target of majestic word a saving throw |
| Prescient Aid | Bard, Virtue of Prescience | Ally gains bonus to one attack roll |
| Song of Inspiration | Bard, Song of Rest | You and allies can spend a healing surge to gain temporary hit points |

| Sorcerer Feat | Prerequisite | Benefit |
|---|---|---|
| Cosmic Spellfury | Sorcerer, Cosmic Magic | Gain additional benefit based on your current phase |
| Sorcerous Reserves | Sorcerer | +1 to attacks when all daily powers are expended |
| Sorcerous Vision | Sorcerer | Substitute Arcana check for Perception or Insight |
| Storm Spellfury | Sorcerer, Storm Magic | Fly 2 squares after hitting with at-will power |

| Swordmage Feat | Prerequisite | Benefit |
|---|---|---|
| Greater Swordmage Warding | Str 13, Con 13, swordmage, Swordmage Warding | +1 to defenses with Swordmage Warding |
| Ensnaring Flourish | Swordmage, aegis of ensnarement | +5 to damage against teleported enemy |
| Greater Aegis of Shielding | Swordmage, aegis of shielding | Aegis reduces enemy's damage by additional 5 points |
| Vigorous Assault | Swordmage, aegis of assault | Gain temporary hp when you teleport |

| Warlock Feat | Prerequisite | Benefit |
|---|---|---|
| Relentless Curse | Warlock, Warlock's Curse | Use curse as free action when cursed enemy drops |
| Shared Pact | Warlock, Warlock's Curse, any warlock pact | Ally gains benefit of your pact boon |
| Vestige Versatility | Warlock, Vestige Pact | Access two vestiges at a time |

| Wizard Feat | Prerequisite | Benefit |
|---|---|---|
| Improved Orb of Deception | Cha 15, wizard, Orb of Deception | Creature hit with illusion power grants combat advantage |
| Improved Orb of Imposition | Wis 15, wizard, Orb of Imposition | Target that fails a saving throw takes extra damage |
| Improved Staff of Defense | Con 13, Dex 13, wizard, Staff of Defense | +1 to Fortitude, Reflex, and Will |
| Improved Tome of Binding | Con 15, wizard, Tome of Binding | Summoned creatures have 10 temporary hit points |
| Improved Tome of Readiness | Con 13, Wis 13, wizard, Tome of Readiness | Access spellbook power during an encounter |
| Improved Wand of Accuracy | Dex 15, wizard, Wand of Accuracy | Your arcane powers ignore cover |

Once per encounter as a free action, you can use this stored power by expending another unused wizard power of the appropriate type (daily or utility) of its level or higher. You must still take the normal action required to use the stored power.

Improved Wand of Accuracy

Prerequisite: 11th level, Dex 15, wizard, Wand of Accuracy class feature

Benefit: While you wield a wand, your arcane powers ignore enemies' cover (but not superior cover).

Majestic Rescue

Prerequisite: 11th level, bard, majestic word power

Benefit: When you use majestic word, you can grant the target a saving throw in addition to the other effects of the power.

Prescient Aid

Prerequisite: 11th level, bard, Virtue of Prescience class feature

Benefit: When an ally within 10 squares of you misses with an attack roll, you can use your Virtue of Prescience as an immediate interrupt. That ally gains a power bonus to the attack roll equal to your Wisdom modifier.

Relentless Curse

Prerequisite: 11th level, warlock, Warlock's Curse class feature

Benefit: When an enemy cursed by you is reduced to 0 hit points, you can use your Warlock's Curse as a free action.

Shared Pact

Prerequisite: 11th level, warlock, Warlock's Curse class feature, any warlock pact

Benefit: When your pact boon is triggered, you can designate an ally within 3 squares of you to receive the benefit of the pact boon instead of you.

Song of Inspiration

Prerequisite: 11th level, bard, Song of Rest class feature

Benefit: At the end of any rest during which you use your Song of Rest, you and each ally who can hear you can spend a healing surge. Each character who spends a healing surge in this manner gains temporary hit points equal to 5 + your Charisma modifier, instead of regaining hit points.

Sorcerous Reserves

Prerequisite: 11th level, sorcerer

Benefit: When you have expended all your sorcerer daily attack powers, you gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls with sorcerer at-will attack powers until you regain the use of one of your sorcerer daily attack powers.

Sorcerous Vision

Prerequisite: 11th level, sorcerer

Benefit: Whenever you would make a Perception check or an Insight check, you can make an Arcana check instead.

Storm Spellfury

Prerequisite: 11th level, sorcerer, Storm Magic class feature

Benefit: Whenever you use a sorcerer at-will attack power and hit at least one enemy, you can fly 2 squares as a free action after resolving the attack.

Vestige Versatility

Prerequisite: 11th level, warlock, Vestige Pact class feature

Benefit: Whenever you are allowed to change your vestige, you can choose to have two active vestiges instead of one. When your pact boon is triggered or when you use your eyes of the vestige power, you choose which vestige's benefit applies.

If you would ordinarily be required to choose between the two primary vestiges, this feat enables you to have both of them as active vestiges. If you use a daily attack power that gives you access to a new vestige, you can choose for that daily power vestige to replace either of your two active vestiges.

Vigorous Assault

Prerequisite: 11th level, swordmage, aegis of assault power

Benefit: When you use your aegis of assault to teleport, you gain temporary hit points equal to 3 + your Strength modifier.

Epic Tier Feats

The following feats are available only to characters of 21st level or higher.

Bard Implement Expertise

Prerequisite: 21st level, Con 15, Int 15, Cha 21, bard

Benefit: When you wield a bard implement while using an arcane power, you can score a critical hit on a roll of 19–20.

Binding Ensnarement

Prerequisite: 21st level, swordmage, aegis of ensnarement class feature

Benefit: When you use your aegis of ensnarement to teleport an enemy, that enemy is immobilized until the end of your next turn.

Charging Aegis

Prerequisite: 21st level, swordmage, Swordmage Aegis class feature

Benefit: When you use a charge attack and hit an enemy, you can use a free action (instead of a minor action) to mark that enemy with your Swordmage Aegis power, rather than ending your turn immediately. If you mark an enemy in this way, the penalty to attack rolls imposed by your mark is –3 instead of –2. After you use this free action, your turn ends.

Curse of Doom Ensured

Prerequisite: 21st level, warlock, Warlock's Curse class feature

Benefit: When you attack an enemy cursed by you, that enemy grants combat advantage to your next ally who attacks it before the start of your next turn.

Ephemeral Stride

Prerequisite: 21st level, warlock, Shadow Walk class feature

Benefit: While you have concealment from your Shadow Walk, you can move through enemy-occupied spaces and are treated as insubstantial against opportunity attacks.

EPIC TIER FEATS

| Any Arcane Class | Prerequisite | Benefit |
|---|---|---|
| Explosive Spellcasting | Any arcane class | Deal extra critical damage against any hit target |
| Quickened Spellcasting | Any arcane class | Use at-will power as minor action |
| Trusted Spellcasting | Any arcane class | Encounter power deals half damage on miss |

| Bard Feat | Prerequisite | Benefit |
|---|---|---|
| Bard Implement Expertise | Con 15, Int 15, Cha 21, bard | Score critical hit on 19 or 20 |
| Multiclass Mastery | Bard | Gain two multiclass feats |
| Prescient Resurgence | Bard, Virtue of Prescience | Regain Virtue of Prescience when you spend action point |
| Supreme Majesty | Cha 19, bard, majestic word | Target two creatures with majestic word |

| Sorcerer Feat | Prerequisite | Benefit |
|---|---|---|
| Fury of the Storm | Sorcerer, Storm Magic | Critical hit dice deal maximum damage |
| Master of the Cosmic Cycle | Sorcerer, Cosmic Magic | Choose your phase when it changes |
| Ruthless Spellfury | Sorcerer | Use at-will power as free action after critical hit |
| Sorcerer Implement Expertise | Str 15, Dex 15, Cha 21, sorcerer | Score critical hit on 19 or 20 |

| Swordmage Feat | Prerequisite | Benefit |
|---|---|---|
| Binding Ensnarement | Swordmage, aegis of ensnarement | Target of aegis is immobilized |
| Charging Aegis | Swordmage, Swordmage Aegis | Mark a target after charging |
| Extended Aegis | Swordmage, Swordmage Aegis | Extend range of aegis to 20 squares |
| Shared Warding | Swordmage, Swordmage Warding | Adjacent allies gain +1 to AC |

| Warlock Feat | Prerequisite | Benefit |
|---|---|---|
| Curse of Doom Ensured | Warlock, Warlock's Curse | Enemy grants combat advantage to next ally |
| Ephemeral Stride | Warlock, Shadow Walk | Move through enemy spaces as if insubstantial |
| Vestige Mastery | Warlock, Vestige Pact | Daily vestige becomes primary |
| Warding Curse | Warlock, Warlock's Curse | +2 to defenses against cursed creatures |
| Warlock Implement Expertise | Con 17, Cha 17, warlock | Score critical hit on 19 or 20 |

| Wizard Feat | Prerequisite | Benefit |
|---|---|---|
| Focused Wizardry | Wizard | +2 to attack against single creature in burst or blast area |
| Nightmare Wizardry | Cha 17, wizard | Target dazed after critical hit |
| Vengeful Summoner | Con 17, wizard | Summoned creatures deal damage when killed |
| Wizard Implement Expertise | Dex 15, Int 21, Wis 15, wizard | Score critical hit on 19 or 20 |

Explosive Spellcasting

Prerequisite: 21st level, any arcane class

Benefit: When you score a critical hit with an arcane area or close attack power and you are wielding an implement that deals extra damage on a critical hit, you can choose to deal that extra damage against any single target that you hit with the attack.

Extended Aegis

Prerequisite: 21st level, swordmage, Swordmage Aegis class feature

Benefit: You can use the immediate action of your Swordmage Aegis when the marked target is within 20 squares of you, instead of 10 squares.

Focused Wizardry

Prerequisite: 21st level, wizard

Benefit: When you use an arcane burst or blast attack power and only one creature is within the area of effect, you gain a +2 bonus to the attack roll.

Fury of the Storm

Prerequisite: 21st level, sorcerer, Storm Magic class feature

Benefit: When you score a critical hit with a sorcerer attack power, your critical hit extra damage dice automatically deal maximum damage.

Master of the Cosmic Cycle

Prerequisite: 21st level, sorcerer, Cosmic Magic class feature

Benefit: Each time you change your phase in the cosmic cycle, you can change it to either of the other two phases.

Multiclass Mastery
Prerequisite: 21st level, bard
Benefit: Gain two multiclass feats for which you meet the prerequisites.

Nightmare Wizardry
Prerequisite: 21st level, Cha 17, wizard
Benefit: When you score a critical hit with an arcane illusion power, the target is also dazed until the end of your next turn.

Prescient Resurgence
Prerequisite: 21st level, bard, Virtue of Prescience class feature
Benefit: When you spend an action point to gain an extra action, you also regain the use of your Virtue of Prescience.

Quickened Spellcasting
Prerequisite: 21st level, any arcane class
Benefit: Choose an arcane at-will attack power that is used as a standard action. Once per encounter, you can use that power as a minor action.

Ruthless Spellfury
Prerequisite: 21st level, sorcerer
Benefit: Once per turn when you score a critical hit with a sorcerer at-will attack power, you can use a sorcerer at-will attack power as a free action.

Shared Warding
Prerequisite: 21st level, swordmage, Swordmage Warding class feature
Benefit: While your Swordmage Warding is active, each ally adjacent to you gains a +1 bonus to AC.

Sorcerer Implement Expertise
Prerequisite: 21st level, Str 15, Dex 15, Cha 21, sorcerer
Benefit: When you wield a sorcerer implement while using an arcane power, you can score a critical hit on a roll of 19–20.

Supreme Majesty
Prerequisite: 21st level, Cha 19, bard, majestic word power
Benefit: When you use majestic word, you can affect two targets instead of one.

Trusted Spellcasting
Prerequisite: 21st level, any arcane class
Benefit: Choose one arcane encounter attack power that you know and that does not already deal damage on a miss. That power now deals half damage on a miss.

Vengeful Summoner
Prerequisite: 21st level, Con 17, wizard
Benefit: When a creature you create with an arcane summoning power is reduced to 0 hit points or fewer, each enemy adjacent to that creature takes damage equal to 2d10 + your Constitution modifier.

Vestige Mastery
Prerequisite: 21st level, warlock, Vestige Pact class feature
Benefit: Choose a warlock daily attack power that you know that grants access to a vestige. Add that vestige to your list of primary vestiges. You can now select this as your active vestige any time that you are allowed to change your vestige.

Each time you learn a new warlock daily attack power, you can change the vestige granted by this feat.

If you swap out the power with which this vestige is associated, you lose this feat's benefit until you reassign the benefit to a new warlock daily attack power that grants access to a vestige.

Warding Curse
Prerequisite: 21st level, warlock, Warlock's Curse class feature
Benefit: You gain a +2 bonus to all defenses against any creature currently affected by your Warlock's Curse.

Warlock Implement Expertise
Prerequisite: 21st level, Con 17, Cha 17, warlock
Benefit: When you wield a warlock implement while using an arcane power, you can score a critical hit on a roll of 19–20.

Wizard Implement Expertise
Prerequisite: 21st level, Dex 15, Int 21, Wis 15, wizard
Benefit: When you wield a wizard implement while using an arcane power, you can score a critical hit on a roll of 19–20.

Multiclass Feats
Some of these feats have paragon multiclassing in a particular class as a prerequisite. To qualify for such a feat, you must have chosen paragon multiclassing (Player's Handbook, page 209) in that class rather than taking a paragon path.

Arcane Aegis [Multiclass Swordmage]
Prerequisite: Any multiclass swordmage feat, paragon multiclassing as a swordmage
Benefit: Choose a Swordmage Aegis power. You can use that power once per encounter.

MULTICLASS FEATS

| Name | Prerequisites | Benefit |
|---|---|---|
| Arcane Aegis | Any multiclass swordmage feat, paragon multiclassing as a swordmage | Swordmage: Swordmage Aegis 1/encounter |

Benefit: You gain the bard's Song of Rest and Skill Versatility class features.

Heart of the Blade [Multiclass Swordmage]

Prerequisite: Con 13, Int 13

Benefit: You gain training in the Athletics skill or the Endurance skill.

You gain the swordmage's Swordbond class feature.

Implement Master [Multiclass Wizard]

Prerequisite: Any multiclass wizard feat, paragon multiclassing as a wizard

Benefit: You gain the wizard's Arcane Implement Mastery class feature.

Learned Spellcaster [Multiclass Wizard]

Prerequisite: Int 13, Wis 13

Benefit: You gain training in the Arcana skill, the Nature skill, or the Religion skill.

You gain the wizard's Ritual Casting class feature.

Sorcerous Power [Multiclass Sorcerer]

Prerequisite: Any multiclass sorcerer feat, paragon multiclassing as a sorcerer

Benefit: You gain a bonus to the damage rolls of arcane powers equal to your Strength modifier or your Dexterity modifier.

At 21st level, this bonus increases by 2.

Soul of Sorcery [Multiclass Sorcerer]

Prerequisite: Str 13, Cha 13

Student of Malediction [Multiclass Warlock]

Prerequisite: Con 13, Cha 13

Benefit: Once per encounter, you can use the Warlock's Curse class feature. The curse ends the first time you deal the extra damage from Warlock's Curse.

Walker in Gloom [Multiclass Warlock]

Prerequisite: Any multiclass warlock feat, paragon multiclassing as a warlock

Benefit: You gain the warlock's Shadow Walk class feature.

FAMILIARS

A familiar is a spirit that accompanies you as your friend and ally. It's not a real creature, and it doesn't need to eat or breathe. The most common type is a creature familiar—a spirit that takes the form of a little animal or monster.

Many consider a familiar and its master to be one and the same, and some familiars do act as mere extensions of their masters' wills. However, most familiars grow personalities all their own, and undertake the commands of their masters with individuality and, sometimes, attitude. All familiars have some amount of arcane knowledge.

GAINING A FAMILIAR

- You gain a familiar when you take the Arcane Familiar feat.

CHANGING YOUR FAMILIAR

- You gain a different familiar by retraining the Arcane Familiar feat and replacing your former companion with a different kind of familiar.

FAMILIAR ATTRIBUTES

- Attacks: A familiar can't attack.
- Defenses: A familiar uses your defenses.
- Skills and Checks: A familiar uses your bonuses for all skill checks and ability checks.
- Hit Points: A familiar has 1 hit point, but a missed attack never damages it.
- Destruction of a Familiar: If your familiar is reduced to 0 hit points or fewer, it is destroyed. After your next short rest or extended rest, it reappears in passive mode in your space.
- Death of a Familiar: Your familiar dies when you die, and it is restored to life when you are restored to life. After you are restored to life, your familiar reappears in passive mode in your space.
- Immunity: A familiar can't be hit by its master's attacks. You, as the master, can choose to ignore this benefit.
- Senses: Some familiars have special senses, such as blindsight or low-light vision. These apply to your familiar, not you.
- Communication: You and your familiar can speak to one another in a special arcane language. Other creatures hear only gibberish from you, and grunts and squeaks from your familiar. Your familiar doesn't understand other languages, but can parrot back what it hears, allowing you to understand anything it repeats back to you in a language you know.
- Size: Tiny.
- No Flanking: A familiar can't flank.
- Objects: Unless otherwise noted, a familiar cannot pick up or manipulate objects. This does not mean it ignores solid objects. It cannot walk through walls.

FAMILIAR MODES

- Switching Modes: You can switch your familiar between passive mode and active mode by using a minor action.
- Passive: A passive familiar is on your person, perching on your shoulder or hiding in your pocket. In this mode, it shares your space.

  No Targeting: A passive familiar can't be targeted by any effect.

  No Damage: A passive familiar cannot be damaged by any effect.
- Active: In its active mode, a familiar is not on your person, and you can move it around. It takes up the space of a Tiny creature.

  Movement: A familiar has a speed and movement modes. By using a move action, you can move your familiar its speed.

  Range Limit: Unless otherwise noted, a familiar can't move more than 20 squares away from you. If, at the end of your turn, your familiar is more than 20 squares away, it teleports into your square and enters passive mode.

  Actions: A familiar can use skills and take actions as normal, but you must use the relevant action to order it to do so. Your familiar does not have its own set of actions to use.

HOW DO FAMILIARS WORK?

The Arcane Familiar feat (see page 139) lets you choose a familiar. You can determine how your familiar looks, and suggest to your DM what sort of personality it has.

Familiars have two modes: active and passive. Both modes give you constant benefits, but you lose them if your familiar is destroyed. You can keep your familiar in passive mode to protect it. In active mode, your familiar can scout ahead or grant you special abilities described in its statistics block. You can control a familiar when it's in active mode by using your actions, but a familiar isn't a combatant. It can't attack on its own, and it vanishes for a while when it is destroyed.

Personality

Every familiar has an individual personality, despite the fact that it is a spirit and not a physical entity. A familiar tends to act in a way that reflects its master's personality. A power-hungry warlock's rat familiar might constantly seek out food to nibble on, while a secretive wizard might have a book imp that hides within the folds of his robes, its red eyes glowing from the shadows.

You might decide that your familiar's personality is simple and acquiescing, which makes it a perfectly trained servant. On the other hand, familiars that show a little initiative might also have an individualistic streak that makes them reluctant to follow all your commands, or at least reluctant to do so immediately if they believe they know better.

Although primarily a devoted servant, a familiar is an independent creature that can argue with its master, push for its own plans, and offer advice (whether or not it is needed or wanted). In the end, though, a familiar always obeys its master.

Your familiar's personality is ultimately up to you, since it is an extension of your character. Your DM might have some advice or suggestions, and he or she also has the authority to occasionally take the reins, describing what your familiar says and does when it disagrees with you.

A classic familiar personality, especially for a creature such as a dragonling or a book imp, is a superior "I know better than you" attitude that can generate interesting, unexpected ideas when one of these incorrigible creatures devises its own plans.

Roleplaying Your Familiar

Your DM might maintain some light touch of control over how your familiar acts, or might allow you to completely control it. However, since your familiar can communicate only with you (see "Communication," above), roleplaying your familiar's verbal skill to vex and delight others is not an option. On the other hand, having your familiar act or move in certain reactive ways gets across an idea you want the familiar to communicate just as effectively as the spoken word. However, limit the amount of time that you take up at the table during combat encounters describing the antics of your familiar. Other players might grow frustrated at the amount of time your character (and familiar) takes each time it is your turn.

Familiar Feats

Feats in this section are available to characters of any level, as long as they meet the prerequisites.

Arcane Familiar [Familiar]

Prerequisite: Any arcane class

Benefit: You gain a familiar. For each familiar feat you have beyond this one, your familiar gains a +1 bonus to its defenses.

Bonded Familiar [Familiar]

Prerequisite: Any arcane class, Arcane Familiar feat

Benefit: You and your familiar can communicate telepathically out to a range of 10 squares. You must have line of sight and line of effect to your familiar to communicate with it in this manner.

Shielding Familiar [Familiar]

Prerequisite: Any arcane class, Arcane Familiar feat, 6th-level or higher utility power

Benefit: The shielding familiar feat power replaces one of your 6th-level or higher utility powers.

Also, while your familiar is in its passive state, you gain a +1 bonus to Reflex.

Shielding Familiar Feat Power

Your familiar leaps to deflect an attack, sacrificing itself to save you.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Immediate Interrupt Personal
Requirement: Your familiar must be in its passive state.
Trigger: You are hit by an attack
Effect: The triggering attack deals only half damage to you, and your familiar is destroyed.

Spellseer Familiar [Familiar]

Prerequisite: Any arcane class, Arcane Familiar feat, 6th-level or higher utility power

Benefit: The spellseer familiar feat power replaces one of your 6th-level or higher utility powers.

While your familiar is in its active state, you gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls with arcane powers against targets adjacent to your familiar.

Spellseer Familiar Feat Power

Your familiar attracts your fruitlessly expended arcane energy, channeling power back to you to allow you to make another attempt.

Daily ✦ Arcane
Free Action Personal
Requirement: Your familiar must be in its active state.
Trigger: You miss a target with an arcane encounter attack power
Effect: Reroll the attack roll and use the new result, even if it is lower.

Customizing Familiar Appearance

Several different familiars are described in this section. Each one has a basic look, but that doesn't mean your familiar has to look like every other spellcaster's familiar, even if you choose something as common as a raven or a cat.

Within the realm of reason, you can customize your familiar to look like nearly anything, as long as the identity of the basic creature isn't lost. Your ability to customize your familiar's look and quirks is vast, but it can't change the familiar's combat ability or skill checks.

Just as you have the ability to customize how your familiar looks when it is active, you can also determine what happens when your familiar enters passive mode. It could do something more spectacular than simply climbing into a pouch.

For instance, perhaps your book imp discorporates into a puff of smoke and returns to apparent existence at the sound of its name. Your owl could become a small stone statue you carry with you, only to return to apparent flesh when you toss it to the ground. Imagine how you could impress your fellow adventurers if the tattoo on your arm suddenly unwound itself to become your serpent familiar. Or perhaps when you whistle, your falcon familiar flies down from an unseen height.

Familiar Descriptions

Each familiar description includes the benefits a familiar provides.

Constant Benefits: A familiar provides you with these benefits as long it has at least 1 hit point, regardless of its current state.

Active Benefits: When your familiar is in active mode, in addition to being able to take the actions available to it in that mode (see "Familiar Modes," above), it provides its active benefits.

Bat — Familiar

Bats are common familiars for warlocks and those who prefer subtle magic and stealth.

Senses blindsight 5
Speed 2, fly 6 (hover)

Constant Benefits

You gain a +2 bonus to Perception checks and Stealth checks.

Active Benefits

See the Unseen: As a minor action, you cause enemies adjacent to your bat familiar to lose the benefits of concealment (but not total concealment) against you until the end of your current turn.

Book Imp — Familiar

Book imps are masters of knowledge, dispatched by the powers of Hell to offer advice to and tempt mortal spellcasters.

Speed 5, fly 6 (hover)

Constant Benefits

You gain a +2 bonus to Arcana checks and History checks.
You can read and speak Infernal.
You gain resist fire 5. If you already have resist fire, increase your resistance by 2.

Active Benefits

Deceptive Move: As a minor action, you cause your book imp to become invisible until the end of your next turn.

Bound Demon — Familiar

This ugly blob of flesh is a creature bound to your service, but it would prefer to be back in the Abyss.

Speed 5, fly 3 (hover)

Constant Benefits

You gain a +2 bonus to Intimidate checks.
You can read and speak Abyssal.

Active Benefits

Alchemical Synergy: Once per encounter, when you hit a bloodied creature adjacent to your bound demon, you gain 1d8 temporary hit points.
Level 11: 2d8 temporary hit points.
Level 21: 3d8 temporary hit points.

Cat — Familiar

Cats are willful, independent familiars, and their willingness to act alone makes them excellent spies.

Senses low-light vision
Speed 6

Constant Benefits

You gain a +2 bonus to Acrobatics checks, and you can make an Acrobatics check to reduce the damage you take from falling even if you are not trained in that skill.

Active Benefits

Independent Spirit: A cat familiar has no range limit on the distance it can exist away from you.
Silent Predator: A cat familiar gains a +5 bonus to its Stealth checks.

Crafter Homunculus — Familiar

This humanoid figure has indistinct features and looks like it's made of clay. Arcane crafters use homunculi as skilled assistants.

Speed 5

Constant Benefits

You gain a +2 bonus to Arcana checks.
You gain a +2 bonus to skill checks related to rituals of the creation category.

Active Benefits

Blood Feast: An enemy adjacent to your crafter homunculus takes a -1 penalty to all defenses against alchemical items. Your crafter homunculus is immune to your alchemical items.

Dragonling — Familiar

Sorcerers who follow the draconic tradition, along with other spellcasters who rely on endurance and physical might, manifest dragonling familiars.

Speed 5, fly 6 (hover)

Constant Benefits

You can read and speak Draconic.
When you spend a healing surge, you regain 2 additional hit points.
Level 11: 3 additional hit points.
Level 21: 4 additional hit points.

Active Benefits

Dragon's Breath: Once per encounter, you can use your dragonling's space as the origin square for a close blast arcane attack power.

Falcon — Familiar

Warrior spellcasters, those that love to wade into the fray, see the fighting falcon as the ideal familiar.

Speed 2, fly 6 (hover)

Constant Benefits

You gain a +2 bonus to Perception checks.
You gain a +2 bonus to all defenses against opportunity attacks.

Active Benefits

Hunting Falcon: Once per encounter, you can determine range for your ranged arcane attacks from your falcon until the end of your current turn.
Soaring Spirit: A falcon familiar has a range limit of 40 squares from you.

Owl — Familiar

A common symbol of wisdom and knowledge, owl familiars are known for their good counsel and insight.

Senses low-light vision
Speed 2, fly 6 (hover)

Constant Benefits

Owl's Counsel: Whenever you make an Insight check or Perception check, add 1d4 to the result.

Active Benefits

Owl's Eyes: As a standard action, you can see through your familiar's eyes until the end of your next turn. You do not gain the ability to cast spells or attack through the familiar, and you determine if a target has cover and concealment from you as normal, but you might spot an enemy coming around a corner, or notice a foe hiding behind a wall.

Rat Familiar

The rat is a scavenger capable of infiltrating even the most tightly guarded places.

Speed 6

Constant Benefits

You gain a +2 bonus to Stealth checks.

Active Benefits

Rat's Cunning: A rat familiar can carry an object that weighs 2 pounds, and it can manipulate objects to make Thievery checks. It gains a +2 bonus to such checks. A rat gains a +5 bonus to its Stealth checks.

Raven Familiar

Ravens are known for their keen senses and skill in uncovering hidden knowledge.

Senses low-light vision

Speed 2, fly 6 (hover)

Constant Benefits

You gain a +4 bonus to Perception checks made to find hidden objects.

Active Benefits

Raven's Speech: A raven can speak any language you know, and it can converse with other creatures. When it speaks, you hear everything it says and hear everything spoken to it. You can dictate its answers if you so choose.

Serpent Familiar

The serpent is a deceptive creature, and it offers its master the same mastery of guile and cunning.

Speed 6

Constant Benefits

You gain a +2 bonus to Bluff checks.

When you shift, you can ignore 1 square of difficult terrain during that movement.

Active Benefits

Serpent's Startle: Once per encounter as a minor action, all creatures adjacent to your serpent familiar can't make opportunity attacks until the end of your next turn.

Spider Familiar

Spiders are guardians of hidden knowledge that weave webs capable of grabbing and moving small objects.

Speed 4, climb 4

Constant Benefits

You gain a +2 bonus to Climb checks.

Enemies take a -1 penalty to saving throws against your arcane powers that immobilize or slow them.

Active Benefits

Spider's Web: As a minor action, a spider can slide an object within 5 squares of it 2 squares. The object must be unattended, and it can weigh no more than 5 pounds.

FAMILIAR QUIRKS

Familiars are known for their exotic appearance and eccentric behavior. Come up with a few visual and personality quirks for your familiar, using these examples for inspiration.

Bat
- ✦ Has miniature metal spikes for fur
- ✦ Flies at people's faces to greet them

Book Imp
- ✦ Is translucent, except for glowing eyes
